RESPONDENT’S STATEMENT OF THE CASE	3
Procedural Statement	3
RESPONDENT’S STATEMENT OF FACTS.....	4
ARGUMENTS WHY THE APPEAL SHOULD BE DENIED	5
I. The Court of Appeals did not misapprehend the law or facts. The trial judge did not abuse her discretion in initially denying the Petitioner the right to cross-examine accomplices Bryan Rivers and Julius Brown concerning the fact that Bryan Rivers was the shooter in an armed robbery two weeks prior with the Petitioner being involved where the asserted purpose was to suggest that Rivers was the triggerperson in the death of Marley Lion and that Petitioner was merely present.	5
1. Any alleged error in the earlier exclusion of evidence of Rivers being the triggerperson in shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend two weeks prior during the cross-examinations of Rivers and Julius Brown was not reversible error where evidence that Rivers shot Townsend was subsequently introduced through the Petitioner’s admitted statement and specifically commented upon by the Solicitor in her closing statement to the jury.	5
2. Any error in its exclusion of the potential cross-examination was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt where similar evidence was presented that Rivers had possessed the weapon in a robbery on the day of the crime and had possessed and presented a weapon earlier the same day. In addition, evidence of Petitioner’s guilt was overwhelming, in light of the accomplice liability theory and his own statement.	5
A. The Admission of Separate Evidence of the Earlier Shooting of Chopper Townsend by Rivers with the Murder Weapon through the Petitioner’s Own Statement (State Exhibit 30) and the Solicitor’s Subsequent Comment Concerning the Evidence of the Shooting in Closing Argument Renders the Prior Limitation on Cross-examination Harmless Error.....	7
1. Deleston’s Admitted Statement About the “Chopper” Shooting by Rivers.....	9
2. Solicitor Wilson’s Closing Comments Concerning Rivers Shooting of Chopper.....	9
3. Prejudice not shown when similar evidence is admitted.	10
B. The armed robbery and shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend and the Marley Lion attempted robbery and shooting are not sufficiently similar to prove a common scheme or plan

under SCRE Rule 404(b) that only Bryan Rivers possessed a weapon to the exclusion of other's possession.	11
HOW THE ISSUE WAS INITIALLY RAISED BELOW.....	15
The Motion Hearing.....	19
The Trial Court's Rulings.	21
The Trial Evidence Concerning "Chopper" Townsend's Shooting.....	23
Evidence of the "Chopper Shooting" did not pertain to the commission of the crime involving the death of Marley Lion and thus was not admissible under a "third party guilt" theory.	32
Deleston's Due Process Right to Present a Complete Defense was not violated by the initial exclusion of the evidence in cross-examination when similar evidence was presented, Deleston failed to recall the witnesses after the door was opened by the admission of similar evidence and any error was harmless.....	35
Any error in the alleged exclusion was harmless error.....	37
II. The Court of Appeals reasonably concluded a new trial is not warranted where the trial court stated during the court's opening remarks that a trial was "a search for the truth in an effort to make sure that justice is done" and the "State has the burden of proving each of the elements beyond a reasonable doubt" when viewing the instructions as a whole in the opening and in final instructions on the law which do not dilute the jury's responsibility to determine whether the State had met its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt.	39
A. Further, where no request for a mistrial was made and only a modification of the opening remarks was requested and denied, the issue was not preserved for an appeal where the requested language of the specific modified charge does not appear in the record.	39
B. Any alleged error in the opening remarks is harmless beyond a reasonable doubt.	39
The Issue is not preserved because the requested charge is not in the record.	41
The opening remarks to "seek the truth" were not reversible error.	42

PETITIONER'S QUESTIONS PRESENTED ON CERTIORARI

1. Did the Court of Appeals err by affirming the trial court's refusal to allow Petitioner to cross-examine witnesses about an armed robbery and shooting that occurred approximately two weeks before the murder, where it was undisputed that Bryan Rivers was the shooter in the prior robbery and that the same firearm was used in both cases, since this prevented Petitioner from fully presenting his defense at trial, namely that Rivers was the shooter who killed the decedent, Marley Lion, and that Petitioner was merely present at the scene, in violation of Rule 404(b), SCRE, the rule on third party guilt, and Petitioner's due process right to present a complete defense?
2. Did the Court of Appeals err by holding the trial court's opening instruction to the jury that a trial was "a search for the truth in an effort to make sure that justice is done" was not reversible error when this instruction was fundamentally incorrect and misdirected the jury's inquiry from the beginning of the trial forward from the correct legal question of whether the state had proved Petitioner's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt?

