After getting considerably sicker the last several days, my doctor insisted I get a PCR COVID test. An earlier rapid test was negative. I got the results of the PCR COVID test today and it was positive. I was surprised, but it makes sense because I have been the sickest I have been in years. I am would ask that the remittitur be stayed at this time until I am cleared to go back to work. I will go to my office over the weekend when no one will be there to just long enough to prepare a simple, but more formal petition. Thank you very much.
