INDEX OF EXHIBITS:

(There were no exhibits introduced.)

INDEX OF WITNESSES:

(There were no witnesses called.)

CHARLES DAVENPORT, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

THE COURT: All right, sir.

MR. GOLSON: Thank you, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Josh Golson for the State. Before you is Charles Davenport, Jr. Defense counsel is Joe McCullough and Kathy Schillaci from the private bar.

Mr. Davenport is here today to plead guilty to one count of felony DUI resulting in death on a true billed indictment. That's indictment number 2018-GS-40-08199.

There are no recommendations or negotiations in this matter with the exception of a predetermined agreement that he not receive credit for any pretrial detention while he's been on house arrest.

At the appropriate time, we'll go through in more detail, Judge. To make the Court aware, for the record, there are, of course, many people present. They're members of the victim's family, close friends and also many -- several members of his USC fraternity, and we will address their names and their statements at the appropriate time.

THE COURT: Is that right, Counsel?

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Times two?

MS. SCHILLACI: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Mr. Davenport, I have some questions to ask you, questions I'm sure you've already heard from your attorneys, or at least, discussions about those questions.

To this charge, Mr. Davenport, sir, how do you plead?

THE DEFENDANT: Guilty.

THE COURT: Have you had enough time to talk to your lawyers before today and today about what you're doing?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Have you told them everything you know about what happened?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: And have they shared with you all the information and evidence and discovery that they have gathered about your case?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are you satisfied with your lawyers?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Said differently or asked differently, do you have any complaints about your lawyers?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir.

THE COURT: Has anyone promised you anything to come to court today and plead guilty?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir.

THE COURT: Has anybody forced you or tricked you or made you come into court to plead guilty?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir.

THE COURT: Are you, therefore, pleading guilty freely and voluntarily?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are you today using, under the influence of, any medications, prescribed or otherwise, drugs or alcohol?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir.

THE COURT: Do you have a mental or physical illness that makes it difficult for you to understand what you're doing today?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir.

THE COURT: You stand before me with no recommendations. Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: And exposure, sir, would be how many years?

MR. GOLSON: The statute requires a mandatory minimum of one year and a maximum possible penalty of 25 years, as well as a mandatory fine in the range of $10,100 up to $25,100.

THE COURT: Did you hear that, Mr. Davenport?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. That's the range that I have to work with here today. Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Mr. Davenport, when you plead guilty today, as your lawyers have told you, you give up the right to remain silent on this charge, these accusations. Do you understand?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: You also give up the right to a jury trial. And you have been in the courtroom a while this morning, right?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: You've heard me talk about that, a jury trial?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: But to be sure, when you plead guilty, you give up that right to the jury trial. And in a jury trial, a jury could find you not guilty or guilty.

To find you guilty, that jury would have to be convinced that you were guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and the State would have to prove that. Do you understand?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: The jury verdict would have to be unanimous. Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: The Court would tell the jury that you are presumed innocent during that trial. No one could make you testify in your trial and the Court would tell the jury not to hold that against you.

Your lawyers could call people to testify on your behalf that could questionably testify against you. They could present your defenses to that jury, but none of that will happen today because you're pleading guilty. Do you understand?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: You have ten days to appeal the sentence of this Court and your guilty plea. Do you understand that?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. Now, I will hear from the State.

Sir?

MR. GOLSON: Thank you, Your Honor. May it please the Court. This incident occurred on November 15th of 2017 near the 1800 block of Rosewood Drive here in the city limits of Columbia in Richland County.

There was a collision at approximately 7:25 p.m. The defendant was driving -- I believe it was his father's 2000 GMC Sierra truck in the number two lane on Rosewood Drive, and just for the record purposes, number two lane would be the right-hand lane.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MR. GOLSON: There's two lanes going in both directions. He was going eastbound in the far right-hand lane.

Ahead of him, David Newell, the victim in this case, was driving a moped. The defendant came up upon him, struck him from behind with his truck, ejected him from the moped, dragged that moped along the roadway. Ultimately, both vehicles collided with a tree off the right-hand side of the roadway. David Newell's body was thrown into the number one lane.

I haven't labeled them, but to give the Court a better picture of what's happening -- and I've shown these photographs to defense counsel. I can hand copies up to the court reporter, as necessary.

In this first photograph, it shows the hill on Rosewood Drive. What we're looking at is the number two lane here on the right, and the collision scene with the tree at the top of the hill, sort of near the crest of the hill.

A witness to the collision, Jake Shapiro, provided a statement to the investigating officers from the Columbia Police Department shortly thereafter, about an hour after the collision occurred.

Mr. Shapiro was driving in the number one lane, which is closest -- as you can see in the photograph, closest to the raised median that divides Rosewood Drive.

Mr. Shapiro reported that he saw the defendant's truck overtake him first from behind in the number two lane at a very high rate of speed, which he himself estimated to be approximately 70 miles per hour. He then saw the truck lose control. He said it sparked up, left the roadway and struck a tree.

He pulled over to -- off the roadway, got out and saw that another witness to the collision was already calling 9-1-1. Then he saw David Newell's body lying in the number one lane.

Subsequent to that 9-1-1 call, officers from the Columbia Police Department responded to the scene, as well as members of fire department and emergency services.

Both the victim, David Newell, as well as the defendant were both transported to Richland Memorial Hospital, although the victim was already unresponsive at the scene at that time.

CPD officers, including Corporal Wilder, Daniel Wilder, who is present with me in the courtroom today to my left went to this scene, and then went to the hospital to continue their investigation into the circumstances surrounding the collision. There they learned that the defendant was likely to have been grossly intoxicated at the time of the collision.

Accordingly, Corporal Wilder and other officers in the Columbia Police Department sought and obtained three separate search warrants. The first was for the blood taken upon the defendant's admission to the hospital. The second was for a search warrant for a separate blood sample that was taken from the defendant's person in the presence of law enforcement. And a third was a search warrant for the data from the defendant's air bag control module in the vehicle, the device that records collision data and is activated upon such circumstances.

Some time after that, the defendant was also able to regain consciousness. Officers attempted to interview him. He did initially admit to being at a friend's house prior to driving and getting in the collision, but post Miranda would not -- declined, rather, to make any additional statements.

His blood sample -- rather, the defendant's blood sample was sent to SLED for testing. The emission blood, which was the sample taken closest in time to the collision was tested and showed that at the time of the collision, the defendant was under the influence of three separate substances.

Those three substances have the capacity in and of themselves to be impairing. When you consult with a forensic toxicologist, they will tell you -- or should tell you that information.

However, taken altogether, what we have in the toxicology report first is the ethanol, alcohol. It's .154. And just for purposes of the record, not to belabor the point, in South Carolina when one's blood is greater than .05, one-hundredth of one percent, that in conjunction with other evidence can be used to show impairment.

We also have what is known as an automatic inference level of .08. Of course, it's rebuttal inference level. What we say is when one is a .08, it is presumed absent anything to the contrary, that one is under the influence of alcohol. In this case, he was a .154, which is just shy of twice that automatic inference level.

In addition, the defendant also had -- it was shown he had been using marijuana. The toxicology report showed that he had THC, the initial parent compound that we find in one's blood when you first ingest marijuana in some other form or fashion. He also had a first order active metabolite, which is known as 11 hydroxy tetrahydrocannabinol, which is a metabolite that is fairly short lived.

When we look at that evidence in conjunction with the actual parent compound, what we could infer from that is that the defendant had smoked or otherwise used marijuana close in time to driving and striking and killing David Newell.

Finally, the third compound that was shown in his toxicology report was Xanax. The testing threshold for that is two micrograms per liter and the result was 32 micrograms, if I may approach.

Now, as far as continuing their investigation, Corporal Wilder and his fellow officers were able to successfully download pursuant to that search warrant the data from the defendant's air bag control module in the truck. That information generally records, as I said, data in a whole variety of instances.

In this particular case, it was triggered by first the collision with David Newell's body and the moped. That has an algorithm that reports data approximately five seconds to the time of the event, that triggers a recording, and this gives us some fairly significant information that's relevant in this case.

In this case, the data shows that five seconds prior to hitting David, the defendant was driving at 76 miles per hour in a 35-mile per hour zone. The posted speed limit on Rosewood Drive in that area is 35 miles an hour.

At that time, five seconds prior to the collision when he was going 76 miles an hour, it showed that he also applied his brakes. What's curious about that information is that a second later, four seconds prior to the collision, he took his foot off the brake and reengaged the throttle, the accelerator on the vehicle. Then three seconds prior, he then put his foot back on the brake. Two seconds prior to the final impact, he reengaged the throttle and depressed the accelerator. I believe the final report showed that in two seconds and one second prior to the final event, he was actually accelerating with 88 to 90 percent throttle, which would indicate by way of inference that he had, essentially, put his foot down to the ground. Of course, his truck was accelerating prior to ultimately striking the tree, coming to rest striking the tree.

After David's body was taken to the hospital, there was a bit of a twist here. He was put on life support. The hospital sought to comply with the request for organ donation. And then not to interfere with his oldest sister's birthday, which I believe would be November 17th, they ultimately took him off life support on the 16th, donated his organs. They had an autopsy.

And the autopsy results are important in this case to show the proximate cause of his death. The results of the pathology report indicate that as a result of the collision, David sustained multiple blunt force injuries, including -- I'm just going to just generally explain this because the terms are not necessarily the most important part, the terms themselves.

He had several fractures in his cervical spine, one of which is traditionally known as a hangman's fracture, which would be independently fatal in itself. He also had a separate fracture in his cervical spine, some fractures in his lumbar spine, and another critical injury was noted as a severe traumatic brain injury with a herniation. All those taken in the collective, of course, would be the proximate cause of his death.

Ultimately, as a result of their investigation, the Columbia Police Department determined that as a result of the combination of the excessive speed, 76 miles an hour in a 35-mile-an-hour zone, what could be construed as possibly reckless driving, failure to exercise due care, following too closely, all of those factors in conjunction with the multiple impairing substances, the alcohol, the THC or marijuana, if you will, the Xanax and, of course, the fatal injuries, they made the determination to charge the defendant with felony DUI resulting in death. He was served with that warrant on November 20th, posted his bond and that brings us to court today for this guilty plea.

THE COURT: Mr. Davenport, did you hear what he just told the Court?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: As far as what happened at the scene -- I know you're not a doctor and can't talk about the cause of death and all that, but as far as what led up to the event, is what he said substantially correct?

THE DEFENDANT: Some parts were, substantially.

THE COURT: You need to talk to your lawyer then?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Talk to them.

(Pause).

MR. GOLSON: Judge, if I may. It might be easier, the same photos on the screen, I have printed out, would you like to see those photographs?

THE COURT: I'd like to look at them later, but I've been watching this.

MR. GOLSON: Yes, sir.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Your Honor, I think the issue is very simple, and I'll deal with it.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: We were obviously provided or obtained all of Mr. Davenport's medical records because he, in the accident, was injured, as well from the impact with the tree.

We do not dispute the alcohol level. We do not dispute the presence of marijuana in his system. The benzocaine, according to the medical records that I'm sure the prosecution has and we have, may very well have been a substance administered to him by EMS or at the hospital prior to testing.

So I just wanted to make certain that we have the medical records that has that exact language in it. I'll be happy to submit that to the Court if there's any dispute about that being a part of the medical. He would tell you that he was not using Xanax that night.

THE COURT: Well, Mr. Davenport, is there any dispute about the alcohol level or the alcohol use and the marijuana use?

THE DEFENDANT: No, sir. No, sir.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Davenport, do you still wish to plead guilty, sir?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Now, out of an abundance of caution, on your Advisement of Rights form, you checked off that you're not being treated or have not been treated for any mental illnesses; is that correct?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: And you stated then and I ask you again, do you understand the charges against you?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Now, Mr. Davenport, do you still wish to plead guilty?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: To this charge?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are you pleading guilty, Mr. Davenport, because you are, indeed, guilty? You did this?

THE DEFENDANT: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Do the attorneys have any concerns about his plea?

MS. SCHILLACI: No, sir.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Not about his competency, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. I find he is most well represented today by extremely good counsel. I find he's been engaged in the questioning process and responsive. I find that he has offered his plea freely, knowingly, and voluntarily. I find that, even in this short meeting, he's an intelligent young man, and I find that it's factually based. I, therefore, accept his plea to this charge.

Now, I'll be glad to hear from -- you want to start with the State's side, the victim's side, how do you want to do this?

MR. GOLSON: Whatever Your Honor would prefer, we shall comply.

THE COURT: Let's start with that side, the State's side, and I'll come back to the defendant's side.

MR. GOLSON: Thank you, Your Honor. As I mentioned before, we have many people here on behalf of the victim, David, and his family.

We're going to ask -- I think I have some people based on the number of people to assist me with this. I'm going to ask them to stand in their predetermined order. First, state their name loudly and clearly and then render their statements to the Court.

VICTIM'S ROOMATE: My name is Brandon. I was -- I was David's roommate. He was my best friend. There is no way for me to do David justice. There is no way for me to describe that person, and unfortunately, no one here leaving today who didn't know David will have an opportunity to meet him. And that's a real disservice to everyone else here.

He was just an unbelievable person. You know, he made people around him better, and I have to ask today for the maximum penalty because every second of David's natural life that he had left was taken away from him that day.

He will never get to continue being a son, his amazing parents. He had a great relationship with them. He was grateful. He sought home. He doesn't get to do these things anymore because of this crash. It's senseless.

There is not a penalty that can even do him justice to begin with. I can just only hope that there is something from the Court.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. COOPER: My name is Blake Cooper. I also was David's roommate for the past two years. We knew each other all through college, met him pretty early on freshman year. Like Brandon said, he was probably my best friend.

As you heard, almost a year ago today, one week from a year ago today, I thought it was just going to be a normal day, and it finished to be the worst day of my life.

(Crying).

I tried to sit down and write something out and realized that it was going to be expected that I talk about the kind of person David was.

One thing is I can't -- I can't put it into words. I can't describe what he meant to everybody. You can see all these people back here behind us. It's not just us. Everybody back here he had a profound effect upon. He was one of the most special people I think I'll ever meet, I know I'll ever meet in my entire life.

He was the kind of person that no matter what you needed, what was happening in your life, he would be there for you. If you were feeling down, he would pick you up.

If he saw that you were slipping in school or slipping in some form, he would be there for you. He would be the one to sit down and tell you, you need to fix what's going on.

But then, when things are going good, he could also just be the guy you always wanted to be around. No matter what situation you were in, he was just the guy that you wanted to be around. And now, not because of a mistake, but because of a selfish decision, nobody here will get to see him again, a selfish choice.

I cannot tell you the number of times in the past 51 weeks that I've just seen something and I just say man, I wish I could show this to my best friend. Just one more time, I wish I could sit down with him and talk about politics and listen to him tell me all of his crazy ideas.

Just one more time, I wish I could sit down and watch a football game with him and let him tell me that the Red Skins are the best team in the NFL but I can't.

So I'm sure at some point today we're going to hear a lot about forgiveness, Your Honor. In my opinion, forgiveness is written in the statute where the maximum penalty -- or the maximum punishment is 25 years instead of a life sentence because my best friend, David Newell, received a death sentence.

MR. SCULLY: Your Honor, my name is Shane Scully. I am another one of David's roommates, three years, another one of his best friends.

David was my first loss. He was the first death I've ever experienced, and when people talk to you about death, they express the emotions you're going to feel, the emptiness, depression, anxiety.

They don't tell you how long it's going to last. They don't tell you that it sticks with you forever. They don't tell you that you wake up in the middle of the night in cold sweats. They don't tell you about, you know, waking up and not wanting to get out of bed in the morning, not wanting to do one thing.

And I think it's already expressed by the people who are here, the words that have already been said, the words that are going to be said about David's character, who he was as a person and the fact that he's not here anymore is tragic. But I want to talk to you today basically about the impact that your decision will have on the community here in Columbia, in South Carolina.

A maximum sentence is the only thing that will deter young individuals from making the same disgusting choice that was made a year ago. The maximum sentence will send a message and an impact to every college student coming into the university, every person around the community and deter them from making this decision and ending of someone's life.

I urge you to consider the maximum sentence because like they said, our best friend David did get the death sentence.

MR. CRANE: Your Honor, my name is Nick Crane. I've known David his whole life --

THE COURT: What was your last name, sir? Crane?

MR. CRANE: Crane like the bird, sir, C-R-A-N-E.

David has been my best friend my whole life. I've only known these fellows here for about two or three years, but I consider them brothers. That should speak volumes about them, as well.

A little under a year ago, I wrote an impact statement very similar to this in hopes of a very high sentence. It's my opinion. It's to the best of my ability, Your Honor.

A year has past and I was able to sit and write these words with a slightly clearer head, but my heart aches more than anything else now.

If you read my statement from last year, you may know that I did not refer to David Newell's death as an accident. No, sir. I do not believe there is such a thing as a drunk driving accident.

In order to get an incident such as this, at least one party involved needs to make a conscious decision to get behind the wheel of a car while inebriated. The actions that night were far from an accident. The actions of one man alone have changed countless lives in a very, very negative way, Your Honor.

It was not until my best friend's funeral that I saw how many people David's life had truly reached. There was a sea of bodies, hundreds of them, shoulder to shoulder leading up to that burial site.

It takes a very, very special person to reach that many people. That was -- that was David Newell. That was my best friend, and that was my brother. And although his life was stripped away from him that night, the love he put into this world will never be taken back.

I spent a lot of this past year confused, angry, and quite frankly scared, scared that something so awful, so unfair and unjust could happen to somebody so kind and undeserving.

David may live on in our hearts and our memories and our prayers, but because of the decisions of one reckless man that evening, that's all we have left of him. David was killed at 22, and that's where his life ends.

His life was so full of promise and hope. It was cut short due to the actions of one individual. That's no accident, Your Honor. That's a reckless man with no care for the world around him or the people in it.

I'm sure there's great shame and regret for the decision made that evening. I know that guilt is a terrible burden, especially for taking a life so beautiful.

In this thought, I pose the question, what would have happened if no one had been killed that night? Would there have been a next time? Who else could have been hurt or killed or ripped out of his world? What would it take to end the habits of a reckless man? Guilt is an awful feeling, Your Honor, but only the living have guilt feelings.

Because of the irreversible decisions made that evening, I have to talk to my best friend through a picture frame. I celebrate his birthday alone with tears in my eyes.

I write letters I know he'll never read. That's heart felt, as well, something I will never truly understand. I lost the best man at my wedding, the uncle to my children. I lost the one person I could always count on no matter what.

I'm honored to have had a friendship like that for the past 22 years. Twenty-two years is simply not enough.

A lifelong friendship was cut short due to the actions of one selfish man.

Your Honor, I ask you to give the Defendant the maximum penalty for his crimes and prosecute him to the full extent of the law.

As an aside, I ask that we, the people of South Carolina, focus on putting an end to drunk driving. In today's world, there's just simply no excuse to get behind the wheel of a car inebriated. My best friend is dead, and I'll never get to see him again due to the irresponsibility of one man and one man alone.

Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MS. HALL: I'm Katie Hall, David's cousin.

THE COURT: Your last name again, please?

MS. HALL: Hall, H-A-L-L.

Thanks to the nightmares of your drinking, this is all I have left of my cousin, David. At this time last year, I was preparing my home to host my very first Thanksgiving.

I wanted our time together to be memorable, one that stood out for that Thanksgiving. So I devoted myself to the small things I could do to make that a memorable celebration.

The warm and cheerful atmosphere holidays brings with me are a reminder each day. Several rings of the telephone late on the evening of November 15th ended all of that.

I found out the next day that my last holiday spent with David would be my last holiday spent with David. The thought that I would never spend another family gathering with him was simply unbelievable.

David was the beautiful one. David was the social one. David was the fearless and adventuress one. David was the incredibly charismatic, but most effortlessly, one.

But most of all, David was the loved one. My family will never experience the kind of authenticity David's presence brought us again. What a loss for us. What a loss for my three baby cousins that will grow up never knowing their only male cousin. What a loss for his long-term girlfriend. What a loss for his brothers at Chi Psi. What a loss to the world.

You see, when we buried David that day, before Thanksgiving, one thing was evident, he didn't just live but he impacted. We didn't need to know the evidence. Take a look at the flood of people who walked to his graveside after hours of waiting in the cold because they couldn't get inside a gym packed with people.

My cousin, Ashley, my sister, myself, were David's only cousins growing up. The three of us shared one chair at the funeral after several women were gracious enough to step outside so that we could get in.

People came from hundreds and even thousands of miles just to be here for David one last time. I believe the event of that day shows how he was to everyone and how he loved unconditionally. The world needs more Davids.

I'd like to think had I not been robbed of my chance to at the very least say goodbye to my cousin, David, that this walk may somehow be easier.

There are so many things I'll never have again. I'll never get to hear another story about something wild David did and how he ended up with a broken elbow. I'll never get to go to a baseball game, be a driver and go through three loaves of bread by the time he was leaving.

I'll never get to compete with David on who can get more family photos or sometimes avoid more family photos. I'll never get to help a cousin set up another special evening for someone he loves.

I'll never get to visit the national Christmas tree at midnight on Christmas Eve with my cousin again. I'll never get to help my cousin, and I'll never be able to tell him one last time that I love him.

The loss my family and I have suffered is one I would never wish on anyone. It is the ultimate form of heartbreak. I urge the Court to consider the irreplaceable life that is gone in David when deciding the sentence of the man who stole it from him.

Ironically, one of the things my cousin was most passionate about was the improvement of drunk driving laws. He had lost several friends to drunk driving, and the Happiness Foundation was started in this community because of this, in our own community, by one of his late friend's wives.

He pledged his promised to never drink and drive and to never get in a car with someone who has been drinking. He shared about the foundation and other drunk driving research he had done in a paper he was working on at school.

It's a tragedy David died because someone did not care as deeply as he did or even at all about acting in a way that does not need to be in our society.

This Thanksgiving, the individualized place settings that I used in David's place last year will get to be used. David -- we'll be thankful for David. It will be in a shadow box on the table with an empty chair. We will share about him, and he will live on forever in this way. All I have let of my beloved cousin David is a fingerprint and my heart aches for the friends he left behind.

MS. THOMAS: My name is Rachael Thomas, and I was David Newell's girlfriend. Over the last few weeks, I've been staring at a blank sheet of paper unable to put into words how the last year has impacted me not knowing where to begin.

David and I met in middle school. He was charming and witty and welcoming, and he befriended people very easily. We grew up in the same small town where you just didn't drink and drive because our community had already learned through a tragic crash resulting in the loss of three students that drinking and driving only leads to pain and loss.

It wasn't until our senior year in high school that our friendship blossomed into love. We went to homecoming together and prom and spent the year spending time with our friends.

As our senior year came to a close, time together became even more precious. He would be leaving for South Carolina in August, and I would be staying in Maryland for college. I prayed that the distance wouldn't tear us apart.