RESPONDENT'S COUNTER QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the trial judge abused her discretion in denying the Petitioner the right to cross-examine accomplices Bryan Rivers and Julius Brown concerning the fact that Bryan Rivers was the shooter in an armed robbery two weeks prior with the Petitioner being involved where the asserted purpose was to suggest that Rivers was the triggerperson in the death of Marley Lion and that Petitioner was merely present?
 - a. Whether any alleged error in the earlier exclusion of evidence of Rivers being the triggerperson in shooting of Leroy "Chopper" Townsend two weeks prior during the cross-examinations of Rivers and Julius Brown was not reversible error where evidence that Rivers shot Townsend was introduced through the Petitioner's statement and commented upon by the Solicitor in her closing statement to the jury?
 - b. Whether any error in its exclusion was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt where evidence was presented that Rivers had possessed the weapon in a robbery on the day of the crime and had possessed and presented a weapon earlier the same day. In addition, evidence of Petitioner's guilt was overwhelming, in light of the accomplice liability theory and his own statement?
2. Is a new trial is warranted where the trial court stated during the court's opening remarks that a trial was "a search for the truth in an effort to make sure that justice is done" and the "State has the burden of proving each of the elements beyond a reasonable doubt" when viewing the instructions as a whole in the opening and in final instructions on the law which do not dilute the jury's responsibility to determine whether the State had met its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt?
 - a. Further, is a new trial warranted based upon "search for the truth" language in an opening remark where no request for a mistrial was made and only a modification of the opening remarks was requested and denied, but the issue was not preserved for an appeal where the requested language of the specific modified charge does not appear in the record?

- b. Further is a new trial warranted when any alleged error in the opening remarks is harmless beyond a reasonable doubt?

INTRODUCTION

This matter comes before the Court by the granting of a Petition for Writ of Certiorari on December 1, 2016. The Petitioner, Ryan P. Deleston, made a Petition for Writ of Certiorari dated May 23, 2016. This involves the South Carolina Court of Appeals opinion filed February 10, 2016, The State v. Ryan P. Deleston, Unpublished Opinion No. 2016-UP-055 (S.C. Ct. App. Filed February 10, 2016). The Petitioner made a Rehearing dated February 25, 2016. In his Petition for Rehearing, Deleston asserted the following reasons why he believes rehearing is appropriate:

1. The Court may have overlooked the fact that cross examination regarding Bryan Rivers having committed a similar armed robbery and shooting two weeks before that the same gun in this case was not “evidence which can have no other effect than cast a bare suspicion upon another, or to raise a conjectural inference as to the commission of the crime by another.” Petition, pp. 1, 2-8.
 - a. Petitioner asserts that the Court should reconsider its opinion that the trial court denied their when it refused to allow the defense to cross-examine Julius Brown and Bryan Rivers about the armed robbery and shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend that occurred approximately two weeks before Marley Lion was murdered. Petition, p. 5. He claims the ruling at trial prevented Petitioner from fully developing and presenting his defense that Rivers was the shooter who killed Lion and that Petitioner was “merely present” pursuant the evidence of third party guilt, Rule 404 (b) and his due process right to present a defense. Petition, p. 5-6.
2. The Court may have overlooked that “the trial court’s instruction to the jury that a criminal trial was “a search for the truth,” and not a determination is whether the State had proved Ryan Deleston guilty beyond a reasonable doubt was prejudicial” and the Supreme Court had warned that a trial judge should not instruct it over an objection citing State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 538 S.E.2d 248 (2000). Petition, p. 2, 8-12.

The Petition for rehearing was denied by the Court of Appeals on April 21, 2016.

In summarily denying relief, the Court of Appeals concluded as to the first ground:

1. As to whether the trial court erred in limiting cross-examination: Rule 404(b), SCRE (“Evidence of other crimes, wrongs, or acts ... may ... be admissible to show motive, identity, the existence of a common scheme or plan, the absence of mistake or accident, or intent.”); State v. Cope, 405 S.C. 317, 337, 748 S.E.2d 194, 204 (2013), cert. denied, 135 S.Ct. 400 (2014) (“Where there is a close degree of similarity between the crime charged and the prior bad act, the prior bad act is admissible to demonstrate a common scheme or plan.”); id. (“When determining whether evidence is admissible as common scheme or plan, the trial court must analyze the similarities and dissimilarities between the crime charged and the bad act evidence to determine whether there is a close degree of similarity.” (quoting State v. Clasby, 385 S.C. 148, 155, 682 S.E.2d 892, 896 (2009))); id. at 338 n. 4, 748 S.E.2d at 205 n. 4 (noting we must look at the commonality of the entire crimes when determining admissibility if the purpose of the evidence is to show that the allegedly guilty third party acted pursuant to a common scheme); id. at 341, 748 S.E.2d at 206 (“The admissibility of evidence of third-party guilt is governed by State v. Gregory, 198 S.C. 98, 16 S.E.2d 532 (1941).”); Gregory, 198 S.C. at 104–05, 16 S.E.2d at 534 (“[T]he evidence offered by accused as to the commission of the crime by another person must be limited to such facts as are inconsistent with his own guilt, and to such facts as raise a reasonable inference or presumption as to his own innocence; evidence which can have (no) other effect than to cast a bare suspicion upon another, or to raise a conjectural inference as to the commission of the crime by another, is not admissible.” (emphasis added)); Cope, 405 S.C. at 339, 748 S.E.2d at 205–06 (addressing a similar due process argument in which the Petitioner relied on Holmes v. South Carolina, 547 U.S. 319, 323 (2006), and finding the facts were distinguishable from Holmes; holding “[i]t was not the strength of the State’s case that led to exclusion of evidence of [the alleged guilty third party’s] other crimes. Instead, it was because the other crimes were not sufficiently similar to the crime charged so as to be admissible”).

