Good morning,

I am working furiously to get you the replacement pleading I promised last week. I've had to move out of the room I'm transitioning into twice this past week for the last person to finish packing and moving their property.

When I initially emailed the clerk back last week about the financial affidavit, I apologize that I was distracted and did not initially thoroughly read the instructions about not replying to that e-mail address. After realizing I had accidentally violated the directive, my plan had been to enclose the new pleading including the updated P.O. BOX address I had promised (to attach it here).

However, on Wednesday, I received a page-long note from the prior tenant because I forgot to move the person's rocking chair back several feet (I had moved it to get it out of my way). The events surrounding my move have had me scattered.

I'm sorry I dropped the ball and didn't just send the updated P.O. BOX address to you here in this format, but I hadn't thought of that option because I am overwhelmed.

I am working hard to meet your criteria under difficult circumstances.

Something went awry with my laptop PC this past week. I then realized my Chromebook charger had been lost in the move, ordering another one which arrived yesterday. I didn't even see the clerk's email from Friday until this morning because of a Gmail display issue on my phone. My devices are older.

I have a functioning computer again now and am working to get you the updated pleading and accomplish everything else.

I am reaching out to the church to see if I can get some help with the completion of this project.

Thank you for your grace. I apologize for the delay.

Respectfully,
Mary Griffith

Good morning,

I apologize for not getting you the replacement pleading for the appeal last night as planned. The entire thing is stressful and the audio gave me a near panic attack. I needed to pray and get some rest. I will get you something based on the lack of service entirely today instead.

Have a wonderful day.

Good afternoon.

My replacement pleading for the attached appeal is going to come to you after 5:00 p.m. because I'm still checking it and making sure I've properly labeled the evidence. I also want to attach audio recording(s) of private security detail outlined in the lien because it proves that the action's pleadings contained intentional lies about me on the part of the Defendant, and so that the cause of fraud specifically by my opposition may also be considered in my appeal.

I will attach the indigency pleading and other documentation asking you to please hear everything relative to combined events as the evening progresses.

I apologize for the delays.

Good morning, again.

I see also that the "Respondent" in my notice and appeal needs to be listed as the judge -- and not the Defendant.

Sorry I made so many mistakes. I've never had to do this particular task before.

I believe the fact that I didn't receive notice of the dismissal until on/about the 13th when I seemingly first viewed it online (I also had a 2-day error reflecting the 15th in describing that event in the attached draft, as I've been moving) may give me until today to file the appeal anyway. I will have it corrected and to you ASAP today.

I'm doing my best and trying to avoid having to file a new lawsuit while seeking counsel to help.

Thank you.

Good evening,

My apologies that the Exhibit markings/attachments are incomplete. Please see extenuating circumstances in pleading. I wanted to get something to you by midnight tonight if possible, following up with the remainder of necessities.

Thanks in advance,
Mary A. Griffith