As the months went on, we went to school, and David joined a fraternity. And the more I visited and met those that he surrounded himself with, the more I understood how incredibly special the bonds that David made with his brothers really were. He hadn't just joined a fraternity.

He had found family.

I would spend eight hours in the car with anyone who would take me just to go down to visit David. His friends would joke asking if I just transferred schools already because I was there so often.

Last summer, we lived in Columbia together with a couple of his brothers, and they warned me that it would probably be boring because most of the students leave for the summer. But I had more fun that summer than any summers that I had spent at home from mine.

We adopted our own little baby, Bo, the most handsome black lab in the world. David was a passionate man, and he was always determined in every aspect in his life. But I've never seen more determination in David than seeing him trying to raise our puppy to be the best boy that he could be.

I visited him in November for a football game, and we talked about how our years of distance were finally coming to an end. We talked about our future and how we soon would never have to say goodbye again.

He asked me if I would say yes when he was ready to ask me to marry him. But David will never get to see his wedding day. He didn't walk at graduation. He'll never get to watch his puppy grow up into the handsome dog he was groomed to be. He won't get to see his brother walk down the aisle this summer or see any of his family again.

I didn't know how to write this because how do you really put into words the feeling of losing such an instrumental part of your life. For four years, David has been more than my boyfriend. He was my best friend.

He was always there for me through thick and thin, through the distance. How do you explain the feeling of loss in the pit of your stomach leaving you sick with an empty feeling, and it fills your head and your heart and your body so you're unable to breathe?

How do you explain the feelings of disbelief even as you stand over his lifeless body, bruised and bloody, alive but only barely because of machines that he would soon be taken off of?

Even as you watched his brothers throwing dirt on his grave, you watched a mother tuck her son in for the very last time securing him deep into the earth. The feeling of this isn't real.

I can't explain the loss that I've felt since David was taken from us because there aren't words that give justice to your world shattering, leaving you with only memories to hold onto.

"Wish me luck. I'll call you when I'm done" he said to me before his exam that day almost a year ago, but the only call I would get that night would be to tell me that David was in a crash, and they didn't say that I would never talk to him again.

VICTIM'S SISTER: My name is Brady Newell. I'm David's older sister, the middle child of our family.

In May 2011, I was a junior in high school. I was woken up by a phone call from my best friend, Alyssa, telling me that three of our friends had been killed by a drunk driver. Their deaths shredded our community.

My classmates and I were devastated. Our worlds turned upside down, and our community launched an initiative to end drunk driving. Everyone we knew made a pledge to never drink and drive and to do everything we could to prevent everyone around from us doing so.

When I came to USC, I brought that message with me because it meant so much to me. I asked all of my friends to make the same pledge. I got involved with student government.

I took on the responsibility of ensuring that thousand of other students at USC -- that thousands of other students at USC would act responsibly; that they were safe at our events; that they had transportation for anyone who had been drinking.

I oversaw our judicial court that held other students accountable. I tried to do everything in my power to make USC a safer place, but it wasn't enough to save even my own little brother from the same tragic end.

On November 16th, 2017, six years later, I called my friend, Alyssa, back to ask her to tell our friends that David had been killed by a drunk driver. Technically, he was still alive at the time. His body was a few rooms over being pumped with oxygen like a lifeless balloon so we could donate his organs to someone who needed them, but he had been brain dead for hours.

His injuries were so severe that his blood couldn't even reach his brain from the swelling around his broken neck. No helmet could have saved him.

We watched as they took him off of life support and they declared him legally dead, brain was lifeless. To this day, I'm haunted by the image of his moped being hit from behind. His body flying through the air, slamming into the ground. I fear every car will hit me at full speed as I cross the street, that every late night phone call will be another member of my family dead.

David was born September 21st, 1995, 13 months after me. I loved to hold that year over him. When we were little running around our neighborhood pool playing together, people would ask us if we were twins. And before I could tell anyone otherwise, David would say yes and everyone believed it.

After my parents separated and Tyler was in college,

David and I spent a lot of time together, just the two of us. And I grew to feel more and more protective of him.

I used to joke because I called David my little rug rat, and he told me, "You're not my mom" because I always wanted to know where he was and what he was doing to make sure he was doing the right thing, that he was safe.

I'd drive us to swim practice in the morning, home from school to hang out with our friends on the weekends and David would be in the car. I was so excited when he decided to come to USC that the three of us would share this amazing college experience.

I'd drive him to class, bring him dinner when he was so hungry after eating on campus, and when he was home from break after I graduated, Tyler, David and I would get together to watch football to see the Gamecocks on TV.

Tyler and I were so excited to watch David walk at graduation completing our Gamecock trilogy, as we called it, but we never got the chance.

Memories, a few old t-shirts and pictures are all I have left of David. Normally on my birthday, I'd enjoy the one month of the year that I'd get to be two years older, but now, he will never catch up. I'll continue to get older every birthday, but David will forever be 22.

When my friends started driving, I remember a friend's dad telling us that a car can kill someone, and drinking and driving is like playing Russian roulette with a two-and-a-half ton weapon.

When I first got the call that David was gravely injured, I was told it was an accident. But this was no accident. Drinking and driving is a choice. It's a choice to wield that weapon without regard for anyone but yourself.

There are no mitigating circumstances, no special considerations to excuse this choice. When David was killed, his choices were stolen from him. My family will spend the rest of our lives grieving for him. We have no choice.

But you, Your Honor, have a choice today as you sentence this man. When people ask about my experience in South Carolina, I won't tell them -- I won't tell them about the scholarships the State provided us to get a world class education.

I won't tell them about warm southern culture or the beautiful climate. I'll tell them what happened here today. I'll tell them that this is a state where they can live freely knowing that justice united will protect them from reckless citizens and die in peace knowing that justice will prevail.

I pray you will choose to do everything in your power to deter others from the same tragedy by delivering the maximum sentence to this man for his choice. Thank you.

VICTIM'S SISTER: Your Honor, my name is Tyler Newell. David was my brother.

THE COURT: Ma'am, your last name?

VICTIM'S SISTER: Tyler Newell.

THE COURT: All right.

VICTIM'S SISTER: I'm the oldest sister of Brady and David, who we're here for today.

To start, I would like to share part of my family's experience and the events following this tragedy and how it reflects on the impact on me.

On the night of Wednesday, November 15th, when we got the call that no one wants to get, my parents, sister, David's girlfriend and I met up and immediately headed from D.C. to the hospital here in Columbia.

As we got on I-95, I texted with my dad's sister, Christy, who was asking about our exact location. Within a few minutes, my dad's brother -- my dad's brother Mike's car appeared behind us.

When my dad's family, Christy and Mike, got the news, they had met up without hesitation in the middle of the night, tracked us down on the highway and drove alongside us for the next eight hours.

The fourth of their four siblings was on the next plane from Boston. My dad's three siblings were all by his side in a heartbeat because that is what siblings do.

No matter how close in relationship or distance, when it comes down to it, siblings are your closest lifelong support system. I thank my parents for giving me that. And it crushes me that that is what was taken from me when David was killed.

There's no one that can understand what makes you who you are, who can be there for you like a sibling. That family dynamic has been ripped away from me. Siblings are supposed to help each other, not get life.

I'm supposed to have my brother, David, to experience it all put together, support for our future children, sharing responsibilities of taking care of our parents as they age, but now, David has been taken from us.

My life's events will always be different, and that impact was felt immediately. The day after we got to the hospital here was my 27th birthday, and I spent it sitting next to David's brain dead body waiting on the organ donation process.

Every life milestone will be hard without David. That memory will haunt me for the rest of my life. Exactly one year before, David had sent me a happy birthday text, as well as cracking a joke about my old age.

We talked about how he had to write an assignment in class about his five-year goal and how that made him think about where I was in life at that moment being five years older.

Now my life, and that of our friends and family, will never be the same as we live with the anguish of how David will never get to live his life and fulfill those goals.

Before he was killed, David and I had just started to get closer as dual siblings as he made his way through college at USC where he followed Brady and me. He was supposed to join us in the real world after he graduated in the spring.

It's still hard to believe that now my brother won't be in my future wedding, and I won't get the chance to be in his. My future kids will not know their Uncle David or the family that he wanted to have someday. Our future, and that of my family, will not be the way it should have been with David here.

I also want to briefly acknowledge some of the victims who are not family and friends, but were impacted, too. I often think about a woman named Megan, who is here in the room today, who held David's hand at the scene. She will forever be haunted by that memory of that Wednesday evening on Rosewood Drive. She's a victim, too. No one should have to experience that.

Every time I hear an ambulance or hear sirens, I think of the paramedics on the scene who were also impacted by this tragedy. Their shift that night could have been spent helping other South Carolinians with unpreventable emergencies instead.

The hospital employees who worked on David, as well as the man who killed him could have been helping others in need for medical emergencies instead of tending to the aftermath of this preventable tragedy.

I will always feel the impact of the loss of my brother, David, his dynamic personality and all the possibilities that could have been. It will impact me as a sister, as a daughter, as a future wife and future parent.

We will all have to dedicate time and resources to dealing with this the rest of our lives. It's a scary thing to live in a world where preventable tragedies like this continue to happen.

I'm anxious every time I drive thinking of how David was killed by a drunk driver. As I faced the difficult task of preparing this statement, I read how younger DUI drivers will be repeat offenders.

I read a story in a Mother's Against Drunk Driving pamphlet about a woman whose son was killed by a man who had been convicted of drunk driving from cars. And painfully, I reread a policy speech outline that was found in one of David's class notebooks about drunk driving.

It is hard for me to grasp how this continues to happen in our society when the demons of drunk driving have been known and campaigned against again and again.

With that in mind and given the extreme circumstances of substance abuse and speeding resulting in David's death, the driver is and always will be a danger to the community.

I'm joining my family on behalf of my brother, David, who no longer has a voice, in asking that the driver receive the maximum sentence.

MR. NEWELL: Good morning, Your Honor. I'm Rick Newell. David Newell is my son. David is my only son. Before saying anything else, I want to offer my thanks to the good people of South Carolina for providing this mechanism that we can all offer our remarks today and they can be entered into the record of this proceeding.

It's my hope that all of the concerns and experiences we share today will help shine some light on the less-than-obvious havoc and serious harm that this crime has brought upon the people of your court.

The police motorcade that escorted David's body to its final resting place was met by hundreds and hundreds of mourners, each on the eve of their own Thanksgiving gathering.

There were lots of Gamecocks there. There were lots of Gamecock alumni. There were parents of Clemson students and lots of people from other towns all over South Carolina.

There were lots of members of legal and academic and law enforcement communities from far and wide. All were on hand to pay their final respects to my son.

It's been astounding to witness over the last many months the extent to which my son's life touched so many with both direct and indirect associations with the good people of South Carolina.

Everybody that knew David will forever remember the brutality of his death and will forever be reminded in ways large and small of the now empty place that David once occupied in their lives.

As a result of this heinously reckless crime, David ended his senior year of undergraduate studies at the University of South Carolina not in a choice company of his classmates and his friends and family, but in the company of passersby and dedicated EMS personnel desperately attempting to revive his battered young body.

The finality of those circumstances is self-evident. The damage is irreparable. There is no earthly consolation which can lessen the severity of the loss which has been suffered.

There isn't a justification, an excuse, an explanation which can absolve the kind of indefensible conduct which resulted in David's death. Conduct which afforded no greater value to human life than it did to that of a stray animal for a piece of roadside debris.

David's mom, Annette, and I entrusted all three of our kids to the stewardship of the University of South Carolina's faculty and staff and to the good people of Columbia, South Carolina.

At this time last year, we were thrilled to be a part of the South Carolina legacies that were budding in each of their young adult lives. But in a moment with a late night buzzing of bedside cell phones, our fond memories of USC were forever disfigured.

There won't be for us any affectionate recollections of the drive south to what was becoming an adopted home state or social gatherings in Columbia. There can be no dinner table encouragement of friends and family to entrust their own kids and grandkids to the University of South Carolina.

What now overshadows our lives is that only two of our three kids survived their experience in Columbia. What remains for us to be seen through this Court's actions in these proceedings is the extent to which the State of South Carolina will demonstrate in the sentence it hands down the value it places on a parent's investment of their most cherished treasure, their child in the prosperity of this state.

I'm hopeful that the Court will fully recognize the disastrous and long-term societal harm which befalls the good people of South Carolina with the loss of productive civic-minded residents.

Few can well afford even a small scale perception that their streets are a dangerous place to walk, their community, a dangerous place in which to live or work or invest.

Certainly, the tragedy which has befallen our family is grave enough to have already prompted many to instinctively look elsewhere for a place of greater perceived safety at which to invest the lives of their greatest treasures.

I lost my only son to one man's willful act of disregard for the sanctity of the lives of those around him. I hope the Court will consider the distinct reality that the good people of South Carolina likewise lost a son, albeit an adopted one.

I hope the Court will consider that a piece of Columbia's future died with David in the middle of Rosewood Drive in plain sight of the stadium where he and his sisters had over the course of nine years shared their energy and enthusiasm of hundreds of thousands of like-minded Carolinians.

In David's death, South Carolina has not been left with just one less educated, enterprising, family-minded young man looking to be a part of its prosperity. It's been left through -- it's been left through both more visible and less obvious consequences with countless fewer men and women who might have otherwise chosen to call the Palmetto State home were it not for the heinous act of violence visited on David Newell.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MR. GOLSON: Your Honor, I believe David's mother, Annette, will be the last person to speak. Before we do that, I just wanted to take a brief moment to recognize the other individuals that came to court on behalf of David and the family today.

I'm going to ask them to stand. We have with us the two advocates for the State of South Carolina for Mothers Against Drunk Driving, Mr. Steven Burritt and Ms. Kimberly Cockrell, and also present today are the other members of David's fraternity, if you would please stand, along with their friends.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. GOLSON: You can be seated. Thank you very much.

As I said, we would ask David's mother to give her statement to the Court.

THE COURT: All right, ma'am.

MRS. NEWELL: Your Honor, my name is Annette Newell. I'm David's mom.

Thank you for the opportunity to come here and speak today, and I'd like thank our friends and family for coming to support us.

We're here to discuss the death of my son, David James Newell, and the consequences for the man who did this to my baby.

Every mom who has ever been on the internet has seen the quotes about how having a baby changes you forever. It is to decide to have your heart walk around forever outside of your body. It's true.

My heart walks outside of my body with my oldest daughter, Tyler. It's an amazing feeling for her to have blossomed. My heart walks outside of my body with Brady, my younger daughter, in works with love.

And my heart walked outside of my body with my son, David, only now my heart is broken. My heart stops right at the cemetery where I had to bury my baby boy, feels like a few weeks ago.

I got the call that no mom ever wanted to get. Actually, it was a text message. I was at the movies seeing Casablanca on the big screen. My phone kept pinging, but of course, it was silenced.

When I got out of the movie, I saw I had a zillion messages and multiple phone calls from the State of South Carolina from numbers I didn't recognize.

I spoke to Tyler first. She asked me if I had heard or if I knew that David had been in an accident. It was a jumble, literally, a blur. My heart stopped in my throat.

I can't. David? What? I can't even remember the conversation. I drove home in a daze trying to figure out what on earth was happening. Where is David? What happened to him? What do you mean an accident?

And then a police officer was at my door and I knew. I knew it was bad, really bad, because the police don't come to your house to tell you there was a fender bender in another state.

The phone, the unknown numbers, Richland Hospital. "I'm a trauma surgeon." And he told me this was incompatible with life, but they would keep David on life support until we got there but we need to get there quickly.

I hung up the phone and I heard this sound come from me, from deep inside within, somewhere I didn't know I had, some feral, guttural sound that came from a place searing hot.

It started in my throat at the base, dropped into my chest and spread like fire. It burned and with pressure, it came out of my eyes. I broke down and sobbed. No, no, no. This couldn't be happening. This couldn't be real. But it was. There was really a police officer at my door. It was real.

I called my mother. I had to call my mother and tell her that her grandson, her only grandson was on life support. I choked out the words: "And brain dead".

My mother wanted to come with us, of course, but her health would not allow it. And I had to tell her I couldn't bring her. She never got the chance to say goodbye to David.

I spoke with Tyler, Brady, Rachael, all of them sobbing barely unable to understand the words, trying to make arrangements to meet for the drive. I called my closest friend, Cindy, a trauma therapist, who was also the mother of David's best friend, Nick.

I left a message in the middle of night telling them what happened hoping my garbled message makes some sort of sense. I called my friend, Stephanie, who lives in the neighborhood. Please come over, please wait until the girls could come, I can't wait by myself. Stephanie was at my house in 20 minutes.

I drove through the night speeding, no stops, and we got to the hospital about 10:30 in the morning. There we found all of David's fraternity brothers waiting for us. There must have been 50 of them. They had stayed all night. I was so grateful. They brought their pillows and blankets and stayed so David wouldn't be alone.

I stayed with David from Thursday morning until Saturday night when they wheeled him away from me. Never leaving his side except to go to dinner on Tyler's birthday.

I asked the staff member to sit there while we were gone to dinner. It was so important to me that David never be alone. I sat with him while the trauma surgeon checked for vitals, checked to see if there were any reflexes.

I silently sobbed beside my son while the doctor declared him brain dead, called the time of David's death November 16th. We had asked them to make it November 16th instead of their preferred date, the 17th, because that was Tyler's birthday. We just couldn't have David's death be the same day as her birthday.

We made arrangements for organ donation. Sharing Hope of South Carolina helped with the process. We donated his heart, his liver, his kidneys, whatever they could use. And then a second surgery for tissue and so another harvesting.

When you hear of someone getting a cadaver tendon for their knee or something, this is how and this is why. People donate their loved ones organs to try to help others live a better life even if their own loved one can't, can't live any longer, brain dead because he was killed by a drunk driver.

And I had to watch them wheel my baby away, take him away from me at midnight 52 weeks ago next Saturday, take him to cut him open and pull out his heart and his insides to give away to others because of a drunk driver. I found a funeral home in Columbia, South Carolina and made arrangements for my son's burial.

We were told to talk today about how it's impacted us. It's impacted us in so many ways how can I begin describe to share the pain so everyone here can feel it? There is a tangible -- an intangible -- it's tangible, this trinket from Sharing Hope, it is something, on glass, on a Bible because it's in glass.

I wear David's clothes when I miss him so desperately I can't breathe. I can't eat. I can't sleep. I have his photos all over. His Gamecock memorabilia decorate my classroom. I speak of him often. Sometimes now I only whimper or sob.

The intangible impact, the pain, the grief, the awkwardness. People, they ask, how many children do you have? What do I answer? How do I tell them? It changes everything. It changes past relationships, lots of hugs and sympathy and Kleenex, but no words. No one knows what to say. I don't know what to say. My son was killed by a speeding drunk driver. Hold your babies close.

I just moved from Maryland to D.C. My lease was up and David and Rachael, who had lived with me every summer, every break from school weren't going to be doing that now. David wasn't coming home. Rachael, too.

Tyler had been suddenly transferred to South Carolina, so I took over her lease, the path of least resistance. I didn't even have the energy to look for a place to live.

I was so exhausted and overwhelmed by all of his setting up his estate, managing my grief, trying to make sure that Tyler, Brady, Rachael and my mother and Rick were coping with the loss, downsizing my house after 30 years. I got rid of nearly everything I owned.

I'm ever so grateful for Rachael who literally pulled it together for me. I'm usually high functioning and accomplish a lot, but trying to move out and seeing years worth of memories was too much. I fell apart. Rachael held it together, packed my things, made runs to Goodwill for me. I put everything in storage for the summer. I just couldn't be alone.

I'm a teacher, but I wasn't teaching summer school. Brady was going to be gone for the summer off to study a grad program in another state. Tyler had just moved back here to South Carolina.

I put everything I had in storage and visited friends and family in the summer, and then I had to move. I unpacked things from David. Things I had donated or given to friends. What do I do with these things? What to do, what to do? Toss his USC diploma? Do I frame it? Where do I hang it?

In the aftermath of this, I tried to find ways to share David's light, tried to find ways to keep his name alive. I donated his organs, set up a scholarship here at the University of South Carolina Darla Moore School of Business, the David James Newell Memorial scholarship. We've already awarded one recipient a scholarship.

I set up an award at our beloved pool to award swimmers and dive team members who have been a friend and support to all, as David was, a student of sportsmanship, congeniality award.

I'm passed myself with David's things. I have this necklace that a friend gave me. It has David's name inscribed on it along with the number of days he was alive: 8,092. He was alive for 8,092 days, and then he was killed by a speeding drunk driver, a driver who owned the very behavior David had strongly and vocally advocated against.

How do I tell you about the little boy who was so sweet, so thoughtful, who wore neckties to any event he deemed special, who grew into a considerate, hysterically funny, incredibly intelligent young man so much that he was invited to the peak academic program at his high school? Only the top 25 of his class were invited.

He was invited to take physics at college level AP course in the ninth grade. A young man who was thoughtful, painting his grandmother's living room for her, coming down to USC with me to fix up his sister brady's new college home, serving meals at the shelter. He was a friend of all. He was funny. He was feisty. He was fabulous.

David lived with me full-time from the ninth grade on. After Tyler and Brady went off to college, it was just me and David and the dog and then me and David and the dog and Rachael, which was wonderful because I love Rachael. I've lost not only David. I've lost Rachael. I've lost a daughter-in-law. I've lost their babies, my grandbabies. I lost my retirement plan. I used to joke with David whenever he would ask me for money that I was going to lend to it him, but he had to realize that he was now my retirement plan, and I would have to live in his basement.

Like the time he called me freshman year, Saturday morning 10:30 on game day, "Hey, Mom. We were setting up the tailgate, and I backed the truck up in a car."

I responded, "Honey, you don't have a truck."

"Yeah. So I've got to pay for both? Can you lend me the money?"

I did, of course, because he was taught to be responsible. He was paying me back $25 a month, and he took on a job in college so he could help pay his own way.

David knew to help others in his community. When David was little, he took dinner every Thursday night to the homeless shelter near our home. Then when he was in college, he and Rachael took time from their New Year's Eve plans to prepare and serve dinner for 200 homeless people in our community, looking out for others. David was a giver and he was happy to help. David was a strong supporter to his friends. He was funny, damn funny.

In middle school, he declared his career goal as head writer for Saturday Night Live, then he decided he want to make some money instead. He joked around a lot, but when he was serious, he was serious. He was an excellent writer. He could substantiate his arguments well, and he was serious about drinking and driving.

We had experienced such a loss in our community, the devastating loss, but before that happened, years before that, David wrote in his careful five-year-old handwriting this pledge right here, in first grade promising that he would not drink and drive.

When David was in college, the last speech he wrote was a policy speech about the perils of drinking and driving noting that South Carolina has one of the highest rates of drunk driving incidents in the county. He stated directly in his speech how close this issue was to him.

He knew not to do it, but even then -- even though David knew of these things, David was careful and took appropriate precautions. He couldn't have known C.J. Davenport would choose not to, double the legal limit for alcohol, excessive speeding, excessive, double the speed limit, driving a truck uphill 70, 75 miles per hour. That's faster than allowable on our highways.

