

RECEIVED

SEP 22 2014

S.C. Supreme Court

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
In the Supreme Court

APPEAL FROM ANDERSON COUNTY
Court of Common Pleas

Alexander S. Macaulay, Circuit Court Judge

Appellate Case No. 2013-000678
Lower Court Case No. 2009-CP-04-01693

Michael Cunningham, Respondent/Petitioner,

v.

Anderson County, Petitioner/Respondent.

MICHAEL CUNNINGHAM'S BRIEF OF PETITIONER

John S. Nichols
BLUESTEIN, NICHOLS, THOMPSON
& DELGADO
Post Office Box 7965
Columbia, SC 29202
(803) 779-7599

Brian P. Murphy
STEPHENSON & MURPHY
207 Whitsett Street
Greenville, SC 29601-3117
(864) 370-9400

Attorneys for Respondent/Petitioner

INDEX

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ii

INTRODUCTION 1

QUESTIONS PRESENTED 3

STATEMENT OF THE CASE 4

ARGUMENTS 10

I. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY AFFIRMED THE CIRCUIT COURT’S ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR THE COUNTY ON MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CLAIM FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT (COUNT I) ON THE GROUND THAT THE CONTRACT WAS INVALID AS A MATTER OF LAW 10

A. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY APPLIED COWART TO THIS CASE TO DECLARE MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CONTRACT VOID EVEN THOUGH COWART INVOLVED A SPECIAL PURPOSE DISTRICT AND WAS NOT SUBJECT TO THE HOME RULE ACT (“HRA”) 10

B. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY RELIED UPON CASES FROM OTHER JURISDICTIONS FOR ITS ANALYSIS BECAUSE THOSE CASES ARE DISTINGUISHABLE FROM THIS CASE IN A MEANINGFUL WAY 12

C. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY REJECTED MR. CUNNINGHAM’S ARGUMENT THAT EVEN IF THE HOLDING OF COWART APPLIED, THIS CASE WAS SUBJECT TO THE EXCEPTION SET FORTH IN NEWMAN THROUGH THE LANGUAGE OF SECTIONS 4-9-25 AND 4-9-620 OF THE SOUTH CAROLINA CODE 18

D. THE COURT OF APPEALS ALSO ERRONEOUSLY CONCLUDED THAT ANY DISCUSSION OF DILLON’S RULE AND THE HOME RULE ACT (HRA) WAS IRRELEVANT AS THIS CASE INVOLVES THE ACTIONS OF A COUNTY AND IS CONTROLLED BY THE HRA AND NOT COWART 18

E. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY REJECTED MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CONTENTION THAT THE CIRCUIT COURT’S CONSTRUCTION OF THE HOME RULE ACT RENDERED PROVISIONS OF THE ACT SUPERFLUOUS 23

F. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY FAILED TO ADDRESS MR. CUNNINGHAM’S ARGUMENT THAT THE PAYMENT OF SEVERANCE IS A PROPRIETARY FUNCTION RATHER THAN A GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTION 24

II. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY AFFIRMED THE CIRCUIT COURT’S ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR THE COUNTY ON MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CLAIM FOR PAYMENT FOR ACCRUED SICK LEAVE UNDER THE PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT (COUNT II) BASED ON THE COURT’S FINDING THAT THE ACCRUED VACATION AND SICK LEAVE WERE NOT “WAGES” UNDER THE SOUTH CAROLINA PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT 26

III. IN REVERSING THE CIRCUIT COURT’S RULING ON MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CLAIM FOR WRONGFUL DISCHARGE UNDER THE PUBLIC POLICY EXCEPTION TO EMPLOYMENT AT WILL (COUNT III), THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY CONCLUDED THAT MR. CUNNINGHAM’S EMPLOYMENT WAS NOT “AT WILL” DESPITE THE EXPRESS TERMS OF THE CONTRACT TO THE CONTRARY 29

CONCLUSION 38

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES
CASES

SOUTH CAROLINA

Angus v. Burroughs & Chapin Co. , 358 S.C. 498, 596 S.E.2d 67 (Ct. App. 2004)	34, 35
Blake v. Walker , 23 S.C. Reports 517 (1885)	2
Bryant v. City of Charleston , 295 S.C. 408, 368 S.E.2d 899 (1988)	21
Cain v. Nationwide Prop. and Cas. Ins. Co. , 378 S.C. 25, 661 S.E.2d 349 (2008)	19, 23
Cape v. Greenville County School Dist. , 365 S.C. 316, 618 S.E.2d 881 (2005)	27, 35
CFRE, LLC v. Greenville Cnty. Assessor , 395 S.C. 67, 716 S.E.2d 877 (2011)	24
City of Beaufort v. Beaufort-Jasper County Water and Sewer Authority , 325 S.C. 174, 480 S.E.2d 728 (1997)	25
Creech v. South Carolina Pub. Ser. Authority , 200 S.C. 127, 20 S.E.2d 645 (1942)	2
Culler v. Blue Ridge Elec. Co-op., Inc. , 309 S.C. 243, 422 S.E.2d 91 (1992)	2, 30, 31
Cunningham v. Anderson County , Op. No. 5072 (S.C. Ct. App. filed 1/16/13)(Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 3 at 37) ...	4
Cunningham v. Anderson County , 402 S.C. 434, 741 S.E.2d 545 (Ct. App. 2013)	1, 5
D.W. Flowe & Sons v. Christopher Constr. Co. , 326 S.C. 17, 482 S.E.2d 558 (1997)	10
Evins v. Richland County Historic Preservation Comm'n , 341 S.C. 15, 532 S.E.2d 876 (2000)	10, 18

Giannini v. South Carolina Department of Transportation, 378 S.C. 573, 664 S.E.2d 450 (2008)	21
Joytime Distributors and Amusement Co., Inc. v. State, 338 S.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 647 (1999)	15, 21
Lee v. Thermal Engineering Corp., 352 S.C. 81, 572 S.E.2d 298 (Ct. App. 2002)	19, 23
Ludwick v. This Minute of Carolina, 287 S.C. 219, 337 S.E.2d 213 (1985)	30, 31, 32
Newman v. McCullough, 212 S.C. 17, 46 S.E.2d 252 (1948)	passim
Piedmont Public Service Dist. v. Cowart, 319 S.C. 124, 459 S.E.2d 876 (Ct. App. 1995)	passim
Piedmont Public Service Dist. v. Cowart, 324 S.C. 239, 478 S.E.2d 836 (1996)	passim
Prescott v. Farmers Telephone Co-op., 335 S.C. 330, 516 S.E.2d 923 (1999)	35
Shealy v. Fowler, 182 S.C. 81, 188 S.E. 499 (1936)	35
Shivers v. John H. Harland Co., 310 S.C. 217, 423 S.E.2d 105 (1992)	2, 32, 33
State v. Curtis, 356 S.C. 622, 591 S.E.2d 600 (2004)	21
Stiles v. Am. Gen. Life Ins. Co., 335 S.C. 222, 516 S.E.2d 449 (1999)	2, 27, 29, 31, 32, 37
Taylor v. South Carolina Dept. of Motor Vehicles, 382 S.C. 567, 677 S.E.2d 588 (2009)	20
Threlkeld v. Christoph, 280 S.C. 225, 312 S.E.2d 14 (Ct. App. 1984)	37

Todd v. S.C. Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co. , 283 S.C. 155, 321 S.E.2d 602 (Ct. App. 1984)	36
Todd v. S.C. Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co. , 287 S.C. 190, 336 S.E.2d 472 (1985)	37
Williams v. Town of Hilton Head Island, S.C. , 311 S.C. 417, 429 S.E.2d 802 (1993)	1, 2
Williams v. Riedman , 339 S.C. 251, 529 S.E.2d 28 (Ct. App. 2000)	35

OTHER JURISDICTIONS

City of Hazel Park v. Potter , 426 N.W.2d 789 (Mich. Ct. App.1988)	16
Elmore v. Cleary , 399 F.3d 279 (3rd Cir. 2005)	33
Falls Twp. v. McManamon , 537 A.2d 946 (Pa. Cmmw. Ct. 1988)	17
Grassini v. DuPage Twp. , 665 N.E.2d 860 (Ill. Ct. App.1996)	16
Harris v. Eckersall , 771 N.E.2d 1072 (Ill Ct. App. 2002)	34
Heinzman v. Hall County , 328 N.W.2d 764 (Neb. 1983)	34
Jacobberger v. School Dist. No. 1 , 256 P. 652 (Or. 1927)	13, 14
Johnson v. Jefferson Cnty. Bd. of Health , 662 P.2d 463 (Colo.1983)	33
Lawson v. Umatilla County , 139 F.3d 690 (9th Cir.1998)	34
Lobolito, Inc. v. N. Pocono Sch. Dist. , 755 A.2d 1287 (Pa. 2000)	17

