

officers must refrain from using general warrants because both the U.S. Constitution and constitutional principles applied in South Carolina prohibit warrants that lack specific descriptions.

Legal Standard for Warrants

- Particularity Requirement:
Warrants must specifically name or describe the person or place to be targeted. General warrants—which allow broad, indiscriminate searches