State v. Deleston.

Concerning the opening instruction issue, the Court of Appeals concluded:

2. As to whether the trial court erred in stating the trial was “a search for the truth in an effort to make sure that justice is done”: State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 26–27, 538 S.E.2d 248, 251 (2000) (“Jury instructions on reasonable doubt which charge the jury to ‘seek the truth’ are disfavored because they ‘[run] the risk of unconstitutionally shifting the burden of proof to a defendant.’” (quoting State v. Needs, 333 S.C. 134, 155, 508 S.E.2d 857, 867–68 (1998) (alteration provided in Aleksey))); id. at 27, 538 S.E.2d at 251 (“However, jury instructions should be considered as a whole, and if as a whole they are free from error, any isolated portions which may be misleading do not constitute reversible error.”);

id. (“The standard for review of an ambiguous [or improper] jury instruction is whether there is a reasonable likelihood that the jury applied the challenged instruction in a way that violates the Constitution.”).

State v. Deleston.

RESPONDENT’S STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Procedural Statement

The Petitioner, Ryan P. Deleston, was indicted by the Court of General Sessions for Berkeley County at the October 2012 term for murder, attempted armed robbery, and possession of a weapon during the commission of a violent crime and at the December 2012 term for possession of a handgun with an obliterated serial number. R.p. 924-931. The Petitioner was represented by Ninth Circuit Public Defender D. Ashley Pennington and Assistant Public Defender John J. Kozelski. The prosecution was represented by Ninth Circuit Solicitor Scarlett A. Wilson and Deputy Solicitor Bruce DuRant. On October 7, 2013 the case was called before the Honorable Kristi Lea Harrington and a jury. On October 11, 2013, the jury found the Petitioner guilty of all the charges. R.p. 859, l. 23 – p. 860, l. 17, Tr.p. 1142, l. 23 – p. 1143, l. 17.

Judge Harrington sentenced the Petitioner to life without parole for murder, twenty years concurrent for attempted armed robbery, and five years concurrent for possession of a handgun with an obliterated serial number. R.p. 865, ll. 2-16, Tr.p. 1164, ll. 2-16. The trial court did not impose a sentence for possession of a weapon during the commission of a violent crime pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 16-23-490(A) since Petitioner was sentenced to life without parole. R.p. 865, ll 13-15; p. 861, l. 12, Tr.p. 1164, ll 13-15; p. 1160, l. 12.

The Petitioner filed a timely notice of appeal on October 14, 2013.

RESPONDENT'S STATEMENT OF FACTS

This case involves a senseless murder stemming from an attempted robbery. On the night of June 15, 2012, Marley Lion, a recent high school graduate, attended a house party with a friend. [R.p. 78, l. 7- p. 79, l. 1; p. 80, ll. 13-18, Tr. 274, l. 7- p. 275, l. 1; p. 276, ll. 13-18.] Marley had been drinking that night. He drove his friend Katherine Ridgeway home around 3:00 a.m. and then "said he was heading home." [R. p. 81, l. 7- p. 82, l. 7, Tr. 277, l. 7- p. 278, l. 7.]. Before making it to his destination Marley decided he was too intoxicated to drive and pulled into the parking lot of Famous Joe's to get some sleep. [R. p. 101, ll. 12-18; see R. p. 108, ll. 3-14, Tr. 298, ll. 12-18; see Tr. 305, ll. 3-14.]. While parked in the parking lot of Famous Joes, Marley was shot five times and killed.¹ The state's version was that Petitioner shot Marley during an attempted robbery with Bryan Rivers and Julius Brown. The jury was instructed and the State argued his guilt under accomplice liability, although it also asserted that Deleston was the triggerperson.

¹ Marley Lion's death was ruled a homicide by the forensic pathologist and the cause of death was determined to be a gunshot wound to the chest with perforations or injuries of the abdominal aorta, the spleen, and the liver. [R. p. 683, ll. 3-6, Tr. 934, ll. 3-6.] Marley also suffered several gunshot wounds to the left thigh and groin region, and a gunshot wound to the right arm. [See R. p. 683, l. 11 – p. 696, l. 21, See Tr. 934, l. 11 – p. 947, l. 21.]

ARGUMENTS WHY THE APPEAL SHOULD BE DENIED

I. The Court of Appeals did not misapprehend the law or facts. The trial judge did not abuse her discretion in initially denying the Petitioner the right to cross-examine accomplices Bryan Rivers and Julius Brown concerning the fact that Bryan Rivers was the shooter in an armed robbery two weeks prior with the Petitioner being involved where the asserted purpose was to suggest that Rivers was the triggerperson in the death of Marley Lion and that Petitioner was merely present.