Morin v. Foster , 380 N.E.2d 217 (N.Y. 1978)	15, 16, 17
Paice v. Maryland Racing Com'n , 539 F.Supp. 458 (D.C. Md. 1982)	34
Ramsey v. City of Sand Point , 936 P.2d 126 (Alaska 1997)	34
Saucedo-Falls v. Kunkle , 299 Fed. Appx. 315 (5th Cir. 2008)	33
Skaggs v. City of Kansas City , 264 S.W.3d 694 (Mo. Ct. App. 2008)	34
Spriggs v. Diamond Auto Glass , 165 F.3d 1015 (4th Cir. 1999)	36
Telford v. Clackamas Cnty. Hous. Auth. , 710 F.2d 567 (9th Cir.1983)	12, 13, 14
Uintah Basin Med. Ctr. v. Hardy , 54 P.3d 1165 (Utah 2002)	15
Valvano v. Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County , 183 A.2d 450 (N.J. Super. App. Div. 1962)	14
Youngblood v. City of Galveston, Tex. , 920 F.Supp. 103 (S.D. Tex. 1996)	34

STATUTES

S.C. Code Ann. § 4-9-25 (1986)	18, 20, 22
S.C. Code Ann. § 4-9-620 (1986)	7, 14, 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 23
S.C. Code Ann. § 5-13-70 (2004)	11
S.C. Const. art. III, § 1	21

RULES

Rule 220, SCACR 26

MISCELLANEOUS

David J. Barron, Reclaiming Home Rule, 116 Harv. L.Rev. 2255 (2003) 15

H.G. Wood, Master and Servant (1877) 30

John F. Dillon, Commentaries on the Law of Municipal Corporations (5th ed.), § 237, p. 448 (1911) 1

INTRODUCTION

This case concerns Anderson County's employment agreement with its county administrator, Michael Cunningham. On August 22, 2014, this Court granted the cross-petitions for writ of certiorari and agreed to review the Court of Appeals' decision in Cunningham v. Anderson County, 402 S.C. 434, 741 S.E.2d 545 (Ct. App. 2013). Specifically, Mr. Cunningham requests that the Court reverse the Court of Appeals' decision as to Issue I (Breach of Contract claim) and Issue II (Payment of Wages Act claim), and modify the opinion as to Issue III (Wrongful Discharge claim).

The Court of Appeals affirmed the circuit court's grant of summary judgment for Anderson County as to Issues I and II. In doing so, the Court of Appeals relied upon Piedmont Public Service Dist. v. Cowart. See 319 S.C. 124, 459 S.E.2d 876 (Ct. App. 1995) ("Cowart I"); and 324 S.C. 239, 478 S.E.2d 836 (1996) ("Cowart II"). The Court of Appeals also held that the Home Rule Amendments to the State Constitution and the Home Rule Act ("HRA") did not apply to this case. The court rejected Mr. Cunningham's argument that even if Cowart applied, his contract was enforceable under the exception to "Dillon's Rule" set forth in Newman v. McCullough, 212 S.C. 17, 46 S.E.2d 252 (1948).

"Dillon's Rule" originated with John F. Dillon, former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Iowa and former circuit judge for The United States Eighth Judicial Circuit. See John F. Dillon, Commentaries on the Law of Municipal Corporations (5th ed.), § 237, p. 448 (1911). Williams v. Town of Hilton Head Island, S.C., 311 S.C. 417, 421 n. 1, 429 S.E.2d 802, 804 n. 1 (1993). Before the amendment to the State Constitution, Dillon's Rule "provided the controlling standard of judicial construction with regard to powers vested in municipal corporations.” Williams v. Town of Hilton Head Island, S.C., 311 S.C. 417, 421, 429 S.E.2d 802, 804 (1993). Dillon’s Rule stated:

A municipal corporation possesses and can exercise the following powers, and no others: First, those granted in express words; Second, those necessarily or fairly implied in or incident to the powers expressly granted; third, those essential to the accomplishment of the declared objects and purposes of the corporation, not simply convenient, but indispensable.

Id., citing Blake v. Walker, 23 S.C. Reports 517 (1885) and Creech v. South Carolina

Pub. Ser. Authority, 200 S.C. 127, 20 S.E.2d 645 (1942). By enacting the HRA, the legislature intended to abolish Dillon’s Rule and restore autonomy to local government.

Williams v. Town of Hilton Head Island.

The Court of Appeals further rejected Mr. Cunningham’s arguments that his claim for severance was enforceable as a “proprietary function” rather than a “governmental function.” The Court of Appeals also held Mr. Cunningham’s claim for sick leave failed because the Court found the contract to be void ab initio. In the court’s view, the severability clause in the agreement did not save this claim and sick leave was not included within the statutory definition of “wages.”

In reversing the circuit court on Issue III and ruling in Mr. Cunningham’s favor, the Court rejected Mr. Cunningham’s contention that he was “at will” even though he had a written employment contract, and the court misapplied the holdings of Stiles v. Am. Gen. Life Ins. Co., 335 S.C. 222, 516 S.E.2d 449 (1999), Culler v. Blue Ridge Elec. Co-op., Inc., 309 S.C. 243, 422 S.E.2d 91 (1992) and Shivers v. John H. Harland Co., Inc., 310 S.C. 217, 423 S.E.2d 105 (1992).

The Court of Appeals' rulings as to Issues I and II are erroneous under settled law of this Court and the statutory law of this State. Although the Court of Appeals correctly reversed Issue III, its analysis is flawed under this Court's precedents. Furthermore, the Court of Appeals erroneously relied upon cases from other jurisdictions in ruling on all of the issues. These foreign decisions are meaningfully distinct from this case or are inapplicable to this case.

Mr. Cunningham requests that this Court reverse the Court of Appeals' decision as to Issues I and II. Mr. Cunningham also requests that the Court modify the Court of Appeals' analysis as to Issue III (Wrongful Discharge claims) and affirm as modified. Finally, Mr. Cunningham requests that the Court remand this matter to the circuit court with instructions to proceed according to this Court's mandate.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

- I. Did the Court of Appeals erroneously affirm the circuit court's order granting summary judgment for the County on Mr. Cunningham's claim for breach of contract (Count I) on the ground that the contract was invalid as a matter of law?
- II. Did the Court of Appeals erroneously affirm the circuit court's order granting summary judgment for the County on Mr. Cunningham's claim for payment for accrued sick leave under the Payment of Wages Act (Count II) based on the court's finding that the accrued vacation and sick leave were not "wages" under the South Carolina Payment of Wages Act?
- III. In reversing the circuit court's ruling on Mr. Cunningham's claim for wrongful discharge under the public policy exception to employment at will (Count III), did the Court of Appeals erroneously conclude that Mr. Cunningham's employment was not "at will" despite the express terms of the contract to the contrary?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On April 22, 2009, Michael Cunningham brought an action against Anderson County for breach of contract (Count I), wrongful discharge in violation of public policy (Count II), and failure to pay wages due arising out of the County's termination of Mr. Cunningham from his position as Anderson County Administrator (Count III). (Appx. p. 200). Mr. Cunningham's claims arose out of the County's failure to abide by its employment agreement, including its failure to pay an agreed-upon severance package. Mr. Cunningham also alleged the County terminated him in violation of public policy.

The County filed an answer on May 27, 2009. (Appx. p. 209). The County denied liability, pled several affirmative defenses, and pled a counterclaim based upon civil conspiracy. On June 10, 2009, Mr. Cunningham filed an amended reply to the counterclaim. (Appx. p. 220). On June 25, 2009, the County filed a stipulation dismissing of the counterclaim with prejudice. (Appx. p.224).

The parties engaged in limited discovery and in February and March 2010 the parties filed cross-motions for summary judgment. (Appx. pp. 226, 258). Following briefing of the issues and a hearing, the circuit court entered an order on May 13, 2011, denying Mr. Cunningham's motion and granting the County's motion for summary judgment. (Appx. p. 187).

Mr. Cunningham filed and served his notice of appeal on June 10, 2011. (Appx. p. 294). Following briefing and oral argument the Court of Appeals issued its opinion affirming in part (as to Counts I (breach of contract) and III (statutory wage claim)), reversing in part (as to Count II, Wrongful Discharge) and remanding. Cunningham v.

Anderson County, Op. No. 5072 (S.C. Ct. App. filed Jan. 16, 2013) (Shearouse Adv. Sh. No. 3 at 37). Both parties petitioned the Court for rehearing: The County sought rehearing as to Count II (wrongful discharge in violation of public policy) and Mr. Cunningham sought rehearing as to Counts I and III. Mr. Cunningham also sought clarification of the Court's ruling as to Count II.

On February 27, 2013, the Court of Appeals issued an order denying rehearing. (Appx. p. 1). However, the Court withdrew its prior opinion and filed a new opinion in this matter. Cunningham v. Anderson County, 402 S.C. 434, 741 S.E.2d 545 (Ct. App. 2013) (Appx. p. 2). The new opinion corrected factual errors, included additional discussion on the resolution of Count I (Breach of Contract), made no changes to the discussion of Count III (Payment of Wages), and added significant discussion to the disposition of Count II (Wrongful Discharge). (Appx. pp. 17-20).

