Re: 2013-002311 McMasters v. Charpia , et al

Court,

FOR THE RECORD . This Appeal , case # 2009-CP-18-2200, does not entail a judgment against Howard W. Charpia , et al. Said Judgment , case # 2002-CP-18-932 was rendered on August 5 , 2004.

Ten (10) years have passed and said judgment is extinguished and has lost it's active energy. A judgment lien is purely statutory , its duration as fixed by the legislature may not be prolonged by the Courts. Said judgment falls within Section 15-39-30 , which is a statute of repose. And 15-39-30 cannot operate to toll the ten-year execution period.

South Carolina Courts will not permit a litigant to bypass the ten-year limitation on executions by styling an action as something other than an action to execute.

It is futile to continue Court proceedings since the judgment is unenforceable as a matter of law.
