Re: Michael J. Wallace v. Kent N. Cunningham
appellate case No. 2023-000861

Dear Mrs. Kitchings,

Rule 207

In your letter dated June 28, 2023 I discovered a mistake you made with the word "otherwise" in the statement "unless all parties agree in writing". You left it out and it changed the meaning of the whole letter making it null and void. Check your records and you'll see the mistake. No matter though; I couldn't order the transcript any way until the Respondent's counsel answered to that same sentence in writing plus the following sentence in the same manner. Then I will dutifully take this information and combine it with what I want to order and submit it to the reporter for a quote. I learned each page costs $4.25 and the reporter estimates the number of pages now (before the hearing). If it's done after the hearing he will naturally then know the exact number of pages and cost, so take your pick of the time to order. The respondent's counsel pays for what he wants and I pay for what I want and I do the ordering for both of us. There will be a additional charge for my service in this matter e.g. telephone calls, travel, copies, postage, this letter ($20.00), etc.

I await your reply,

Mike Wallace

P.S. Please send me a receipt for my $250.00 filing fee.