On March 28, 2013, Mr. Cunningham filed and served a Petition for Rehearing from the substituted opinion.¹ (Supp. Appx. pp. 1-28). On March 29, 2013, the County filed its Petition for Writ of Certiorari, seeking review of the Court's disposition of Count II (Wrongful Discharge).²

The Court of Appeals denied Mr. Cunningham's Petition for Rehearing directed at the substituted opinion on April 18, 2013. (Supp. Appx. p. 29). Mr. Cunningham thereafter filed his Cross-Petition for a Writ of Certiorari.

This Court granted both petitions on August 22, 2014.

¹ This Petition was timely as the Court had extended the deadline to March 29, 2013.

² The County did not seek rehearing from the substitute opinion.

STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

On November 18, 2008, Anderson County Council voted 5-2 to enter into a Master Employment Agreement (“Contract”) with Mr. Cunningham to serve as the County’s Administrator. (Appx. p. 386, 390). Mr. Cunningham signed the Contract on November 19, 2008. (Appx. pp. 420, 428). Mr. Cunningham began serving as Administrator on December 1, 2008. (Appx. p. 421).

The Contract provides in part:

The Administrator serves at the pleasure of Council, and nothing in this Agreement shall prevent, limit, or otherwise interfere with the right of Anderson County Council to terminate the services of the Administrator at any time, subject only to the provisions set forth in Section 3, Paragraphs A, B, and C of this Agreement [i.e., the severance provisions].

(Appx. p. 421, Section 2(A)) (emphasis added). The Contract term was for a period of three (3) years until November 30, 2011. (Appx. p. 421, Section 2(C)). The Contract also provided:

In the event written notice of intent to not renew this Agreement is not given by either party to this Agreement to the other at least ninety (90) days prior to any annual anniversary of the date first above written, this agreement shall be extended on the same terms and conditions as herein provided, all for a new term consisting of the term then remaining at such annual anniversary date plus an additional period of one (1) year; such that the maximum effective term of this Agreement shall never exceed three (3) years and not be less than the respective term remaining when any notice of intent to not renew is given. Said agreement shall continue thereafter for a continuing, annually renewable term consisting of the respective term then remaining at such annual anniversary date unless written notice of intent to not renew is given by either party to this Agreement to the other at least ninety (90) days prior to any subsequent annual anniversary of the date first above written.

(Appx. pp. 421-422, Section 2(D)). The Contract provided for severance if Mr.

Cunningham was terminated for reasons that do not constitute "cause," which the Contract limits to serious matters such as criminal convictions and refusal to perform the duties of Administrator. (Appx. pp. 422-423, Sections 3(A) and 3(B)).

After a new term of Council commenced in January 2009, the Council continued to recognize and deal with Mr. Cunningham as its Administrator. At the first meeting of the new term, the Council passed a "Resolution" criticizing the manner in which it had hired Mr. Cunningham, but the Council did not attempt to declare the Contract invalid. (Appx. p. 435 (meeting transcript p. 6)). At a meeting on January 16, 2009, then Chair Eddie Moore stated publicly that there was no desire to terminate Mr. Cunningham's employment. (Appx. pp.439-440).

At the February 3, 2009 Council meeting, the personnel committee noted that Mr. Cunningham had rejected an "at will" agreement to replace the Contract. (Appx. p. 444, ll. 20-21). The committee claimed that the "old contract ... is null and void, unenforceable, and therefore he is presently an at-will employee." The committee chair, Bob Waldrep, then made a motion to approve a recommendation which was clarified as stating that "Mr. Cunningham would no longer be an employee of Anderson County," that "that would mean a termination," and "he's been terminated." (Appx. p. 259, ll. 6-7, 12, 16).

Mr. Waldrep confirmed that the reason for the termination was Mr. Cunningham's unwillingness to sign a new "at will" contract. (Appx. p. 498). County Council then voted 5-2 to terminate Mr. Cunningham. (Appx. p. 449). Mr. Cunningham gave notice that he would be requesting a public hearing pursuant to Section 4-9-620 of the South Carolina

Code. This statute is part of the Home Rule Act (the "HRA").

On February 4, 2009, Chairman Moore provided Mr. Cunningham with written reasons for termination as required by the HRA. (Appx. pp. 451-452). Mr. Moore did not contend that Mr. Cunningham engaged in any misconduct or that "cause" existed for termination under Section 3(A) of the Contract. (Id.).

On March 2, 2009, the Council convened a meeting and voted on a resolution. The text of the resolution is unclear because of an audiotape change. (Appx. pp.457-458). The Council then voted 5-2 to terminate Mr. Cunningham. (Appx. p. 461). The County thereafter refused to pay the compensation provided by Section 3(B) of the Contract. (Appx. p.212, ¶¶ 17, 20, 22). Mr. Cunningham then filed suit.

Following discovery, the parties made cross-motions for summary judgment as to each cause of action. Mr. Cunningham contended there was no genuine issue of material fact that the County Council had terminated him without cause as defined by the Contract and had refused to pay compensation due under Section 3(B). (Appx. pp. 226-245). Mr. Cunningham also moved for summary judgment as to his cause of action under the South Carolina Payment of Wages Act, asserting the Contract called for payment for accrued sick leave which the County failed to do. (Appx. pp. 275-276). The County defended on the ground that the three-year contract was void and unenforceable in violation of the "Term Limits Rule" as set forth in Cowart I and Cowart II. (Appx. pp. 277-283).

The County based its motion for summary judgment on the following grounds: (1) Mr. Cunningham's breach of contract claim fails because the contract was void under the "Term Limits Rule"; (2) Mr. Cunningham's wrongful discharge claim fails under the South Carolina Tort Claims Act as well as the lack of any clear, unambiguous mandate to violate the law; and (3) Mr. Cunningham's claim for violation of the South Carolina Payment of Wages Act fails because the County paid him all he was due, and the amounts claimed under the severance package are not recoverable under the Act. (Appx. pp. 258-260). The County also argued that the tort of wrongful discharge only applies to "at-will employees," and because Mr. Cunningham alleged the existence of a valid contract with the County, he was not "at-will."

On March 10, 2011, the circuit court held a hearing on the cross-motions for summary judgment. On May 13, 2011, the circuit court entered an order finding:

- (A) Mr. Cunningham's claim based upon breach of contract must fail because the Contract was an attempt by a "lame duck" council to bind a successor council under the "term limit rules" set forth in Cowart and Newman v. McCullough, 212 S.C. 17, 46 S.E.2d 252 (1948). The Court rejected Mr. Cunningham's argument that the Contract was permissible under the HRA. The court concluded the Contract was invalid as a matter of law and Mr. Cunningham had no right of action to enforce it or to seek damages for its breach beyond the term of the old council.
- (B) The County was entitled to summary judgment on Mr. Cunningham's claim for wrongful discharge because the public policy exception to termination of employment only applies to at-will employees, and Mr. Cunningham was never an at-will employee. Instead, he was employed under the Contract.
- (C) Mr. Cunningham's claim under the South Carolina Payment of Wages Act also fails because Mr. Cunningham was not entitled to the severance under the void contract. Further, because the payment of accrued sick leave was a portion of severance, and because severance is not "wages" under the Act, there was no violation of the Act when the County refused to pay for accrued sick leave.

(Appx. pp. 187-199). The circuit court denied Mr. Cunningham's motion for summary judgment and granted summary judgment for the County as to all causes of action.

ARGUMENTS

- I. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY AFFIRMED THE CIRCUIT COURT'S ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR THE COUNTY ON MR. CUNNINGHAM'S CLAIM FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT (COUNT I) ON THE GROUND THAT THE CONTRACT WAS INVALID AS A MATTER OF LAW
- A. THE COURT ERRONEOUSLY APPLIED COWART TO THIS CASE TO DECLARE MR. CUNNINGHAM'S CONTRACT VOID EVEN THOUGH COWART INVOLVED A SPECIAL PURPOSE DISTRICT AND WAS NOT SUBJECT TO THE HOME RULE ACT ("HRA")

In affirming the circuit court's decision to hold the employment contract was void, the Court of Appeals relied upon Cowart I and Cowart II which involved a special purpose district. (Slip op. at 5-11; Appx. pp. 6-12). In doing so, the Court of Appeals rejected Mr. Cunningham's argument that the present case involves the actions of a county government, not a special purpose district, so that Cowart does not control.

This Court has previously held that the Home Rule Act did not affect special purpose districts like the one at issue in Cowart. See Evins v. Richland County Historic Preservation Comm'n, 341 S.C. 15, 19, 532 S.E.2d 876, 878 (2000) ("Home Rule applies only to counties and municipalities, not special purpose districts."). In fact, the Evins court noted dicta in D.W. Flowe & Sons v. Christopher Constr. Co., 326 S.C. 17, 482 S.E.2d 558 (1997), which applied Home Rule to special purpose districts, and held "[t]o the extent that D.W. Flowe can be read to apply Home Rule to special purpose districts, it is overruled." Id., at n. 7. The holding in Cowart is thus irrelevant to the entity and issues involved in this case. Mr. Cunningham pointed this out to the circuit court and the Court of Appeals, but neither of those courts agreed with Mr. Cunningham's arguments.

