RE: Appeal Case#2009-23-08727

Dear Monica:

I am severely Disabled by Lupus Lupus is an auto immunesystem becomes Hyperactive and attacks normal healthy tissue. The results in symptoms such as inflammations swelling and damage to joints skin, kidneys, blood heart and lungs.

under normal conditions immunity antibodies in order to protect and fight against antigens. Symptoms vary from person to person. SLE can lead to organ damage

Some of the most common lupus symptoms are:

EXTREME FATIGUE

joint pain, stiffness and swelling in two or more joints

fever over 100 degrees

Muscle pain ..

. Hair loss
skin sores and rashes

. nose and mouth sores

. skin rashes after sun exposure

Symptom may change over time and

Affect your daily life

Prevent you from enjoying your favorite things

Make you feel Isolate, depressed and Frustrated

Photosensitivity from Fluorescent lights overhead in Library

In 1994 I was diagnosed with a board certified rheumatologist in New York City. as part of a world wide class action law suit because it was determined Silicone breast implants caused disease and possible death

I was contacted by the law firm of Barney Smith in Greenville and offered a possible $700,000 insurance award from Dow Corning

Scientists think people may be born with a gene to develop Lupus and something that triggers the disease in their body. There are also environmental triggers. I have been plagued with Arthritic pains and neurological problems of course of lack of concentration and confusion. There are anti-inflammatory meds I might take but I prefer not to. I prefer to remain present in my world and have to compensate for fatigue, depression and cognitive ability to mental organization. I have had kidney and Heart problems. I was told I would recover over $50,000. for these infirmities.

I have asked for an extension of time for a good cause because of these handicaps.

My appeal is sound and I am proceeding. I have fought for over forty years to protect my children. I promised God I would do this until I have no more breath in my body. I will fight these evil people of fraudulent behavior, if you please allow me to continue.

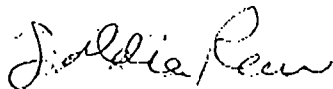

With your understanding and permission, I will continue. I am grateful and appreciate your time.

Sincerely,
Goldie Grier Reeves

Thank you.

If you have at least four of the criteria on the list, either at the present time or at some time in the past, there is a strong chance that you have lupus.

- 4. Oral ulcers – sores appearing in the mouth
- 5. Arthritis – joint pain and swelling of two or more joints in which the bones around the joints do not become destroyed
- 6. Serositis – inflammation of the lining around the lungs (pleuritis) or inflammation of the lining around the heart that causes chest pain which is worse with deep breathing (pericarditis)
- 7. Kidney disorder – persistent protein or cellular casts in the urine
- 8. Neurological disorder – seizures or psychosis
- 9. Blood disorder – anemia (low red blood cell count), leukopenia (low white blood cell count), lymphopenia (low level of specific white blood cells), or thrombocytopenia (low platelet count)
- 10. Immunologic disorder – abnormal anti-double-stranded DNA or anti-Sm, positive antiphospholipid antibodies

11. Abnormal antinuclear antibody (ANA)

People with lupus also may experience symptoms that do not appear among the ACR criteria:

- fever (over 100° F)
- extreme fatigue
- hair loss
- fingers turning white and/or blue when cold (Raynaud's phenomenon)

To help the doctors diagnose lupus, a list of 11 common criteria, or measures, was developed by the American College of Rheumatology (ACR). ACR is a professional association of rheumatologists. These are the doctors who specialize in treating diseases of the joints and muscles, like lupus. If you have at least four of the criteria on the list, either at the present time or at some time in the past, there is a strong chance that you have lupus.

- 1. Malar rash – a rash over the cheeks and nose, often in the shape of a butterfly
- 2. Discoid rash – a rash that appears as red, raised, disk-shaped patches
- 3. Photosensitivity – a reaction to sun or light that causes a skin rash to appear or get worse
