Thank you.

I have been trying that website address for quite awhile now and cannot get past the access records page. It says the webpage is not available. (I don't have an IT person.) I presume there has been nothing filed since my supplemental response and motion.

If I am incorrect, I ask any of the recipients to so advise me.

Thank you.

Dear Mr. White:

Good afternoon! Thank you for your email and correspondence. Upon review of our file, it appears that we still have you on record as a respondent representing yourself in the appeal, and you are a part of the master distribution list in our case management system. However, we sent out a dispositional decision in this case on December 11, 2015, on which you were not copied. I have attached a copy of that order to this email for your review. I apologize for the confusion, and hope that we have rectified our records so that you will be copied on all remaining correspondence.

We also received your letter dated December 7, 2015, which I reviewed for the first time today. I apologize for the lateness in our response, and hope that you are recovering well from your medical treatments. We certainly wish you the best! At this time, our records reflect that a motion to reinstate the appeal is pending review by the Court. All parties will be notified of the Court's decision on the motion.

Finally, the court's records in this case are available online on C-Track Public Access. You can access C-Track by clicking on this link: <https://www.sccourts.org/ACMS/index.cfm>. You can search for the case by case name or by typing in the appellate case number (including the hyphen).

Please do not hesitate to let us know if we can be of any further assistance.

Dear Ms. Kitchings,

I am herewith attaching a letter expressing a possible concern and respectfully requesting copies of matters of record and asking for verification that I am being mailed notices, orders and other papers.

Please call or otherwise advise me if you have any questions or concerns.

An original of this attached letter will follow in the mail. Copies are likewise being sent to all other counsel of record by email and mail.

I thank you for your attention to this matter.