In affirming the circuit court's decision to hold the employment contract was void, the Court of Appeals stated “[b]y logical extension, the fundamental principle applied in Cowart I and Cowart II also applies to Anderson County’s actions in the present case.” (Slip op. at 6; Appx p. 7). In so holding, the Court disregarded the fact that the principles applied in Cowart I and Cowart II apply to special purpose districts and not to counties.

The Court of Appeals further disregarded the fact that both counties and municipalities are different from special purpose districts (the entity at issue in Cowart). That is, the holding in Cowart, which applied common law rules under “Dillon’s Rule” as described in Newman v. McCullough, 212 S.C. 17, 46 S.E.2d 252 (1948), involved a third entity, a special purpose district, which is not subject to the Home Rule Act.

In responding to Mr. Cunningham’s argument in the original petition for rehearing, the Court of Appeals stated:

Despite Cunningham’s argument to the contrary, the provisions of the Home Rule Act governing municipal corporations operating under the Council-Manager form of government contain identical language as to municipal managers. See S.C. Code Ann. § 5-13-70 (2004) (“The term of employment of the manager shall be at the pleasure of the council and he shall be entitled to such compensation for his services as the council may determine. The council may, in its discretion, employ the manager for a definite term.”). Notwithstanding the existence of section 5-13-70, the courts in Cowart I and Cowart II continued to endorse the principle that a local governing body cannot bind its successor with regard to the appointment or removal of a public officer.

(Slip op. at 11; Appx p. 12). While it is true that Section 5-13-70 permits a municipality to employ a manager “for a definite term,” the Court of Appeals over-read the holdings of Cowart I and Cowart II, as neither of them addressed Section 5-13-70 nor do they discuss the Home Rule Amendments. Neither opinion would have discussed Home Rule, because as this Court has made clear, Home Rule does not apply to special purpose districts, the entity involved in Cowart.

Accordingly, the Court should reverse the Court of Appeals and hold that Cowart does not apply to this case. The Court should then find that Mr. Cunningham's contract with Anderson County was not void under the HRA, and Mr. Cunningham may proceed on his claims arising from the County's breach of that agreement.

B. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY RELIED UPON CASES FROM OTHER JURISDICTIONS FOR ITS ANALYSIS BECAUSE THOSE CASES ARE DISTINGUISHABLE IN A MEANINGFUL WAY FROM THIS CASE

The Court of Appeals relied upon cases from other jurisdictions in affirming the circuit court's ruling. (Slip op. at 6-9 and note 11; Appx pp. 7-10). In doing so, the Court misapprehended the holdings of these cases and overlooked that each of these jurisdictions either do not have Home Rule or involved entities that were not subject to Home Rule.

For example, the Court of Appeals cited to Telford v. Clackamas Cnty. Hous. Auth., 710 F.2d 567 (9th Cir.1983) for the rule that "[a]n Oregon public body may not enter a contract for governmental functions extending beyond its own term of office." (Slip op. at 6, n. 11; Appx p. 7). The facts of Telford, however, distinguish it from this case in a meaningful way.

Mr. Telford was the Executive Director and Secretary-Treasurer of the County Housing Authority from July 1953 through July 1977. In December 1976, the Authority contracted to employ Mr. Telford in the same capacity until the last working day of February 1982 (5 years and 2 months). The date coincided with Mr. Telford's intended retirement, and this was the first written contract the parties had entered. The Authority's governing body was a 5-member housing board whose members sat for 5-year terms on a staggered basis (one new member each year). In July 1977, the County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution withdrawing all authority from the housing board and transferring the board's functions and powers to themselves. The new board then demoted Mr. Telford and lowered his salary. In December 1978, the new executive director of the Housing Authority fired Mr. Telford from his job. Mr. Telford then sued in federal court.

The Magistrate Judge granted the Authority's motion for summary judgment, concluding Mr. Telford had no property right under Oregon law because "under Oregon law a public body may not contract with a party to provide governmental functions for a term longer than the public body's term of office." Telford, 710 F.2d at 569. The Magistrate Judge found Mr. Telford performed governmental functions and that the contract exceeded the previous Board's authority to contract by two months, rendering the contract void ab initio. The Ninth Circuit reversed, however, finding Mr. Telford's contract was not for governmental functions in any substantial part and was, therefore, not void. Thus, the narrow holding of Telford does not control this case.

Furthermore, there is nothing in Telford to indicate the federal court analyzed the contract under Oregon's version of the Home Rule Amendments to its Constitution. Instead, the Court relied upon Jacobberger v. School Dist. No. 1, 256 P. 652 (Or. 1927), which involved an architect who sued a school district for breach of contract entered under a resolution of its board of directors. The trial court in Jacobberger dismissed the matter but the Supreme Court of Oregon reversed. The Court stated:

Municipal corporations have two classes of powers, the one governmental, in the exercise of which their officers may not bind the municipalities beyond the terms of their office, and the other business or proprietary, in the exercise of which they are governed by the same rules as individuals or private corporations.

Jacobberger, 256 P. at 655. The Court proceeded to analyze the matter through the “governmental” versus “proprietary” lens and found the contract was valid when entered under a statute that permitted the district to contract up to certain indebtedness. The Court reversed and remanded the matter to the trial court. Importantly, the Supreme Court of Oregon did not discuss Home Rule or analyze the decision under Oregon’s Home Rule Amendments to its constitution. Thus, neither Telford nor the case upon which it relies, Jacobberger, are relevant to the issues in this case.³

The Court of Appeals cited Valvano v. Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, 183 A.2d 450, 453 (N.J. Super. Ct. App. Div. 1962) in support of the assertion that other jurisdictions have recognized the applicability of the prohibition against binding successor governing bodies to counties and county agencies. (Slip op. at 6, n. 11; Appx. p. 7). Valvano, however, involved a county board’s written annual agreement with an insurance advisor and consultant. The actions in that case (increasing the contract from one to three years) were not authorized by a statute such as Section 4-9-620 of the South Carolina Code. Furthermore, the individual was not the administrator, but someone who looked after the county’s insurance needs. There is nothing about Valvano that is relevant to this case except for a general discussion of the effects of checks on local government power (i.e., Dillon's Rule). See David J. Barron, Reclaiming Home Rule, 116 Harv. L.Rev.. 2255 (2003) (describing the origin of Dillon's Rule).

³ The Court of Appeals noted the contract in Telford involved a county housing authority, not a county administrator hired pursuant to a statute, yet the Court cited to the case anyway.

The Court of Appeals also cited to Uintah Basin Med. Ctr. v. Hardy, 54 P.3d 1165 (Utah 2002), (Slip op. at 6, n. 11; Appx p. 7), but Hardy is also not on point. The case involved a contract entered by a doctor with the board of a county-owned hospital and then terminated by a successor board. The Supreme Court of Utah analyzed the case under common law rules and applied the "governmental/proprietary" test. The narrow holding was that the doctor's contract was "a proprietary contract" and was thus enforceable against successor boards of trustees if it was of a reasonable duration. Importantly, the Utah Court did not analyze the case under "Home Rule," nor were the actions authorized by a statute similar to Section 4-9-620.

The Court of Appeals next cited to Morin v. Foster, 380 N.E.2d 217 (N.Y. 1978) for the rule that "but for a provision in a county's charter allowing for appointment of the county manager for a four-year term, the county's legislators would be unable to appoint the county manager for a term extending into the term of the legislator's successors." (Slip op. at 6, n. 11; Appx. p. 7). What actually happened in Morin, however, distinguishes it from this case in a meaningful way.

New York has "Municipal Home Rule," and requires an amendment of the county charter that abolishes or curtails "any power of an elective county officer" to provide for a permissive referendum. South Carolina does not use referenda to enact legislation.

Joytime Distributors and Amusement Co., Inc. v. State, 338 S.C. 634, 643, 528 S.E.2d 647, 652 (1999) ("our constitution does not give the people the right of direct legislation by referendum”). Furthermore, the county charter in Morin permitted the employment of a manager for a four-year term, but the county legislature passed a local law that amended the charter by striking the provision for a four-year term and established, instead, that the manager would “serve at the pleasure of the county legislature.” The Morin court noted that where the charter specifically grants the authority, one legislature may be empowered to bind its successors.

In relying upon Morin, the Court of Appeals ignored that South Carolina’s Home Rule Act specifically authorizes a county council to enter into a contract with its administrator “for a definite term,” which is precisely what the council did in this case. Like the charter in Morin under New York’s version of Home Rule (which is different from South Carolina’s version of Home Rule), Section 4-9-620 gives unique authority for a county council to enter into an agreement with its administrator beyond the terms of the council’s members. This statute should have controlled. The Court of Appeals should not have looked elsewhere.

