ARGUMENT

This is an appeal of the orders of dismissal issued by the Hon. Daniel M. Coble, circuit court judge, in two cases filed by the appellants in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County under case numbers 2024-CP-40-04715 and 2024-CP-40-05681. Copies of the orders of dismissal in both cases are attached hereto as Exhibits A and B. The only defendants in case 2024-CP-40-04715 are William Shepro and Altisource Solutions, Inc. William Shepro and Altisource Solutions, Inc. are also named as defendants, along with numerous other individuals and entities, in case 2024-CP-40-05681. The Respondents listed in this appeal are the exact same defendants as the ones listed in case 2024-CP-40-05681. The complaints filed by the Appellants in both state court cases are an attempt to relitigate the foreclosure case and writ of assistance filed by Deutsche Bank National Trust Company in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County. On June 2, 2025, this Court issued an Order in Appellate Case No. 2025-000382 dismissing the appeal of the writ of assistance. A copy of that Order is attached hereto as Exhibit C. This Order discusses the history of the foreclosure case and notes that the Appellants failed to perfect an appeal of the foreclosure and sale.

The respondents, Deutsche Bank National Trust Company as Trustee for agent John Kay, William Shepro and Altisource Solutions, Inc., Hutchens Law Firm LLP, John S. Kay, and Alan Martin Stewart, (“Respondents”), move to dismiss the appeal as there is no justiciable controversy and the matter is moot, based upon the previous decisions by the courts. Respondents also seek the dismissal of the appeal based upon the appellants’ failure to comply with the requirements for filing an initial brief.

A review of the appellants' brief reveals it does not comply with the requirements set forth in rule 208 of the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules. Rule 208(b)(1)(C) provides the following requirements for the statement of the case in the appellants' initial brief:

The statement shall contain a concise history of the proceedings, insofar as necessary to an understanding of the appeal. The statement shall not contain contested matters and shall contain, as a minimum, the following information: the date of the commencement of the action or matter; the nature of the action or matter; the nature of the defense or of the response; the action of the court, jury, master, or administrative tribunal; the dates(s) of the trial or hearing; the mode of the trial; the amount involved on the appeal; the date and nature of the order, judgment, or decision appealed from; the date of and service of the notice of appeal; the date of and description of such orders judgments, decisions, and proceedings of the lower court or administrative tribunal that may have affected the appeal, or may throw light upon the questions involved in the appeal; and any changes made in the parties by death, substitution, or otherwise. Any matters stated or alleged in the appellants' statement shall be binding on appellant.

Rule 208(b)(1)(C), SCACR (emphasis added). A review of the statement of the case in the appellants' initial brief reveals it is mostly a statement of allegations containing very little information regarding the foreclosure case.

The standard of review in the appellants' initial brief also fails to comply with the requirements of the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules. The South Carolina Appellate Court Rules require an appellant's initial brief to "concisely set forth the applicable standard of review with citations to relevant case law establishing the standard." Rule 208(b)(1)(D), SCACR. In appellants' initial brief, the standard of review portion references 28 U.S.C. § 1291 and states that it "vests federal courts of appeal with jurisdiction over all final decisions of the circuit courts." Appellants also cite to a 9th Circuit decision but do not establish how it applies to the present case. The appellants request that the appellate court review various matters, but there is no appropriate standard of review provided, nor are there any relevant "citations to relevant case law establishing the standard."

The appellants' brief on the issue of the jurisdiction of the magistrate judge cites to many portions of 28 U.S.C. § 636 but contains no arguments other than appellants' belief that the trial court judge somehow lacked subject-matter jurisdiction based upon federal law. The appellants' Statement of Issues on Appeal includes federal law questions, but none of these were raised at the hearing conducted before the trial court. Many of the statements are nonsensical or have nothing to do with the case at hand, for example, number 7 of the Statement of Issues on Appeal states "Did DBNTC, Coble Law Group, or Hutchens Law Firm, intentionally conceal with deception, the menacing of the Appellants with a screwdriver?" These Respondents have no idea what the appellants are talking about, nor was any allegation of this made at the hearing.

In the section of the appellant's initial brief labeled "Argument," the appellants put forth a multitude of sections of text from various cases but offer no actual legal arguments as to how these cases relate to the present case. "South Carolina Appellate Court Rules specify what is required in the arguments section for an appellant's brief: "The brief shall be divided into as many parts as there are issues to be argued. At the head of each part, the issue to be addressed shall be set forth in distinctive type, followed by discussion and citation of authority." Ellie, Inc. v. Miccichi, 358 S.C. 78, 99, 594 S.E.2d 485, 496 (Ct. App. 2004) (citing Rule 208(b)(1)(D), SCACR). "Numerous cases have held that where an issue is not argued within the body of the brief but is only a short, conclusory statement, it is abandoned on appeal." Id. (citing Glasscock, Inc. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co., 348 S.C. 76, 81, 557 S.E.2d 6890, 691 (Ct. App. 2001); R & G Constr., Inc. v. Lowcountry Reg'l Transp. Auth., 343 S.C. 424, 437, 540 S.E.2d 113, 120 (Ct. App.2000). See also Broom v. Jennifer, 403 S.C. 96, 115, 742 S.E.2d 382, 391 (2013) ("Issues raised in a brief but not supported by authority may be deemed abandoned and not considered on appeal.") The appellants' brief does not set forth any arguments.

In Henning v. Kay, 307 S.C. 436, 415 S.E.2d 794 (1992), the appellants filed their initial brief, and the respondent moved to dismiss the appeal based on the appellants' failure to comply with the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules in preparing the brief and in the designation of matter. Id. At 437-38, 415 S.E. 2d at 794-95. The Supreme Court, in reviewing the brief, stated:

Appellants' brief fails to comply with the Rule 207 [now rule 208, SCACR] in the following particulars: the components of the brief are incorrectly organized and labeled. The issues are not distinctly headed, the table of authorities is not alphabetized or referenced in the body of the brief, the statement of the case contains contested matter and omits required information, and the arguments contain no citations to the record or to the cases listed in the table of authorities.

Id. At 437, 415 S.E.2d at 794. The Court further stated, "that the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules are not mere technicalities but provide the parties with an orderly mechanism through which to guide the appeals in this State," and that it was incumbent upon the appellant "to provide material that complies with the Rules and facilitates appellate review." Id. The Court stated that it "would be completely justified in dismissing this appeal based on appellant's numerous violations of the rules." Id.

Appellants' brief, like the appellants' brief in Henning, is incorrectly organized and labeled, the table of authorities is not alphabetized and includes cases that are not properly cited. The brief contains few arguments, just claims that were not preserved at trial. Additionally, there are few, if any arguments citing to the record and cases to support the arguments.