1. Any alleged error in the earlier exclusion of evidence of Rivers being the triggerperson in shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend two weeks prior during the cross-examinations of Rivers and Julius Brown was not reversible error where evidence that Rivers shot Townsend was subsequently introduced through the Petitioner’s admitted statement and specifically commented upon by the Solicitor in her closing statement to the jury.

2. Any error in its exclusion of the potential cross-examination was harmless beyond a reasonable doubt where similar evidence was presented that Rivers had possessed the weapon in a robbery on the day of the crime and had possessed and presented a weapon earlier the same day. In addition, evidence of Petitioner’s guilt was overwhelming, in light of the accomplice liability theory and his own statement.

The Petitioner contends the appeal should be granted because he was allegedly deprived of his constitutional right to present a defense. He asserts the trial court precluded the presentation of evidence during the cross-examination of accomplices Bryan Rivers and Julius Brown that two weeks prior to the murder of Marley Lion, Rivers and not Petitioner was the actual triggerperson in a separate shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend with the same weapon that shot Lion. Deleston contends that the evidence was admissible under S.C. Rule of Evidence 404(b), as evidence of “third party guilt” under the precedent of State v. Gregory, 198 S.C. 98, 16 S.E.2d 532 (1941), and as his constitutional right to present a meaningful defense under Holmes v. South Carolina, 547 U.S. 319 (2006). The Petitioner contends that this evidence of the other crime was relevant to his defense because he claimed that Rivers was the triggerperson in Lion's death and that the excluded evidence would support that he was merely present at Lion's death, even though he was also present at the Townsend shooting.

In denying relief, the trial judge rejected the proffer under Rule 404(b), South Carolina Rules of Evidence, concluding that there was not a close degree of similarity between the crimes and therefore did not demonstrate a common scheme or plan to establish Rivers as the shooter of Lion. The trial court further rejected the claim that there was a due process violation.

The Petitioner ignores the important salient fact that defeats any potential entitlement to relief. After the testimony of Rivers and Brown, Solicitor Wilson revised her prosecution strategy² prior to the conclusion of the state's case and introduced similar of Thompson shooting to the jury through the introduction of a partially self-serving statement of Ryan Deleston, without objection. This statement included information about Rivers shooting Townsend earlier

² At the outset of the opening argument, Solicitor Wilson stated, although the State would show "that it was Deleston that pulled that trigger" that night (R.p. 42, ll. 1-4, Tr.p. 238, ll. 1-4), it was relying on the principle of the hand of one is the hand of all" liability and that "when we prove to you that Julius, 'Little B' [Rivers] and Ryan Deleston were acting together, who pulled the trigger will not be of importance to you." R.p. 42-43, Tr.p. 238-239. Importantly, throughout the opening statement by Solicitor Wilson, no mention is made of her intent to introduce the taped statements of Deleston of July 30, 2012. R.p. 41-51, Tr.p. 237-247. No mention is made of the Petitioner's statement.

However, counsel Pennington does present his defense theory that Bryan Rivers "used the weapon at 2:45 am, one hour before this murder downtown on Rutledge Avenue, to rob that couple that you heard about downtown. And at 4:07 am, he used it again to murder Marley Lion." R.p. 57, ll. 16-20. Also R.p. 59. Tr.p. 253, ll. 16-20. Also Tr.p. 255. ("It is whether or not the State has truly removed all reasonable doubt to show that ---in this instance, that Ryan Deleston would have seen the crazy, irrational act of Bryan Rivers coming."). Counsel Pennington made no mention of Deleston's statement in his opening either. During the testimony of Detective Williams of the Charleston Police Department, the State introduced evidence that Deleston in the evening statement had indicated, among other things that Bryan Rivers had the firearm and went up to the vehicle and shot into the (Lion's) vehicle. R.p. 758, ll. 7-15, Tr.p. 1012, ll. 7-15.

with the same murder weapon. A new trial is inappropriate where no reversible error occurred.

The summary order by the Court of Appeals suggests in its citations that the Court of Appeals opined that the evidence of the other criminal act by Rivers was not relevant because it was not sufficiently similar to be admissible and lacked a sufficient degree of similarity, citing State v. Cope, 405 S.C. 317, 748 S.E.2d 194 (2013). Respondent submit that the conclusion is correct, but there are also additional reasons why a new trial would not be warranted.

A. The Admission of Separate Evidence of the Earlier Shooting of Chopper Townsend by Rivers with the Murder Weapon through the Petitioner's Own Statement (State Exhibit 30) and the Solicitor's Subsequent Comment Concerning the Evidence of the Shooting in Closing Argument Renders the Prior Limitation on Cross-examination Harmless Error.

Any exclusion of the proffered evidence through cross-examination of Rivers and Brown that Rivers was the triggerperson in the shooting and attempted armed robbery of "Chopper" Townsend was harmless error because similar evidence was actually admitted within the admitted statement of the Petitioner in the State's case. This evidence from the Deleston statement (State Exhibit 30) was directly commented upon by the Solicitor in her closing statement to the jury. For this initial reason, the complaint about the earlier exclusion of similar evidence issue must be dismissed where the similar information was presented to the jury later.