Likewise, each of the cases from other jurisdictions that the Court of Appeals cited in footnote 14 of its opinion are meaningfully distinct from this case. (Appx. p. 10). See Grassini v. DuPage Twp., 665 N.E.2d 860, 864 (Ill. Ct. App.1996) (case involved classic application of Dillon’s Rule without discussion of Home Rule, and Illinois Court noted there was no statutory authority for the Township to enter into a contract for a specified term); City of Hazel Park v. Potter, 426 N.W.2d 789, 793 (Mich. App.1988) (Michigan Court discussed Newman v. McCullough, 212 S.C. 17, 46 S.E.2d 252 (1948) and distinguished a Florida case which was decided under Florida’s version of Home Rule; Michigan Court did not find statutory authority that allowed the local government to enter into contract apart from limitation on local government (which amounts to Dillon's Rule)); Lobolito, Inc. v. N. Pocono Sch. Dist., 755 A.2d 1287, 1289 (Pa.2000) (case involved whether a construction contract one school board entered at the expiration of the board's term was binding on a successor board; case involved school board, not county government, and Pennsylvania court discussed authority under rules that amount to Dillon's Rule without discussion of Home Rule or any statutory authority to enter into contracts); Falls Twp. v. McManamon, 537 A.2d 946, 948 (Pa. Cmmw. Ct.1988) (case involved a municipality's employment of a police chief beyond the terms of the "lame duck" council; court held these actions violated the principle that "a municipality has only those powers specifically granted and inherent powers needed to implement these powers," otherwise known as Dillon's Rule; there was no discussion of Home Rule or any statutory authority to enter into a contract for "a definite term"); Morin (discussed above). An examination of each of these cases demonstrates how none of them control, or even inform, the result the Court of Appeals reached in this case. Yet the Court relied upon these cases to hold that Cowart and not the HRA controls.

This Court should reverse the Court of Appeals' affirmance of the circuit court's dismissal of Mr. Cunningham's claims, and should remand to the circuit court for further proceedings consistent to that decision.

C & D. THE COURT ERRONEOUSLY REJECTED MR. CUNNINGHAM'S ARGUMENT THAT EVEN IF THE HOLDING OF COWART APPLIED, THIS CASE WAS SUBJECT TO THE EXCEPTION SET FORTH IN NEWMAN THROUGH THE LANGUAGE OF SECTIONS 4-9-25 AND 4-9-620 OF THE SOUTH CAROLINA CODE. THE COURT ALSO ERRONEOUSLY CONCLUDED ANY DISCUSSION OF DILLON'S RULE AND THE HRA WAS IRRELEVANT AS THIS CASE, INVOLVING THE ACTIONS OF A COUNTY, ARE CONTROLLED BY THE HRA AND NOT COWART (A CASE INVOLVING A SPECIAL PURPOSE DISTRICT AND THEREFORE NOT SUBJECT TO THE HRA).

In affirming the circuit court's decision to hold the employment contract was void, the Court of Appeals held that under Cowart, "Mr. Cunningham's argument regarding the abolition of Dillon's Rule is irrelevant" to the Court's analysis. (Slip op. at 11; Appx p. 12). In so holding, the Court of Appeals disregarded several crucial aspects of Cowart.

While it is true that Cowart post-dated the Home Rule Act, as Mr. Cunningham pointed out in his brief, at oral argument, and in his Petitions for Rehearing, Cowart involved a special purpose district which this Court has held is not subject to Home Rule. See Evins, 341 S.C. at 19, 532 S.E.2d at 878 ("Home Rule applies only to counties and municipalities, not special purpose districts."). Cowart is meaningfully distinct from this case.

Secondly, the Court of Appeals focused on a pre-Home Rule case, Newman, to support the Court's reliance upon Cowart. (Slip op. at 10-11; Appx pp. 11-12). In doing so, the Court disregarded Mr. Cunningham's argument that, even if this case was subject to Cowart (and it is not), the Home Rule Act supplies the necessary authority to contract under the Newman exception. (Brief of App., pp. 15-17). See Cowart II, 324 S.C. at 241, 478 S.E.2d at 838 ("Newman allows an exception, however, where the enabling legislation clearly authorizes the local governing body to make a contract extending beyond its members' own terms.""). Here, Section 4-9-620 is legislation that clearly authorizes the local governing body to make a contract "for a definite term" without limitation to its members' own terms of office. Thus, even under Cowart, the contract is valid under the exception to Dillon's Rule described in Newman.

In discounting Mr. Cunningham's argument on this point, the Court of Appeals pointed to the word "clearly" that appears in Newman and found Section 4-9-620 does not fall "clearly" within the Newman exception to Dillon's Rule. (Slip op. at 11-12; Appx pp. 12-13). The words of Section 4-9-620 are not ambiguous and therefore do not require rules of construction. They are plain, clear, and unambiguous. The County is permitted to enter into a contract "for a definite term" with its administrator. That is precisely what Anderson County did in this case. By holding that the statute does not "clearly authorize" the "definite term" to extend beyond the terms of outgoing council members, the Court of Appeals rendered the statute a nullity, because that state of affairs existed under Dillon's Rule. The Court's ruling essentially declares that the legislature did a futile act when it enacted Section 4-9-620. Our courts do not read statutory language in a manner that renders it without meaning or containing idle verbiage or superfluous language. Lee v. Thermal Engineering Corp., 352 S.C. 81, 572 S.E.2d 298 (Ct. App. 2002). See also Cain v. Nationwide Property and Cas. Ins. Co., 378 S.C. 25, 661 S.E.2d 349 (2008) (in construing a statute, appellate court must presume that the Legislature did not intend to perform a futile thing) (discussed more fully in Point E, below).

Furthermore, this view of Section 4-9-620 creates havoc in county governments.

Any time a member of council decides to resign or retire before his or her term is up, any contract the Council entered with its administrator would be voided automatically. The same would be true any time a member of council is removed from office. The lack of predictability and uncertainty is untenable and cannot possibly be what the General Assembly intended. Avoiding this state of affairs is the likely reason behind the enactment of Section 4-9-20.

In affirming the circuit court's decision to hold the employment contract was void, the Court of Appeals stated that Section 4-9-620 did not "clearly" permit a council to enter into a contract that extends beyond the terms of the outgoing council members. (Slip op. at 11-12; Appx pp. 12-13). The statute, however, does not contain any such limitation.

The express language of the statute provides: "The term of employment of the administrator shall be at the pleasure of the council and he shall be entitled to such compensation for his services as the council may determine. The council may, in its discretion, employ the administrator for a definite term." (Emphasis added). Without citation to authority, the Court of Appeals added language to the statute. That is, the Court tacitly appended that a council may employ the administrator for a definite term "but not to extend beyond the terms of any council members."

Had the legislature desired to add the limiting language that the Court of Appeals read into the statute, the legislature could easily have done so; it did not. See, e.g., Taylor v. South Carolina Dept. of Motor Vehicles, 382 S.C. 567, 570, 677 S.E.2d 588, 590 (2009) (if Legislature had intended certain result in a statute it would have said so);

Giannini v. South Carolina Dep't of Transp., 378 S.C. 573, 587, 664 S.E.2d 450, 457 (2008) (same); accord State v. Curtis, 356 S.C. 622, 591 S.E.2d 600 (2004) (legislature, had it chosen to do so, could easily have specified certain result in statute). The goal of this statute was to permit a council the flexibility to recruit the best talent and enter into a contract that did not become void simply because all members of the council did not stand for re-election or were not re-elected. See (Brief of Amicus SC City and County Management Association, pp. 7-9).⁴

The holding of the Court of Appeals improperly reads additional language into the statute by implication. See Bryant v. City of Charleston, 295 S.C. 408, 411, 368 S.E.2d 899, 901 (1988) (rejecting implied additional requirements to annexation powers where statute did not contain words of limitation). The Court's holding declares many administrators for cities and counties to be "free agents" because the court's holding voids all of their contracts ab initio. The decision creates uncertainty for council members, administrators, and candidates for open administrator positions.

The holding also results in the electorate determining the administrator's contract terms instead of allowing that decision to be made through our chosen form of representative government. The South Carolina Constitution provides for a representative form of government in this State. S.C. Const. art. III, § 1; Joytime Distributors and Amusement Co., Inc. v. State, 338 S.C. 634, 528 S.E.2d 647 (1999). By adding this implied language to the statute, the Court of Appeals impinged on the authority the ⁴ The Association filed this Brief of Amicus before the Court of Appeals. Mr. Cunningham requests that the Court consult that brief as part of its review.

General Assembly places in the hands of council members, that is, to engage a county administrator under an at-will arrangement but for a definite term that the council deems, in its discretion, to be reasonable. Here, that term was three years. This term is not uncommon, not excessive, and within reason.

The Court of Appeals also stated Mr. Cunningham's argument amounts to a "narrow view" of the council's powers, "which is contrary to the requirement that a county's powers must be given a liberal construction." Id. at 13. In reaching this conclusion, the Court disregarded the arguments Mr. Cunningham made, which align with the discussion proffered by the Amicus. Recognizing a council's authority under the Home Rule Act to enter into the contract in this case "for a definite term" is not a narrowing of the power. It is a liberal construction of those powers in favor of the county's ability to act. S.C. Code Ann. § 4-9-25. (App. Br., p. 13; Amicus Br., pp. 5-8).