The opening paragraph of the complaint filed appellants in the state court case states that "The present case involves an action for wrongful eviction where plaintiffs sued for damages to person and property and violation of their civil rights." Paragraph 2 of the appellants' complaint states that "This is an action to recover possession of real property at 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, S.C. 29229-8981." The appellants admit in their complaint that the action is one to regain real property lost in the previous foreclosure action and writ of assistance that the appellants appealed in case 2025-000382 which was dismissed by this Court's Order of June 2, 2025. The appellants' failure to perfect an appeal of the foreclosure, sale, and eviction renders a rehashing of the same facts and arguments moot. Once the foreclosure decree from the Master in Equity has been entered and no appeal is taken, the effect of the foreclosure is binding in all subsequent proceedings. Bartles v. Livingston, 282 S.C. 448, 319 S.E.2d 707 (Ct. App. 1984), Antrum v. Hartsville Prod. Credit Ass'n, 228 S.C. 201, 89 S.C. 2d 376 (1955).

These Respondents argue that the matter is moot and there is no relief that can be granted to the appellants, and the appeal should be dismissed.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ John S. Kay

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF RICHLAND
John C. Nelums and Delmarshi Nelums, Plaintiffs,
v.
William Shepro and Altisource Solutions, Inc.,
Defendants.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS
CASE NO. 2024-CP-40-04715

ORDER DISMISSING CASE WITH PREJUDICE

This matter came before me for hearing via Webex on November 14, 2024 on the motion to dismiss Plaintiff's complaint filed by Altisource Solutions, Inc., and William Shepro, ("Defendants"). Appearing at the hearing were the Defendants counsel, John S. Kay, and the Plaintiff, John C. Nelums ("Nelums").

I. INTRODUCTION

The Plaintiffs initiated this case on August 5, 2024, by filing what is titled as a "Motion and Memorandum in Support of Temporary Injunction and Complaints for Ejectment". On August 28, 2024, The Defendants filed a Motion to Dismiss the Plaintiff's Complaint. Thereafter on September 30, 2024, without leave of Court, the Plaintiffs filed an additional pleading, styled as "Plaintiffs' "Notice to Quit" and "Complaint for Damages" (the August 5, 2024 and September 30, 2024 pleadings are hereafter designated as the "Nelums Pleading". This case is the second case¹ the Nelums have filed in 2024 in what is an attempt to overturn the results of a foreclosure judgment obtained against them in a previous case filed by Deutsche Bank in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County under case number 2021-CP-40-00895 (the "Foreclosure Case"). The complaint in the within case seeks to undo the foreclosure judgment granted to Deutsche Bank in Foreclosure Case concerning real property located at 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, South Carolina 29229 (the "Property") that was once owned by the Plaintiffs and is now owned by Deutsche Bank. The Nelums Pleading fails to meet the most basic requirements for these types of pleadings. Generally, the Plaintiffs' complaint fails to list causes of action and seeks relief under various federal statutes, which are not applicable to the case at hand. Thus, pursuant to Rules 8, and 12(b)(6) of the SCRCP, the Nelums Complaint should be stricken and the case dismissed with prejudice for failure to state a sufficient claim.

BACKGROUND

On or about January 27, 2003, the Nelums obtained a home mortgage loan for the original principal amount of $270,900.00 (the "Loan"). To secure the Loan, the Nelums executed a mortgage in favor of IndyMac Bank, F.S.B., which granted the lender a first lien on the real property located at 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, SC 29229. The transaction is memorialized by a recorded mortgage executed by the Plaintiffs (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was recorded on November 27, 2002 in Book 729 at Page 3951, in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Richland County, South Carolina. Thereafter, in an assignment dated December 2, 2020, recorded December 14, 2020, in Mortgage Book 2564 at Page 1571, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as receiver for IndyMac Federal Bank, assigned the Mortgage to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company as Trustee for Residential Asset Securitization Trust 2005-A8CB Mortgage Pass-Through Certificates Series 2005-H ("Deutsche Bank"). The monthly payments due on said note and mortgage had not been made since April 1, 2020. Deutsche Bank filed a foreclosure action in case 2021-CP-40-00895 and received an Order for Foreclosure issued by the Master in Equity for Richland, County, The Hon. Joseph M. Strickland (also a Defendant in this case). The property was sold at public auction back to the Plaintiff as the highest bidder and Judge Strickland conveyed the property to Deutsche Bank by Master's deed recorded December 21, 2023 in Book 2803 Page 3870 in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Richland County. After the Plaintiffs failed to vacate the property, Deutsche Bank proceeded to have the Court issue an eviction order with a Writ of Assistance issued by Judge Strickland to have the Plaintiffs evicted from the Property.

The within case is one of a series of attempts by the Plaintiffs to undo, or re-litigate the Foreclosure Case. Additionally, counsel for the Defendants advised the Court at the hearing that the Plaintiffs have moved back into the property at 315 Bentwood Lane in Columbia without the permission of the Defendants. The Nelums Pleadings seeks to unwind the previous decision by the Master in Equity for Richland County who granted the order evicting the Nelums from the Bentwood Lane property. In fact, page five (5) of the Motion for Temporary Injunction states that "Once the locks are changed back after the Plaintiff's complaint is filed IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS FOR COUNTY OF RICHLAND, the Plaintiff John C. Nelums and Delmarshi Nelums would allege unto this Honorable Court and allege as follows:". True to his word, if not the orders of the Court, the Nelums have changed the locks on the Bentwood Lane property that is owned by Deutsche Bank, and moved back in.

A. The 2020 Litigation

On June 29, 2020, and prior to the filing of the Foreclosure Case, the Nelums filed a lawsuit in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County against Deutsche Bank and other defendants, as Case No. 2020-CP-40-02956 (the "2020 Litigation Case"). Deutsche Bank, along with other defendants, removed the case to federal court where it was assigned Case No. 3:20-cv-02932-JFA, as reflected in the federal court docket. After removal, Deutsche Bank and other defendants filed a motion to dismiss pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). On November 18, 2020, the assigned magistrate judge issued a Report and Recommendation that the motion to dismiss be granted. In the Report and Recommendation, the magistrate judge states that, “The undisputed facts show that Deutsche Bank possesses the note and has a right to enforce it.” The court stated that fact clearly precluded the Nelums’ causes of action where they asserted Deutsche Bank did not have the right to enforce the promissory note which included the causes of slander of title, quiet title, declaratory relief, and lack of standing. Furthermore, the Court held that the Nelums failed to plausibly allege facts that could support intentional infliction of emotional distress, failed to meet the pleading standards required to allege fraud, and claims pursuant to the Truth in Lending Act and Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act were barred by the statute of limitations. The Nelums objected to the magistrate’s report and recommendation. On December 9, 2020, the District Court adopted the magistrate’s report and recommendation and entered a final order and judgment dismissing the 2020 Litigation, which granted the defendants’ Rule 12(b)(6) Motion to Dismiss.² The Nelums did not appeal.