Internal decapitation. The EMT called it internal decapitation. That's what killed my son: Internal decapitation caused by a drunk driver.

Drinking. Probably substance abuse. Driving. Internal decapitation. And now, my heart is broken. My heart is broken.

Rick's heart is broken. Tyler and Brady, too. Rachael has lost the love of her life. David's close college friends, his roommates, their hearts are broken.

Their plans to continue rooming together after college are destroyed. The hearts of the boys and alumni of his fraternity, the entire Greek system at USC, their hearts are broken. The members of our community of our pool who literally camped out for the summers, the Magruder High School community and all of his friends spread throughout our county, the swimming and diving and sports.

I implore you, Your Honor, to send a message to all past, current and future members of the USC Gamecock community, to parents in Maryland, seemingly a funnel from Maryland to USC, so many of our students come here, and to the parents who want to send their students to the University of South Carolina, send a message that South Carolina is serious about facing this issue firmly and delivering significant consequences for it.

E.E. Cummings wrote, I carry your heart. I carry it in my heart. I literally carried David's heart when I was pregnant with him. Someone else carries David's heart now. Someone I don't know. I don't know who, and I don't know where, where my son's heart is walking around out there. Somewhere someone has it. All I have is this necklace with his name and 8,092 on it, the number of days he was alive and this, his thumbprint. And I have a memory of the last time I saw my baby boy, the image burned forever in my mind. I want to share that image with this Court and C.J. and his family. I think it's important for him to see what he did.

Look at David. My heart is forever broken.

Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

Mr. Solicitor, anybody else?

MR. GOLSON: Your Honor, as far as statements go, for time purposes, we have some additional -- a video statement from a family friend and an audio statement also from a family friend. If it's okay, we'll supply those to the Court for review at the break, or I can play them very quickly in the alternative.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Your Honor, we have no objection to your reviewing it in chambers.

THE COURT: I plan to look at everything in chambers.

MR. GOLSON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: And I assure you I will.

MR. GOLSON: I have them on a flash drive. I'll put them on a separate CD if that would be the easiest way to do that.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. McCulloch.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Your Honor, I wonder if there's any possibility of taking a very short recess. We've been at it for some time. It's been quite emotional. Literally five minutes or so.

THE COURT: There's a lot of people in here. It's going to be at least 15 minutes.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: That was a lawyer's five minutes.

THE COURT: At least 15 minutes. If it's a few more than that, that's okay. Take your time getting back.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Thank you.

(WHEREUPON, a short break was taken.)

THE COURT: All right. I'm ready, Mr. McCulloch.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Your Honor, I'm going to turn it over to Ms. Schillaci at this point. She is going to present our presentation of witnesses to you. I suspect that we will take -- well, I hesitate to say, but, perhaps, not quite as long as the prosecution's presentation, but I know you are very patient.

THE COURT: I have no time limits on anyone today.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Thank you, sir.

THE COURT: All right, ma'am.

MS. SCHILLACI: Thank you, Your Honor. May it please the Court. Charles Davenport, who you're going to hear referred to as C.J., is 24 years of age and he stands before you with no prior record. Over this past year, I've had some time to get to know him, and I can tell you that he certainly appreciates the gravity of this situation. And this is a man that is beyond remorseful. He's broken.

He comes from a hard working family, and you're going to hear from some of those folks today. God gives all of us certain gifts and C.J.'s gift has been working with young people. In high school, he was a camp counselor for five years. He has worked in children's church as a leader, as a Sunday school teacher. He played varsity soccer, and he has been a coach for a group of eight to 12-year-olds, and this is someone that at the time of this incident was a junior at USC on the Dean's list.

So one of the struggles for Your Honor and the families is how can something like this happen? I believe you will hear from the family that C.J. is not someone who parties, but we learned during the course of this representation that C.J. has had some major medical struggles. And I think some of the things that you will hear is about how alcohol was used as one of those ways to self-medicate.

He has had a lot of people who have come down from Georgia and different places to speak today. Not all of these individuals are going to be able to speak, but I would ask for a few of them if they would not mind. But I believe C.J. wants to start by addressing the Court.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Davenport.

THE DEFENDANT: First, Your Honor, I just want to say that I'm making this statement not to ask for any leniency or any -- apologize, but I just want to say how heartbroken I am over the pain that I've caused the Newell family. And I can't imagine what they're having to experience.

I'm not a person who goes out and parties and regularly attends Five Points. You can find me in the library, and I was not partying. The thoughtless actions that I took that night caused Mr. Newell to lose his life and how horribly damaged both inside and outside, the people that are in this courtroom, and I am truly sorry.

I -- I did have a minor problem after my medical things trying to cope. No medicine would help, so I was using a substance to, you know, self-medicate and just cope with the stresses of class and college.

I'm not telling you that as an excuse. I just -- I just wanted the Newell family to understand how this happened. I wasn't just completely reckless and utterly...

(Pause).

I -- I want the family and His Honor to believe me that Mr. Newell and his family are in my thoughts every second of the day, and they will be for the rest of my life.

I'm imprisoned by this decision in my mind everyday. I'm here to accept the responsibility for my actions, and again, tell Mr. Newell's family and his friends and his siblings and his ex-girlfriend that I'm just deeply sorry and so remorseful for my actions.

It is something that I don't know I'll ever be able to cope with knowing that I injured another human being who had such a promising life, and that's -- that's been the toughest part for me.

THE COURT: All right, sir. Anything else?

MS. SCHILLACI: Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. SCHILLACI: We would also ask Leon Yard to give his presentation here or right there.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: You may prefer over there I think, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Whatever you prefer.

MR. YARD: That's fine. Wherever you want it to be.

THE COURT: Prefer there.

MR. YARD: It's a pleasure.

All right, sir. Thank you for your time and the opportunity. I have a letter. I'll try to stick with it. It is emotional for me as it is for everybody in the courtroom.

When I was told I was going to have the opportunity to speak about C.J., the first thing that came to mind was my own kids. I have two boys, both are grown. One happens to be one of C.J.'s best friends. They're 24 years old, as has already been stated.

If I line my boys up against C.J., when I walk in the room, C.J. is going to say, Hey, Mr. Yard. My wife walks in, he's going to say, Hey, Mrs. Yard. It doesn't matter where we're at. If we're in front of a firing squad, he would probably still say the same thing.

He has never addressed me by anything other than Mr. or my wife anything other than Mrs. It doesn't matter the case or the cause. He is more respectful than I could wish for my own kids. Please. Thank you. He's just polished. You would think somebody was chasing him with a stick to make him do it. It's just there. It's instantaneous, always.

I've known C.J. for roughly about 13 years, I think it is, when he started middle school with my son, Logan. And they're -- they're like boyfriend and girlfriend. They're inseparable.

The only thing between them is distance. But they have cell phones. They have video games. I mean, they connect like that, but there's an undying love between those two and that connection, makes C.J. one of the prominent people in our family.

He is part of our family. He is one of my sons. He has gone to -- he has gone on vacation with my family many times. He stays the night at my house many times. I can't say that I would let just anybody stay at my house overnight.

The way the world is today, bad things happen. But if C.J. is there, I don't worry about anything. I understand when I ask him to do something, he's going to do it because he understands that's the rules of the house, and he's still respectful. Whether he agrees with it or not, he's still respectful.

We know that there's been some bad decisions made. I've made bad decisions. I've made mistakes. Everybody does. God didn't make us perfect.

I'd like to speak to C.J.'s positive attitude. Counsel spoke of his medical issues. I had the opportunity to visit him in the hospital after having surgery and some very painful stuff, and he's always got a smile on his face. He's always positive. He's a guy where the glass is half full, not the one that's half empty.

I'd like to think that I'm a little bit better because of that because I leave everything. Man, I don't know how he does it. I've seen him work with small kids. He is like a magnet, and it affects my son the same way. Little kids just rush up to him. Just look at him, you know. There's light bubbling out of him.

When anything happens with C.J., anything happens with my son, Logan, it affects me. It affects C.J. It affects Logan, my whole family, their family. I mean, we're in this world together.

When we decided, my wife and I, to have children, we just hoped they would be healthy, and if they accomplished that or they didn't, we just wanted them to be well mannered and have respect. We pretty well accomplished that, but as they get older and become grown men, we just hoped that they would be healthy and productive.

There is obstacles in life. Again, the Lord didn't create us perfect. So that's -- you know, it makes us what we are. I would hope that you would consider that we do all make mistakes, some worse than others.

I do believe there's a plan already in place for everybody in this room and everybody in this world. The Lord knows what he wants to happen, and you're an instrument of that course.

I do believe in second chances, and those second chances require opportunity and they require forgiveness for success. I think C.J. made a very precious decision when he decided to come forward and plead guilty to take responsibility for his actions. That alone should stand for something.

He's apologized. He knows, and everybody in this courtroom should know by now, there will be no winners at the end of this day, at the end of this session.

My wife always reminds me, she says -- when this call came in, she said you remember the conversations we had as a parent. The first nightmare of a parent is to receive a phone call that your child has been injured or killed in an accident.

I can relate to that, sir. I've never had a child be lost, but I can remember as a seven-year-old watching the US Army vehicle drive down a dirt road and tell me that my father had been killed, so I understand what they're going through. It makes it even harder.

The second nightmare would be the phone call that a parent gets that says your child was involved in an accident and they contributed. I don't know of any worst nightmare, sir, unless you could count this as a third trying to make a statement to make everybody understand C.J. is a wonderful young man. I love him, but he is not a monster. He has no ill will. He doesn't have a bad bone in his body that I could find.

I know this has affected a lot of people. It's raised a lot of questions in all of our minds as to what's important in life, but I would just ask that you give him the opportunity that number one, he wants to take responsibility. That's why he's here.

Number two, I would hope that you would allow him a sentence that would give him an opportunity to provide a positive effect on the world and his family as the Lord has intended.

That's all I have to say, sir. Thank you.

THE COURT: Yes, sir, thank you.

MS. SCHILLACI: Your Honor, next would be Vicky Davenport.

MS. DAVENPORT: Hi, Your Honor, I'm C.J.'s mom.

THE COURT: Okay.

MS. DAVENPORT: I have wrote and rewrote and looked at the empty pages. And I mean, if you see, I just -- I just don't -- it's hard, but as a mother, I can't imagine what you're going through. I'm so sorry. I am. I just can't because they are our babies and we love them, you know.

You don't -- like she said, you walk around when you have children with your heart on your sleeve. And this has been -- I know it's been -- it's sad to everyone, everyone in here, but I may not be able to possibly let everyone else know how our family feels.

I mean, there's no words that I can say to Mrs. Newell. There's no words that I can convey other than just to say we both lost. I mean, I know she had to bury her son and I can't even imagine, but I've lost my son.

He's not the same heart that he had. He is not a monster. He didn't do that on purpose. He didn't set out to hurt anyone. He never would. He works with children. He works -- he's a wonderful son. He's a caretaker.

Our family fell apart and broke apart in 2015, and C.J. took a lot of responsibility on his shoulders. Unfortunately, I see that now, a lot more than what we should have put on his shoulders.

As my son, as an older brother to Cole, he was trying in school and dealing with all that. You know, our family broke apart. We had to sell our house. I'm not trying to make any excuses. I'm just saying he always took a lot on, and it resulted in a lot of -- I don't think it resulted in it, but he's had a lot of medical issues and I'm sorry.

Like I said, I wrote and rewrote that, but when he was a sophomore in college, the surgeries began and they were not good. The gall bladder was removed. The liver was nicked. The -- he became septic. He was in and out of the hospital a half a dozen, maybe a dozen times.

It was bad. He -- we almost lost him several times. He was -- I took him to every doctor, to every -- you know, if anybody knows about Emory in Atlanta, to every specialist, every place we could take him and no medicine was helping, no -- no amount of medicine was taking away his pain, and then he was doing the -- dealing with the physical -- or the mental pain, I guess, of our family and then just trying to cope.

And I'm not trying to make excuses, but I just want this Court to know the fact that my son has a great character, and he has spent -- he's lived with me, so I've watched him struggle when this happened.

I mean, there were days I was afraid to leave him. There were days I had to go to work and I was afraid to come home, but he got through it. He got through it. He spent so many hours crying, not sleeping, praying. And through prayer and through me going -- finally -- I didn't know how to cope.

I had to go -- I finally went to church and found my family, found my home there, and it took months for C.J. to feel worthy to even go. That was one place he could go, but he wouldn't go because he felt like what he had done was the ultimate sin.

Well, when he came, immediately, he started working with the kids because he's always worked with kids, like she said, coach, counselor, and he's always been a favorite.

When he started working with kids, it was like a magnet, and it has helped him. He's not healed. He's still broken. He will always be broken. He'll never forget what he's done.

He'll never -- I don't know that he will ever -- I know he will never. I know his heart, and I'm not up here saying this. I know our children -- like you said, our children, they're not perfect. They make mistakes. I've made mistakes, but I just ask for your mercy. I ask for your forgiveness. I ask -- I pray constantly for David's mom. I know I can't even imagine. I pray for her peace.

Anyway, through this sickness, he had to withdraw, medically withdraw. He couldn't -- he just couldn't do it. He couldn't stay in school, so he came home with me. We sold our home, moved to Georgia.

Our -- my health is failing. My -- my dad's health. I've had surgery. C.J. became my dad's caretaker. He became my caretaker, and then I had to push him to go back to school because he didn't want to leave us, you know. So he came back.

He wasn't mentally or physically prepared, less so than I thought. He was struggling with, again, you know, the pain, the pain started, you know, and trying to carry so much on his shoulders, and I'm sorry for that.

I feel like he had too much on his shoulders, but I didn't know. I thought he was okay, and he started self-medicating because every medicine wouldn't help. I'm not saying that's an excuse. I'm not. I'm just saying that's what led him.

And that night was a tragic event. It was a horrible -- I don't even know how to describe it because I tried to put myself in her -- but I can't. I tried, but I can't put myself in her place.

All I can know is that my son has not took it lightly. He is remorseful. He's full of guilt. Like I said, I don't know that he'll -- I know he will never -- he will never be the same.

He loves people. He loves everyone. And this was not something he would have ever set out to do. You know, one of the things he told me, he said, I wish I could have walked over and let her just take me. He said, if it could have been me, I would never have took somebody else's life.

I just want you to know his character. He's not -- he's not a bad kid. He's not. He has a heart of gold. I heard them talk about David, how he's involved and forgiving and -- and you know, just a great friend. You know, if he and C.J. had met on campus in the library, on the street, they would have been friends because that's the kind of kid C.J. is, too.

I know I've spoke too much. I don't know where else to go with it. I'll let somebody else speak, but I just thank you for your time.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MS. SCHILLACI: Thank you, Your Honor. Charles Davenport, Mr. Davenport's father.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Mr. Davenport, you may have to speak up.

MR. DAVENPORT, SR.: Sure. Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MR. DAVENPORT, SR.: Thank you for allowing me to speak.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MR. DAVENPORT, SR.: My name is Charles Davenport. I want to talk a little bit about C.J., as well.

He -- forgive me if I'm a little emotional. It's been hard on everybody, no doubt. C.J. was our firstborn, and like all parents, you think about your kids.

As they -- as they grow up and you watch them and you watch how they develop and the things they do. You realize C.J. had always tried to use his ability as far as athletics and outdoorness and stuff to work with a number of kids and try to help them and mentor them. And through -- through him being a counselor through the YMCA, as a parent, it was very refreshing to know that the impact that he had each year.

Kids would come and request to be with him because of the things he did for them, the way he helped them and the way he taught them things and the way that he tried to make them better people.

He did that for year after year at camp, and then he went and started teaching -- soccer was his sport that he enjoyed, so he taught recreation soccer. Then he went on to teach junior varsity soccer.

To watch him and the time that he give them kids, as a parent, the -- what was really -- made you proud was other parents coming up to you and telling you what an impact he had on their little ones, whether they were eight years old, six years old, 12 years old, that the sportsmanship and the leadership that he tried to teach them, all their parents would come to us. So as a -- as a parent, you're prideful of that.

I know his mom talked about church, and just this past Sunday, I was watching him in church and watching how those kids were -- what they learned from him, and you know, him teaching some of the kids that's never even been to church or never had an opportunity to have a Bible or anything like that.

I think he's really -- he's tried to make a difference, and he's always tried to do that. He's always been a kind-hearted person, but I'm going to tell you something. You know, I think last November 15th changed most everybody in this room.

He made an unconscionable decision that night to get behind that wheel, and he's going -- he's impacted both of these families, all our friends on both sides, people that's not even here today, but that's -- that's not who he is. He made -- one decision shouldn't define who -- who a person is, even though that decision he made was terrible.

I can't even imagine what the Newell family is going through. There is no way. But I do, I pray for them every day. I pray for my family every day. I never thought I'd be involved in something like this, but I'm so sorry for the things that transpired on that day.

I just want you to consider what I've had to say that my child is not a monster. He did make a -- a terrible decision that day, but that one decision shouldn't define what a great person he's been for the last 23 years either. So would you please consider that. Thank you.

THE COURT: Yes, sir.

MS. SCHILLACI: And briefly, Your Honor, Orlantrez Snipes.

MR. SNIPES: Thank you. I'm Orlantrez Snipes. I'm C.J.'s best friend. I just want to give you a little brief of our life together.

I met C.J. when I was eight years old. I was a troubled child, and I had anger problems. I used to break all my pencils so I didn't have to do any work. C.J. would give me a lead pencil and say that you can't break this because I have to take this back home to my mom.

The teacher would send me out of the classroom, and she would send C.J. out there to calm me down. So when that happened -- that led up to about ninth grade. We went to different middle schools, different high schools, but we stayed friends.

And one day, I was in a dark moment, and I was thinking about ending it all. I was in the closet, and C.J. was in that closet crying with me telling me that I couldn't leave him and I would never -- he would never be the same with me doing that.

A little later, I started living with C.J. and them. And I don't think C.J. knows this, but I heard C.J. in the room with his parents, and he told his parents that he wanted nothing for Christmas. He wanted me to have a great Christmas. He wanted his parents to give me presents.

A little -- a little later, I was having a child but I overslept. I didn't hear my alarm clock go off. C.J. was the one that came and woke me up and took me to the hospital at three o'clock in the morning.

My child didn't come until 8:31. C.J. stayed there the whole time when I became a father and he became a Godfather, and C.J. is not a friend of mine. He's a brother. Blood wouldn't make us any closer.

C.J. has talked to me, and I have talked to him. I've needed him more than he needed me through everything. If C.J. wasn't my friend, I don't know where I would be right now. But I just want y'all to know that he's human. Things happen, but he's a great guy, and he will forever be my brother.

THE COURT: Thank you, sir.

MS. SCHILLACI: And then finally, Your Honor, will be Davis Bond.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. BOND: Last January, I received a call from a hurt mother. She asked me to work with her son explaining that he had killed another young man while drunk driving in college.

I felt a strong pain and an intense emotion in my chest. I could tell that she was scared. I look up the case online and saw the pictures of the handsome young man and his girlfriend. His name was David.

The next week, I met Charles Davenport. As a new therapist, I had no preparation or experience for this kind of work. Instead, I have relied on my own story of recovery and an empathy that seems to come from outside of myself, careful self-reflection, prayer and the guidance of more experienced therapists than myself.

I watched week by week as this moment in time, this accident spider-webbed into each and every aspect of this young man's life. I sat and witnessed his terror, his tears, his anger and his fumbling attempts to manage and understand himself and his own actions. The sleepless nights, the shame, the rejection, the social humiliation and yet, he was responsible for it, what to do.

My task, I discovered, would not be to take the pain from this young man or to help him rid himself of it. Rather, my task was to be with and witness a young man struggle with the supremely difficult task of reckoning himself with the fact that his actions took an innocent man's life. Over the months, I came to know and witness a gentle loving, honest, anxious, and humble soul.

My belief is that C.J. walks into this sentencing with the understanding that he is not the victim and that his incarceration is a tool to take responsibility in a small way for a life lost.

My personal feeling that I seek to share with each of you today is in a funny way, I am proud of C.J., how he speaks, how he cries and how he's lived this. It is my hope that he'll receive mercy and forgiveness in the hearts of others. It is my conviction that we all need forgiveness and that by forgiving in such a way, we may receive it.

I thank you for your time.

THE COURT: Yes, sir. Thank you.

MS. SCHILLACI: Your Honor, I believe Mr. McCullough may have a few final remarks, but I would ask the folks who drove in on Mr. Davenport's behalf if you would please stand.

(Complies).

THE COURT: Thank you very much.

MS. SCHILLACI: Thank you.

THE COURT: Mr. McCulloch.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Your Honor, this courtroom is filled with good people who are all suffering for different reasons. These are the most difficult kinds of cases that we deal with in our judicial system for a lot of reasons.

The calls for the maximum penalty, the characterizations of C.J. as a monster or a demon or whatever, I mean, the tragedy is inherent in these situations and the challenge for us to present to you in this short span of time, Charles Davenport, this young man to my left, is a real challenge.

I know that the Court knows as a former prosecutor and as a former public defender and the other significant things that you've done in your life and as a judge that you are uniquely equipped to be objective and to consider everything you've heard today. We have every confidence in that.

I think the Court also is aware that sending a message is a time honored part of every presentation and it doesn't work. That is why judges consider cases on a case-by-case basis. People don't listen to this message.

The terrible tragedy in California last night comes on the heels of thousands of messages sent that don't seem to stem that tide, but that's a whole different situation, Your Honor, because as you appreciate and understand deeply that this is a -- this is a different kind of crime. It involves a terrible tragedy. It involves the responsible -- the responsibility that C.J. takes on today and has since it occurred.

But as a former prosecutor myself who prosecuted in this courtroom 40 years ago, I had a boss back then who said I think somewhat -- well, what he said was, you know, but for the grace of God, that's how he described this crime. It could be my child. It could be my next door neighbor. It could be me.

That is not exactly a perfect description of it, Your Honor, but this is not a crime that involves the intent to harm any. It does involve an irresponsibility which we have made an effort to try to explain how that came about.

The problem is that he is responsible. And, Your Honor, in this courtroom, I would ask -- I'm glad that the fraternity is here. I'm sad that they have to be here, but I think the message that this Court sends in its sentence, no matter what it is, is one of potential -- the recognition that acts of irresponsibility, criminal acts, deserve punishment. But that's not really the message, Your Honor. That is the result. The message I hope is one that responsibility results in avoidance of tragedy and that redemption is possible.

The presentation we have made I hope demonstrates to the Court that this is not a demon. That is a young man who was not a party guy, not a DUIer on a normal circumstance. He has no prior record.

He has no disciplinary problem record at the University of South Carolina, in high school, or otherwise because you can bet that if that had been discoverable and discovered, it would have been presented to you.

This is not a person who is anything other than a human being who made a terrible mistake, which he absolutely understands and recognizes. It is a good person. He is a good person who did a very bad thing that will affect everyone in this courtroom and others outside forever.