In rejecting Mr. Cunningham's argument, the Court of Appeals explained its view that Mr. Cunningham's argument would be restrictive on county powers in that "it would be restrictive on the successor governing body." (Slip op. at 13; Appx p. 14). The law relates to the powers of an existing council, however, and not powers of a potential future council. The court's view illegally limited the County's authority to enter into the very contract permitted by the statute - one for a definite term. Instead of being a liberal construction of power, the Court of Appeals' view is restrictive.

Further, the Court found its view "compatible with Newman's policy of prohibiting local governing bodies from binding their successors as to governmental functions unless clearly authorized by enabling legislation." (Slip op. at 13; Appx p. 14).

Section 4-9-620, however, is a clear expression by the General Assembly authorizing the County to enter into an agreement for a “definite term” without the limitation the Court of Appeals appended to the section (i.e., “so long as the contract does not extend beyond the terms of all the members of the current governing body.”).

Accordingly, the Court should reverse the Court of Appeals’ affirmance of the circuit court’s order declaring Mr. Cunningham’s agreement to be void.

E. THE COURT ERRONEOUSLY REJECTED MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CONTENTION THAT THE CIRCUIT COURT’S CONSTRUCTION OF THE HRA RENDERED PROVISIONS OF THE ACT SUPERFLUOUS

In affirming the circuit court’s decision to hold the employment contract was void, the Court of Appeals rejected Mr. Cunningham’s argument that the circuit court’s construction of the Home Rule Act rendered provisions to be superfluous.

Although the HRA does not contain language providing that a contract can extend beyond the term of a particular council, such express language is not necessary in these circumstances. Prior to Home Rule, there was no need for a legislative authority to hire someone only for the term of the members of the governing body. Thus, if Section 4-9-620 were read as limiting any appointment to the terms of the members of the governing body, then the entire statute would be superfluous. The courts do not read statutory language in a manner that renders it without meaning or containing idle verbiage or superfluous language. Lee v. Thermal Engineering Corp., 352 S.C. 81, 572 S.E.2d 298 (Ct. App. 2002). See also Cain v. Nationwide Property and Cas. Ins. Co., 378 S.C. 25, 661 S.E.2d 349 (2008) (in construing a statute, appellate court must presume that the Legislature did not intend to perform a futile thing); CFRE, LLC v. Greenville Cnty. Assessor, 395 S.C. 67, 74, 716 S.E.2d 877, 881 (2011) (“[W]e must read the statute so ‘that no word, clause, sentence, provision or part shall be rendered surplusage, or superfluous’”). (App. Br. pp. 15-16; Appx. p. 132-133).

This Court should reverse the Court of Appeals’ decision, reverse the circuit court’s ruling, and remand the matter to the circuit court for further proceedings.

F. THE COURT ERRONEOUSLY FAILED TO ADDRESS MR. CUNNINGHAM’S ARGUMENT THAT THE PAYMENT OF SEVERANCE IS A PROPRIETARY FUNCTION RATHER THAN A GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTION

The Court of Appeals declined to address Mr. Cunningham’s argument (App. Br. pp. 17-18; Appx. pp. 134-135)(Reply Br., pp. 4-5; Appx. pp. 177-178) that the payment of severance under the employment contract was a proprietary function rather than a governmental function. (Slip op. at 13; Appx p. 14). Instead, the Court focused on “the appointment of a public officer” and found that activity was “a governmental function that cannot be impaired by an employment contract extending beyond the terms of the members of the local governing body.” Id. The Court ruled that “all provisions of such a contract, including provisions for severance pay, are void.” Id.

Even under common-law principles (which do not apply), one council was permitted to enter into a contract beyond the terms of the members for proprietary matters. The agreement in this case involves the payment of a severance when Mr. Cunningham was terminated so long as the termination was not for “cause” as defined in the agreement.

The general rule is that if a contract involves the exercise of the municipal corporation's business or proprietary powers, the contract may extend beyond the term of the contracting body and is binding on successor bodies if, at the time the contract was entered into, it was fair and reasonable and necessary or advantageous to the municipality. City of Beaufort v. Beaufort-Jasper County Water and Sewer Authority, 325 S.C. 174, 480 S.E.2d 728 (1997). However, if the contract involves the legislative functions or governmental powers of the municipal corporation, the contract is not binding on successor boards or councils. Id. For purposes of determining the validity of a contract requiring or involving a particular action by a municipality, the test for whether the action is governmental or proprietary should be "whether the contract itself deprives a governing body, or its successor, of a discretion which public policy demands should be left unimpaired." Id. at 179-180, 480 S.E.2d at 731.

Here, the contract spelled out the payments due to Mr. Cunningham unless his termination was for a defined "cause." The provision did not require any discretion by a successor body, and insofar as it did, public policy should require the Council to abide by these terms. Therefore, even if Dillon's Rule applied (which it does not), and even if the Newman exception did not apply (which it would, if Dillon's Rule applied), then the circuit court's order is still erroneous in light of the fact that Mr. Cunningham was seeking enforcement of a proprietary act and not a governmental act.

With respect to the determination that "[t]he provisions of such a contract, including provisions for severance pay, are void," (Slip op. at 14; Appx p. 15), the Court of Appeals failed to make the appropriate distinction between proprietary and governmental function as it applies to this case. By its express terms, the contract at issue permitted the “2009 Council” to fire Mr. Cunningham and employ an administrator of its own choosing. The touchstone between government and proprietary function is not whether a successive council is bound, as successive councils are bound by many contracts entered into by their predecessors. All that is at issue here is the payment of money, not the continued employment of Mr. Cunningham an administrator.

This Court should reverse the Court of Appeals’ decision, reverse the circuit court’s ruling, and remand the matter to the circuit court for further proceedings.

II. THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY AFFIRMED THE CIRCUIT COURT’S ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT FOR THE COUNTY ON MR. CUNNINGHAM’S CLAIM FOR PAYMENT FOR ACCRUED SICK LEAVE UNDER THE PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT (ISSUE II) BASED ON THE COURT’S FINDING THAT THE ACCRUED VACATION AND SICK LEAVE WERE NOT “WAGES” UNDER THE SOUTH CAROLINA PAYMENT OF WAGES ACT

In affirming the circuit court’s decision on Mr. Cunningham’s claim under the Payment of Wages Act, the Court of Appeals affirmed pursuant to Rule 220(c), SCACR, on the ground that because the Court agreed the contract was void, then any claim for sick leave fails. (Slip op. at 14; Appx p. 15). The court ignored Mr. Cunningham’s arguments that he was entitled to relief under the Payment of Wages Act. (App. Br. pp. 19-20; Appx. p. 19136-137) (Reply Br. p. 9; Appx. p. 182).

The circuit court held the County was entitled to summary judgment on Mr. Cunningham’s claim for wrongful discharge because the public policy exception to termination of employment only applies to “at-will” employees, and Mr. Cunningham was never an at-will employee because he was employed under the Contract with the County. The circuit court held Mr. Cunningham therefore cannot claim the protection of the public policy exception. This ruling was in error.

First, a retaliatory discharge claim based upon a violation of public policy is not limited to employment at-will situations. The doctrine also applies where an employee has a contract that provides for at-will status along with a notice provision, such as the agreement in this case. Stiles v. American General Life Ins. Co., 335 S.C. 222, 516 S.E.2d 449 (1999). As previously noted, Mr. Cunningham's Contract provided in part:

The Administrator serves at the pleasure of Council, and nothing in this Agreement shall prevent, limit, or otherwise interfere with the right of Anderson County Council to terminate the services of the Administrator at any time, subject only to the provisions set forth in Section 3, Paragraphs A, B, and C of this Agreement [i.e., the severance provisions].

(R.p.235, Section 2(A)) (emphasis added). Therefore, although the contract was for a three-year term, the parties themselves contractually provided that the only limitation on the County's right to terminate Mr. Cunningham was the requirement that the County abide by the severance provisions. Mr. Cunningham still faced termination for any reason, including a reason that violates public policy.

Furthermore, even though the parties had a written employment contract, nothing in that agreement limited the reasons for which the County could fire Mr. Cunningham. He was still, therefore, employed "at-will." See Cape v. Greenville County School Dist., 365 S.C. 316, 618 S.E.2d 881 (2005) (finding employment contract, while for definite term, was terminable at will). Rather than limiting the reasons for which Mr. Cunningham could be fired, the Contract provided a severance package only if the termination was not for "cause" as defined therein. Nothing precluded the County's ability to terminate the agreement at any time, for any reason, for no reason, or even for an improper reason.

Finally, the County should not be permitted to argue on the one hand that the Contract was void and unenforceable, but then rely upon the existence of the written Contract to deflect tort liability for wrongful discharge in violation of public policy. The circuit court's ruling permits the County to unilaterally void the agreement the County's Council entered while still using the agreement as a defense to tort liability. The contract is either a binding employment agreement or it is not, The Court should not condone the County's double-speak.