B. The 2021 Litigation

On July 19, 2021 – while the Foreclosure Case was pending – the Nelums filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for South Carolina as Case No. 3:21-cv-02161-JFA (the “2021 Litigation Case”) against several defendants, including Deutsche Bank and Hutchens Law Firm. The Nelums Complaint was titled “Motion for An Ex-Parte Temporary Restraining Order, Show Cause Order, and Permanent Injunction with Asset Freeze” alleging Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act (RICO) violations against Hutchens Law Firm, John B. Kelchner, LPS Default

² The December 9, 2020 order operated as a dismissal with prejudice pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b).

Solutions, Fidelity National Title Insurance, Deutsche Bank, Ocwen Loan Servicing, PHH Mortgage Services, and Mortgage Electronic Registration System. On August 31, 2021, the assigned magistrate judge issued a Report and Recommendation (“R. & R.”) that the case be dismissed. In the R. & R. the magistrate judge states that, “The Court concludes the actions are frivolous and that they should be summarily dismissed without prejudice and issuance and service of process.” The R. & R. also mentions that the Complaint was “over one hundred pages long, typed, and written with purported legal jargon that is not coherent.” Furthermore, the Court concluded the Nelums’ claims were barred by principles of res judicata due to the Court’s granting of the motion to dismiss in the 2020 Litigation Case alleging fraud and conspiracy against several of the same defendants. On September 21, 2021, the District Court adopted the magistrate’s report and recommendation and entered a final order and judgment dismissing the 2021 Litigation without prejudice. The Nelums appealed, and the appeal was dismissed on April 22, 2022.

IV. STANDARD OF REVIEW

A. Motion to Dismiss

A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), SCRCP, tests the legal sufficiency of a claim and should be granted if the claim does not set forth sufficient allegations entitling the party to relief. Rule 12(b)(6), SCRCP; Williams v. Condon, 347 S.C. 227, 232-33, 553 S.E.2d 496, 499 (Ct. App. 2001). Although the court must accept the allegations of the claim, it is not permitted to read into the claim unalleged facts. Overcash v. S.C. Elec. & Gas Co., 364 S.C. 569, 572, 614 S.E.2d 619, 620 (S.C. 2005). Rather, “The motion must be granted if the facts and inferences reasonably deducible from them show that the plaintiff could not prevail on any theory of the case.” Id.

The Plaintiffs’ pleading is subject to the pleading requirements outlined in Rule 8 which require the Plaintiff to stick to “fact” pleading.” Rule 8, SCRCP. Where Plaintiffs have failed to allege sufficient facts to provide Defendants with fair notice of the claims in question, courts have held time and time again that stringing together a long list of claims is not sufficient to satisfy Rule 8(a)'s short and plain statement requirement.

In addition to its many pleading defects, discussed more fully below, the claims asserted within the Nelums Pleading are barred by the doctrines of res judicata, collateral estoppel or similar and should be dismissed and stricken on that basis. "Res judicata bars subsequent actions by the same parties when the claims arise out of the same transaction or occurrence that was the subject of a prior action between those parties." Plum Creek Dev. Co. v. City of Conway, 334 S.C. 30, 34, 512 S.E.2d 106, 109 (S.C. 1999) (internal citations omitted). As a result, "...a litigant is barred from raising any issues which were adjudicated in the former suit and any issues which might have been raised in the former suit." Id. "To establish res judicata, the defendant must prove the following three elements: (1) identity of the parties; (2) identity of the subject matter; and (3) adjudication of the issue in the former suit." RIM Assocs. v. Blackwell, 359 S.C. 170, 183, 597 S.E.2d 152, 159 (Ct. App. 2004). The bar is broad, and applies not just to claims actually alleged, but also precludes any claims that could have been raised in the prior litigation. Venture Eng'g, Inc. v. Tishman Constr. Corp. of S.C., 360 S.C. 156, 162, 600 S.E.2d 547, 550 (Ct. App. 2004). Similarly,

Res judicata's fundamental purpose is to ensure that no one should be twice sued for the same cause of action. Riedman Corp. v. Greenville Steel Structures, Inc., 308 S.C. 467, 419 S.E.2d 217 (S.C. 1992). Res judicata ends litigation, promotes judicial economy and avoids the harassment of relitigation of the same issues. Nelson v. OHG of S.C. Inc., 354 S.C. 290, 304, 580 S.E.2d 171, 178 (Ct. App. 2003).

All of the elements of res judicata are easily met by reference to the 2020 and 2021 Litigation. First, the parties are identical in that the Nelums were parties to the Foreclosure Case and were parties to the 2020 and 2021 litigation as well. The Defendants are standing in the shoes of Deutsche Bank as they are the company hired by Deutsche Bank to complete the eviction of the Plaintiffs from the Bentwood Lane property pursuant to the Writ of Assistance issued by Judge Strickland in the 2021 foreclosure case. The Defendants are the agents of Deutsche Bank, the current owner of the Bentwood Lane property.

Second, the subject matter is identical and arises from the same transaction or occurrence – namely the parties’ respective rights, duties and obligations under the terms of the mortgage loan. The with action by Plaintiffs seeks to, yet again, attempt to vacate the previously litigated mortgage foreclosure action prosecuted against the Plaintiffs in the 2021 Foreclosure Case. The 2020 Litigation was filed on June 29, 2020 (i.e., after the same loan default) and was an obvious attempt to delay or avoid the consequences of that default by asserting claims against the lender, Deutsche Bank.

In the 2020 Litigation the Nelums asserted at least ten causes of action against Deutsche Bank and others related to the same mortgage loan at issue in the Current Lawsuit, asserting claims for (1) lack of standing to foreclose, (2) fraud in the concealment, (3) fraud in the inducement, (4) intentional infliction of emotional distress, (5) quiet title, (6) slander of title, (7) declaratory relief, (8) violations of the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA), (9) violations of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) and (10) rescission. The “new” allegations of the Plaintiffs’ complaint seek to attack the standing or the prosecution of the court’s order granting the eviction. The Plaintiffs were unable to attack Deutsche Bank’s standing to foreclose, so they are now attempting to attack the eviction stemming from the foreclosure by attacking the Defendants who represented Deutsche Bank and carried out the eviction itself. These claims and allegations are fundamentally an attack on the 2021 foreclosure action upon which the eviction was based. In sum, claims contesting the eviction and the foreclosure deed are another attempt to contest Deutsche Bank's right to foreclose upon this defaulted mortgage. These matters could have been raised, and in fact were raised, in the 2020 and 2021 Litigation. Accordingly, these two cases involve the same transaction or occurrence, meeting the second element of res judicata.