Today, we like to say as lawyers that this is a time when people may have some degree of closure through this process. I hope that's true for all concerned, for everybody. C.J. is the one who is facing the most immediate punishment.

These few minutes of -- or the few minutes of irresponsibility that led to this and will lead to a lifetime effect on so many people is what happens when we are irresponsible.

Your Honor, we appreciate your patience. Both sides have tried to present to you I think as much information to allow you in such a short time to make a just and difficult decision.

So, Your Honor, we now turn this matter over to you for that difficult decision. We very much appreciate your time and your patience and your experience in getting it brought to a conclusion.

THE COURT: Yes, sir, anything else?

MR. MCCULLOUGH: No, Your Honor, I think that's all from the defense.

THE COURT: State, is there anything else, sir?

MR. GOLSON: Judge, we have a collection of statements from additional family and friends to hand up for your review, some additional items from Ms. Annette Newell, David's mother, and the photographs from the collision scene and the disc with the audio and video statements for the Court's review.

THE COURT: All right. There's a lot I could say right now, but I'll save it for when I come back to see you shortly -- well, not shortly. It's going to be a while.

I want to look at everything that you have here. Anything you have you want me to look at, give it to me. I'll go ahead and tell you, let's see, it's about 1:40. We will resume at 3:45. A great amount of that time I'm going to spend looking at what I've been given and reading the notes I've taken from all of this, and I'll see you then.

MR. MCCULLOUGH: Thank you.

(WHEREUPON, a lunch break was taken.)

THE COURT: Like many of you, your thoughts are varied. I'm afflicted with the same situation right now. So I'm going to try to keep it short.

First of all, I read everything that was given to me, everything. I read my notes from those who spoke. Cases like this are so hard to work with. I probably could have figured out a reason to pass it off to another judge for another day. I'm not hired to dodge work.

People see us wearing these black robes and think that we are omnipotent, all powerful. That is so far from the truth. Powerful in many ways, yes, yes. But there's so much I cannot do, and cases like this highlight what I cannot do. I cannot bring back Mr. Newell. I cannot turn back the hands of time for Mr. Davenport. I wish I could. I wish I could do both of those things.

Choices have consequences, and we can often choose what we want to do. Sadly, we don't have as many options when it comes to choosing the consequences. Or as David Jeremiah says, you can choose what you want to do with the kick back. You don't get to pick.

I realize clearly that Mr. Davenport never intended to cause the death of Mr. Newell, and he's not a monster. It's a terrible mistake. But I'm here today working within the confines of the statute.

And while Mr. Davenport didn't choose the outcome of what happened, he did choose to operate a vehicle under the influence of a high level of alcohol and with THC and add to that the aggravating factor of high speed driving almost twice the speed limit.

Mr. Davenport has no prior record. He didn't intend for the death to occur, and I think he's sorry, but the aggravating factors are those I just mentioned, consumption of alcohol, use of marijuana, and as the device on the truck indicated, driving about twice the speed limit on the city street.

The sentence of this Court is that Mr. Davenport shall be incarcerated at the Department of Corrections for a period of 25 years suspended to 20 years and with a fine of $10,100, and that's my sentence.

MR. GOLSON: Thank you, Judge.

(Whereupon, the proceedings were concluded.)

C.C.P. & G.S.

The Defendant, Charles Davenport, Jr., and his attorneys respectfully request this Court reconsider the 20-year sentence for felony DUI with death imposed on November 8, 2018. Respectfully, the 20-year sentence is greater than necessary to achieve the goals of sentencing, disproportionately punishes Mr. Davenport compared to similarly situated defendants, and is excessive given the facts of this case. Mr. Davenport, 24 years old with no prior criminal or disciplinary record, chose to accept responsibility, a decision announced early on to the prosecution and culminating in the entry of a plea. Knowing the general historical data on sentencing in the area prior to entering the plea, the sentence here came not only as a surprise to Mr. Davenport and the defense but a shock. Based on the 2014-2018 available data from the South Carolina Department of Corrections ("SCDC"), this 20 year sentence appears to be the harshest sentence handed down in this state to a defendant with no prior record in a single felony DUI with death plea.

FELONY DUI WITH DEATH SENTENCING DATA

With the sentencing goals in mind, a review of SCDC admissions data along with available public information is instructive. The mean sentence for felony DUI with death for persons entering SCDC for 2018 is 11.48 years.[1] When reviewing the data since 2014, the mean is 9.71.[2] During this period, of the 161 defendants entering the SCDC for this offense, 106 (66%) are serving sentences of one (1) to ten (10) years; 147 defendants (91%) have received sentences less than twenty (20) years.[3] Of the 14 defendants (9%) serving twenty (20) or more years[4]:

- 10 had prior records (and with full data, this number could be higher);
- 5 involved individuals with one but usually 2 or more prior DUIs;
- 9 involved multiple fatalities or victims;
- 1 involved an intentional act (defendant announced to witnesses she was going to run over the victims);
- 8, at least, involved multiple criminal charges sentenced concurrently;
- 2 involved defendants killing someone following the commission of a burglary/robbery with 1 wrecking a stolen truck;
- 2 attempted to leave the scene of the accident and failed to render aid.

None of these factors are present in Mr. Davenport's matter.

ANECDOTAL SENTENCING EXPERIENCE

The data shows that 91% of persons entering SCDC for felony DUI with death since 2014 are serving less than the 20-year sentence given to Mr. Davenport. Given the wide latitude accorded judges for this offense in sentencing in South Carolina, the Defense believes that the confidence of the public and of the Bar, and its clients, depend upon attention to the parallel concerns of consistency and proportionality. The Court's capacity to impose a sentence across the range should take into account aggravating factors such as prior criminal convictions for other offenses, prior convictions for similar offenses, general lawlessness, and diagnosed or ignored personality or addiction generated misconduct – none of which was presented here. This Defendant was a true first time offender without a history of criminal or disciplinary misconduct, aberrant behavior, drug or alcohol addiction or dependency.

The goal of all criminal sentencing is to ensure fairness and consistency in case to case, from judge to judge. The compelling need for consistent and predictable sentencing is another rationale for this Court's reconsideration based on the following anecdotal descriptions:[5]

- 17-year-old killed one friend and seriously injured two others; appears to be first time offender; sentenced to 5 years.
- Defendant with .17 BAC struck pedestrian and left scene. Pled guilty to FDUI/Death and Leaving the Scene with Death and sentenced to 6 years on reckless homicide. May have had prior DUI history.
- Defendant, 52-year-old woman with prior DUI conviction, sentenced to 6 years (suspended from 12) for 2 counts of FDUI/Great Bodily Injury in an accident paralyzing a mother and injuring her 13 year old son. BAC .215.
- Defendant, who upon information and belief was a veteran with no prior alcohol record sentenced to 10 years (suspended from 15) after BAC of .29. Killed one (1) person and injured 2 others and pled to FDUI/death and FDUI/Great Bodily Injury.
- 24-year old defendant with a BAC of .24 rear-ended and killed a 32-year-old motorist on Ravenel Bridge in Charleston. Plea negotiated from FDUI/Death to 10 year sentence for Reckless Homicide.

[5] Exhibit D, publicly available news articles and public indices where available.

- Similar to Mr. Davenport's facts, a 25-year-old was given a 10-year sentence in a single felony DUI with death. Defendant, who had a BAC of .33 (twice that of Mr. Davenport) was speeding, driving recklessly, and disregarding lanes.

- After a 7-day trial in Greenwood County, defendant received a sentence of 13 years on the FDUI/Death and 8 years of the FDUI/Great Bodily Injury to run concurrent in a crash involving multiple victims. Defendant (late twenties) crossed the center line, collided head on with a vehicle, with a .19 BAC. The collision caused the death of the driver and serious bodily injury to a passenger.

- 65-year-old defendant with no prior record but BAC of .254 drove through an accident site and killed a volunteer fireman and left the scene. Defendant received sentence of 25 years suspended on service of 15 years.

- As recent as May 2018, a defendant pled guilty to FDUI/Death, FDUI/Great Bodily Injury and Child Endangerment and received 18-year sentence in an accident resulting in injury to wife, other children and death of step daughter. Defendant BAC was .10. Defendant had previously been convicted in 2007 of two counts of FDUI/Death.

GOALS OF SENTENCING

Sentencing can serve the purposes of punishment and rehabilitation, but only when sentences are consistent throughout the state. Harsh and/or disproportionate sentences, especially when imposed on first time offenders in what can be described as unintentional, aberrant behavior crimes (when no prior record), can have a chilling effect on the decision of defense counsel to recommend plea versus trial and erodes the faith of defendants (and the community) in the criminal justice system.

The State of South Carolina, unlike many other states, vests in our judges almost unbridled discretion in sentencing, so long as the sentence conforms to the imposition of any pertinent mandatory minimum and does not exceed the statutory maximum. See generally State v. Brouwer, 346 S.C. 375, 550 S.E.2d 915, (Ct. App. 2001); State v. Bolin, 209 S.C. 108, 111, 39 S.E.2d 197, 198 (1946).

In the federal system, the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984 (once mandatory and now advisory) provides guidelines for recommended sentences to insure uniformity, consistency, and fairness in the federal criminal justice system. The intent is to address, through its mathematical formula, the basic purposes of criminal punishment: deterrence, incapacitation, just punishment, and rehabilitation.

The federal government goals were first, honesty in sentencing (which the State achieves in its adoption of the 85% service of the sentence). The second goal was reasonable uniformity of sentencing by insuring reasonable consistency in sentencing for similar offenses committed by similar offenders. Third, Congress sought proportionality of sentencing by collecting sentencing data that acknowledged more severe sentences as appropriate for criminal conduct of increasing severity or aggravation, including prior criminal history, multiple deaths, other aberrant misbehavior suggesting incorrigibility, or no potential for rehabilitation.

Judge Anderson in a dissenting opinion in Brouwer, referred to these goals in stating "in determining a proper sentence, a defendant's history, character, and rehabilitative potential, along with the seriousness of the offense, the need to protect society, and the need for deterrence and punishment, must be equally weighed." Id., 346 S.C. at 390. Further, "The sentence imposed . . . upon others for similar offenses are among a wide variety of factors which may be properly considered in determining a proper punishment." State v. Brewington, 267 S.C. 97, 226 S.E.2d 240, 251 (1976)(internal citations omitted)(emphasis added). Given the sentencing factors as applied to Mr. Davenport, 20 years is, respectfully, excessive under the facts and more than necessary to accomplish this State's sentencing goals.

GOALS OF SENTENCING AND CHARLES DAVENPORT

A. Defendant's History and Character

Mr. Davenport is 24 years old with no prior record. He was on the high school JV soccer team and accepted a soccer scholarship to attend USC Lancaster before transferring to Columbia. Prior to the accident, Mr. Davenport was on the Dean's List at USC although suffering from six plus surgeries. By all accounts, he is a great student and hard worker. His parents are active in his life and both attended the court sentencing along with his brother and numerous friends, family, and community members. At the sentencing hearing, community letters in support of Mr. Davenport were submitted to this court. Since the hearing, counsel has received numerous additional letters that are attached as Exhibit E. These letters represent the testimony of community members who know this young man's history and character the best. Charles Davenport is described as having a "unique combination of charisma and kindness,"[6] and "at any given time, the neighborhood children are knocking at his door to have him fill up their basketball or pump their bicycle tire."[7] He has a "contagious personality and strong character."[8]

B. Rehabilitative Potential

Mr. Davenport is a first-time offender and as such, is the least likely to be a repeat offender.[9] Moreover, as evidenced by the overwhelming community support, this is a 7 Letter of Heather Bruce, Exhibit E.

8 Letter of Ty Youngblood, Exhibit E.

9 Recidivism & Federal Sentencing Policy, Exhibit F. Congress has spent a good deal of money and time studying criminal recidivism. Those with little criminal history and college graduates were the least young man who has a community standing behind him to both foster his re-entry into society and to hold him accountable. Even a sentence of half his current sentence will impose a significant punishment and force serious reflection during the prime of this young man's life. Unlike the overwhelming majority of defendants receiving a sentence of 20 or more years, Mr. Davenport does not have prior DUI convictions or a repeated history of lawlessness. As such, he is the prime example of a defendant who can and will be rehabilitated. As one community member commented, Mr. Davenport's acts "do not define his character."[10]

C. Seriousness of the Offense

In this instance, the legislature acknowledged the disparity of proper sentencing for felony DUI with death by establishing a sentencing range of not less than one (1) year nor more than twenty-five (25) years, with mandatory service of 85%. S.C. Code Ann. §56-5-2945. Based on the data discussed above, it appears our courts reserve the highest sentences for those defendants with prior DUI convictions or other criminal histories, incidents involving multiple fatalities, and/or intentional conduct.[11] This approach comports with the federal system where Congress sought proportionality of sentencing by collecting sentencing data that acknowledged more severe sentences are appropriate for criminal conduct of increasing severity or aggravation, including prior criminal history, likely to reoffend. It should be noted that unlike felony DUI, most of the crimes in the federal system involve specific intent to commit the specific crime.

[11] Exhibits B and D.

multiple deaths, other aberrant misbehavior suggesting incorrigibility, or no potential for rehabilitation.[12] None of those factors are present here.

D. Need to Protect Society and Need for Deterrence and Punishment

As the elements of the crime inevitably required the element of a fatality, that fact is recurring in such an offense – death by reason of drinking and driving is the essence of the offense in every case of felony DUI. Thus, a victim's death should not increase the tragedy nor the appetite for penalty as it is contemplated by the sentencing range of one (1) to twenty-five (25) years.

Mr. Davenport has accepted responsibility for a serious act and understands he will serve a substantial sentence. He will remember his act every day for the rest of his life and will have a long period of reflection and rehabilitation. Without question, Mr. Davenport made a serious mistake in an otherwise exemplary, young life. To his credit, he was quick to accept responsibility. As one of his friends phrased it, "I know the decision he made that night is not reflective of who he is or what he stands for."[13] Mr. Davenport has no prior offenses, has served his community, and will continue to be held to account by those who know him best.

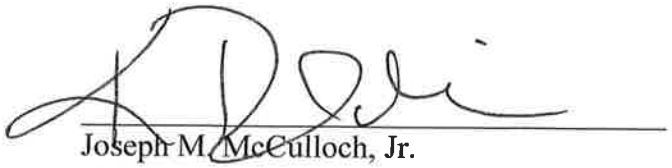

CONCLUSION

Based on the above, we respectfully and zealously urge your reconsideration of the sentence for this young man.

Mother faces maximum prison time for deadly DUI

February 24, 2015 at 11:01 PM EST - Updated July 21 at 3:27 PM

HORRY COUNTY, SC (WMBF) – A mother of three is sentenced to 25 years behind bars, an unusually high prison time for DUI charges. However, the victims' families want even tougher laws in place.

On January 25th, 2014, police believe Brittany Lewis ran a stop sign at the intersection of Highway 701 and Bucksport Road. Her car, carrying three other people, collided with an oncoming vehicle which was driven by Jackie Cohen.

Jackie Cohen and her boyfriend, Ryan Marsh, were killed during the crash. A third passenger was sent to the hospital in serious condition.

After losing their children, the mothers didn't think the pain could get any worse. However, the evidence uncovered during the investigation added to their grief.

"According to the police records, she [Lewis] said to her passenger 'watch me run these M-Fers over, that was the last thing she said before she accelerated, veered into them, and killed them," said Sheryl Marsh between tears.

The MAIT report given to the family shows in the seconds leading up to the crash, Brittany Lewis pushed the gas pedal down, accelerated to nearly 65 MPH and crossed into the oncoming lane of traffic.

"I couldn't understand...why are you in the other lane? If you stayed in your lane you would have missed my child," said Lisa Fisher, the mother of Jackie Cohen.

The prosecutor, Laurie Richardson, said during police interviews the passengers in Lewis' vehicle told officers they begged her not to run the stop sign.

A toxicology report shows cocaine was present in Lewis' system during the crash, however, Lewis denies intentionally running the stop sign.

During Tuesday's hearing, Lewis told the judge that she was reaching down for her cell phone. Her defense attorney added because Lewis was under the influence, her reaction time could have been slower.

However, the judge expressed doubt, saying he was familiar with that intersection and believed the area to be straight and clear across.

Both families of Jackie Cohen and Ryan Marsh stood in front of the judge, asking him for stricter punishments. According to the prosecutor, Lewis had been released from jail one month prior to the deadly accident.

"It appears she has been in trouble with the law for most of her adult life....she has gotten slap on the wrist after slap on the wrist. It is frustrating to look at that and consider if she would have been held accountable for something she had done in the past, could it have somehow changed what we are dealing with now," questioned Sheryl Marsh.

The judge decided to throw out the recommendation, and instead sentenced Brittany Lewis to the maximum of 25 years in prison.

During the hearing, it was determined before Lewis was incarcerated, her three children were not living with her.

HORRY COUNTY, SC (WMBF) – A man and a woman were killed in a two-car accident on Bucksport Road Saturday January 25th, around 5:23 p.m. Now the person state troopers said caused the accident is behind bars at J. Reuben Long Detention Center facing charges.

According to SCHP, Brittany Lewis, 28, of Conway SC, has been charged with felony of driving under the influence, resulting in death. She is currently being held at the detention center after her bond was denied.

Troopers said the vehicle Lewis was driving was a 2011 Chevy pick-up truck. She was traveling west on Bucksport Road when she disregarded a stop sign at the intersection of Highway 701 and struck a car, that was traveling South Bound on Hwy. 701.

Lewis and her three passengers in the pick-up truck with her. All were taken to Grand Strand Regional Medical Center for their injuries. All three of Lewis' passengers weren't wearing their seat belts according to troopers and all of them have since been discharged from the hospital.

As a result of the accident Jacklyn Marie Cohen, 19, from Conway and Ryan Marsh, 22, from Little River were killed in the crash. Cohen's front seat passenger Christina Frink remains at GSRMC listed in serious condition. Troopers confirm Frink was wearing her seatbelt at the time of the crash.

Friends of Cohen and Marsh said the couple had their joint funeral services on Thursday.

According to Horry County public records Lewis has had to face a judge before. Lewis has been in trouble with the law every year since 2009. Her arrests include petit larceny, possession of drug paraphernalia, trespassing and noise violation.

The highway patrol's MAIT team will continue to investigate the crash until a court date has been set for Lewis.

Summerville man who wrecked stolen truck killing man gets 40 years in prison

By | March 19, 2018 at 8:23 PM EST - Updated August 14 at 5:15 AM

DORCHESTER COUNTY, SC (WCSC) - A Summerville man who wrecked a stolen truck killing one man has been sentenced to 40 years in prison.

Justen Lee Wilkes pleaded guilty to felony DUI involving death and two counts of first-degree burglary.

The incident happened on Oct. 20, 2016 and took the life of 45-year-old William Alexander Sigman of Ridgeville.

A report by the coroner's office states Sigman was in an SUV traveling east on Dorchester Road, and his wife was ahead of him in a pickup truck.

Authorities say a stolen vehicle driven by Wilkes crossed the median and hit Sigman's wife's truck in the rear driver side.

The coroner's office says Wilkes then hit William Sigman's SUV head-on.

Sigman died at the scene of the accident due to injuries he sustained in the collision.

South Carolina Highway Patrol officials say Wilkes also struck the tail end of a Volvo. The driver of that vehicle was transported to the hospital.

Investigators say Wilkes ran from the scene and was later captured.

The case was prosecuted by Assistant Solicitor Don Sorenson.

According to prosecutors, the burglary charges were investigated by detectives with the Summerville Police Department and the North Charleston Police Department, and the felony DUI was investigated by the SC Highway Patrol.

SPARTANBURG COUNTY, S.C. — An Upstate man who drove drunk and crashed into a car killing two college students and severely injuring a third last December admitted his guilt and was sentenced Wednesday.

Hollis Gene Brock, Jr., 49, pleaded guilty to two counts of felony driving under the influence with a death and felony driving under the influence with great bodily injury.

In the fatal crash, Brock slammed his truck head-on into a car on Highway 9 near Blaylock Road in Inman. Melissa Marie Frilot, 19, of Spartanburg, died at the scene. Kortlynn Breanna Smith, 19, of Inman, died at the hospital. Daisy Byrd, 19, of Inman, suffered two broken legs and a broken arm in the wreck.

Investigators said Brock was so drunk, he didn't realize he had broken his neck in the crash. Brock climbed from his wrecked truck and attempted to walk from the scene. The solicitor said Brock was found wandering about 100 yards from the wreck.

An open bottle of liquor was found in the truck, and Brock admitted drinking beer and liquor before the crash. His blood alcohol level was .245, investigators said.

"This case was a senseless tragedy that could have been avoided if Hollis Brock acted responsibly," Solicitor Barry Barnette said. "He made poor decisions and took the lives of two innocent young ladies. Daisy Byrd will live with the physical and emotional scars for the balance of her life."

Circuit Judge Mark Hayes sentenced Brock to consecutive 25-year prison sentences on the two death cases, the maximum sentence allowed under state law.

Brock received a concurrent 15-year prison sentence on the great bodily injury charge.

He will be required to serve 85 percent of his sentence before he is eligible for release.

'You just do it': Doctor pulls patient from burning ambulance as wildfire spread, helping others

Updated: 10:37 PM EST Nov 15, 2018

Max Resnik

CHICO, Calif. (KCRA) — As the growing Northern California wildfire bore down on Paradise last week, doctors and nurses at Feather River Hospital began evacuating patients.

One pediatrician's work continued even after he evacuated the hospital.

Dr. David Russell made his rounds Thursday morning as he would any other day.

Then came word of a growing fire moving toward Paradise. After the blaze ignited, about 52,000 people were forced to evacuate.

"I was dispositioning my patients as far as if they could continue care, if they needed to be discharged," Russell said. "And then quite rapidly, as the evacuation of the hospital happened, we had my patients jump in private vehicles."

Russell then got in his truck and entered that same line of private vehicles prepared to take patients to a safer location. By the time he made it to the front, someone with the hospital told him that everyone had loaded.

He got on the highway into bumper-to-bumper traffic and the Camp Fire.

"It got darker and darker and darker and then (we) started seeing more fire," Russell said. "Not just patches, but fire and a burning house on my right, some fire not too far off on my left. Started hearing, kind of, the explosions."

Faced with the growing inferno and depleting gas in his truck, Russell called his father, who was with his wife and two children, about what he should do.

Russell's father looped in his brother, a firefighter. Russell was leaning toward abandoning his truck and making a run for safety.

Effingham man charged with felony DUI in fatal Florence crash

Staff reports Oct 29, 2014

FLORENCE, S.C. -- An Effingham man faces 10 charges following a Wednesday morning crash in which one person died, a second was injured and one of Florence's busiest intersections was closed while troopers began their investigation.

Vincent Omear Thomas, 33, of Mayesville was in his vehicle, at the intersection of Church and Cheves streets, when he was struck by another vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed. Thomas died at the scene, Florence County Coroner Keith von Lutcken said.

