

The Supreme Court of South Carolina

Too Tacky Partnership, Petitioner,

v.

South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control and Mayo Read, Jr., Respondents.

Appellate Case No. 2009-149126

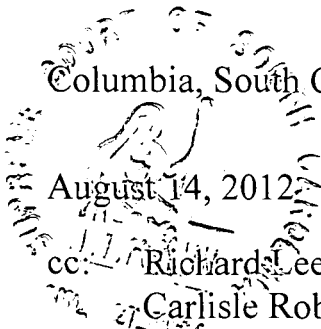

ORDER

Respondents have filed a motion to dismiss this matter. Petitioner has filed a return in opposition to the motion. Petitioner has filed a motion for joinder or substitution of Kelly J. Albers as a petitioner in this matter. Respondents have filed a return in opposition to that motion. Finally, petitioner has filed a motion to strike documents, and arguments relating to those documents, from respondents' joint brief. Respondents have since removed the documents from the brief.

We deny the motion to dismiss this matter and the motion for joinder or substitution of Albers as a petitioner in the matter. We grant the motion to strike arguments from respondents' brief based on the conveyance of the subject property to Albers.

	C.J.
	J.
	J.
	J.

Hearn, J., not participating

The seal of Columbia, South Carolina, is a circular emblem. It features a central figure of a woman, likely representing Liberty or Justice, holding a scale and a sword. The figure is surrounded by a wreath. The words "COLUMBIA" and "SOUTH CAROLINA" are inscribed around the perimeter of the seal.

Columbia, South Carolina

August 14, 2012

cc: Richard Lee Tapp, Jr.
Carlisle Roberts, Jr.
John Page Seibels, Jr.
Stephen Peterson Groves, Sr.
Elizabeth Applegate Dieck
Davis Arjuna Whitfield-Cargile
Jason Scott Luck