The third element, adjudication in the former suit, is also met here. The 2020 Litigation resulted in a dismissal of the Nelums' claims after Deutsche Bank and other defendants filed a motion to dismiss. That dismissal order operated as an "adjudication on the merits." See Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b).³ Accordingly, the Nelums have already had a full and fair opportunity to dispute any issues arising from their mortgage loan default, including Deutsche Bank's right to foreclose. In addition, the Master's Order and Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale issued by Judge Strickland also operates as an adjudication on these same matters.

The doctrine of collateral estoppel also applies here. Collateral estoppel, also known as issue preclusion, prevents a party from relitigating in a subsequent suit an issue actually and necessarily litigated and determined in a prior action. Shelton v. Oscar Mayer Foods Corp., 325 S.C. 248, 251, 481 S.E.2d 706, 707 (S.C. 1997). Collateral estoppel bars re-litigation if the issue in the present lawsuit was: (1) actually litigated in the prior action; (2) directly determined in the prior action; and (3) necessary to support the prior judgment. Carolina Renewal, Inc. v. S.C. DOT, 385 S.C. 550, 554, 684 S.E.2d 779, 782 (Ct. App. 2009). "Collateral estoppel applies to specific issues, regardless of whether the claims in the first and subsequent suits are the same.” Judy v. Judy, 383 S.C. 1, 7, 677 S.E.2d 213, 217 (Ct. App. 2009).

Much of the Nelums Pleading – generously construed – appears to be alleging claims of wrongdoing against the Defendants based upon some allegation of an invalid eviction. Even the most cursory comparison of the pleadings confirms that this was the exact same subject matter of the 2021 Lawsuit. The foreclosure lawsuit and the resulting eviction order were issued in the case on the filing of the requisite pleadings in the case by Deutsche Bank, first as the mortgagee and then as the owner of the Property. The Defendants in this case did not initiate the filing for the foreclosure or the eviction, they are agents of Deutsche Bank in carrying out the eviction. The Plaintiffs, could, and did, object and file numerous post-trial motions in the foreclosure action and those were denied. The Nelums cannot now attack, yet again, the foreclosure, the foreclosure deed and eviction that resulted from them.

The U.S. District Court already held, in dismissing the 2021 federal court lawsuit filed by the Plaintiffs, the claims asserted therein against Deutsche Bank and others were barred by principles of res judicata and claim preclusion by virtue of the 2020 Litigation. If those claims were barred in the 2021 Litigation, they should also be barred again here. Ultimately – as the District Court correctly recognized – the 2020 Litigation was the Nelums’ opportunity to assert claims against Deutsche Bank to avoid foreclosure. It was not successful, and the Nelums are now bound by that judgment. As a result, the Nelums Pleading – which simply repeats those already-rejected claims or claims that could have been raised previously – should be dismissed based on well-settled principles of res judicata and collateral estoppel.

Any legal pleading in filed in South Carolina must contain “a short and plain statement of the facts showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Rule 8(a)(2), SCRCF. The Nelums Pleading falls far short of that standard.

Rather, it may be aptly characterized as a “shotgun pleading”, defined as a pleading “that fails to articulate claims with sufficient clarity to allow the Plaintiff to frame a responsive pleading or one in which it is virtually impossible to know which allegations of fact are intended to support which claims for relief.” Alexander v. S.C. DOT, No. 3:20-4480-TLW-SVH, 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118907, at 3 (D. S.C. June 25, 2021) (quotations omitted).

The Nelums Pleading is a textbook example of a shotgun pleading. The entire pleading is filled with unsupported legal conclusions and irrelevant facts that have nothing to do with the Defendants or the subject matter of this lawsuit. The Plaintiffs refer to matters that not only do not relate to the instant case, but also to matters that lack sufficient clarity to allow Defendants to frame a responsive pleading. Although there are scarce and vague references to landlord/tenant matters, nowhere in the Complaint do the Plaintiffs mention a lease agreement or produce such an agreement. Plaintiffs omit any reference to the mortgage loan agreement and the foreclosure action, foreclosure sale, foreclosure deed, or the writ of eviction.

The Plaintiffs cannot avoid pleading supporting facts for their claims and defenses by relying on incomprehensible claims against the Defendants. All of the actions taken were made in accordance with orders of the Court. Further, the eviction action was undertaken pursuant to the Writ of Assistance by the Order of the Richland County Master in Equity. The Plaintiffs’ Complaint fails to satisfy the requirements of Rule 8, SCRCF, so it should be dismissed.

With regards to the Plaintiff’s complaint, it also fails to meet the requirements to a Rule 12(b)(6) motion. Plaintiffs’ conflate federal law and South Carolina state law as though they are the same thing, a deficiency which, in itself, warrants dismissing the Plaintiffs' Complaint in its entirety. However, the Plaintiff's arguments are not viable regardless of how they are presented. Therefore, the complaint should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), SCRCP.

The Plaintiffs have sought a cause of action for what appears to be fraud on the part of the Defendants. Fraud is an intentional perversion of truth for the purpose of inducing another in reliance upon it to part with some valuable thing belonging to her or to surrender a legal right. Black's Law Dictionary 660 (6th ed. 1990). To prevail on a cause of action for fraud, a Plaintiff must prove by clear, cogent and convincing evidence the following elements: (1) a representation; (2) its falsity; (3) its materiality; (4) either knowledge of its falsity or a reckless disregard of its truth or falsity; (5) intent that the representation be acted upon; (6) the hearer's ignorance of its falsity; (7) the hearer's reliance on its truth; (8) the hearer's right to rely thereon; and (9) the hearer's consequent and proximate injury. Moseley v. All Things Possible, Inc., 388 S.C. 31, 35-36, 694 S.E.2d 43, 45 (Ct. App. 2010). The right to rely must be determined in light of the plaintiff's duty to use reasonable prudence and diligence under the circumstances in identifying the truth with respect to the representations made to him. Florentine Corp., Inc. v. PEDAI, Inc., 287 S.C. 382, 386, 339 S.E.2d 112, 114 (S.C. 1985). Moreover, there is no right to rely, as required to establish fraud, where there is no confidential or fiduciary relationship and there is an arm's length transaction between mature, educated people. Id. This is especially true in circumstances where one should have utilized precaution and protection to safeguard his interests. Id.