The driver of the car that struck Thomas, 19-year-old Kyeon Glover, of 3081 Ballpark Road, was charged with felony DUI resulting in death by the South Carolina Highway Patrol, said Cpl. Sonny Collins.

In addition, he is charged with failure to stop for a blue light and siren with great bodily harm results, first offense possession of an ounce or less of marijuana, first-degree burglary, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, first-degree assault and battery, second-degree assault and battery, no SC driver's license, unlawful possession of a firearm by a person convicted of a violent offense and discharging a firearm into a dwelling, according to the Florence County Detention Center's Web site.

The incident started at about 5:10 a.m. when Florence Police officers were sent to the 900 Block of June Lane -- the Churchill Apartments -- to a report of a burglary in progress with shots fired, Florence Police Chief Allen Heidler said.

The chief said it appeared the incident involved a boyfriend and girlfriend who had been separated from each other for "some period of time."

An officer responding to the call, heading south on Church Street, saw a car that matched the description of the suspect's car eaving the area and heading north on Church Street. The officer turned around, hit his blue lights and the car sped away, Heidler said.

The officer was trying to catch up to the car when the car ran off the right side of the road, into some shrubs and was "vaulted into two vehicles that were stopped at that location and again vaulted into the side of McLeod Medical Center's parking garage," Heidler said.

"He was actually going the opposite direction of the suspect's vehicle," Heidler said. "He turned around on the suspect's vehicle turning his blue lights and siren and activating them at that time, and that's when the vehicle sped away from him," Heidler said. "At this particular time the officer was trying to catch up to the vehicle. The vehicle had sped away from him and the officer was trying to catch up to him."

Heidler described Thomas as an innocent bystander who was stopped in his car at the intersection waiting to turn and said the incident was "unnecessary and tragic."

The Church and Cheves streets intersection was closed while South Carolina Highway Patrol troopers with the agency's Multidisciplinary Accident Investigation Team conducted its investigation.

At one point, troopers used a Florence Fire Department ladder truck to collect photos of the crash scene.

Traffic into and out of McLeod Regional Medical Center that would have traveled through the intersection was rerouted without incident both at the scene and in coordination with surrounding agencies that would have traveled through the intersection, said Jumana Swindler, hospital spokesperson. No hospital services were interrupted because of the wreck, she said.

Damage to the hospital's parking deck was strictly cosmetic and not structural, she said.

The South Carolina Highway Patrol's Multidisciplinary Accident Investigation Team was called to investigate the crash.

Heidler said at this point in the investigation, it appears all departmental policies and state laws were followed. But as part of the ongoing investigation, police are asking that a witness who was at the intersection in a brown pickup truck -- who was asked to move for their safety -- please contact the South Carolina Highway Patrol.

Florence Police Maj. Carlos Raines said Glover could face additional charges by the Florence County Sheriff's Office in connection with the vehicle he was driving at the time of the crash. In the meantime, he remains in custody at the Florence County Detention Center in Effingham, awaiting a bond hearing.

Man charged for DUI after crash kills 70-year-old woman in Myrtle Beach

By Kelly Matter | December 20, 2015 at 2:44 PM EST - Updated July 27 at 7:50 AM

MYRTLE BEACH, SC (WMBF) – A 33-year-old man has been arrested and charged with DUI after a crash on 27th Avenue South and Kings Highway Saturday night that left a 70-year-old woman dead, according to officials.

Paulino Meza-Malela was booked into the Myrtle Beach Jail and charged with DUI – felony driving under the influence resulting in death, after 70-year-old Carolyn Hicks of Knoxville, Tennessee died at Grand Strand Hospital Saturday night, according to police records.

Hicks died at 9:16 p.m. as a result of trauma due to the crash, according to Deputy Coroner Darris Fowler.

Police responded to the crash scene Saturday night and conducted several field sobriety tests on Meza-Malela after smelling the odor of alcohol and noticing his eyes were red and glassy, according to police report. He exhibited several clues to driving impaired, and was placed under arrest for driving under the influence.

A traffic investigation revealed that the primary contributing factor in the fatal collision was Meza-Malela's speed, the report states.

After checking Meza-Malela's fingerprints, it was determined that his identity was different than the one he originally provided, and he was wanted out of Horry County for failure to appear on a trafficking cocaine charge.

COLUMBIA, SC (WIS) - The man charged with a felony DUI from a weekend fatal accident has a past of driving under the influence.

Jessie Samuels, 51, was driving under suspension Sunday morning on Interstate 20 when he collided with another driver near mile marker 68 around 5:45 a.m. Samuels was traveling eastbound in westbound lanes when he hit Donald Jerome Ford, 41, of Columbia, according to Lance Cpl. Sonny Collins.

Ford was transported to Palmetto Health Richland where he died, Richland County Coroner Gary Watts said.

Samuels and a passenger were transported to Palmetto Health Richland. Their conditions are not known.

The collision remains under investigation by the Highway Patrol.

WIS' investigative team obtained Samuels' 10-year driving record and discovered that he was convicted Feb. 5, 2013, of DUI after being charged Dec. 22, 2012. He also has six violations for driving under suspension, with two of those occurring since his DUI charge.

DUI driver who killed mother, daughter is sentenced

Updated: 5:00 AM EDT Oct 9, 2014

SPARTANBURG COUNTY, S.C. — A Spartanburg man pleaded guilty and was sentenced Wednesday in a DUI crash that killed a 43-year-old woman and her mother.

Austin Shackleford, 20, pleaded guilty to eight counts in connection to the crash last March that killed Tanya Tiede. Her mother, 65-year-old Sandra Kay Effler, died later at Spartanburg Regional Medical Center.

Shackleford was driving north on Highway 110 when he crossed the center line and struck the Tiede family's car head-on.

Investigators said Teide's 44-year-old husband, Chris, and 11-year-old daughter, Hannah, were trapped in the car and seriously injured.

The solicitor said Shackleford admitted to detectives he'd had a half pint of rum, marijuana and other drugs the night of the accident. The coroner said a deputy's dash cam video showed Shackleford pass at a high rate of speed less than a minute before the crash.

Candance Plemmons, the victims' sister and daughter, said, "On March 25, my life was forever changed ... Two of the most important people in my life, my mom and my sister were killed because of a head on collision caused by Austin Shackleford."

Shackleford admitted his guilt in court.

"I'm just ready to face my consequences and receive my punishment," he said.

He was quiet through most of his sentencing, only showing emotion when he apologized to the victims' family.

His brother, Christopher Shackleford, who was just released from prison after serving a felony DUI sentence given to him by the same judge, was also in court Wednesday to support his brother.

"It's horrible I had to throw away so much of my life for something I learned in the first year," he said. "And I hope and ask of you that you give Austin the chance to come to the same realization and still have enough time to get out, improve and have a life.

Shackleford was sentenced to 25 years in prison. He will be required to serve at least 85 percent of his sentence. He could have faced a maximum sentence of up to 125 years.

Spartanburg County Solicitor Barry Barnette said, "I get tired of seeing this. It destroys everybody -- him and the victims' family. It's something completely preventable. Just ask somebody else to drive. Just do not drive."

Man charged with felony DUI after fatal crash

April 12, 2015 at 6:49 PM EST - Updated July 11 at 12:50 PM

COLUMBIA, SC (WIS) - A man has been charged with felony DUI and several other crimes after police say he caused a three-vehicle crash in Columbia Saturday night that killed a woman.

Columbia police say 30-year-old Arthuro Rios Torres was driving on the 3100 block of Percival Road when he hit a vehicle in the left turn lane from behind, causing it to drive into oncoming traffic and crash into a southbound vehicle.

Investigators say the driver of third vehicle, 61-year-old Roxina Howell Mack, died at the scene. Police say Torres left the scene of the accident but was eventually arrested at a nearby mobile home park.

Torres has been charged with hit and run involving death, hit and run attended vehicle with injury, failure to give information and render aid habitual offender; no driver's license, driving under suspension; second offense and failure to report an accident involving death.

The Columbia Police Department is investigating the crash.

DUI death lands Rock Hill woman in prison for 23 years

By Anna Douglas - adouglas@heraldonline.com

December 01, 2014 10:04 PM
Updated December 02, 2014 09:33 AM

A Rock Hill woman pleaded guilty on Monday afternoon to reaching speeds of more than 100 miles per hour while driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs, and killing a 22-year-old mother of two who she had once cared for at her parents' child care center.

The fatal wreck happened in February around 4 p.m. on one of Rock Hill's busiest state highways, S.C. 161.

In a York County courtroom on Monday, prosecutors said Cassie Cunningham was barreling down Celanese Road at 107 miles per hour just two seconds before she collided with the car that 22-year-old Kristen Knight was driving.

Cunningham rear-ended Knight at an intersection, sending Knight's car across the road's median and into the path of another vehicle. The force of Cunningham's SUV hitting Knight's small sedan caused an "accordion" effect, prosecutors said, adding that the back of Knight's car was smashed almost to her driver's seat.

Knight died in a hospital emergency room, suffering multiple injuries to internal organs and several broken bones.

Cunningham, 36 at the time of the wreck, had smoked marijuana and consumed enough alcohol to put her at more than three times the legal limit to drive in South Carolina, authorities said. On Monday, she was sentenced on a felony DUI charge to 23 years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

Sixteenth Circuit Solicitor Kevin Brackett told presiding circuit Judge Brian Gibbons that Cunningham's extreme choices and the consequences warranted the maximum sentence for a felony DUI of 25 years. The fact that Knight's two young children weren't in the car at the time is "the only good thing that can be said about this case," he said.

"Everything in this case is extreme," Brackett said, emphasizing Cunningham's high speed, her level of intoxication, the families' connections to one another and the details of the injuries that Knight succumbed to.

Cunningham once cared for Knight at her parent's Rock Hill day care center.

Before being sentenced, Cunningham apologized to Knight's family and her own. She also asked all the children she once cared for to "forgive me for letting you down."

She recalled, "Kristen was one of those children. I prayed with her as a little girl. I'll carry that memory with me."

Cunningham's mother, stepfather, brother and fiance spoke on her behalf in court. Her attorney said she'd struggled with addictions all of her life, with some years of sobriety. He also said Cunningham suffers from bipolar and post-traumatic stress disorders brought on by years of physical and sexual abuse.

Her brother asked Gibbons to show Cunningham mercy, saying, "She's not a career criminal; she's a loving mother."

Prosecutors, Knight's family and Gibbons all pointed to Cunningham's previous DUI charge in Rock Hill from 2008. Then, she was arrested but enrolled in an alcohol education court program. Her license was temporarily suspended and reinstated less than one year later.

Since her daughter's death, Kristen Knight's mother, Donna Aaron, has lobbied local lawmakers to Man sentenced to 20 years for felony DUI after killing CFD chief's great-grandnephew

By Emery Glover | July 7, 2015 at 6:10 PM EST - Updated July 25 at 9:06 AM

COLUMBIA, SC (WIS) - Lonnie Burt Gross, III, pleaded guilty to a felony DUI on Tuesday and was sentenced to 20 years in prison.

Gross was driving in the opposite lane of North Springs Road back on March 7, 2014. His vehicle collided head-on striking the rear passenger door of Latoya Jenkins' vehicle.

Gross and Latoya Jenkins were both treated for minor injuries at Palmetto Richland. However, Latoya's 3-year-old son, Josiah, suffered severe head trauma and multiple traumas to his internal organs. Josiah was placed on life support and died not long after.

Josiah was the great-grandnephew of Columbia Fire Chief Aubrey Jenkins.

According to the toxicology reports, Gross' blood alcohol level was .243, which is just over three times higher than the legal limit.

Gross was also sentenced to pay a $25,100 fine.

Quentin Gregory Miller was driving home to Mount Pleasant in his pride and joy, his Ford Mustang. The 32-year-old man was crossing the Arthur Ravenel Jr. Bridge on Dec. 17, 2011, at around 4 a.m. when a car came up from behind him.

The car slammed into the back of Miller's Mustang, whirling it into the concrete wall. The Mustang burst into flames with Miller still inside.

He likely was already gone before the car caught fire, according to prosecutors, but the way he died still haunts his mother, Nancy.

"We didn't get to see his body. I didn't get to give him a hug and kiss goodbye. I didn't get to say I love you," she said Thursday afternoon in a Charleston courtroom, where the man who was driving the car that crashed into Miller accepted a negotiated plea.

Adam Burnell, 24, of Mount Pleasant, who was an assistant manager of Husk at the time of the wreck, pleaded guilty to reckless homicide. He was originally charged with felony DUI resulting in death, which could carry up to 25 years in prison. The negotiation came with a 10-year sentence, which Circuit Judge Roger Young accepted, calling the prison term "appropriate."

Nancy Miller and her husband, Terry, addressed the judge with Burnell watching. They spoke of their loss and the hundreds of letters they've received from around the country from Miller's friends and family.

She expressed the pain her family is dealing with but acknowledged the grief Burnell's family is feeling. Burnell's parents were in the courtroom.

"But actions have consequences. Our family and friends have received a life sentence without Quentin," Nancy Miller said. "I thought I knew all about forgiveness, but I didn't. I want to forgive you completely, Adam. I will eventually."

Burnell apologized to the judge and to Miller's family.

"If I could do anything to take it back to make it better, I would," Burnell said. "I hope and pray this result today will help give some comfort and solace to friends and family of Mr. Miller."

Burnell, who suffered minor injuries in the crash, had a blood alcohol level three times the legal limit in South Carolina, according to prosecutors.

Ninth Circuit Assistant Solicitor Chad Simpson, who prosecuted the case, told the judge that Burnell was seen driving recklessly on East Bay Street before wrecking on the bridge.

One driver saw Burnell's car speeding on the street, and was so alarmed that he pulled over to let Burnell pass, Simpson said.

Another witness was walking across East Bay with his girlfriend when Burnell drove through a red light, causing the man to pull his girlfriend out of the way, according to Simpson.

The parent company of Husk restaurant agreed to pay $1.1 million in August 2012 to settle a wrongful-death lawsuit brought by Miller's family.

In the lawsuit, Miller's family alleged that the Queen Street restaurant allowed Burnell to drink excessively on the premises after hours, then get behind the wheel.

Neighborhood Dining Group Inc. and its insurance carrier, Peerless Indemnity, were to pay the settlement to Miller's parents and his common-law wife, Maggie Hall. The company has denied any fault or liability in the resolution.

"Time and time again we have seen accidents caused by drunk driving rip families apart," Solicitor David Stumbo said following the sentencing. "While this verdict and long prison sentence cannot bring Jeremy Cockrell (the wreck victim) back to his loved ones, it is my hope and prayer that it serves to give them some closure."

The trial began on February 13 and continued throughout that week, including all day on Saturday. Closing arguments were given on Monday, February 20, and the jury deliberated for about 90 minutes before returning the guilty verdicts. Circuit Court Judge Donald Hocker deferred sentencing until 10 a.m. this morning (Feb. 27).

The sentencing range for felony DUI resulting in death is from one to 25 years in prison, and is classified as a violent, no-parole offense under state law.

On November 15, 2014, Rowell was driving along S.C. 225 about a mile from the intersection on U.S. 25 S. when he crossed the center line and collided head-on with another vehicle driven by Cockrell.

Cockrell, 27, was pronounced dead at the scene, and a passenger in Cockrell's vehicle was taken to a local hospital to receive treatment for severe injuries to his lower body. Rowell was airlifted to Greenville to receive treatment for his injuries.

Rowell's blood-alcohol content was .19 when he arrived at the hospital in Greenville around 9 p.m. that night.

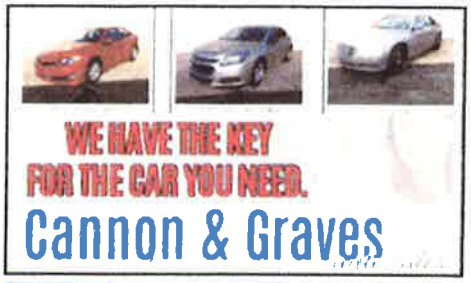

Judge Hocker sentenced Rowell to 13 years in prison on the charge of felony DUI resulting in death and eight years in prison on the charge of felony DUI resulting in great bodily injury, with the sentences to be served concurrently.

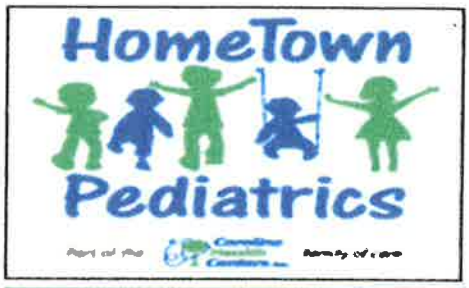

Assistant Solicitors Micah Black and Wade Dowtin handled the case for the state with the assistance of Eighth Circuit Investigator Chris Wilkie. Rowell was represented by Billy Garrett, Carson Henderson and Jane Merrill, all of the Greenwood County Bar.

Solicitor Stumbo praised the work of his staff along with Cpl. Cody Bishop and Trooper First Class Bronson Smith of the South Carolina Highway Patrol and Sgt. Al Duncan and Cpl. Kelly Anderson of the Highway Patrol's Multi-disciplinary Accident Investigation Team in securing the conviction. Many other public servants participated at the scene in the aftermath of the tragedy, including Greenwood County EMS personnel and John Long of the Greenwood County Sheriff's Office, who was off duty at the time.

Circuit Judge Frank Addy Jr. then handed down a sentence of 18 years and six months in prison.

Just after 6 p.m. on March 11, 2017, Harris was driving along Tornado Road near Honea Path in Abbeville County in a white SUV when he began to drift to the right. Harris jerked the vehicle back to the left, running off the left side of the road. Harris then jerked the vehicle back to the right, causing it to roll over. In the vehicle with Harris were his wife and three children, including his step-daughter Abigail who died at the scene.

Harris and his wife were both taken by helicopter to Greenville Health System to receive treatment for their injuries. The other two children were taken to AnMed before being transferred to Greenville Health System. Harris' mother was also on scene and claimed to be driving he vehicle. It was later determined that Harris was driving the vehicle. Harris had a blood-alcohol level of about .10 at the time of the crash.

Harris' mother, Penny Harris, pleaded guilty on May 9 to a charge of obstructing justice in connection to her dishonesty about driving the vehicle at the time of the crash.

Assistant Solicitors Micah Black and Wade Dowtin handled the case for the state with assistance from 8th Circuit Investigator Chris Wilkie and Victim Advocate Sarah Parris. Harris was represented by Kami Granade and Tristan Shaffer of the Abbeville Public Defender's Office.Solicitor Stumbo praised the work of his staff along with the S.C. Highway Patrol's Multidisciplinary Accident Investigation Team in securing the conviction and long prison sentence.

"There are no sadder days than the days on which families have to bury a child for senseless, reckless behavior," Solicitor Stumbo said following the proceeding. "While there is no conviction or sentence that can bring little Abby back, it is my hope and prayer that those who loved her can gain some closure by knowing Donald Harris will not be able to endanger the lives of any other human beings for a long time to come."

Drug dealer receives maximum sentence for selling pills that led to overdose death

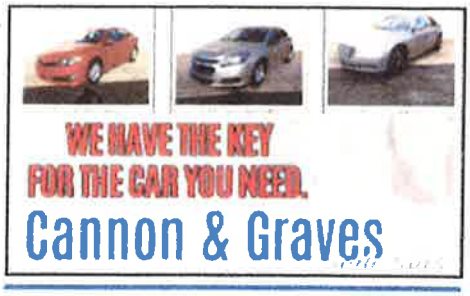

Greenwood – Eighth Circuit Solicitor David M. Stumbo has announced that a Greenwood drug dealer was sentenced to 20 years in prison after selling the dangerous drug Fentanyl to a Ninety Six man, leading to the man's overdose death.

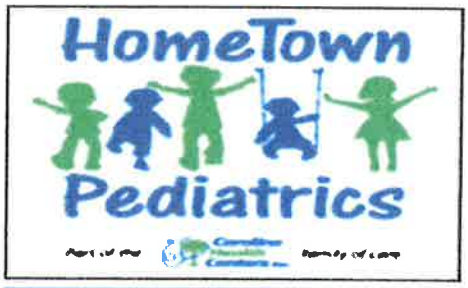

Octavious Calliham, 26, pleaded guilty on May 8 to charges of involuntary manslaughter and distribution of Fentanyl, with sentencing being deferred until Friday morning.

Circuit Judge Frank Addy Jr. sentenced Calliham to 20 years in prison, suspended to five years in prison and four years of probation, with the first year of probation being under intense supervision.

The imposed sentence is the maximum allowable under state law on both charges.

"In all my years in law enforcement and as Coroner, I have dealt with few cases as heart-breaking as this one," Greenwood County Coroner Sonny Cox said following the sentencing. "I hope this sends a loud message to drug dealers all over South Carolina and the entire nation that they will be held accountable for peddling this poison on the streets."

On August 10, 2017, authorities responded to the home of 31-year-old Michael Pridmore after receiving a report of an unresponsive male in the home. Cox pronounced Pridmore dead just after 5 p.m. of an apparent overdose of Fentanyl. Agents with the Greenwood Drug Enforcement Unit were able to locate Calliham, who sold Pridmore the Fentanyl, and perform a controlled buy to obtain deadly Fentanyl pills. DEU agents immediately took Calliham into custody after the controlled buy was completed.

Assistant Solicitor Josh Thomas handled the case for the state, with assistance from Victim Advocate Mary Ann Stroup. Calliham was represented by Andrew Hodges of the Greenwood County Bar.

Solicitor Stumbo, who praised the work of his staff along with Lt. Chad Cox and Inv. Clint Burden of the DEU, echoed the Coroner's sentiment and vowed to continue taking the fight to the dealers on the streets.

"We will continue to fight the opioid epidemic with all of the tools available to us under the law, including homicide indictments for drug dealers who are pushing deadly, concentrated amounts of fentanyl onto our streets," said Stumbo after the sentencing. "I hope that Mr. Pridmore's family can find some peace and closure in the wake of this, and other opioid dealers in South Carolina will take notice of this conviction and prison sentence."

Suspect in deadly hit-and-run found at bar; second car sought

July 16, 2011 at 7:09 PM EST - Updated June 24 at 5:57 PM

Lance Carl Burt (Source: Lexington County Detention Center)

CAYCE, SC (WIS) - Cayce police say a witness led them to a nearby bar where they found a man they believe hit and killed another man on Airport Boulevard and then took off Saturday night. Officers are still looking for a second car in connection with the hit-and-run.

Police arrested Lance Carl Burt, 43, and charged him with felony DUI and leaving the scene of an accident involving death after he admitted to bumping into something around 10:50pm. Burt is accused of hitting Brunson Wallace Hendrix, 47, with his truck as Hendrix was crossing a road in Cayce.

"They're confident the first time he was hit, that took his life," said Hendrix' sister, Shawn Hendrix.

