PER CURIAM: Donivon Glassburn appeals the circuit court's order denying his motion to compel arbitration. Glassburn argues the circuit court erred in denying his motion because the arbitration clause (the Arbitration Clause) contained in the parties' subscription for membership agreements (the Subscription Agreements) for Capella Capital, LLC and Capella Carolinas, LLC broadly extended to disputes arising out of or significantly related to the Subscription Agreements. We reverse.

Initially, we find Glassburn's argument that the question of arbitrability was for an arbitrator to decide is not preserved for appellate review because Glassburn raised this argument for the first time in his motion to alter or amend. See Staubes v. City of Folly Beach, 339 S.C. 406, 412, 529 S.E.2d 543, 546 (2000) ("Error preservation requirements are intended 'to enable the lower court to rule properly after it has considered all relevant facts, law, and arguments.'" (quoting I'On v. Town of Mt. Pleasant, 338 S.C. 406, 422, 526 S.E.2d 716, 724 (2000))); Elam v. S.C. Dep't of Transp., 361 S.C. 9, 23, 602 S.E.2d 772, 779-80 (2004) ("Issues and arguments are preserved for appellate review only when they are raised to and ruled on by the lower court."); Johnson v. Sonoco Prods. Co., 381 S.C. 172, 177, 672 S.E.2d 567, 570 (2009) ("An issue may not be raised for the first time in a motion to reconsider.").

On the merits, we hold the circuit court erred in denying Glassburn's motion to compel arbitration. See Gissel v. Hart, 382 S.C. 235, 240, 676 S.E.2d 320, 323 (2009) ("The determination of whether a claim is subject to arbitration is subject to de novo review. Nevertheless, a circuit court's factual findings will not be reversed on appeal if any evidence reasonably supports the findings."). As a threshold matter, Glassburn contends the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA)¹ governs this dispute rather than the South Carolina Uniform Arbitration Act (SCUAA).² We note the circuit court did not expressly rule on this issue, and Respondents did not challenge Glassburn's contention at the motion hearing or on appeal. Nevertheless, we find the SCUAA governs because the Subscription Agreements only contained a generic choice of law provision and the record contains insufficient evidence to support a finding that they involved interstate commerce. See Hicks Unlimited, Inc. v. UniFirst Corp., 439 S.C. 623, 632, 889 S.E.2d 564, 568 (2023) ("[A] party seeking to compel arbitration under the FAA must demonstrate that the contract implicates interstate commerce."); id. ("[T]he party pushing arbitration must prove the contract involves 'commerce in fact.'" (quoting Allied-Bruce Terminix Cos., v. Dobson, 513 U.S. 265, 281 (1995))); United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598, 609 (2000) (providing the United States Congress' commerce authority includes the power to regulate "those activities that substantially affect interstate commerce"

(quoting United States v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549, 558-59 (1995)); Hicks Unlimited, Inc., 439 S.C. at 633, 889 S.E.2d at 569 ("To ascertain whether a contract involves interstate commerce, the court examines 'the agreement, the complaint, and the surrounding facts,' including any affidavits submitted." (quoting Dean v. Heritage Healthcare of Ridgeway, LLC, 408 S.C. 371, 380, 759 S.E.2d 727, 732 (2014))); id. ("The inquiry is fact dependent and focuses on what the specific contract terms require for performance."); id. at 623, 889 S.E.2d at 569 (finding interstate commerce was not implicated in a contract between a Massachusetts company and a South Carolina company when "[t]here [was] no other sign the contract [in dispute] was to be performed using instrumentalities or channels of interstate commerce, or that the [business] supply involved any thing or matter located beyond South Carolina's borders").

Applying the SCUAA, we hold the circuit court erred in determining Respondents' claims fell outside the scope of the Arbitration Clause. Under South Carolina law, the initial determination to be made is whether an arbitration agreement exists. See The Hous. Auth. of City of Columbia v. Cornerstone Hous., LLC, 356 S.C. 328, 334, 588 S.E.2d 617, 620 (Ct. App. 2003) ("The initial inquiry to be made by the trial court is whether an arbitration agreement exists between the parties."). "Courts 'should apply ordinary state-law principles that govern the formation of contracts' in determining whether an agreement to arbitrate exists." Id. at 335, 588 S.E.2d at 621 (quoting First Options of Chi., Inc. v. Kaplan, 514 U.S. 938, 944 (1995)). Here, the circuit court did not expressly make a finding as to whether a valid arbitration agreement existed between the parties. Nevertheless, we find a valid arbitration agreement existed. Under the SCUAA, "Notice that a contract is subject to arbitration pursuant to this chapter shall be typed in underlined capital letters . . . on the first page of the contract and unless such notice is displayed thereon the contract shall not be subject to arbitration." § 15-48-10(a). At the top of the first page of the Subscription Agreements, the following appeared in bold, underlined text: "THIS AGREEMENT IS SUBJECT TO MANDATORY ARBITRATION." See Zabinski v. Bright Acres Assocs., 346 S.C. 580, 589, 553 S.E.2d 110, 114 (2001) ("The notice provision must b[e] typed in underlined capital letters . . . on the first page of the contract. No other variation is acceptable."). Further, neither Michael Lindley nor Glassburn claimed their signatures on the Subscription Agreements were invalid or otherwise challenged the validity of the Arbitration Clause.³ See Jaffe v. Gibbons, 290 S.C. 468, 472, 351 S.E.2d 343, 345 (Ct. App. 1986) ("The general rule is that where both parties have signed a contract, the signing by the first party is in effect his proposal or offer, and the signing by the second party is his acceptance thereof; the writing then represents or evidences the bargain between them."). Accordingly, we find a valid arbitration agreement existed between the parties.

Although we question the validity of the operating agreement Respondents provided, we nevertheless find the Arbitration Clause encompassed the claims raised in Respondents' complaint because they concerned the fundamental issue of the rights and financial interests of the parties, which were governed by the Subscription Agreements in which the Arbitration Clause appeared and expressly applied. See Cornerstone Hous., LLC, 356 S.C. at 337, 588 S.E.2d at 621 ("To decide whether an arbitration agreement encompasses a dispute, a court must determine whether the factual allegations underlying the claim are within the scope of the broad arbitration clause." (quoting Zabinski, 346 S.C. at 597, 553 S.E.2d at 118); id. ("Even when the dispute does not arise under the governing contract, the dispute is subject to arbitration when the contract contains a broadly worded arbitration clause and 'a "significant relationship" exists between the asserted claims and the contract in which the arbitration clause is contained.'" (quoting Zabinski, 346 S.C. at 598, 553 S.E.2d at 119)); Zabinski, 346 S.C. at 597, 553 S.E.2d at 118 ("Any doubts concerning the scope of arbitrable issues should be resolved in favor of arbitration."); Bennett v. ACS Primary Care Physicians-Se. P.C., 444 S.C. 458, 480, 908 S.E.2d 110, 121 (Ct. App. 2024) ("A motion to compel arbitration made pursuant to an arbitration clause in a written contract should only be denied where the clause is not susceptible to any interpretation [that] would cover the asserted dispute." (alteration in original) (quoting Zabinski, 346 S.C. at 597, 553 S.E.2d at 118-19)). Based on the foregoing, we hold the circuit court erred in denying Glassburn's motion to compel arbitration.