Allegations of fraud must be stated with particularity. See Rule 9(b), SCRCP. Here, the Plaintiffs failed to establish fraud at all, let alone with the requisite degree of particularity, because the Plaintiffs fail to plead any plausible facts that could establish fraud against the Defendants. To support the fraud claim, the Plaintiffs state that the Defendants 'without a warrant of eviction illegal Evictions and Lockouts against the Nelums Family without probable cause to do so, that cause an unlawfully eviction at 315 Bentwood Lane Columbia, S.C.” (Complaint Para. 8). Further, the Complaint alleges that “The Court take judicial notice that Plaintiffs John C. Nelums and Delmarshi Nelums Mortgage Satisfaction states that on 5-4-15, paid in full and the lien or the foregoing instrument has been released.” (Complaint Para. 9 and Exhibit A to the Complaint). As shown in Exhibit C to the motion to dismiss, Deutsche Bank had the right to evict the Plaintiffs from the Property by virtue of the Writ of Assistance. Further, the Mortgage Satisfaction Plaintiff’s cite in their complaint was for the satisfaction of a mortgage recorded in Book 1232 Page756. The mortgage foreclosed by the Plaintiff in the 2021 foreclosure action was an entirely different mortgage recorded in Book 755 Page 615. The Plaintiffs allegations are an attempt to re-visit the completed foreclosure action. No plausible facts are pled that could establish that the Defendants engaged in any wrongdoing and the Plaintiffs have failed to establish a proximate injury resulting from the alleged falsity. Thus, the Plaintiffs’ complaint claim should be dismissed with prejudice.

It is therefore ORDERED that the Plaintiffs’ case is dismissed with prejudice.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

CASE NO. 2024-CP-40-05681

ORDER DISMISSING CASE AND FOR SANCTIONS AGAINST PLAINTIFFS

This matter came before me for hearing via Webex on November 14, 2024 on the motion to dismiss Plaintiff's complaint and motion for sanctions filed by Altisource Solutions, Inc., William Shepro, Deutsche Bank National Trust Company, John Kay, Hutchens Law Firm LLP, and Alan Stewart, ("Defendants"). Appearing at the hearing were the Defendants' counsel, John S. Kay, and counsel for Richland County, Jeanette McBride, Joseph Strickland, Sheriff Leon Lott, and Sgt. Kyle Kovalchek ("Richland County Defendants), John P. Grimes, Jr., Esq. Also appearing was the Plaintiff, John C. Nelums ("Nelums"). In addition to a dismissal of the Plaintiff's case, both the Defendants and the Richland County Defendants request sanctions against the Plaintiffs in the form of a "gatekeeper order" to prevent the Plaintiffs from filing further frivolous actions against these same defendants for the same matters.

I. INTRODUCTION

The Plaintiffs' pleading, styled as "Plaintiffs' "Notice to Quit" and "Complaint for Damages" (hereafter the "Nelums Pleading") is the second case¹ the Nelums have filed in 2024 in what is an attempt to overturn the results of a foreclosure judgment obtained against them in a previous case filed by Deutsche Bank in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County under case number 2021-CP-40-00895 (the "Foreclosure Case"). The complaint in the within case seeks to undo the foreclosure judgment granted to Deutsche Bank in Foreclosure Case concerning real property located at 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, South Carolina 29229 (the "Property") that was once owned by the Plaintiffs and is now owned by Deutsche Bank. The Nelums Pleading fails to meet the most basic requirements for these types of pleadings. Generally, the Plaintiffs' complaint fails to list causes of action and seeks relief under various federal statutes, which are not applicable to the case at hand. Thus, pursuant to Rules 8, and 12(b)(6) of the SCRCF, the Nelums Complaint should be stricken and the case dismissed with prejudice for failure to state a sufficient claim.

BACKGROUND

On or about January 27, 2003, the Nelums obtained a home mortgage loan for the original principal amount of $270,900.00 (the "Loan"). To secure the Loan, the Nelums executed a mortgage in favor of IndyMac Bank, F.S.B., which granted the lender a first lien on the real property located at 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, SC 29229. The transaction is memorialized by a recorded mortgage executed by the Plaintiffs (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was recorded on November 27, 2002 in Book 729 at Page 3951, in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Richland

¹ The other case filed by the Nelums in 2024 was filed under case number 2024-CP-40-4715 and there is an Order dismissing that case as well.).

County, South Carolina. Thereafter, in an assignment dated December 2, 2020, recorded December 14, 2020, in Mortgage Book 2564 at Page 1571, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as receiver for IndyMac Federal Bank, assigned the Mortgage to Deutsche Bank National Trust Company as Trustee for Residential Asset Securitization Trust 2005-A8CB Mortgage Pass-Through Certificates Series 2005-H (“Deutsche Bank”). The monthly payments due on said note and mortgage had not been made since April 1, 2020. Deutsche Bank filed a foreclosure action in case 2021-CP-40-00895 and received an Order for Foreclosure issued by the Master in Equity for Richland, County, The Hon. Joseph M. Strickland (also a Defendant in this case). The property was sold at public auction back to the Plaintiff as the highest bidder and Judge Strickland conveyed the property to Deutsche Bank by Master’s deed recorded December 21, 2023 in Book 2803 Page 3870 in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Richland County. After the Plaintiffs failed to vacate the property, Deutsche Bank proceeded to have the Court issue an eviction order with a Writ of Assistance issued by Judge Strickland to have the Plaintiffs evicted from the Property.

The within case is one of a series of attempts by the Plaintiffs to undo, or re-litigate the Foreclosure Case. Additionally, counsel for the Defendants advised the Court at the hearing that the Plaintiffs have moved back into the property at 315 Bentwood Lane in Columbia without the permission of the Defendants.

A. The 2020 Litigation

On June 29, 2020, and prior to the filing of the Foreclosure Case, the Nelums filed a lawsuit in the Court of Common Pleas for Richland County against Deutsche Bank and other defendants, as Case No. 2020-CP-40-02956 (the “2020 Litigation Case”). Deutsche Bank, along with other defendants, removed the case to federal court where it was assigned Case No. 3:20-cv-02932-JFA, as reflected in the federal court docket. After removal, Deutsche Bank and other defendants filed a motion to dismiss pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). On November 18, 2020, the assigned magistrate judge issued a Report and Recommendation that the motion to dismiss be granted. In the Report and Recommendation, the magistrate judge states that, “The undisputed facts show that Deutsche Bank possesses the note and has a right to enforce it.” The court stated that fact clearly precluded the Nelums’ causes of action where they asserted Deutsche Bank did not have the right to enforce the promissory note which included the causes of slander of title, quiet title, declaratory relief, and lack of standing. Furthermore, the Court held that the Nelums failed to plausibly allege facts that could support intentional infliction of emotional distress, failed to meet the pleading standards required to allege fraud, and claims pursuant to the Truth in Lending Act and Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act were barred by the statute of limitations. The Nelums objected to the magistrate’s report and recommendation. On December 9, 2020, the District Court adopted the magistrate’s report and recommendation and entered a final order and judgment dismissing the 2020 Litigation, which granted the defendants’ Rule 12(b)(6) Motion to Dismiss.² The Nelums did not appeal.