The agreement in this case also contains a severability provision that separates the payment for accrued leave from any other issue under the Contract. The Contract provides:

If any provision, or any portion thereof, contained in this Agreement is held to be unconstitutional, invalid, or unenforceable, in whole or in part, by any court of competent jurisdiction, the remainder of this Agreement or the portion thereof in question shall be deemed severable, shall not be affected thereby, and shall remain in full force and effect. It is the intent of the parties to this Agreement that the Agreement be applied, executed, and enforced to the maximum extent possible, at any time, consistent with State law as then in effect, to the benefit of the Administrator. The Administrator shall receive the maximum benefit of each and every provision of this Agreement as may be permitted by law or the Constitution at any point in time.

(Appx. pp.427-428, ¶ 17(D)). The provision that the County compensate Mr.

Cunningham for accrued sick leave stands on its own and is enforceable under the Payment of Wages Act even if any other part of the agreement is declared void.

With respect to the determination that "Cunningham argues that the Act's exclusion of 'severance' from the definition of 'wages' does not bar his claim for sick leave because his contract's provision for payment of wages was not part of the severance package," (Slip op. at 14-15, note 20; Appx. pp. 15-16), the Court of Appeals ignored Mr. Cunningham's argument. Mr. Cunningham's argument is that sick leave benefits are expressly included in the statutory definition of "wages," and any reference to "severance" is misleading.

This Court should reverse the Court of Appeals's decision, reverse the circuit court's ruling, and remand this matter to the circuit court for further proceedings.

III. IN REVERSING THE CIRCUIT COURT'S RULING ON MR. CUNNINGHAM'S CLAIM FOR WRONGFUL DISCHARGE UNDER THE PUBLIC POLICY EXCEPTION TO EMPLOYMENT AT WILL, THE COURT OF APPEALS ERRONEOUSLY CONCLUDED THAT MR. CUNNINGHAM'S EMPLOYMENT WAS NOT "AT WILL" DESPITE THE EXPRESS TERMS OF THE CONTRACT TO THE CONTRARY

In addressing Mr. Cunningham's contention that he was considered "at will" despite the existence of an employment contract, the Court of Appeals ruled that Mr. Cunningham misunderstands the holding of Stiles v. Am. Gen. Life Ins. Co., 335 S.C. 222, 516 S.E.2d 449 (1999). (Slip op. at 16-17; Appx. pp. 17-18). The court also stated that Mr. Cunningham's contention that his contract was "at will" is "curious" in light of Mr. Cunningham's contention that he can seek recovery under the severance provision because he was terminated without "cause" as defined in the contract. This statement indicates that the court disregarded the law of employment contracts in South Carolina, as well as the remedies Mr. Cunningham seeks as alternative relief.

Simply because a contract provides a severance payment if terminated without cause does not prevent the contract from being "at will." Although the Court of Appeals cites to several cases for the general statement of the law that the presence of the severance clause prevents the contract from being “at will,” those cases do not so hold.

For instance, the court cited to Culler v. Blue Ridge Elec. Co-op., Inc. for the rule that “[t]he doctrine [of employment at will] in its pure form allows an employer to discharge an employee without incurring liability for good reason, no reason, or bad reason.” 309 S.C. 243, 245, 422 S.E.2d 91, 92 (1992) (emphasis by this Court). In making this statement, the Court of Appeals disregarded that the Court in Culler was citing to Ludwick v. This Minute of Carolina, Inc., 287 S.C. 219, 221, 337 S.E.2d 213, 214 (1985) (citing H.G. Wood, Master and Servant (1877)) for the observation about employment at will. What the Court in Ludwick actually stated was:

Employment at will, a court created doctrine, was first clearly articulated in an 1877 treatise, Master and Servant. Its author, Professor H.G. Wood, is credited with formulating the “American rule” that, where an employment contract is indefinite as to its duration, the employer may discharge employees for good cause, no cause or even cause morally wrong.

287 S.C. at 221, 337 S.E.2d at 214. Ludwick did not say an employer could fire an at-will employee “without incurring liability.”

The Ludwick Court added, however, “Within the past 25 years there has been a significant turning away from strict allegiance to the doctrine in courts throughout the United States. * * * Language in recent opinions of this Court and our Court of Appeals reflects both an awareness of this erosion and the likelihood that the doctrine will be reviewed in an appropriate South Carolina case.” Id. at 222, 337 at 214-215. So the Culler Court’s reference to the “pure form” of the doctrine as allowing discharge “without incurring liability” was not a holding in Culler. In fact, there is nothing in Culler that would support the notion that the doctrine of at-will employment grants blanket immunity to employers for any reason of discharge, but that under the classic expression of the doctrine, no tort or contract cause of action arises if the employer terminates the at-will employee for good reason, no reason or bad reason. It was an observation in Culler, and was certainly not the holding of that case.

Furthermore, the case upon which Culler relied for that statement, Ludwick, never said that and, in fact, expressed the view that the doctrine has limits at common law. Thus, even in the “at will” cases of Culler and Ludwick, the employer could have incurred some form of liability under the public policy exception without converting the employment from “at will” to something else. The substance of Culler does not support the Court of Appeals’ holding in this case, and in fact the very holding of Ludwick stands in opposition to the Court of Appeals’ view that “at will” employment equals immunity from any and all liability.

The Court of Appeals next cited to Stiles for the rule that “the measure of damages when an employee is wrongfully discharged under a contract for a definite term generally is the wages for the unexpired portion of the term” and the following from Justice Toal’s concurrence:

Employment in South Carolina has been classified as either for a definite term or at-will. Employment for a definite term has two important characteristics: (1) it exists for a fixed period of time; and (2) the employment may only be terminated before the end of that term by just cause. If an employee is wrongfully terminated under a definite contract, the measure of damages is determined by the contract and is generally the wages for the unexpired portion of the term.

(Slip op. at 17; App. p. 18). Of course, the narrow holding of the majority decision in

Stiles was that “an employee under an at-will contract with a 30 day notice provision may maintain an action for wrongful discharge in violation of public policy under Ludwick.”

Additionally, in quoting from Justice Toal’s concurrence, the Court of Appeals overlooked the language appearing in the very next paragraph:

At-will employment differs from employment for a definite term in two important respects: (1) there is no fixed period of time; and (2) employers can discharge employees for good cause, no cause, or even cause that is morally wrong. Ludwick, 287 S.C. at 221-222, 337 S.E.2d at 214. In employment at-will, the employee is also free to terminate the employment relationship at any time.

Stiles, 335 S.C. at 227, 516 S.E.2d at 451-452. Here, the contract with Mr. Cunningham permitted the County to terminate Mr. Cunningham at any time for good cause, no cause, or even cause that is morally wrong. The County was not required to employ Mr. Cunningham for any fixed period of time. The only consequence of exercising its right to terminate Mr. Cunningham’s at-will employment at any time and for any reason was the payment of severance if the termination was for a reason other than “cause” as defined in the agreement.

Next, the Court of Appeals cited to Shivers v. John H. Harland Co., Inc., 310 S.C. 217, 423 S.E.2d 105 (1992) for the rule that “[t]his measure of damages allows an employee to receive the benefit of the bargain by putting him in as good a position as he would have been had the contract been performed.” (Slip op. at 18; Appx p. 19). But the Court failed to consider the following language immediately preceding that statement in Shivers:

A person hired under an employment contract for a definite term may not be discharged before the completion of the term without just cause. When an employee[] is wrongfully discharged under a contract for a definite term, the measure of damages generally is the wages for the unexpired portion of the term.

Shivers, 310 S.C. at 220, 423 S.E.2d at 107. Hence, the statement that the Court of Appeals referenced, when placed back into context, dealt with a person employed under a contract for a definite term who was wrongfully discharged and whose measure of damages was the unexpired portion of the term. Here, Mr. Cunningham was employed at will – the County could discharge him at any time, for any reason, or for no reason at all. The County only had to pay the severance package if the reason for the termination did not rise to the level of “cause” as set forth in the agreement. Shivers is meaningfully distinct from this case and does not control.