A review of the Brief of Petitioner does not address nor mention the fact that of the actual introduction of the similar Chopper shooting evidence in the statement of Deleston that Rivers shot Townsend in the earlier incident that Deleston also participated. The Brief of Petitioner also does not address the fact that it is implicit that the obvious change in the prosecution strategy during its case in chief that a recall of the previous witnesses would have been within the discretion of the trial court under SCRE Rule 611(d) and State v. Stroman, 281 S.C. 508, 316 S.E.2d 395 (1984).³ However, it is equally conspicuous that the defense did not make this specific request at trial after the evidence was introduced through their client's statement based upon the state opening the door under Rule 611, instead merely restating the motion. R.p. 769-770. [As noted below, the evolving defense strategy in not recalling Rivers or Brown may be evident because it would have only further emphasized Deleston's involvement and knowledge of the earlier violent crime and the foreseeability of the Lion shooting potential, where Rivers's earlier weapon possession was now before the jury based upon Deleston's own interpretation of that incident through his statement.]. It may be suggested that the defense abandoned the request to cross-examine Rivers and Brown about the Chopper incident after the evidence was presented which opened the door to the glaring evidence within the statement. No specific defense objection or request was made concerning the earlier denial throughout the remainder of the trial.

³ In Stroman, the Court stated:

“Where one party introduces evidence as to a particular fact or transaction, the other party is entitled to introduce evidence in explanation or rebuttal thereof, even though [the] latter evidence would be incompetent or irrelevant had it been offered initially.” State v. Albert, 277 S.E.2d 439, 441 (N.C. 1981); State v. Miller, 61 N.C.App. 1, 300 S.E.2d 431 (1983). See also U.S. v. Allain, 671 F.2d 248 (7th Cir. 1982); U.S. v. Barrentine, 591 F.2d 1069 (5th Cir.), cert. den., 444 U.S. 990, 100 S.Ct. 521, 62 L.Ed.2d 419 (1979). Additionally, a party “cannot complain of an error which his own conduct has induced.” State v. Worthy, 239 S.C. 449, 465, 123 S.E.2d 835 (1962). Once appellant's counsel initiated the questioning concerning McDowell's prior acts of theft, the State was free to question him as to the details of any prior crime involving the stealing of money. The scope of redirect rests in the discretion of the trial court. State v. Tyner, 273 S.C. 646, 258 S.E.2d 559 (1979). We hold the trial court properly admitted McDowell's testimony.

State v. Stroman, 281 S.C. 508, 513, 316 S.E.2d 395, 399 (1984) (emphasis added). See also State v. Young, 364 S.C. 476, 613 S.E.2d 386 (Ct. App. 2005) (summarizing cases of “opening the door”).

1. Deleston's Admitted Statement About the "Chopper" Shooting by Rivers

Prior to the conclusion of the state's case in chief, the State introduced State Exhibit 30, a videotape of the July 30, 2012 evening session of the interrogation of Ryan Deleston. At the 9:33:40 portion of Exhibit 30, Deleston brings up about another robbery they did, but he claimed he did not participate in where they shot a drug dealer named Chopper. At the 9:45 PM portion of the tape, it reflects that Detective Osborne asks Deleston what he knows about the Chopper shooting. Deleston then tells Detective Osborne that Chopper was a big drug dealer and that he had stopped selling to them so they got someone else to call him. According to Deleston, Julius Brown, Bryan Rivers, George Brown and Valentino "Tino" Heyward jumped in the truck to go do the "lick." Deleston stated that they returned with money, dope and Chopper's cell phone. Deleston stated he heard that Rivers (Lil B) had shot Chopper. He said they had two guns with them that they put out beside the house. Deleston says that Tino and Lil B actually did lick while Julius and George stayed in car. Deleston says one of the guns was the murder weapon and other was a 45. Deleston stated that they got about 5 grand and 2 cookies in robbery. R.p. 766- p. 767, Tr.p. 1036- p. 1037. State Exhibit 30 (9:30 – 9:50).

2. Solicitor Wilson's Closing Comments Concerning Rivers Shooting of Chopper.

Solicitor Wilson commented upon the "Chopper" shooting in her closing argument. In particular, Solicitor Wilson stated:

Foreseeability? Y'all might not have caught this, or -- or thought about why it was so important to this case when you were watching those three and four hours of the Defendant's statement. Towards the end, just this morning, when Detective Osborne comes in, he tells Deleston, I want to talk to you about some other things, some other crimes. And he starts going through and asking him about other instances. And some of them Deleston said, I don't know anything about. You might remember the one he did know something about or he claimed to. The shooting of a guy named Chopper. Remember that? He says

Bryan Rivers shot a guy named Chopper with the murder weapon. Okay.

So Bryan Rivers is now alleged to have shot someone with a murder weapon. He knows about it, and he goes to an armed robbery with it? He buys into robbing Joe's, he helps out in attempting to rob Marley, and he's going to say it's an accident, it wasn't foreseeable?