B. The 2021 Litigation

On July 19, 2021 – while the Foreclosure Case was pending – the Nelums filed a complaint in the U.S. District Court for South Carolina as Case No. 3:21-cv-02161-JFA (the “2021 Litigation Case”) against several defendants, including Deutsche Bank and Hutchens Law Firm. The Nelums Complaint was titled “Motion for An Ex-Parte Temporary Restraining Order, Show Cause Order, and Permanent Injunction with Asset Freeze” alleging Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act (RICO) violations against Hutchens Law Firm, John B. Kelchner, LPS Default Solutions, Fidelity National Title Insurance, Deutsche Bank, Ocwen Loan Servicing, PHH

² The December 9, 2020 order operated as a dismissal with prejudice pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b).

Mortgage Services, and Mortgage Electronic Registration System. On August 31, 2021, the assigned magistrate judge issued a Report and Recommendation (“R. & R.”) that the case be dismissed. In the R. & R. the magistrate judge states that, “The Court concludes the actions are frivolous and that they should be summarily dismissed without prejudice and issuance and service of process.” The R. & R. also mentions that the Complaint was “over one hundred pages long, typed, and written with purported legal jargon that is not coherent.” Furthermore, the Court concluded the Nelums’ claims were barred by principles of res judicata due to the Court’s granting of the motion to dismiss in the 2020 Litigation Case alleging fraud and conspiracy against several of the same defendants. On September 21, 2021, the District Court adopted the magistrate’s report and recommendation and entered a final order and judgment dismissing the 2021 Litigation without prejudice. The Nelums appealed, and the appeal was dismissed on April 22, 2022.

IV. STANDARD OF REVIEW

A. Motion to Dismiss

A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6), SCRCPP, tests the legal sufficiency of a claim and should be granted if the claim does not set forth sufficient allegations entitling the party to relief. Rule 12(b)(6), SCRCPP; Williams v. Condon, 347 S.C. 227, 232-33, 553 S.E.2d 496, 499 (Ct. App. 2001). Although the court must accept the allegations of the claim, it is not permitted to read into the claim unalleged facts. Overcash v. S.C. Elec. & Gas Co., 364 S.C. 569, 572, 614 S.E.2d 619, 620 (S.C. 2005). Rather, “The motion must be granted if the facts and inferences reasonably deducible from them show that the plaintiff could not prevail on any theory of the case.” Id.

The Plaintiffs’ pleading is subject to the pleading requirements outlined in Rule 8 which require the Plaintiff to stick to “fact pleading.” Rule 8, SCRCPP. Where Plaintiffs have failed to allege sufficient facts to provide Defendants with fair notice of the claims in question, courts have held time and time again that stringing together a long list of claims is not sufficient to satisfy Rule 8(a)'s short and plain statement requirement.

In addition to its many pleading defects, discussed more fully below, the claims asserted within the Nelums Pleading are barred by the doctrines of res judicata, collateral estoppel or similar doctrines and should be dismissed and stricken on that basis. "Res judicata bars subsequent actions by the same parties when the claims arise out of the same transaction or occurrence that was the subject of a prior action between those parties." Plum Creek Dev. Co. v. City of Conway, 334 S.C. 30, 34, 512 S.E.2d 106, 109 (S.C. 1999) (internal citations omitted). As a result, "...a litigant is barred from raising any issues which were adjudicated in the former suit and any issues which might have been raised in the former suit." Id. "To establish res judicata, the defendant must prove the following three elements: (1) identity of the parties; (2) identity of the subject matter; and (3) adjudication of the issue in the former suit." RIM Assocs. v. Blackwell, 359 S.C. 170, 183, 597 S.E.2d 152, 159 (Ct. App. 2004). The bar is broad, and applies not just to claims actually alleged, but also precludes any claims that could have been raised in the prior litigation. Venture Eng'g, Inc. v. Tishman Constr. Corp. of S.C., 360 S.C. 156, 162, 600 S.E.2d 547, 550 (Ct. App. 2004). Similarly,

Res judicata's fundamental purpose is to ensure that no one should be twice sued for the same cause of action. Riedman Corp. v. Greenville Steel Structures, Inc., 308 S.C. 467, 419 S.E.2d 217 (S.C. 1992). Res judicata ends litigation, promotes judicial economy and avoids the harassment of relitigation of the same issues. Nelson v. OHG of S.C. Inc., 354 S.C. 290, 304, 580 S.E.2d 171, 178 (Ct. App. 2003).

All of the elements of res judicata are easily met by reference to the 2020 and 2021 Litigation. First, the parties are identical in that the Nelums were parties to the Foreclosure Case and were parties to the 2020 and 2021 litigation as well. The Defendants are standing in the shoes of Deutsche Bank as they are the company hired by Deutsche Bank to complete the eviction of the Plaintiffs from the property pursuant to the Writ of Assistance issued by Judge Strickland in the 2021 foreclosure case. Hutchens Law Firm, John Kay, and Alan Stewart are the attorneys and the law firm that represent Deutsche Bank and Altisource in the within case and in the 2020 and 2021 litigation. The Defendants are the agents of Deutsche Bank. Similarly, the Richland County Defendants are the representatives of the State and County charged with administering the judicial process in Richland County. Plaintiff has not alleged facts indicating the Richland County Defendants acted in any individual capacity, and as such, they were acting solely in their official judicial capacities.³

Second, the subject matter is identical and arises from the same transaction or occurrence – namely the parties’ respective rights, duties and obligations under the terms of the mortgage loan. The with action by Plaintiffs seeks to, yet again, attempt to vacate the previously litigated mortgage foreclosure action prosecuted against the Plaintiffs in the 2021 Foreclosure Case. The 2020 Litigation was filed on June 29, 2020 (i.e., after the same loan default) and was an obvious attempt to delay or avoid the consequences of that default by asserting claims against the lender, Deutsche Bank.

In the 2020 Litigation the Nelums asserted at least ten causes of action against Deutsche Bank and others related to the same mortgage loan at issue in the Current Lawsuit, asserting claims for (1) lack of standing to foreclose, (2) fraud in the concealment, (3) fraud in the inducement, (4)

intentional infliction of emotional distress, (5) quiet title, (6) slander of title, (7) declaratory relief, (8) violations of the federal Truth in Lending Act (TILA), (9) violations of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) and (10) rescission. The “new” allegations of the Plaintiffs’ complaint seek to attack the standing or the prosecution of the court’s order granting the eviction. The Plaintiffs were unable to attack Deutsche Bank’s standing to foreclose, so they are now attempting to attack the eviction stemming from the foreclosure by attacking the Defendants who represented Deutsche Bank and carried out the eviction itself. These claims and allegations are fundamentally an attack on the 2021 foreclosure action upon which the eviction was based. In sum, claims contesting the eviction and the foreclosure deed are another attempt to contest Deutsche Bank’s right to foreclose upon this defaulted mortgage. These matters could have been raised, and in fact were raised, in the 2020 and 2021 Litigation. Accordingly, these two cases involve the same transaction or occurrence, meeting the second element of res judicata.