Lexington County Coroner Harry O. Harman said Hendrix died at the scene, which is near Club Animal in the 1900 block of Airport Boulevard. Police said Hendrix took off after hitting Burt.

club called "Rock." The officers saw Burt's vehicle outside parked against a building, the report said. Once inside, officers made contact with the suspect.

According to the report, Burt's eyes were glassy and bloodshot, and he smelled of alcohol.

Officers took Burt outside and asked him if he remembered hitting somebody in the roadway earlier in the night, and Burt said he remembered bumping into something but didn't know what it was.

Officers conducted a field sobriety test on Burt and placed him under arrest. Test conducted that night showed that Burt's blood-alcohol level was .17, according to investigators.

Witnesses also told police that they saw a second vehicle hit Burt. They told investigators that the vehicle pulled into the Mobil gas station and waited, but left the scene when law enforcement started showed up.

Police said the vehicle may be a 2000-2007 Mercury Sable with a gold or gold-tone metallic exterior and a beige interior. The vehicle also displayed a paper dealer tag that is red with white writing.

The vehicle was occupied by a couple with a juvenile in the back seat. Cayce police would like to speak with the people in the vehicle to further the investigation into the incident.

"He was never judgmental," said Shawn Hendrix. "He accepted people for who they were, faults and all."

Hendrix is taking a cue from her older brother. "We have no anger for anyone," she said. "I think if anything, it's important to pray for both the families."

A celebration service for Hendrix will be held on Wednesday, July 20 from 2:30-4:00 p.m. at Chapel of Redemption at 5181 Platt Springs Rd. in Lexington on Wednesday July 20.

Cayce police and the Highway Patrol are investigating and say more arrests are possible. If you know anything about the wreck, call Crimestoppers at 1-888-CRIME-SC.

Burt is being held at the Lexington County Detention Center on a $271,000 bond.

Woman sentenced to 6 years in prison on felony DUI charge

CHRISTINA ELMORE

Julia Smith, 52, of Decatur Drive in Summerville, pleaded guilty in December to two counts of felony driving under the influence.

A judge on Wednesday set a suspended sentence of six years for a woman who was drunk at the wheel the night she caused a wreck that left a mother permanently disabled.

Julia Anne Smith, 52, of Decatur Drive in Summerville, pleaded guilty in December to two counts of felony driving under the influence with great bodily injury, court records show. Circuit Judge Thomas Hughston Jr. deferred sentencing until this week, setting a 12-year sentence that was suspended to six years with five years' probation.

The hearing stemmed from a wreck Feb. 26, 2013, on Lincolnville Road near Ladson Road. A Chevrolet Suburban driven by Smith crossed over the center line, striking a Toyota sedan that was headed in the opposite direction, Charleston County sheriff's deputies reported.

The Toyota's driver, Tabitha Williams, was airlifted to Medical University Hospital with serious injuries. Her 13-year-old son also was transported with injuries that were not considered life-threatening.

Recovery for Williams has been long and arduous, 9th Circuit Assistant Solicitor Jennifer Shealy told the judge.

Williams, a 42-year-old mother of four, is bound to a wheelchair. She's suffered seizures, strokes, and though she's capable of speech, Shealy said, it is difficult to understand her.

"Her life will not return to normal. ... (Williams) is the one who has been given the sentence here," Shealy said. Tears fell from Williams' eyes at Shealy's statement. She gripped the hand of her caregiver, her mother, as the woman wiped them away.

Shealy asked the judge to set a maximum, though concurrent, sentence of 15 years for each felony DUI charge. Smith's blood alcohol level was .215 at the time of the collision, nearly three times the legal limit. Marijuana was found in a pack of cigarettes the woman had, though it was not in her system.

"This defendant knew better. ... She had had a prior DUI," Shealy said, referring to a 2004 conviction.

Smith "made no effort to address her sobriety" in the three years since the wreck occurred, Shealy said. Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics Anonymous programs are free, she said, so lack of financial means is not a reasonable excuse.

"This set of victims is looking for justice, not vengeance," Shealy told the judge.

He responded, "That's what we're all looking for."

Hughston reviewed a chart compiled by Shealy that showed sentences, ranging from a year to 30, for current S.C. Department of Corrections inmates who are serving time for felony DUI.

"We ask that the court consider all the facts and impose a sentence that attempts to do justice, whatever that means," said her attorney William Runyon. "Bring some closure to everyone involved in this case."

When given an opportunity to speak, Smith turned to face Williams and her family. She had been sober 12 years before the wreck, she said. "Circumstances" led her to fall off the wagon.

"I apologize for my actions and I understand what I have done. ... Not only have I messed up your family, but I've messed up mine, too," Smith said, telling the family she won't be able to provide for her own from behind prison walls.

Hughston told both sides that he wanted to set a sentence that was fair and would deter similar crimes.

Shealy said she was "surprised" by the relatively light sentence.

Asked whether she was upset by the judge's ruling, Williams responded that Smith "messed up her whole life," beyond the time she will serve in prison.

"She can walk. She can take care of her own self," Williams said, her voice barely above a whisper. "Not fair."

Teen accused of felony DUI in Ehrhardt crash that killed 1, injured 2

Brian Gibson enters Bamberg County Magistrate's Court on Monday. He's accused of being under the influence of alcohol when he was involved in a crash that killed one of his friends and injured others. He's followed by his attorney, Sen. Brad Hutto, and 1st Sgt. Curtis Burns of the S.C. Highway Patrol.

MARTHA ROSE BROWN, T&D

Struggling to get around on a walker due to an apparent leg injury, a Barnwell teenager appeared in court Monday to face allegations that his actions killed one friend and injured two others in Ehrhardt.

Brian Michael Gibson, 17, of 144 North Clemson Drive, is charged with one count of felony driving under the influence resulting in death and two counts of felony DUI resulting in great bodily injury.

He's accused of being under the influence of alcohol when he drove a 2005 Chevrolet Avalanche on July 14.

Gibson allegedly ran off the right side of the road and struck a warehouse on Ehrhardt Road near Washington Street around 4 a.m., South Carolina Highway Patrol Lance Cpl. Matt Southern said.

There were four other occupants in the vehicle.

Matthew Steven Renew, 18, died as a result of the crash.

Stephanie Renew spoke of her son after Monday's bond hearing.

"He was outgoing, he loved his brother, he loved his family, he was excited about the future," she said as tears trickled down her cheeks.

He'd graduated from Barnwell High School on June 1 and had aspirations of joining the Navy or pursuing a degree in electronics.

"He loved his job, he loved getting a paycheck, he loved his truck," his mother said.

"You can have fun without putting everybody at risk, and if you're driving a vehicle and drinking, stop. Let somebody else drive. Call for help," she said.

The situation is "sad all the way around," Rep. Justin Bamberg said. He's the attorney for two of the passengers in the vehicle: 18-year-old Luke Pickering and 20-year-old Brittin Ray.

"Unfortunately, they all knew each other. One of Brian's friends is no longer here and he's going to have to live with that forever. Everybody's going to have to live with that," Bamberg said.

He said Pickering suffered 20 broken bones and has a brain injury.

Ray broke her neck and arm and also has scrapes and bruises from the accident, he said.

Penny McGahan, Pickering's mother, said, "I'm thankful my son's alive. I really hope everybody learns something from this. This is serious. My son's still in the hospital. I've been home three times in 30 days."

Bamberg County Magistrate R. Craig Threatt said during Monday's hearing, "It's sad business that any of us have to be here at all."

Sen. Brad Hutto, Gibson's attorney, said, "It's a terrible tragedy for all of us."

He said Gibson is a rising senior at Barnwell High School. He just turned 17 on Sunday.

Even though he was 16 at the time of the accident, he's being charged as an adult.

SCHP First Sgt. Curtis Burns said, "We've been in touch with the solicitor's office and due to the penalty, he will be tried as an adult."

Threatt set Gibson's bond at $25,000 on his personal recognizance.

As part of the conditions of his bond, Threatt stipulated that Gibson is not to operate a motor vehicle in the state of South Carolina until further notice from the Department of Motor Vehicles.

He placed Gibson under house arrest, without GPS monitoring, allowing him only to go to school, appointments for medical care and church.

Bamberg said he's investigating the possibility that a Barnwell gas station sold alcohol to one of the vehicle's occupants prior to the accident.

"It appears as though one of the individuals in the vehicle was sold alcohol by a store in Barnwell and we're still working to get in under all of that," Bamberg said.

Everyone in the vehicle was under age 21, the legal age in the Palmetto State to lawfully purchase alcohol.

"What starts as a fun night can change the course of a life," Bamberg said.

If convicted of felony DUI resulting in death, Gibson faces up to 25 years in prison and a fine of up to $25,100.

If convicted of DUI resulting in great bodily injury, Gibson faces up to 15 years in prison and a fine of up to $10,100 on each charge.

SUMTER, SC (WIS) - One man is dead and another behind bars following a car crash in Sumter over the weekend.

44-year-old Michael Demore is charged with felony driving under the influence resulting in death for the crash Saturday night on Broad Street.

Investigators say a Nissan Sentra and a Yukon hit nearly head-on after the Yukon turned onto Broad Street from Mason Road in the wrong direction. Police say Demore was driving the Yukon.

The front seat passenger of the Nissan died at the scene. The coroner has not yet released the victim's name.

The driver was treated and released. Demore was taken to the hospital before taken to the Sumter-Lee Regional Detention Center.

The Sumter Police Department is investigating with the South Carolina Highway Patrol.

GREENVILLE, S.C. — A 25-year-old Spartanburg man has been convicted and sentenced in a DUI accident that took the life of a Greenville woman.

Scott Alan Henning was convicted Wednesday of felony DUI resulting in death.

Several witnesses who were driving on Old Buncombe Road on the evening of May 13, 2017, said they saw Henning speeding, driving recklessly and disregarding lanes.

One concerned woman called 911, and was on the phone with a dispatcher when she came upon the wreck involving Henning.

The South Carolina Highway Patrol said that when Henning crossed the center line, his Toyota SUV slammed into a Ford SUV driven by 62-year-old Marilyn Scott Bunkley.

The impact caused Bunkley's SUV to leave the roadway and crash, killing Bunkley instantly, troopers said.

Henning's SUV then collided with an SUV driven by 58-year-old Eddie Sullivan, who suffered minor injuries.

The State Law Enforcement Division said Henning's blood alcohol level was 0.33 percent, more than four times the legal limit.

A felony DUI with death conviction in South Carolina has a minimum penalty of one year in prison, and a maximum of 25 years in prison, with fines ranging from $10,000 to $25,000.

Henning was sentenced to 10 years in prison and fined $10,100.

DUI driver sentenced in death of volunteer firefighter

Charles Pickens sentenced for death of Kenneth Stanton

Updated: 7:09 AM EDT Sep 23, 2016

ANDERSON COUNTY, S.C. — A 67-year-old man was sentenced Thursday for drunken driving and hitting and killing a volunteer firefighter who was directing traffic at the scene of a collision.

Charles Pickens, of Pendleton, was sentenced to 25 years in prison, including 15 years of active service and five years of probation for felony DUI with death and leaving the scene of an accident resulting in death.

Drivers Around North Carolina are Furious About This New Rule

Sandy Springs volunteer firefighter Kenneth Stanton was directing traffic at the scene of collision on US 76 on Feb. 15, 2015, when Charles Pickens swerved to go around emergency equipment that was in the road in response to the earlier accident, striking Stanton and killing him, before hitting a fire truck and leaving the scene.

After he was located later at his home, Pickens refused a breath test, and a search warrant was obtained for a sample of his blood. Eventual testing of that blood sample by SLED revealed Pickens had a blood alcohol content that night of .254 percent, more than three times the South Carolina's legal limit.

Members of the Sandy Springs Fire Department and Stanton's friends and family were at the plea hearing.

Stanton's widow, Sheryl Stanton, spoke on behalf of the family and said that Stanton "joined the Sandy Springs Fire Department and was so proud and happy to be able to help his community in any way that he could, and took pride in it."

She also said "he had the funeral of a hero, which was fitting because he was my hero." (Previous story)

"Our community lost a great man when it lost Kenneth Stanton," Solicitor Chrissy Adams said. Today's sentence is justice for his grieving family and for our community, but the absence of this hero will continue to be felt by all."

Judge George McFaddin

Your Honour,

I am writing a character reference in regards to Charles (C.J.) Richard Davenport, Jr., who on November 8, 2018, plead guilty to Felony D.U.I. resulting in death. I was in your courtroom on his sentencing date along with his family and friends who could attend.

The night of the accident, I was the first one at the hospital. I received a call from his father saying that C.J. had been involved in a wreck and if I could get to the hospital to be with him. While I waited to get information about C.J., I stayed in contact with both of his parents to keep them updated.

I have known C.J. since we went to middle school together. I knew of him before meeting him because he was such a big personality. Everybody wanted to be near him or hang out with him. He excelled at school and was always willing to help others achieve academic success. Outside of school, he played for our high school's junior varsity soccer team as main contributor to the team with me. He treated the game like he did his academics. Never settling for less than his best.

When we moved on to high school, our friendship grew leaps and bounds. We played on the Varsity soccer team together as well as our club team, Discoveries Soccer Club. Every weekend that we had games, we would convince our moms to let us ride together so that we could talk about the game before hand and then crack jokes and laugh on the ride home. C.J. was voted captain of both squads because of the respect he had from his teammates and peers. We knew C.J. would be a leader on and off the field. When we weren't playing for our club or school team, we were meeting up with members of our team to continue practicing outside of school. More often than not, C.J. was the one who would lead the practices because he wanted the best from everyone, like he did himself. He had the same mentality with his academics as well. He and I were in AP classes together and he took the full AP class load while I opted for the half class load. I never understood how he was able to keep his grades so high while taking the hardest classes offered at our school. He never seemed to get flustered and I envied that. We hung out so much that each of our families became our respective "second family". He refers to my mom as his mom and I do the same for his mom.

We worked at the same summer camp during our high school years where I got to witness first hand the impact he was able to make on countless children. With every new summer, more and more kids hoped that C.J. would be their counselor. Parents would bring their kids, saying that all their kid could talk about was coming back to camp in hopes of C.J. working the session they attended. He even worked the extra week dedicated to children with special needs or medical conditions that didn't allow them to attend the regular camp sessions. It was his way of making sure everyone, no matter his or her limitation could feel included and have the same experience as the other children. It was that mindset and energy that made him such a great counselor, and even better person.

After high school, C.J. accepted an offer to continue his soccer career at the University of South Carolina- Lancaster where once again, he was voted as a captain of the team by his teammates. Everywhere C.J. went, people could feel his leadership qualities and would rally behind him. After 2 years of soccer and receiving his associate's degree, I was able to convince him to enroll in school at the Columbia campus where we would become roommates. My friend groups that I had gained over my previous two years were all fans of C.J. He would come down and visit during my freshman and sophomore year and friends would ask, "When is your buddy C.J. coming back down". By the time he moved down, he was just another part of the group. C.J. had a way of making friends were ever he went and with much ease. While we were in school, we worked together at a local deli. I referred him after a position was available and my boss couldn't have been happier. C.J. was, and still is, a hard worker who would take the menu home and within his first few days, had it memorized, front and back.

C.J. left school to help take care of his grandfather in Georgia with his mom, who he lived with during this time. He even worked for a family members business to help with jobs when they were short staffed. He soon led them on those same jobs. He has always wanted to help others, no matter the case.

In August 2017, he returned to the University of South Carolina where he would continue his degree and we would once again become roommates. During his time on house arrest, I visited him numerous times and we had many talks about that night. He was full of remorse and struggled coming to terms with what he had done on the night of November 15, 2017. I will continue to support him and visit him while he serves his sentence because C.J. is one of my best friends and I know the decision he made that night is not reflective of who he is or what he stands for.

Sincerely,

Matthew Hutches

To Whom It May Concern,

We are writing this letter in order to share our thoughts about the relationship our family has had with the Davenport family, most importantly CJ, over the last 20 years.

When our son, Adam, was in kindergarten, he quickly became friends with a new classmate, CJ Davenport. As it turned out, CJ and his family had recently moved to Rock Hill, and CJ and Adam became instant friends. It wasn't much longer that our families became close as well. This was the start of a long family relationship that included spending a lot of time together. As families and friends, we spent much time together at various sporting events (football, soccer, basketball and baseball), school functions (volunteering), birthdays, graduations and just spending time together as friends.

Through countless hours together, we came to see CJ as one of our own. He actually called us "mom" and "dad" often. This is because he was a big part of our family! He was either at our house hanging with Adam or Adam was at his house. Either way, we knew they were both happy and knew their relationship would be a forever friendship.

From the moment that we first met CJ, he has always been a very respectful kid, not only to the adults, but also to the other kids that we were always around, regardless of age, race or gender. He treated others in a manner that would make any parent proud. He was not only best friends with our son, but he had a great relationship with our other son and daughter as well. Throughout their school years, CJ always displayed this same demeanor, demonstrating a friendly, helpful attitude towards others. He was ALWAYS a kind young man who was always sensitive to the needs of others and he was one who was ALWAYS willing to help. Why? Because that's who CJ was/is. Like his mom, he would give you the shirt off of his back if he knew that would help.

It has been awhile since we have spent quality time with CJ because life happens. Even after spending 12 years together as best friends, Adam and CJ drifted apart when they attended two different colleges. However, two years ago, our son got married and CJ was one of the groomsmen. Adam wouldn't consider marrying without CJ being a part of his special day. Even though we hadn't seen CJ in a few years, he was still the same precious young man that we had known for the 12 previous years, respectful, kind, considerate and joyful.

As time went on and we received the news of CJ's accident in which a life was taken, we were terribly saddened. We were saddened for both families because being parents of three precious children, we truly cannot imagine experiencing anything that these two families have suffered. It is a tragedy for all involved. We saw the grief the whole family experienced through this tragedy, and cannot truly understand what the family of the victim has endured. However, even though CJ is a sweet, young man, he realizes the life-changing mistake he made. Because we know CJ so well, we feel sure that he is full of remorse and wishes that he had been the one killed in this accident because he would NEVER purposefully hurt another human.

We cannot imagine what either family is experiencing and by the grace of God, we hope we never will, but if there is anyway that his sentenced could be lightened, we know CJ would use it to help others because even if CJ isn't literally behind bars for the next 20 years, he will always be entangled in his own prison because of what he has done to another individual/family.

We know that CJ has learned from this tragedy and we pray that he will use it to honor God by serving Him in some capacity. His mom has mentioned that CJ is now involved in church and has been working with the youth department. We believe God saved CJ's life through this heartbreak and we suspect that God has something bigger and better for CJ. Maybe CJ's destiny is to serve in a capacity that will help others that may be heading in the direction where CJ was heading? How will we ever know if he is locked behind bars? We believe CJ's sentence would be better served by helping others, and we believe that this is exactly what CJ would do if granted a lighter sentence.

To whom it may concern,

My Grandmother (who is now called Mama Lou thanks to CJ) began renting her house to USC students in 2012. She and my Mother live next door, so interaction with the renters happens almost every day. It is always a little scary when the current group is coming up on the end of their lease, but in 2014 we were so blessed with the second group that moved in. From the first day the four guys came over to interview, CJ always stood out from the rest. He was polite, greeted you with a handshake which later turned into hugs, was understanding of anything that was asked, and always answered with a yes Ma'am and a smile. We never imagined that CJ, who was once just a student at USC in our eyes, would quickly and so easily turn into family. My Mother keeps my children during the day while I work, so I am at her house every morning and afternoon. Anytime I was outside and saw CJ he was always the first to speak. It was always more than just a hello and a wave. He always wanted to know how I was and how my family was. He especially adores my daughter Skylar, who was four at the time, and she absolutely loves him also. Anytime she saw CJ outside playing soccer she would ask if she could go play with her "boyfriend" as she called him. You could see CJ's face light up when he saw her running outside and the fact that she called him that made him smile from ear to ear. He never rushed her away but instead took time to not only kick the ball with her but also teach her and help her improve. He could have easily played with her for a short time and then gone inside with his friends, but CJ's heart is so big and he has so much love for other's that he truly enjoyed that time with her. It was always so comforting having CJ around. Anytime my Mom, Grandmother or I needed something CJ was always just a phone call away. It didn't matter if it was during the day, like when he came over to help me with my Jeep when he saw me checking under my hood, or in the middle of the night when my Mom was concerned of something outside and he took it upon himself to go check for her. It was such a sad time when CJ and his group moved out. We do not always stay in contact with our renters, but CJ is now way more than that, he is family. You can usually spot the good ones in a group and the ones that were raised right. It is so obvious that he has been raised to love, care for, and respect others and their property, and anyone could spot that from a mile away. I can honestly say that my family and I are truly blessed to know CJ and to have him in our lives.

Sincerely,

Lillian Garvin

May 7, 2018 changed my life!

I have an 11 year old son named Logan and to say that CJ is his best friend is an understatement. Logan befriended CJ immediately. I had met Vicki not too long after she had moved into the neighborhood but with busy schedules we never really had a chance to get to know each other. I was not aware of the situation at first and then my daughter pointed out the ankle monitor. Being a mom and not knowing CJ at all I told Logan he was not allowed to hang out with CJ unless I was at home and he was outside. Of course that broke Logan's heart but the very next weekend CJ walked up to our house and introduced himself to me and Coby, my boyfriend. He explained the events that took place, he told us about his days of being a counselor at camp and about coaching kids soccer teams. From that day on I never stopped Logan from being with CJ.

So many days they played basketball or soccer and CJ even taught Logan how to play golf. Action Church welcomed CJ with open arms and discovered his love for people but especially how good he was with children...I know this first hand with my own child! CJ, Vicki and Cole have become family and anyone who knows them or even just comes in contact with them can see their genuinely sincere hearts. I know there is nothing me and my family wouldn't do for them and vice versa. I also have a 22 year old son, Andrew and they immediately became fast friends. Andrew spent many nights down at CJs house watching TV, playing video games...just hanging out.

CJ has been a Godsend to my family, mostly to my boys. We've been to church with them and I have seen God move through him. There is a purpose for all things and I truly believe CJ has been called to do great things. He is an extraordinary young man with a heart of gold! My son Logans birthday was just this week and CJ was already gone at this point but he made sure that Logan knew he loved him...he left Logan's birthday present with Vicki and Cole to give to him. It doesn't matter what was going on CJ always, always thought of others first. That is why I can say I know he would never intentionally hurt anyone and we trust him and will always trust him with our children.

Thank you for taking the time to read this –

I understand there may be an opportunity to provide letters in support of Charles Davenport Jr. in hopes that his sentence can be reconsidered.

I am writing to ask for your consideration in the sentencing of Charles Davenport, Jr.
I met CJ as a young child when he and my son became friends. My vantage point was that of a parent watching him grow side by side with my own son. I watched him grow into a loving, caring, young man. His warmth, caring nature, hard work and creativity have always stood out as a friend to all and as a camp counselor where he had a positive impact on hundreds of campers. He has always had a joyful spirit and goodness in his heart.

