

The South Carolina Court of Appeals

The State, Respondent,

v.

Danny Vega, Appellant.

Appellate Case No. 2016-001651

ORDER

Appellant has filed a motion for a bond pending appeal. Because the sentence is less than ten years, Rule 246 of the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules permits the circuit court to set bond. This court finds the circuit court is the more appropriate court to hear the motion, and this court declines to consider the motion for bond at this time.