The third element, adjudication in the former suit, is also met here. The 2020 Litigation resulted in a dismissal of the Nelums’ claims after Deutsche Bank and other defendants filed a motion to dismiss. That dismissal order operated as an “adjudication on the merits.” See Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b).⁴ Accordingly, the Nelums have already had a full and fair opportunity to dispute any issues arising from their mortgage loan default, including Deutsche Bank’s right to foreclose. In addition, the Master’s Order and Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale issued by Judge Strickland also operates as an adjudication on these same matters.

The doctrine of collateral estoppel also applies here. Collateral estoppel, also known as issue preclusion, prevents a party from relitigating in a subsequent suit an issue actually and necessarily litigated and determined in a prior action. Shelton v. Oscar Mayer Foods Corp., 325 S.C. 248, 251, 481 S.E.2d 706, 707 (S.C. 1997). Collateral estoppel bars re-litigation if the issue in the present lawsuit was: (1) actually litigated in the prior action; (2) directly determined in the prior action; and (3) necessary to support the prior judgment. Carolina Renewal, Inc. v. S.C. DOT, 385 S.C. 550, 554, 684 S.E.2d 779, 782 (Ct. App. 2009). “Collateral estoppel applies to specific issues, regardless of whether the claims in the first and subsequent suits are the same.” Judy v. Judy, 383 S.C. 1, 7, 677 S.E.2d 213, 217 (Ct. App. 2009).

Much of the Nelums Pleading – generously construed – appears to be alleging claims of wrongdoing against the Defendants based upon some allegation of an invalid eviction. Even the most cursory comparison of the pleadings confirms that this was the exact same subject matter of the 2021 Lawsuit. The foreclosure lawsuit and the resulting eviction order were issued in the case on the filing of the requisite pleadings in the case by Deutsche Bank, first as the mortgagee and then as the owner of the Property. The Defendants in this case did not initiate the filing for the foreclosure or the eviction, they are agents of Deutsche Bank, or the Richland County officials charged with the judicial and administrative activities in carrying out the eviction. The Plaintiffs, could, and did, object and file numerous post-trial motions in the foreclosure action and those were denied. The Nelums cannot now attack, yet again, the foreclosure, the foreclosure deed and eviction that resulted from them.

The U.S. District Court already held, in dismissing the 2021 federal court lawsuit filed by the Plaintiffs, the claims asserted therein against Deutsche Bank and others were barred by principles of res judicata and claim preclusion by virtue of the 2020 Litigation. If those claims were barred in the 2021 Litigation, they should also be barred again here. Ultimately – as the District Court correctly recognized – the 2020 Litigation was the Nelums’ opportunity to assert claims against Deutsche Bank to avoid foreclosure. It was not successful, and the Nelums are now bound by that judgment. Likewise, the Nelums had the opportunity to appeal, and did appeal, the original foreclosure and eviction. That appeal was not successful, and the Nelums are now bound by that judgment. The Nelums may not now relitigate the validity of the foreclosure and eviction. These issues have been actually litigated on multiple occasions, directly determined the outcome of those prior litigations, and were necessary to support those judgments. As a result, the Nelums Pleading – which simply repeats those already-rejected claims or claims that could have been raised previously – should be dismissed based on well-settled principles of res judicata and collateral estoppel.

Any legal pleading in filed in South Carolina must contain “a short and plain statement of the facts showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Rule 8(a)(2), SCRC. The Nelums Pleading falls far short of that standard.

Rather, it may be aptly characterized as a “shotgun pleading”, defined as a pleading “that fails to articulate claims with sufficient clarity to allow the Plaintiff to frame a responsive pleading or one in which it is virtually impossible to know which allegations of fact are intended to support which claims for relief.” Alexander v. S.C. DOT, No. 3:20-4480-TLW-SVH, 2021 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 118907, at 3 (D. S.C. June 25, 2021) (quotations omitted).

The Nelums Pleading is a textbook example of a shotgun pleading. The entire pleading is filled with unsupported legal conclusions and irrelevant facts that have nothing to do with the Defendants or the subject matter of this lawsuit. The Plaintiffs refer to matters that not only do not relate to the instant case, but also to matters that lack sufficient clarity to allow Defendants to frame a responsive pleading. Although there are scarce and vague references to landlord/tenant matters, nowhere in the Complaint do the Plaintiffs mention a lease agreement or produce such an agreement. Plaintiffs omit any reference to the mortgage loan agreement and the foreclosure action, foreclosure sale, foreclosure deed, or the writ of eviction.

The Plaintiffs cannot avoid pleading supporting facts for their claims and defenses by relying on incomprehensible claims against the Defendants. All of the actions taken were made in accordance with orders of the Court. Further, the eviction action was undertaken pursuant to the Writ of Assistance by the Order of the Richland County Master in Equity. The Plaintiffs' Complaint fails to satisfy the requirements of Rule 8, SCRPC, so it should be dismissed.

With regards to the Plaintiff's complaint, it also fails to meet the requirements to a Rule 12(b)(6) motion. Plaintiffs' conflate federal law and South Carolina state law as though they are the same thing, a deficiency which, in itself, warrants dismissing the Plaintiffs' Complaint in its entirety. However, the Plaintiff's arguments are not viable regardless of how they are presented. Therefore, the complaint should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6), SCRPC.

The Plaintiffs have sought a cause of action for what appears to be fraud on the part of the Defendants. Fraud is an intentional perversion of truth for the purpose of inducing another in reliance upon it to part with some valuable thing belonging to her or to surrender a legal right. Black's Law Dictionary 660 (6th ed. 1990). To prevail on a cause of action for fraud, a Plaintiff must prove by clear, cogent and convincing evidence the following elements: (1) a representation; (2) its falsity; (3) its materiality; (4) either knowledge of its falsity or a reckless disregard of its truth or falsity; (5) intent that the representation be acted upon; (6) the hearer's ignorance of its falsity; (7) the hearer's reliance on its truth; (8) the hearer's right to rely thereon; and (9) the hearer's consequent and proximate injury. Moseley v. All Things Possible, Inc., 388 S.C. 31, 35-36, 694 S.E.2d 43, 45 (Ct. App. 2010). The right to rely must be determined in light of the plaintiff's duty to use reasonable prudence and diligence under the circumstances in identifying the truth with respect to the representations made to him. Florentine Corp., Inc. v. PEDA I, Inc., 287 S.C. 382, 386, 339 S.E.2d 112, 114 (S.C. 1985). Moreover, there is no right to rely, as required to establish fraud, where there is no confidential or fiduciary relationship and there is an arm's length transaction between mature, educated people. Id. This is especially true in circumstances where one should have utilized precaution and protection to safeguard his interests. Id.

