According to the rules of appellate practice there was 15 days to petition for a rehearing. Then the remittitur will be filed. Now this signifies the finality of the opinion? And that this individual can proceed with a PCR? Or was there in fact a petition for a rehearing filed that has yet to be ruled on? I cannot find a public index or any other way to track the progression of this case. Is there also any information available as to the amount of toll time this individual has on his case? With AEDPA being a concern and trying to ensure that all timeliness is met any help concerning these matters would be a blessing. Thanks for any information you can provide.