R.p. 781, l. 3-21, Tr.p. 1064, l. 3-21. (emphasis added). See State Exhibits 29 and 30. (Statements of Deleston); R.p. 766-767, Tr.p. 1036-1037.

3. Prejudice not shown when similar evidence is admitted.

In order for this Court to reverse a case based on the alleged erroneous admission or exclusion of evidence, prejudice must be shown. State v. Bell, 302 S.C. 18, 393 S.E.2d 364 (1990). “Whether error is harmless depends on the circumstances of the particular case. No definite rule of law governs this finding; rather, the materiality and prejudicial character of the error must be determined from its relationship to the entire case. Error is harmless when it ‘could not reasonably have affected the result of the trial.’ ” State v. Mitchell, 286 S.C. 572, 573, 336 S.E.2d 150, 151 (1985), citing State v. Key, 256 S.C. 90, 93, 180 S.E.2d 888, 890 (1971). See State v. Joseph, 328 S.C. 352, 371, 491 S.E.2d 275, 284 (Ct.App.1997) (where evidence is merely cumulative to other evidence admitted at trial, the exclusion of such evidence is not an abuse of discretion); State v. Golson, 349 S.C. 421, 429, 562 S.E.2d 663, 668 (S.C.App. 2002) (same); State v. Ferguson, 300 S.C. 408, 411, 388 S.E.2d 642, 644 (1990) (exclusion of victim's prior inconsistent statement as substantive evidence was harmless error when other evidence was cumulative of statement).

Because the admitted State Exhibit 30 (Petitioner's statement) included his assertion that Rivers shot Chopper with the murder weapon - the information he sought to develop through the cross-examination of Rivers and Brown – any exclusion or limitation on the cross-examination is harmless. Its earlier exclusion was not prejudicial because it would be cumulative to other evidence that was ultimately admitted. The earlier limitation on cross-examination does not warrant a new trial.⁴

B. The armed robbery and shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend and the Marley Lion attempted robbery and shooting are not sufficiently similar to prove a common scheme or plan under SCRE Rule 404(b) that only Bryan Rivers possessed a weapon to the exclusion of other’s possession.

Because of the evident dissimilarities and limited probative value, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in excluding questioning of either Bryan Rivers or Julius Brown on this issue. Deleston contends that the trial judge erred that in excluding the evidence of the June 1, 2012 shooting of Leroy Chopper Townsend by Bryan Rivers. He contends it satisfies the requirement under rule 404(b) because there was a close degree of similarity between the attempted armed robbery of Townsend and the murder of Marley Lion. He draws this similarity from the fact that both offenses involved the same people (Bryan Rivers, Julius Brown, George Brown, Rayshawn, Milligan, and Petitioner) and were planned by Julius Brown. He asserts that both robberies occurred near the Ardmore neighborhood within about a mile of each other and under his description George Brown acted as the driver. Of importance, he contends that the home base for the perpetrators as Stephanie Brown and Petitioner's residence was consistent. Further he contends that the same weapon was used in each. Contrary to the findings of the trial judge, the Petitioner now contends the only dissimilarities in the acts where that Valentino Heyward was involved in the first event and not in Marley's robbery attempt. The record supports the Court of Appeals summary acceptances of the conclusions of the trial court.

“Evidence of other crimes, wrongs, or acts is not admissible to prove the character of a person in order to show action in conformity therewith.” Rule 404(b), SCRE; see State v. Lyle, 125 S.C. 406, 415–16, 118 S.E. 803, 807 (1923) (noting the rule “universally recognized and firmly established in all English-speaking countries, that evidence of other distinct crimes committed by the accused may not be adduced merely to raise an inference or to corroborate the prosecution's theory of the defendant's guilt of the particular crime charged”). “However, such evidence may be admissible to show motive, identity, the existence of a common scheme or plan, the absence of mistake or accident, or intent.” Rule 404(b). As a threshold matter, the trial court must determine whether the proffered evidence is relevant as required under Rule 401, SCRE. Clasby, 385 S.C. at 154, 682 S.E.2d at 895. If the trial court finds the evidence is relevant, it must then determine whether the bad act evidence fits within an exception in Rule 404(b). Id., State v. Cope, 405 S.C. 317, 337-338, 748 S.E.2d 194, 204 - 205 (2013). “When determining whether evidence is admissible as common scheme or plan, the trial court must analyze the similarities and dissimilarities between the crime charged and the bad act evidence to determine whether there is a close degree of similarity.” Id. The evidence is admissible if the similarities outweigh the dissimilarities. Id. In Cope, the Court recognized that even though there was clear and convincing evidence about the facts of the other crime, sufficient similarity was still required for admissibility. The Court in Cope assessed the nature of each sought crime. Even if prior bad act evidence is clear and convincing and falls within an exception, it must be excluded if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice to the defendant. Clasby, 385 S.C. at 155, 682 S.E.2d at 896. Cope, supra.