Allegations of fraud must be stated with particularity. See Rule 9(b), SCRCP. Here, the Plaintiffs failed to establish fraud at all, let alone with the requisite degree of particularity, because the Plaintiffs fail to plead any plausible facts that could establish fraud against the Defendants. To support the fraud claim, the Plaintiffs state that the Defendants 'without a warrant of eviction illegal Evictions and Lockouts against the Nelums Family without probable cause to do so, that cause an unlawfully eviction at 315 Bentwood Lane Columbia, S.C.'" (Complaint Para. 8). Further, the Complaint alleges that "The Court take judicial notice that Plaintiffs John C. Nelums and Delmarshi Nelums Mortgage Satisfaction states that on 5-4-15, paid in full and the lien or the foregoing instrument has been released." (Complaint Para. 9 and Exhibit A to the Complaint). As shown in Exhibit C to the motion to dismiss, Deutsche Bank had the right to evict the Plaintiffs from the Property by virtue of the Writ of Assistance. Further, the Mortgage Satisfaction Plaintiff's cite in their complaint was for the satisfaction of a mortgage recorded in Book 1232 Page 756. The mortgage foreclosed by the Plaintiff in the 2021 foreclosure action was an entirely different mortgage recorded in Book 755 Page 615. The Plaintiffs allegations are an attempt to re-visit the completed foreclosure action. No plausible facts are pled that could establish that the Defendants engaged in any wrongdoing and the Plaintiffs have failed to establish a proximate injury resulting from the alleged falsity. Thus, the Plaintiffs' complaint claim should be dismissed.

B. Motion for sanctions

All of the Defendants in this case have also sought relief from this court in the way of sanctions against the Plaintiffs. The sanctions sought are the issuance of a “Gatekeeper Order” pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. §15-36-10, et seq., also known as the South Carolina Frivolous Proceedings Sanctions Act. This Act provides that a pro se litigant may be sanctioned for “filing a frivolous pleadings, motion, or document;” “making frivolous arguments a reasonable attorney would believe were not reasonably supported by the facts;” or “making frivolous arguments that a reasonable attorney would believe were not warranted under the existing law.” S.C. Code Ann. §15-36-10(A)(4). Further, sanctions the Court may enter include “a directive of a nonmonetary nature, including injunctive relief, designed to deter a frivolous action or an action in bad faith.” S.C. Code Ann. §15-36-10(G)(3).

These elements are readily met here, and it is appropriate for the Court to enter a “Gatekeeper Order” as outlined above to prevent these Plaintiffs from filing any future frivolous suits relating to this subject matter. The Plaintiffs have demonstrated that regardless of how many times their cases have been dismissed as being without merit, they will continue to file frivolous lawsuits which serve no purpose other than to waste time, resources, and harass parties to these lawsuits. The language below is narrowly tailored to address the Plaintiff’s frivolous filings regarding this subject matter while still allowing them to make necessary filings through counsel and preserving their pro se right to file other litigation not related to this subject matter. Such sanctions appear to be the only matter by which the Court can avoid having to address these lawsuits in the future. Therefore, I find that such an order would be proper and necessary to stop the Plaintiffs from wasting the Court’s time and that of the Defendants and their counsel.

It is therefore ORDERED, that the Plaintiffs are prohibited from filing any new pleadings in Richland County relating to these matters without (a) approval from the Court or (b) said pleadings having been reviewed and signed by a member of the South Carolina Bar in good standing. Also, the Clerk of Court for Richland County is directed to not accept any future pleadings from the Plaintiffs relating to these matters without (a) approval from the Court or (b) said pleadings having been reviewed and signed by a member of the South Carolina Bar in good standing. Lastly, the Plaintiffs are warned any violation of this Order would constitute contempt of court.

It is further Ordered, that the Plaintiffs' case is dismissed with prejudice.

Homeowners' Association, Inc., Defendants, of which John C. Nelums and Delmarshi Nelums are the Appellants.

Appellate Case No. 2025-000382

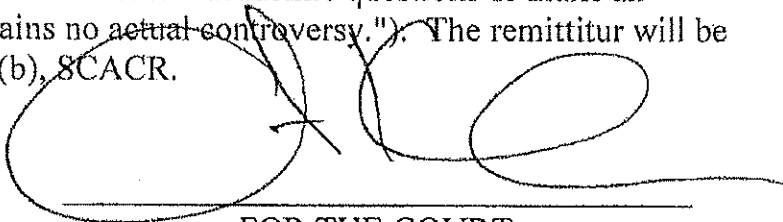

ORDER

This appeal arises out of the issuance of a writ of assistance following a judgment of foreclosure and sale of 315 Bentwood Lane, Columbia, South Carolina 29229. Appellants did not appeal from the foreclosure. Following the sale of the property on December 5, 2022, Appellants filed a motion to vacate the judgment in the circuit court, which was denied by the master-in-equity on February 24, 2023. Appellants initiated an appeal from that order, but the appeal was dismissed for failure to file the appellant's initial brief. That appeal, proceeding under appellate case number 2023-000491, was remitted on February 15, 2024.

As a result of Appellants' failure to perfect an appeal from the foreclosure and sale, any judgment by this Court in the current appeal would not offer Appellants practical relief, thus rendering this appeal moot. See Mathis v. S.C. State Highway Dep't, 260 S.C. 344, 346, 195 S.E.2d 713, 715 (1973) ("A case becomes moot when judgment, if rendered, will have no practical legal effect upon existing controversy. This is true when some event occurs making it impossible for [the] reviewing Court to grant effectual relief."); Bartles v. Livingston, 282 S.C. 448, 461-62, 319 S.E.2d 707, 715 (Ct. App. 1984) (noting once a foreclosure decree has been entered and no appeal is taken, the effect of the foreclosure is binding in all subsequent proceedings); Antrum v. Hartsville Prod. Credit Ass'n, 228 S.C. 201, 210, 89 S.E.2d 376, 380 (1955) ("The judgment of foreclosure and order directing the issuance of the writ of assistance constitute an insuperable bar to the present proceeding."). Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed. See Byrd v. Irmo High Sch., 321 S.C. 426, 430, 468 S.E.2d 861, 864 (1996) ("Before any action can be maintained, there must exist a justiciable controversy."); id. at 431, 468 S.E.2d at 864 ("This Court will not pass on moot and academic questions or make an adjudication where there remains no actual controversy."). The remittitur will be sent as provided by Rule 221(b), SCACR.