I do not at all diminish the impact of the decisions he made, but I sincerely hope there is an opportunity to consider the totality of who he is, his youth and the lessons he has learned.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Judge,

CJ Davenport has been my teammate, coworker, and friend for the past ten years. I'm writing to you now because you don't know CJ in any of these capacities, and it is important that you realize that he is so much more than his actions from last year. I really got to know CJ at the residential summer camp, YMCA Camp Cherokee, where we worked as camp counselors and eventual managers for virtually every summer between the ages of 14 and 22. During this time, I was always struck by CJ's ability to connect with all campers and counselors regardless of who they were or where thy came from. Campers flocked to his charismatic and loving personality, while counselors always wanted to know how he managed to get his campers to love him so. There are a million stories I could share to illustrate who CJ is to me and everyone else who has met him, but there are two that always remind me who CJ is and who I hope to be.

I was the camp counselor for a cabin full of eight-year old boys, and this cabin was a handful, to say the least. Half of them were unruly and refused to follow directions, and the other half was disinterested and wanted to go home. There was one camper in particular who had the worst case of homesickness that I had ever experienced. For the first two nights, he cried himself to sleep because he so badly wanted to go home, and there seemed to be nothing I could do to calm him down. I tried every camp counselor trick that they teach us, but nothing I did could convince this camper to stop crying and start having fun. That is, until I asked CJ to help me. As soon as CJ started talking to this camper, everything changed. He stopped crying, and instead he started talking. After twenty minutes of this, CJ told him that he was going to give him some special "home-sick juice" which was guaranteed to cure all homesickness indefinitely. CJ immediately mixed up about 5 different flavors of Gatorade into the sickly sweet "homesick juice" and gave it to my camper. The camper perked up, went to bed, and woke up the next day to have an amazing rest of the week. Although the camper would surely tell you the homesick juice cured his homesickness, it's clear to me that CJ cured his homesickness with the unique combination of charisma and kindness that made him a great camp counselor and great friend.

During another week at Camp Cherokee, CJ and I each had cabins full of 13 year old campers. This was their last year as campers, and CJ and I decided that we wanted to make sure that it was their best week ever. We planned a 'secret mission' where we would sneak our cabins out to the lake late at night so that we could kayak to the other side of the lake to go look for snakes. We made all the preparations to camp out at the lake so that we could make this happen for our campers, but on the designated night, the camp director cancelled all activities on account of rain. I was devastated, but I resigned to the fact that we were not going to be able to do this special night. CJ, however, wasn't willing to go down without a fight. He convinced me that we needed to go talk to the camp director to persuade him to let us go kayak across the lake with our campers. "It's not even raining that hard", he said, and "It's their last week as campers. They'll remember this for the rest of their life!" Ultimately the director let us take the campers across the lake, and it really was a night that I hope they remember for the rest of their life. It wouldn't have been possible without CJ. I would have accepted that I can't control the weather and just went to bed with my cabin, but CJ wasn't going to let that happen. He had promised his cabin an amazing experience, and damn it they were going to get that amazing experience.

These stories still might not mean anything to you, but they mean the world to me. I recognize that CJ has hurt many people over the past year, but he has improved the lives of so many more in the 20+ years before then. I always love him for this, and I hope you'll consider it as well.

Best,

Jake Youngblood

I met CJ Davenport when he was just a young boy at the age of eleven. Since then I have watched him grow and mature into the kind, generous, loving, and giving young man he is now.

Good decisions come from experience, and experience comes from bad decisions. Our bad decisions don't make us bad people, just like CJ's bad decision to drink and drive don't make him a bad or evil human being. I only wish everyone could see the good in him and beyond his mistake. I know that CJ didn't set out that night to harm anyone. His ability to think rationally was impaired and has caused him tremendous guilt.

He's such an intelligent young man who always gives back to the community. He's so great with children and he has a passion for helping them. Seeing how he treats my son and how my son adores him says a lot about his character. At any given time, the neighborhood children are knocking at his door to have him fill up their basketball or pump their bicycle tire. I have always heard that children have a sixth sense and can recognize good and evil, I know this is a true statement because I see how the children look up to him and come to him knowing he will always be there with whatever they need.

Dear Judge McFaddin,

I hope this letter finds you well. My name is Laura Grier, and I am a 5th grade teacher in Greenville, SC. I am writing to you on behalf of my good friend, Charles ("CJ") Davenport, in hopes that you consider reducing the sentence for his felony DUI, which tragically resulted in David Newell's death.

I've known CJ for a little over 10 years. We grew up working at YMCA Camp Cherokee together as camp counselors, and went to high school together at South Pointe High School in Rock Hill, SC. My friendship with CJ is something I truly cherish, as is he one of the most kind and genuine people I've ever met.

If you were to ask me to describe one memory of CJ that truly embodies who he is as a person, I would have to say the way he treated me and helped me when I was in a wheelchair for about a month in high school. I had knee surgery during our junior year, and had to go to school in a wheelchair. CJ immediately volunteered to be my unofficial assistant that month. He took me to every class, carried things for me when I could not, helped me get in and out of my mom's car, and made sure I got around safely in the crowded hallways at our school. No one asked him to do these things, he just did them because that's the kind of person he is. I even remember him pushing lunch tables apart so that he could wheel me right up to the lunch table where all of our friends sat, instead of having to sit at the end of the table away from our friends. The cafeteria staff didn't appreciate him moving tables around, but it meant so much to me that he was going out of his way to make sure I was taken care of and included. This is the way I've always seen CJ treat everyone, with kindness and respect. He always put others before himself. I know his decisions on the night of David's death do not show this, but when I think of CJ Davenport I will always think back to a very caring and kind young man.

Working with CJ at Camp Cherokee for several years, I was able to see the immediate connection he has with young people. I still volunteer at this camp, and to this day I still hear his former campers (who followed in his foot steps and also became counselors) talk about how CJ was their favorite counselor, or how he always made them feel special and important. There is even a "scary story" involving one of CJ's classes that is still told almost every week of the summer on camp out night. As a teacher, I know when people have connections with children and young people. CJ absolutely has a connection with young people, and they really look up to him and think of him as a role model. I think his personality and selflessness are what makes young people "click" with CJ so easily.

I understand that these wonderful qualities about CJ cannot erase the terrible decision he made last November. I know that CJ will have to serve time as a punishment for his choices that night. My heart truly goes out to the Newell family, and David's friends and girlfriend. I was in the courtroom last week and heard their stories about David. I cannot imagine their pain, and I know that there is nothing that CJ, or CJ's family and friends, could say to make any of that pain go away. I do believe that CJ is truly remorseful about what happened, as he stated at the hearing last week.

However, I think that CJ's talent for reaching young people and inspiring them should be considered in this situation regarding the length of his sentence. When I think ahead to the future and CJ being finished serving his sentence, I immediately get an image in my mind of him speaking to young people (high schoolers, college students, etc.) about the risks of drinking and driving, and using his own experience to encourage them to make a better choice than he did last November. I really think CJ could reach people and lead them down a better path. If CJ was given a shorter sentence, I truly believe he could use those years to help prevent other young people from making the decision to drink and drive by sharing his experience with them.

Again, I understand that CJ needs to serve time for his actions. I do not condone the choice he made that night, but I full-heartedly believe that CJ could use his experiences to help prevent other young people from making the same choice. If CJ received a lesser sentence, he could begin sharing this experience with others sooner, hopefully reaching more people and preventing more people from drinking and driving.

I appreciate all of the time and effort you've put into CJ's hearing and into this case, and hope that you will consider reducing his sentence to allow him to make a positive impact on other young people sooner.

Respectfully,

Laura Grier

Re: Charles Davenport Jr. (Felony DUI involving death)

Your Honor,

I am writing on behalf of my friend, Charles Davenport Jr. I was first introduced to Charles when he was a teammate on my younger brother's soccer team in 2006. Over the years, I have seen him grow with my brother both on the soccer field and through his involvement with YMCA Camp Cherokee, a residential summer camp in Blacksburg, South Carolina. It was here I had the pleasure of working closely with him as a counselor for several years. Through this work, I developed a friendship with Charles and a respect for his contagious personality and strong character.

Charles' felony DUI involving death can in no way be justified. His actions were inexcusable and should be punished. However, these acts were unexpected and are not a representation of Charles' true character. Charles has for so long been involved in bringing joy to both campers and staff at YMCA Camp Cherokee. Under high expectations and a great deal of responsibility, he performed admirably as a counselor and leader. This type of success does not occur without mistakes and failures along the way, natural to the counselor-development process. As a senior-level counselor, I shared a cabin and responsibilities with Charles, a junior-level counselor at the time. I have seen Charles' potential for growth and learning during difficult situations. I have no doubt he will continue to grow and learn from his current circumstances.

Charles knows he will face the consequence for the wrongs he has committed; however, his youth and strong character offer opportunity for him to make a difference going forward if allowed a lesser sentence. This opportunity will be diminished with the current maximum sentence. As horrible as Charles' acts were, they do not define his character, and should not define his life.

Respectfully Yours,

Ty Youngblood

My name is Adam Snider and I have been friends with CJ since kindergarten. As kids we did everything together, played on the same sports teams, attended Elementary and High School together, went to the same summer camps and I could not have asked for a better friend.

Growing up going to school, camp, and playing sports, I was a little shy and stayed to myself. I had trouble making friends because of this and it changed once we were on the same team or were hanging out. When we were together he always made sure to include me with everything and make sure I did not feel left out. He would always make sure I was part of the conversation and being heard. It might not sound like a lot, but it meant the world to me. Growing up, he was always like that though. There was one time at camp, a younger kid was crying because he missed home. The counselors did not see him, so he sat there for 30 minutes cheering him up and being like a big brother for him. That memory will always stick with me as that is how I model my life.

I work for the City of Goose Creek Recreation Department and help program activities for children and people with disabilities. The reason I enjoy doing what I do and am the person I am today is because I saw how he always helped that little kid and how much it meant to him and wanted to do the same thing for people. It isn't just this one time though, if you ask anyone who went to school, played on a team, or went to camp with CJ they will probably have more than one of these kinds of stories. He made a bad decision and must live with that now the rest of his life. I called him after the accident and could hear the hurt he was feeling. I cannot imagine what the family of the victim is feeling but all I ask for is forgiveness. This one moment should not define his life but all of the little things he always did for people.

To whom it may concern,

My mother and I met CJ the summer of 2014. He and three of his friends were interviewing as tenants for our rental house. They all passed the requirements and it didn't take long to realize this was a special group of young men. We live right next door to the rental house and we got to interact with these young men on a daily basis. CJ was a soccer player and loved being outside. He would kick the soccer ball around in the yard or throw the football with his friends. My granddaughter was at my house quite often as I would pick her up from school and she would spend the afternoons with us. She also loved being outside. Any time she and CJ were outside at the same time, he would give her instruction and pointers on how to play soccer. He always acted like he was glad to see her and she just loved CJ. Every month for two years when rent was due, CJ would come over and sit and talk with Mom and me. He could have dropped his rent off at the door or made an excuse for not coming in but he didn't. He would come in and visit and tell us how he was doing and ask us how we were. He would share what was going on in his life and how his classes were going. He gave my Mom the name Mama Lou and all the boys called her that. We felt like CJ was ours while he lived next door. He really felt like family. He always had such good manners and we knew how he felt about us. We always knew that we could call on CJ for anything while he lived next door. CJ always took good care of our property and was always very respectful. It was a pleasure having him as a tenant and as a friend who seemed more like family.

Sincerely,
Ellyn Reid

To whom it may concern,
While I haven't seen CJ as much during his high school and college years, I have known him his whole life. As a child and a young teenager, CJ was that kid who was a caretaker. He was the kid who always wanted to be sure that other kids were happy and safe. CJ was an extremely outgoing child, but also had a special knack of noticing those people who were being left out, and he made sure that they felt included. CJ is a protector and has always loved working with children. The children learned so much from him because they felt his love for them and trusted them. Last year, CJ made an incredible mistake that he will pay for the rest of his life. He knows that he is responsible and that he needs to be held accountable. My prayer is that God uses this as a learning experience and that CJ can be a blessing to others. He is the kind of person who can do great things in his life, in the lives of others and in his community.

State Circuit Court Judge George McFaddin

Your Honour,

I am writing a character reference for Charles "CJ" Davenport, Jr., who plead guilty to DUI involving death on November 8, 2018. We had asked CJ if we could write a character reference for him prior to the court date, but he had said he didn't want to impose on our time. I feel we need to write one regardless after talking with my son who attended the hearing on November 8th. We were unable to attend because of work.

I learned about the accident on November 15, 2017 from my oldest son, Matt, who was CJ's roommate in Columbia, SC and who received the call from CJ's dad asking Matt to go to the hospital as CJ had been in an accident. His father lives in Tennessee and his mother lives in Georgia, so Matt arrived at the hospital before CJ's parents and stayed until they arrived from out of state.

Our entire family was shocked to learn that CJ was involved in this accident. We have known CJ since he was in middle school with our oldest son, Matt, here in Rock Hill, SC. CJ quickly became like another son to us and a fixture at our home. They became friends playing soccer together on the high school JV soccer team as 7th and 8th graders and continued playing together on the Varsity team through senior year, where CJ was voted as captain each year by his teammates. CJ and Matt also played on a club soccer team for Discoveries here in Rock Hill where CJ was also chosen as a captain by his teammates. Our families traveled together throughout SC and to Oklahoma. CJ comes from a very supportive and loving family who were very involved in his activities throughout high school. Also, he was a good student in high school and took AP courses. He accepted a soccer scholarship at USC Lancaster campus. When he transferred to USC Columbia, he and Matt became roommates their junior year. I remember a conversation with my son while they were roommates- I had called Matt and asked how everyone was doing (there were 4 roommates sharing a house). He said they were all getting ready to go out and CJ wasn't going because he had to study. My son joked about how he and his roommates had much easier majors than CJ (CJ majored in Bio-Medical Science) and there were many times he missed out on the "fun part" of college life because he chose to stay home and study.

CJ and Matt also were campers and counselors together for several years at Camp Cherokee, a YMCA summer camp, in Kings Mtn., SC. When summer session was over for regular campers, CJ chose to stay as a counselor for another week with special needs children. CJ has always has a special bond with children. When they were roommates off Duncan Street their junior and part of their senior year of college, they lived next door to their landlord and her 4 year old granddaughter. I recall during one of my visits their landlord, Ellyn, said that whenever her granddaughter saw CJ outside, she would run to him and play. Ellyn joked that she knew any other college kid would not take the time to "make a 4yr olds day".

CJ also worked at 5th Ave Deli on Rosewood for a time with Matt while they were college students. CJ's work ethic with school and his job is so fantastic that I recommended him at my employer, FedEx Express, in Pineville, NC for seasonal help. He worked with me for two Christmas seasons, over 60 hour weeks, for the two weeks prior to Christmas. After the first year, my boss came to me and said, " I want that kid back next year- he works his tail off!"

The sentence imposed on CJ on November 8, 2018 broke our hearts. We have known CJ and his family since middle school. CJ is like another son to us and we took him on family trips with us as well as traveled together to soccer matches. He spent the night at our home numerous times in high school. He worked with me at FedEx during Christmas and lived at our home during that time since his Mom had moved back to Georgia after Cole (CJ's brother) graduated high school in 2015.
He was always welcome in our home in the past and will continue to be in the future. We were so happy that he made the decision to get back in USC in August 2017 after going through so much pain from all of his medical issues and surgeries that began in 2015 and after being there for his Mom and younger brother after his parent's divorce in 2015. Our entire family supports CJ because we know the smart, caring, funny, wonderful person that he is. The choice to drive the night of November 15, 2017, in our opinion, is not representative of CJ's overall character as a person or represent his value to society in the future.

Thank you for taking your time to read our letter in support of Charles "CJ" Davenport.

Sincerely yours,

Diana and David Dill

Your Honor, my name is Dennis Johnson and my wife is Leann Johnson. This letter of character is for Charles Davenport Jr "CJ"

This young man CJ, we have had the honor of knowing his entire life. We started out as cousins and ended up aunt/uncle/nephew, not by marriage but by what we decided we will call each other. We watched this young man grow to be a loving man full of energy that he uses to guide children through the church that he's attended. When he was old enough to walk, we used to wrestle in the living room floor and chase each other through the house, trying our best to hide from one another. We are quite older than him and we grew to love him as if he was our little nephew. His caring demeanor has shown his love for the Lord and his eagerness to serve those who are around him.

He has a courage like no other, the willingness to stand in times when he knew he would fail, but yet still stood proud and strong. That quality alone would want me to have him on my team during any battle. His sense of compassion for those less fortunate or disabled allows him to come to assist even if it's just to listen. The children that have been around him have loved him from the first time he smiled at them. His smile is infectious and seems to spread quickly to others that are around him. He's a light that shines when all else is dark. This young man is deserving of praise regardless of the situation.

Cj didn't wake up on that dreadful day with intent to harm a soul. He made a mistake that will haunt him for the rest of his life. That punishment alone is a sentence we would not want. We are pleading this to you to help in consideration of reducing his sentence. We love our nephew and who he has become.

Our hope for this letter, it's not for you to take away his sentence, but for you to look into his eyes and soul to see who he really is. He's not a monster nor a troubled individual, he's a young man that made a mistake and knows he has to pay the consequences.

Our prayers are with you and both families involved.
His Uncle Bubba and Aunt Leann love him dearly!

Sincerely

Dennis Johnson and Leann Johnson

Thanks

Your Honor:
Hi I'm Morgan, CJ's 15 year old cousin. This is what CJ means to me: CJ has such a big heart and cares for people deeply even ones he doesn't know. The first thing that comes to my mind when I hear CJ's name is his kindness towards people even ones he may not know. He is always willing to lend a helping hand. When i'm sad he always makes me feel better and can bring a smile to my face when know one else can. He makes the best jokes and is such a great cook I love to eat CJ's food. When I went to visit CJ a couple days ago before he left for court I was very sad and didn't know what i was going to do, but he sat me down and talked to me to tell me it was all going to be okay no matter what happens and i have confidence in that statement . One of my favorite things about CJ is his laugh it is so contagious, whenever I hear it I can't help but bust out laughing. I understand that CJ made a mistake one that cost someone their life, but he is a good person , your mistakes are not who you are.My CJ is not the monster he was made out to be , he is one human that made this large mistake that will impact his and the other families lives forever but I hope and pray this letter is able to make some kind of impact on you. His loyalty towards all his friends and family is greater than anyone's I have ever met I know he will always be there for me no matter what. One thing I can say i'm thankful for is the blessing of knowing him. My prayers are with you and all the decisions that you make everyday.

Thank you,
Morgan Johnson

To Whom It May Concern:
I prayerfully submit this letter with the hope you can open your heart to see the loving and compassionate side of C. J. Davenport. He is a young man who lives daily with the inner pain and agony of a tragic accident which forever changed the lives of so many.
In spending time with C.J. I have never once heard him attempt to place blame toward anyone else.
In similar situations I have witnessed others who became bitter and withdrawn; not C.J. his Faith has enabled him to remain both compassionate and caring for others.
C.J. has been very active on Sunday with our Children's Church at Action Church. He spends time during the week studying the lesson to be taught on Sunday. During the class time C.J. demonstrates the ability to work with children from all walks and situations of life. He brings them all together teaching them about the Lord as well as love and respect for one another.
Even as church ends you still see both children and adults coming to him for a hug or just a kind word to make their week better.
The neighborhood children love C.J. He feeds them, nurses their wounds and helps them to smile. So many times these children have come to him because Mom and Dad aren't home and they may need help with homework or just want to play ball or talk instead of being home alone.
As C.J. attempted to tell his church children and neighborhood children that he was going to be leaving them for a while, I witnessed tears in everyone's eyes as he tells them to be good at home... do your homework and get good grades..keep your room clean.. listen to your mom and dad and say your prayers. Hugs were freely given and so many begged him not to leave them.
This summer my family and I suffered the loss of my sister and her grandson due to a tragic accident. C.J. Immediately put everything he was dealing with behind him to send love, condolences and prayers to me and my family.
In closing I prayfully ask that you reconsider the number of years C.J. Is sentenced. Please open your heart to see the loving and compassionate young man who for the remainder of his life will live with memory and pain of that tragic accident last November.
Sincerely,
Linda Simmons

I just wanted to take a brief moment to introduce myself.. my name is Tanya Stansel and I am Charles Davenport JR's aunt .. I have known him all of his life, and God put on my heart to share with you some history of my nephew just so you can get an understanding of the type of person he is and try to give you a glimpse of how big his heart is for others.. you see CJ (Charles Davenport JR) has always been such a caring person from the moment he entered the world he has always been loving and gentle.. as a young boy he always made sure everyone was happy and felt wanted and included... he never let you leave without a warm embrace and a kind word.. he has a smile that will light a room and your soul. He always has a way of finding positivity in the darkest times and is the first to lend a word of encouragement and a helping hand..He has a servants heart and has gave every summer of his youth to helping other kids as a counselor at Camp Cherokee. His passion is working with children of all ages and also working with special needs children and adults. For as long as I can remember CJ has gravitated towards the children/ young adults who needs a friend and not just a friend but a friend who will lift them up and help build confidence in who God created them to be...

This is why my heart is so burdened and heavy because I know the gentle soul that CJ has and I know how broken this tragic accident has left him...his heart has literally been broken for everyone involved, and he will forever be changed..

It is so gut wrenching to think that not only one life was taken but also Two.... one family had to burry a loved one , and the other had to say goodbye knowing that they will be locked away and basically buried behind bars... CJ will forever carry the burden of the aftermath of this tragedy.. I would only hope and pray that he would have the opportunity to bring light and awareness and be able to reach out to others especially the young adults ,and college students to share his story with them in honor of the Life that was lost... and hopefully save other lives as well... I know without a doubt that for the rest of his life CJ will share this testimony of how life can change in a blink of an eye and how it is important to make the right decisions even in a moment of weakness or peer pressure...

I beg of you to show mercy for CJ and help him be able to not let this tragedy happen in vein... help him be able to share his story to save other lives , and to honor the life that has gone..

Thank you so much for your time.
Tanya Stansel

Dear Judge McFaddin,

My name is Will Gilmore and I am the Resident Camp Director of YMCA Camp Cherokee located in the Rock Hill/ Fort Mill, SC area. I am also a life-long friend of Charles "CJ" Davenport. I will admit that I was not able to attend the recent sentencing due to prior work obligations. However, I understand that you either have, or will receive many letters of both David Newell and CJ's behalf. My intentions for writing this letter is for you to reconsider reducing the sentence of CJ's felony DUI, which tragically ended Mr. Newell's life. I am not trying to persuade you that CJ did nothing wrong. CJ made terrible mistakes that night and must live with the consequences!