Like the situation in Cope, there are sufficient dissimilarities to support the initial exclusion of the inquiries about the June 1 shooting during the examination of Rivers and Julius Brown. First, it is clear that the proffered testimony of Julius Brown revealed that he did not have actual knowledge of who possessed and shot Chopper Townsend during the initial event. R.p. 138-143, Tr.p. 342-347. Second, the probative value of the earlier robbery was limited because Petitioner was a participant in the Chopper Townsend robbery and shared in the proceeds, although he was not the triggerperson. Here, the limited probative value that the Petitioner was seeking to show was that Rivers was the triggerperson in the first incident two weeks before. However, it is also undisputed that it was George Brown's gun and that Brown gave the gun to Rivers even before the couple's robbery on June 16.

Further, as pointed out by the Solicitor, and adopted by the trial judge, there were several dissimilarities in the events. See Chart, Brief of Respondent, p. 18. The Townsend shooting was a conceived plan against a specific target that the perpetrators knew. Unlike Townsend, there was no conceived plan based upon any knowledge that Marley had a significant amount of cash or drugs in his possession, but that it was a spontaneous crime. Unlike Townsend, there was no pre-existing bad blood with Marley. Unlike Townsend, the victim was shot numerous times. Unlike Townsend, the perpetrators were not driven to the scene but walked from Petitioner's residence. Unlike Townsend, Tino was not involved. Unlike Townsend the Petitioner actually went to the scene of the crime. Unlike Townsend, in the Petitioner's statement Deleston confirmed that he had possession of the weapon at one point at the scene when Rivers tried to give it to them. Unlike Townsend, the attempted robbery of Lion was not the planned target for the crime but was redirected after the employees with the money had left Famous Joe's.

Finally, as acknowledged in the Solicitor's statements, the evidence before the court showed that other individuals had possession of the weapon after the Townsend incident, including Bryan Rivers and George Brown. The probative value of the June 1 incident is minimized where there is uncontested evidence that Rivers possessed and presented the murder weapon within 2 hours before the Marley shooting and was seen waving a gun earlier that same day that the video shoot. More importantly, the probative value of the June 1 incident is limited because the state acknowledged that the criminal charge was based upon the "hand of one hand of all" concept of criminal liability.

The Court of Appeals did not err in implicitly affirming that trial judge did not abuse her discretion in excluding inquiring of Bryan Rivers concerning whether he possessed the gun during the shooting of Townsend two weeks before. The probative value of the exclusion is further minimized when evidence from Petitioner about the Townsend ("Chopper") shooting came in through his statement and harmless beyond any doubt.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

In criminal cases, the appellate court sits solely to review errors of law. State v. Baccus, 367 S.C. 41, 48, 625 S.E.2d 216, 220 (2006). "The trial judge has considerable latitude in ruling on the admissibility of evidence and his decision should not be disturbed absent prejudicial abuse of discretion." State v. Clasby, 385 S.C. 148, 154, 682 S.E.2d 892, 895 (2009). An abuse of discretion occurs when the trial court's ruling is based on an error of law. State v. Washington, 379 S.C. 120, 124, 665 S.E.2d 602, 604 (2008).

HOW THE ISSUE WAS INITIALLY RAISED BELOW

Prior to the trial, on October 7, 2013, the State made a written motion in limine regarding excluding from the record evidence that Bryan Rivers shot Leroy ‘Chopper’ Townsend two weeks earlier the same weapon used in the Marley Lion killing as inadmissible under Rule 404(b) and third party guilt. R.p. 3, Tr.p. 124. See Motion In Limine Re: Reverse 404(B) Evidence by State. R. p. 866-873. The defense had made a companion “Motion to Reveal” Rule 404(b) Evidence to determine what information about Appellant’s past criminal acts the state intended to use on October 1, 2013. R. p. 3, Tr. p. 124. Motion to Reveal. R. p. 874-876. On October 7, 2013, the defense filed a “Defense’s Response to the State’s Motion in Limine Re: Reverse 404(B), SCRE Evidence.” R. p. 877-890.

In the state’s motion in limine, the State initially sought to prohibit the Appellant from offering remote and irrelevant testimony regarding Bryan Rivers’s use of a murder weapon during an armed robbery two weeks before the murder of Marley Lion. The motion urged that Appellant would not be prejudiced by the exclusion because it anticipated that Bryan Rivers would admit that he used and possessed the weapon within hours of the shooting of Lion’s.⁵

In the pretrial motion, the State declared that the anticipated facts of the case as follow:

During the early morning hours of July 16, 2012, Bryan Rivers, Julius Brown, Appellant Ryan Deleston and others left Defendant's house in the Ardmore area to find someone to rob. They made their way downtown where George Brown's gun was used by Rivers and Defendant to rob a couple walking near Rutledge Avenue. The two stole the woman's purse but did not get any cash.

⁵ At trial, Rivers did in fact testify and he confirmed that he had the murder weapon earlier that night when they robbed the couple. R.p. 259, l. 6- p. 262, l. 18, Tr.p. 479, l. 6- p. 482, l. 18. (“I had the gun”).