Furthermore, as the Court of Appeals recognized, Mr. Cunningham’s agreement provided “[t]he Administrator serves at the pleasure of Council, and nothing in this Agreement shall prevent, limit, or otherwise interfere with the right of Anderson County Council to terminate the services of the Administrator at any time, subject only to the provisions set forth in Section 3, Paragraphs A, B, and C of this Agreement.” (Slip op. at 18; Appx p. 19)(Emphasis added). Mr. Cunningham was thus an “at will” employee under his agreement with the County. See, e.g., Johnson v. Jefferson Cnty. Bd. of Health, 662 P.2d 463, 471 (Colo.1983) (“An employee who serves ‘at the pleasure’ of his employer generally may be discharged at any time without formal cause or procedure.”); Elmore v. Cleary, 399 F.3d 279 (3rd Cir. 2005) (public employee generally serves at the pleasure of her employer; employee is considered at will and lacks a property interest in continued employment); Saucedo-Falls v. Kunkle, 299 Fed. Appx. 315, 322 n. 30 (5th Cir. 2008) (noting contract which provides employee “serves at the pleasure” of employer creates “at will” employment); Lawson v. Umatilla County, 139 F.3d 690, 692–693 (9th Cir.1998) (under Oregon law employees of an elected official who serve at the pleasure of that elected official are at-will employees, and personnel policies which contain a disclaimer that the policies do not constitute a contract do not change the at-will status of an employee); Harris v. Eckersall, 771 N.E.2d 1072 (Ill. App. 2002) (under Illinois law, if a public employee serves at the pleasure of the appointing authority, the employment relationship is at will); Ramsey v. City of Sand Point, 936 P.2d 126 (Alaska 1997) (public employee who serves at the pleasure of his employer is considered “at will”); Youngblood v. City of Galveston, Tex., 920 F.Supp. 103 (S.D. Tex. 1996) (if a public employee serves at the pleasure of his superiors, the employment relationship is at-will); Heinzman v. Hall County, 328 N.W.2d 764 (Neb. 1983) (“At pleasure” in employment contracts has been interpreted to mean that the hiring authority has absolute power to remove); Paice v. Maryland Racing Com’n, 539 F.Supp. 458 (D.C. Md. 1982) (employees who serve during the pleasure of their employers are at will employees); Skaggs v. City of Kansas City, 264 S.W.3d 694 (Mo.App. W.D. 2008) (employment agreement pursuant to city charter that provided employee “shall serve at the pleasure of the Mayor and Council” did not alter at will status).

The Court of Appeals rejected Mr. Cunningham’s cite to Angus v. Burroughs & Chapin Co., 358 S.C. 498, 596 S.E.2d 67 (Ct. App. 2004) “in support of his position that his contract shows an intent to establish an at-will relationship.” (Slip op. at 18; Appx p. 19). In fact, Mr. Cunningham’s discussion in his Return to the County’s Petition for Rehearing was as follows:

The existence of a written employment contract does not negate the fact that the employment may still be considered “at will.” See, e.g., Angus v. Burroughs & Chapin Co., 368 S.C. 167, 628 S.E.2d 261 (2006) (noting county administrator was “at will” and that she “was paid her severance pursuant to her contract”); Angus v. Burroughs & Chapin Co., 358 S.C. 498, 596 S.E.2d 67 (Ct. App. 2004), rev’d on other grounds 368 S.C. 167, 628 S.E.2d 261 (2006) (noting employment agreement stated on its face that plaintiff served “at the will” of county council so that county officials could fire plaintiff “for any reason”); Shealy v. Fowler, 182 S.C. 81, 188 S.E. 499 (1936) (written contract for employment for indefinite term “for so long as the employee gives satisfactory service” was revocable “at will” of either party); Williams v. Riedman, 339 S.C. 251, 529 S.E.2d 28 (Ct. App. 2000) (noting a written contract for employment “for an indefinite period can be terminated at will”); Prescott v. Farmers Telephone Co-op., Inc., 335 S.C. 330, 516 S.E.2d 923 (1999) (Court recognized parties may operate under an agreement that maintains “at will” status of employee and that agreement may be modified orally or in writing to alter at-will status).

(Return, p. 7; Appx. pp. 58-59). Thus, the Mr. Cunningham’s cite to Angus was in response to the County’s contention that Mr. Cunningham could not maintain a claim for wrongful termination because he had a written contract. Mr. Cunningham pointed out these authorities to demonstrate that the employees in Angus, Cape, and the cases cited all had written contracts and yet were all held to be “at will” employees. The Court of Appeals misapprehended Mr. Cunningham’s argument here. Even so, the court’s opinion acknowledged that the Record on Appeal in Angus belies the County’s argument that the presence of an employment contract precludes an action for wrongful termination.

The Court of Appeals distinguished the contract in Cape because it expressly stated it was “an at-will employment contract” that “may be terminated at any time for any reason or for no reason by either employer or employee,” (Slip op. at 18; Appx p. 19), but Mr. Cunningham’s contract says he “serves at the pleasure of Council, and nothing in this Agreement shall prevent, limit, or otherwise interfere with” the County’s right “to terminate” Mr. Cunningham’s services “subject only to the provisions set forth in Section 3, Paragraphs A, B, and C of this Agreement.” (Slip op. at 18; Appx. p. 19). This distinction, however, is one that is without a difference. The “subject to” language does not prevent termination for any reason or even no reason. Mr. Cunningham’s contract is just as terminable as the contract was in Cape. Section 3, Paragraphs A, B, and C are the severance provisions, but they do not stop the County from exercising its rights under the “at will” agreement to terminate Mr. Cunningham’s employment.

Courts equate the language “serves at the pleasure” with “at will” employment, and the County’s agreement with Mr. Cunningham is no different. There is nothing in the law that prevents this contract from being precisely what it says it was – an at-will contract under which Mr. Cunningham “served at the pleasure” of council and could be fired at any time for any reason or even no reason at all. While the Court of Appeals stated correctly that “the existence of an employment contract does not preclude a determination that the employment is terminable at will,” (slip op. at 16; Appx. p. 17), the Court rejected Mr. Cunningham’s contention that the contract he entered into with the County was “at will.” (Slip op. at 17; Appx. p. 18).

All employment is contractual in nature. Spriggs v. Diamond Auto Glass, 165 F.3d 1015, 1018 (4th Cir. 1999). This principle is an important underpinning in cases, for example, that recognize that even contracts terminable “at will” are subject to protection from third party interference claims because “at will” arrangements are just as “contractual” as a contract that limits termination during its term. Todd v. S.C. Farm Bureau Mut. Ins. Co., 283 S.C. 155, 163-64, 321 S.E.2d 602, 607 (Ct. App. 1984), quashed on other grounds, 287 S.C. 190, 336 S.E.2d 472 (1985); Threlkeld v. Christoph, 280 S.C. 225, 227, 312 S.E.2d 14, 16 (Ct. App. 1984). The label does not matter. The method of a contract's termination has nothing to do with the availability of the tort of wrongful discharge in violation of public policy as it does nothing to vindicate the public interest. Any such limitation would "violate[] the spirit of the public policy exception." Stiles v. Am. Gen. Life Ins. Co., 335 S.C. 222, 226, 516 S.E.2d 449, 451 (1999).

Under the Court of Appeals' interpretation, an employer could willingly terminate employment in violation of the public policy of this State without incurring liability as long as the employer had a clause that provided for five minutes of pay or "severance." Providing for severance simply does not address the public policy at issue in wrongful discharge situations. Accordingly, while Mr. Cunningham has repeatedly noted that the contract at issue in this case permits for his employment to be terminated at the will of council, Mr. Cunningham never suggested that this was a predicate fact necessary to maintain a tort claim. Nor does Mr. Cunningham see the tort claim as an alternative cause of action to the extent that suggests it is mutually exclusive with the existence of a contract claim.

This Court should modify the Court of Appeals' reversal of the circuit court and remand this matter for further proceedings consistent with this Court's ruling.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated, Mr. Cunningham requests that the Court reverse the amended opinion of the Court of Appeals as to Issues I and II, and modify the decision as to Issue III to reflect that the existence of the written agreement does not preclude Mr. Cunningham from being “at will,” and thus able to pursue his claim under Issue III for wrongful discharge. The Court should then remand this matter to the circuit court for further proceedings consistent with these rulings.

Respectfully submitted,

John S. Nichols, SC Bar # 4210
BLUESTEIN, NICHOLS, THOMPSON
& DELGADO, LLC
Post Office Box 7965
Columbia, South Carolina 29202
(803) 779-7599

Brian P. Murphy, SC Bar # 6770
STEPHENSON & MURPHY, LLC
207 Whitsett Street
Greenville, SC 29601-3117
(864) 370-9400

Attorneys for Respondent/Petitioner

September 19, 2014

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
In the Supreme Court

APPEAL FROM ANDERSON COUNTY
Court of Common Pleas

Alexander S. Macaulay, Circuit Court Judge

RECEIVED

SEP 22 2014

S.C. Supreme Court

Appellate Case No. 2013-000678
Lower Court Case No. 2009-CP-04-01693

Michael Cunningham, Respondent/Petitioner,

v.

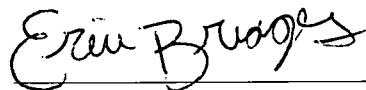

Anderson County, Petitioner/Respondent.

PROOF OF SERVICE

The undersigned hereby certifies that on the date indicated below she served counsel for the Petitioner/Respondent with a copy of Michael Cunningham's Brief of Petitioner by mailing a copy of the same by United States Mail with first class postage prepaid to the following address:

William W. Wilkins, Esquire
Kirsten E. Small, Esquire
NEXSEN PRUET, LLC
Post Office Drawer 10648
Greenville, South Carolina 29603

September 22, 2014
Columbia, South Carolina

Erin Bridges
BLUESTEIN, NICHOLS, THOMPSON
& DELGADO, LLC