I first met CJ as a camper here at YMCA Camp Cherokee. When we met, we both instantly became good friends due to many similarities and common general interests such as sports. As time moved on, CJ and I were in High School and both worked at YMCA Camp Cherokee as Residential Summer Camp Counselors. Being a counselor at Camp Cherokee required the direct supervision of up to 8 boys in a cabin ages 6-14. Other responsibilities included were teaching daily classes to campers, assisting in the overall program of YMCA Camp Cherokee, proving to be a role-model and etc. I can go on and on discussing the various job responsibilities as a summer camp counselor and the positive impact that is has on youth. As CJ and I grew older, we remained returning back to Cherokee each summer in order to make an impact on the youth in our community. CJ was also one of the top male counselors we had every year. His dedication, compassion and overall love for his campers was unparalleled. Fast forward 8 years and now I am the Resident Camp Director here at YMCA Camp Cherokee. Many of CJ's former campers are now on staff here as male counselors. They constantly discuss CJ and the impact he made on their lives. I believe (and studies show) that Resident Summer Camping is one of the most formative experiences a child can have growing up. CJ was able to use this formative experience to shape youth's behavior in a positive direction. To say the least, our Camp family was devastated to hear the terrible news about CJ's actions.

Again, by no means am I writing this letter in attempt to "bail" CJ out, or make him seem innocent. He made a very poor decision that night and deserves to face his consequences. My thoughts and prayers have been with David, the Newell family and friends, the Davenport family and all of the friends and others effected. However, I truly believe that CJ is and can be a functioning member of society and use this terrible experience as a learning tool for others in society and our local community(s). If CJ were to receive a lesser sentence, there is no doubt in my mind that he would not only learn from his huge mistake, but turn his life around as well.

I would like to personally thank you for all of the time and effort you have put into David and CJ's case. I cannot imagine the decisions you are forced to make, which has such great impact on people's lives. I hope that you will reconsider CJ's sentence and allow for him to use this experience as a way to teach others the harm and effects of drinking and driving.

Sincerely,

William F. Gilmore

Recidivism & Federal Sentencing Policy

Recidivism of Federal Offenders: A Comprehensive Overview

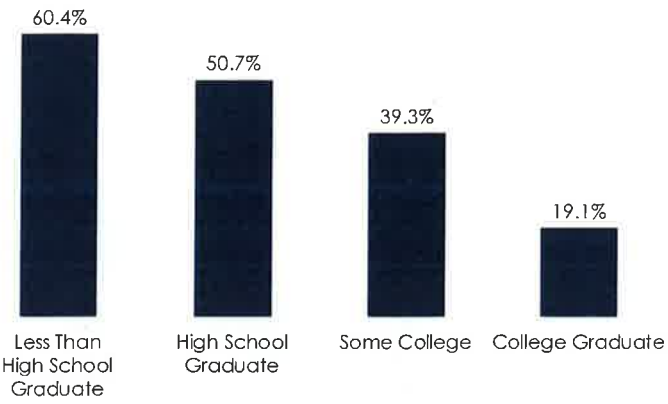

Overview

The United States Sentencing Commission began studying recidivism of federal offenders nearly 30 years ago.[1] Knowing how often offenders reoffend and the types of crimes they commit can help policymakers determine how best to protect public safety, promote effective reentry techniques, and address overcapacity of the prisons. The Commission's most recent multi-year recidivism study is groundbreaking in both its breadth and duration, reporting the rearrest, reconviction, and reincarceration rates of more than 25,000 federal offenders over an eight-year period.[2] Below are some key findings from the first in a series of reports.

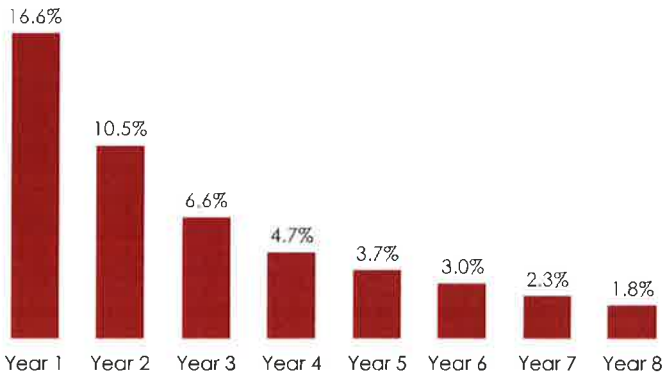

Report Highlights

- Over an eight-year follow-up period, about half (49.3%) of federal offenders in the Commission's study were rearrested, almost one-third (31.7%) were reconvicted, and one-quarter (24.6%) were reincarcerated.
- Of those offenders who reoffended, most did so within the first two years of release (median time to rearrest = 21 months). For each subsequent year after release, fewer offenders were rearrested for the first time.
- About one-quarter (23.3%) of offenders who reoffended were rearrested for assault as their most serious charge followed by public order (15.5%), drug trafficking (11.5%), and larceny (7.7%) offenses.[3]

Rearrest Rates of Offenders By Education Level

Rearrest Rates of Offenders Over Eight-Year Period After Release

- A federal offender's age and criminal history were closely correlated with their likelihood of reoffending (more on page 2).
- An offender's education level was also associated with their likelihood of reoffending. Offenders who did not complete high school were rearrested most often (60.4%) while college graduates were rearrested least often (19.1%).
- The type of federal crime that led to an offender's original conviction was also related to their likelihood of reoffending. Firearms offenders were most likely to be rearrested (68.3%) followed closely by robbery offenders (67.3%). Fraud offenders were least likely to be rearrested (34.2%).[4]

Recidivism and Criminal History

- To protect the public from further crimes of defendants, during the development of the criminal history guideline provisions in the mid-to-late1980s the Commission considered the relationship between offenders' prior criminal record and their likelihood of reoffending.[5]
- The Commission's recidivism study found that recidivism rates generally increase as offenders' criminal history calculations increase (thereby increasing an offender's sentencing range).[6] This finding confirms that the criminal history guideline provisions continue to work as designed.

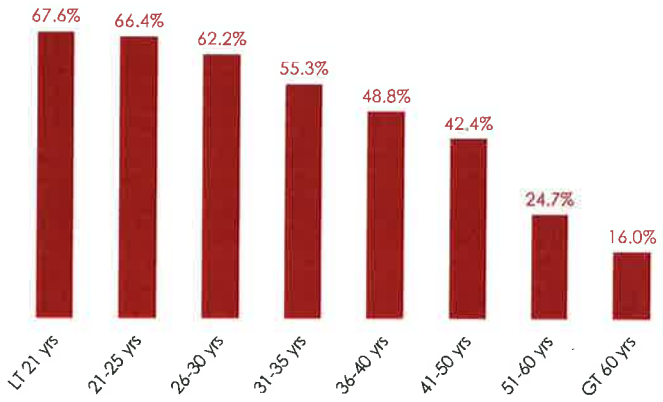

Recidivism Rates by Criminal History Category

Criminal History Category	Category I	Category II	Category III	Category IV	Category V	Category VI
Rearrest Rate	33.8%	54.3%	63.3%	74.7%	77.8%	80.1%
Reconviction Rate	19.9%	33.0%	41.3%	51.6%	56.6%	59.3%
Reincarceration Rate	14.0%	23.9%	32.9%	43.5%	49.4%	51.3%

Recidivism and Age

- Studies have repeatedly shown older offenders to have a lower risk of reoffending[7] and the Commission's study confirmed this finding. Just 16.0% of offenders older than 60 years of age at the time of release were rearrested. In comparison, more than two-thirds (67.6%) of offenders younger than 21 at the time of release were rearrested.
- For each age group studied, the older the age group, the lower the rearrest rate. The same trend holds true for both reconviction and reincarceration rates.[8]

Rearrest Rates of Offenders by Age at Release

More On This Topic

The Commission subsequently released two additional reports in its recidivism study series. The second report examines federal drug trafficking offenders.[9] The third report further analyzes the relationship between offenders' criminal history guideline calculations and their likelihood of reoffending.[10]

The Defendant, Charles Davenport, Jr., and his attorneys, provide the attached by way of supplementation to the Motion to Reconsider Sentence filed November 16, 2018. Specifically, the attached transcript – one judge's explanation of sentencing purposes and philosophies – is a succinct and perhaps more articulate explanation than the one I gave along the same lines during the plea. The defense continues its request for this Honorable Court to reconsider the twenty year sentence given to this first-time offender at plea.

August 5, 2013

LEXINGTON, SOUTH CAROLINA

A P P E A R A N C E S:

Rick Collins, Esq.
For the State

Marion Moses, Esq.
For the Defendant

For nearly four hours this afternoon I have heard emotions, I've heard sorrow, I've heard grief, I've heard loss, I have heard remorse, all heartfelt, all of it genuine, all of it very articulate. And all of it designed, at least in some part, to have an impact on what numbers I write down on these two sheets in front of me.

I realize that's not the sole purpose of it but perhaps more positive purposes are served by much of what was said here today. I appreciate what was said today by both sides because as has been said already today, there's a wide range of discretion which is vested in the trial judge in cases of this sort.

Our General Assembly has decided in it's wisdom that when someone plead guilty to felony DUI causing death, there are some cases in which that individual should receive 25 years in jail. There are some cases in which that individual should receive one year in jail. Keep in mind that in every one of those cases, in every case of felony DUI there is always a drunk driver who causes a wreck and kills somebody.

That is the constant that runs throughout every single felony DUI causing death. Still, the General Assembly has said that in some of those cases the sentence should be one year and in some cases 25 years or anywhere in between.

And so the General Assembly did not intend by that wide range of discretion, and no one should conclude by the sentence this Court or any Court passes, that whatever that sentence is, is an indication of an attempt by the Court or the law to place a value on the life of the person who was lost. There is no value to be placed on a lost life. They are all priceless, and especially in this case, an innocent young, priceless life.

There is no way the sentence imposed by the Court could adequately address the concerns of both sides. There is no way this sentence can replace the loss in this particular case. There is no way that the sentence can fill the hole in the hearts and the lives of the family of that poor, sweet, innocent girl, whose picture I'm looking at -- or was looking at, looking at right now, as a matter of fact.

If my sentence could address that loss in a positive light, if it could fill that hole in the lives of the Longstreet family, then I would have no compunction at all about sentencing to the maximum.

But unfortunately that loss will be the same today after sentence is passed as it was before, as it has been since January 1, 2012. The law simply does not have the power to compensate or to replace that type of loss.

At the same time, the laws have the power to make the use perhaps of the time that is spent in jail that the Hutto family would like to have made of Billy's time in jail. It would be a good thing perhaps if the time spent in jail could be better spent to do some of the good things he wants to do with that period of incarceration but necessarily whatever that good is, and it seems to be there, it is necessarily going to have to wait until he is out.

There are programs within the Department of Corrections that allow inmates to do certain therapeutic visits and conduct workshops, Scared Straight used to be one of them. But those things seems to fail when money runs short. So I can't assure the Hutto family that whatever time Billy has to serve is going to be meaningful time. The sentence, in the final analysis, it should serve some purpose, it should serve some useful purpose.

Criminologists tell us that there are three main reasons sentences are passed, three considerations trial judges should take into account when they are trying to decide what sentence to impose, whether to give the maximum or the minimum or somewhere in between.

One of those is rehabilitation. Is the sentence in jail going to make the prisoner a better person? When he gets out is he going to be better than he was when he went in?

Deterrence. Is the sentence going to keep other folks from committing a similar crime when they hear about the sentence imposed in this particular case?

Finally, one that's called retribution, which is another word for revenge. Which of course is the worse reason to pass a sentence. Although every sentence should address the loss in some way, it has to, that's the reason we're all here today because of the extent of the loss. We cannot ignore that loss. And we can address it without being vindictive. We can address it without seeking a pound of flesh. And so we try to do that.

Well, how do we do that? What do we take into account when we try to decide what sort of sentence to pass? Not just in this case but in every case.

But you are only concerned about this case today. And frankly right this minute that's all I'm concerned about as well.

How do we decide with what we have before us? What is the appropriate sentence in this case? As I've said, if I were to look only at the loss, if that were all that I could consider in passing sentence today, that would be easy. It would be 25 years and 25,000 dollars. Because that's the most the Court could impose to match the greatest loss that this family could suffer. But that's not what we look at entirely, for reasons that I've already told you.

So then what do we look at? We look at the individual who is going to serve a sentence. We look at his background, we look at the action and the conduct that led to this particular tragic and violent accident in and of itself. So we look at Billy Patrick Hutto, Jr's background.

There's a mark, a scar on his background consisting of an 2009 driving under the influence. Frankly, except for that, my job would be somewhat easier today and my sentence could be somewhat more lenient. But that has to be taken into account.

That has to be taken into account because the young man that I see in these photographs, the bright young man, the handsome young man, with his family, and loving the young children, that young man who has worked since he was 15 years old, that's not the whole picture. He had a drinking problem of some sort that lead him to a conviction three years before this happened. And then this particular event, both of them with high alcohol reads.

So if I just look at those two things -- and once again it would indicate a rather severe sentence to be imposed because of this background. But I won't take just that into account. Because those two events don't mark the whole of who Billy Patrick Hutto is either. There's another side to him. His family told me what that other side was today, and his friends, and his former teachers.

And so what do we want to do with Billy Patrick Hutto, Jr.? He knows that he can't walk out of here today and he can't walk out of the jail in the near future. He knows that. I trust he knows that. I'm sure he knows it now because he just heard me say it.

Do we want to throw him into the -- into the bowels of the Department of Corrections with other inmates who are serving 20 and 25 years in jail because they have committed more serious offenses, violent offenses, offenses in which they intentionally broke the law and tried to cause somebody harm? Would that be fair? Would that be necessary under the law? Would that truly be justice?

Or do we want to try to provide some sort of a sentence that Billy Patrick Hutto will have to serve a significant length of time? And significant is according to who measures it, significant to the person who is serving the sentence is one thing. Significant to the victim's family is obviously another.

But whatever sentence Mr. Hutto receives on the felony DUI death charge he has to serve 85 percent of it, that's real time. The other sentence is a parolable offense. So do we want to just throw him away and say you made your own bed? You took a life and we're going to put you up there in the same place with those people who shot somebody while they were holding up a bank or service station or Seven Eleven or who killed somebody in a gang-land shooting or killed the lady in the bakery a couple of weeks ago. Does he deserve to be placed with them for a similar length of time? I think the answer to that is obvious.

But still it has to be a period of time that addresses all the sides of Billy Patrick Hutto, the good in his life, in his 28 years, and the two terrible mistakes that he made that we know of. The one which caused nobody any harm, and this one which caused irreparable harm.

I tell you these things folks because you deserve to understand that there is a thought process which goes into this. It's not just throwing a dart on a board. It's not just picking a number out of a hat.

I don't expect you to agree with what I do because I understand that that's impossible for you to do. I just hope you understand that this is not an arbitrary proceeding. It is something that we do when we look at the whole picture and try to do the best that we can.

Mr. Hutto, if you would stand, please and face the Court.

(The defendant complied.)

SENTENCE OF THE COURT

Mr. Hutto, on Indictment Number 1803 charging you with felony driving under the influence resulting in great bodily injury, you are to be committed to the State Department of Corrections for a period of ten years and pay a fine of $5,000. That is a parolable offense.

On Indictment Number 1804 charging you with felony DUI resulting in death, which is a non-parolable offense, the sentence of the Court is that you be committed to the State Department of Corrections for a period of nine years and pay a fine of $15,000.

These sentences will run concurrent to each other with credit for time served.

Thank you, ladies and gentlemen.

Court will be in recess until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA) COUNTY OF RICHLAND)) STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA)) v.)) CHARLES DAVENPORT,)) DEFENDANT))	IN THE COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS GENERAL SESSIONS FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT CASE NO. 2018-GS-40-8199 2617A4021602981 ORDER DENYING MOTION TO RECONSIDER

In this felony DUI (death) action, I sentenced Defendant after accepting his plea of guilty. Defendant moved for reconsideration of the sentence.

GUILTY PLEA and SENTENCE

On November 8, 2018 at the Richland County Courthouse, Defendant offered a plea of guilty to one count of felony DUI under true-billed indictment 2018-GS-40-8199. Defendant appeared with his very competent and well-respected attorneys, Joseph M. McCulloch, Jr., and Kathy R. Schillaci. Joshua P. Golson as the assistant solicitor of the Fifth Judicial Circuit was present representing the State of South Carolina. The plea was "straight up" free of sentence recommendations from the State or Defendant.

The plea colloquy and sentencing created eighty-two pages of transcript. Numerous persons spoke for and on behalf of the victim and his family. Several persons spoke for and on behalf of Defendant. I listened to every person and considered what they said. I took a long break to review my notes and consider the sentence.

I returned and announced the sentence after stating on the record my reasons for the sentence. Those reasons are listed in the transcript starting on page 80 of the transcript. I sentenced Defendant to the South Carolina Department of Corrections for a period of twenty-five years suspended to twenty years and a fine of $10,100.

DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO RECONSIDER UNDER RULE 29(a)

Defendant timely served his motion to reconsider filed November 16, 2018. On July 29, 2019 I issued my ruling by memorandum. Subsequently, Defendant requested that an order be issued. This is the order.

Defendant requested that I amend his sentence by reducing the length of it. Defendant asserted that the sentence "appears to be the harshest sentence handed down in this state to a defendant with no prior record in a single felony DUI with death plea." Defendant offered information about sentences issued in similar cases.

RESPONSE TO MOTION VIS-À-VIS THE SENTENCING STATUTE

Regarding sentencing, SC Code Section 56-5-2945 provides in Subsection (A)(2): "By a mandatory fine of not less than ten thousand one hundred dollars nor more than twenty-five thousand one hundred dollars and mandatory imprisonment for not less than one year nor more than twenty-five years when death results." I set Defendant's fine at the minimum amount of $10,100.00. I sentenced Defendant to twenty-five years suspended to twenty-years.

I did not sentence in excess of the statute's maximum sentence of twenty-five years. The statute does not provide a list of aggravating or mitigating factors that a judge shall consider.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONNS

I listed my reasons for the sentence on page 80 of the transcript and I incorporate those reasons herein by reference. I did not see this crime as the result of a mere accident where Defendant was slightly intoxicated and pulled in front of another driver, for example. I considered Defendant's blood alcohol level, his THC level, and his driving at 76 miles per hour on a city street in a 35 miles per hour zone at or shortly before the impact. (Another substance was present in Defendant's system that may have been the result of medical care.)

I considered the ages of Defendant and the victim, David Newell, along with the facts of this case. Mr. Newell was lawfully on the roadway. Defendant was knowingly engaging in unlawful acts while on the roadway.

I considered the awful pain of the victim's family and the remorse of Defendant and his family.

I read the anecdotal information Defendant provided about sentencing across South Carolina in similar felony death DUI cases. I do not accept the assertion that because other judges have issued shorter sentences in similar cases my sentence is therefore improper or an abuse of discretion.

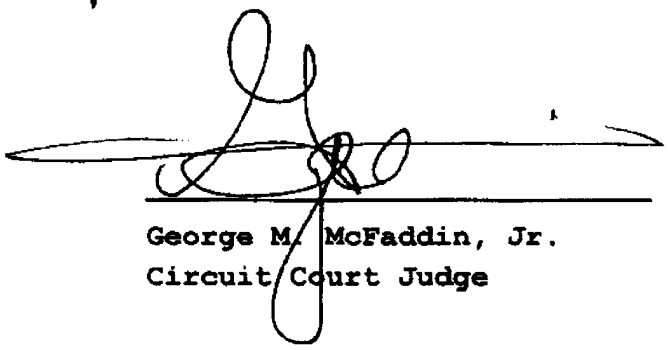

I wish to stress, and emphatically do so, that my sentence was mine alone. I was not influenced, and will not be, by any persons or groups, directly or indirectly.

Defendant offered in his motion "GOALS OF SENTENCING AND CHARLES DAVENPORT" wherein Defendant's character and rehabilitative potential are noted. Offered also is information related to the seriousness of the offense, the need to protect society and the need for deterrence and punishment. However, all of it comes back to the length of the sentence, and I have offered my reasons for the sentence.

CONCLUSION

I respectfully decline to amend the sentence and therefore deny the reconsideration motion. I took no joy in issuing the sentence. It was not a "knee jerk" sentence driven by personal views or the shock factor of the facts in this case. If a higher and more learned panel of jurists disagree with my sentence and my ruling on reconsideration, I will respectfully stand corrected, chastened, and rebuked.

It is DONE and ORDERED this 22nd day of April 2020 at Sumter, South Carolina.

Personally appeared before me the affiant Orlando Santos who being duly sworn deposes and says that defendant Charles Davenport, Jr did within this county and state or on or about 11/15/2017 violate the criminal laws of the State of South Carolina (or ordinance of ☐ County/ ☒ Municipality of City of Columbia) in the following particulars.

DESCRIPTION OF OFFENSE: DUI / Felony driving under the influence, death results

I further state that there is probable cause to believe that the defendant named above did commit the crime set forth and that probable cause is based on the following facts:

On 11/15/2017 at approx. 1925 hrs, a motor vehicle collision occurred at the 1800 block of Rosewood Dr, city of Columbia/county of Richland. A grey GMC Sierra bearing GA tag: EGK955 was being driven by the def (Charles Davenport Jr), while a black VIP moped was being driven by the victim (David Newell). The def, while traveling in lane #2 eastbound on Rosewood Dr struck the rear of the moped, which was also traveling in lane #2 eastbound on Rosewood Dr. The collision resulted in the victim suffering great bodily injury resulting in the victim being placed on life support. The victim passed away on Nov 16th at 1438 hours. The def is currently intubated and unable to communicate with officers at this time. However responding officers overheard several medical staff discussing the high level of intoxication of the def.

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
In the Court of Appeals

APPEAL FROM RICHLAND COUNTY
Court of General Sessions

The Honorable James McFaddin, Circuit Court Judge

Case No. 2017A40216029

The State of South Carolina,

Appellee,

vs.

Charles Davenport,

Appellant.

NOTICE OF APPEAL

Charles Davenport appeals his guilty plea and sentence in this case. The sentence of 25 years suspended to 20 years and fine was imposed by the Honorable James McFaddin on November 8, 2018. This appeal is taken from the order of the Honorable James McFaddin, received by counsel on April 14, 2020, which denied appellant's motion for reconsideration under Rule 29(a) and which is attached to this notice. Appellant received the attached order (without signature) on April 14, 2020.

Appellant seeks to appeal his guilty plea and sentence in this case. Specifically, although the sentence of 25 years suspended to 20 years and fine was within the statutory limits of 1 to 25 years, Appellant argues the sentence given, under the facts presented, was excessive and as such, could only have been the result of "partiality, prejudice or pressure." Wood v. State, 257 S.C. 179, 184 S.E.2d 702 (1971); Garrett v. State, 320 S.C. 353, 465 S.E.2d 349 (1996). Further, under the facts of this case and characteristics of this particular defendant, the sentence violates Article I, Section 19 and the Eighth Amendment of the state and federal Constitutions which forbid cruel and unusual punishment. Appellant may also seek to raise a due process claim relating to South Carolina's indeterminate sentencing scheme.

Respectfully submitted,