The crew left downtown and discussed robbing the Famous Joe's bar in the West Ashley area of Charleston County. As they approached Ardmore, they pulled through the Famous Joe's and continued to discuss the Famous Joe's robbery.

Shortly before 4 AM, Defendant, Rivers and Julius Brown walked down the street with plans to rob Famous Joe's employees as they left the bar with money. They were staking-out the area as Marley Lion pulled into the parking lot of Famous Joe's. Lion was concerned that he had too much to drink so he parked his white Nissan Pathfinder and climbed into the backseat to "sleep it off."

Within 10 minutes of Marley's climbing in the backseat, a surveillance video shows Julius Brown walking at a fast pace by Marley's car in the parking lot. The video shows that approximately 12 minutes later, Defendant approached the car and appeared to attempt to open the door to the backseat. When Marley's car alarm sounded, Defendant backed out of camera view for several seconds then re-approached the car and began shooting. In all, he struck Marley 5 of the 6 times he shot at Marley.

An investigation ensued and Defendant, Rivers and Julius Brown were developed as suspects. An undercover operation secured the purchase of the murder weapon from the Defendant. As a result of the undercover operation, George Brown gave information that Julius Brown, Rivers and Appellant were involved in Marley's murder. Upon his arrest, Defendant gave a statement implicating Julius Brown, Rivers and himself-- though he claimed Rivers was the trigger man. Since their own guilty pleas, Julius Brown and Rivers have confirmed their own involvement in the attempted armed robbery of Marley Lion after the Joe's plan fell through. They confirm that the Defendant shot Marley Lion using George Brown's firearm. Julius Brown and Rivers also admitted their involvement in the robbery of the couple downtown. According to both of them, Rivers used the same George Brown firearm that later was used to kill Lion.

State's Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 1-3. R. p. 866-868.

Pertinent to this question, the prosecution pointed to the "Chopper" shooting evidence that they initially sought to exclude:

Julius Brown, George Brown and Rivers also revealed that the Marley Lion murder weapon was used on June 1, 2012, by Rivers and another man (Valentino Heyward) when they robbed and shot Leroy "Chopper" Townsend. Chopper survived. According to all of them, Chopper is a drug dealer who they knew would have cash. Furthermore, Rivers had disliked Chopper for years. They rode with George Brown in his SUV to an area where they had created a ruse in which Chopper believed he was meeting someone to buy drugs at an apartment. When Chopper came out of the apartment, Rivers and Heyward robbed him of $1300 and Rivers shot Chopper with George Brown's gun.

State's Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 1-3. R. p. 866-868.

In the motion, the prosecution relied up the recent decision in State v. Cope, 405 S.C. 317, 343, 748 S.E.2d 194, 208 (2013) in which the defense attempted to put in evidence other crimes committed by James Sanders to support an assertion the Sanders had acted alone in the instant case without Cope. The Court concluded the trial judge was correct in excluding the evidence because they were not similar enough to the charged crime. As noted in Cope, “a close degree of similarity is required.”

In their initial analysis as to why the “Chopper” shooting should be excluded, the prosecution’s motion asserted that the Chopper robbery did not fall within the State v. Lyle exceptions of motive, identity, common scheme, the absence of mistake or accident or intent. The state asserted that the defense had no need to show these items because “[P]roving that Bryan Rivers used the murder weapon a full two-weeks prior does not prove his identity as the shooter, and the facts of the two cases are so wildly different that there is no common scheme or plan and it does not establish identity (it is not a "signature" crime).” State’s Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 5. R. p. 870. Although it conceded that the evidence of the Chopper shooting was clear and convincing, its probative value was outweighed by the prejudicial effect. As the State asserted (and showed), the defense was able to show that Bryan Rivers used the murder weapon in an armed robbery downtown Charleston within hours of Lion’s murder which was part of the res gestae of the Lion killing. In their motion the State asserted that the temporal proximity of the various crimes was critical:

The State’s and Defendant’s evidence will also show that the murder weapon actually belonged to George Brown. Others’ access to the murder weapon will be obvious throughout the trial. The real and obvious reason that the Defendant seeks to introduce the robbery and shooting of Chopper is an attempt to prove that Rivers’ acted in “conformity therewith” and, therefore, must have killed Marley Lion. This use of other bad acts is strictly prohibited by the Rule, even if offered in exculpation by a Defendant. The admission of this evidence is highly prejudicial to the state and the victim in this case and under Rule 403, SCRE, the evidence should be excluded.

State's Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 6. R. p. 871. The prosecution asserted that the evidence was remote in time and would only cast clumsy aspersions that Rivers was the triggerperson. As stated therein, Deleston was not prejudiced by the exclusion of the Chopper shooting because there will be ample testimony that the gun did not belong to Appellant and others had ample access to the gun, including by Rivers during the robbery hours earlier.

In the motion, consistent with Cope, the State attached a summary of the similarities and differences between the crimes. State's Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 8. R. p. 873.

State's Motion in Limine Re Reverse 404(B) Evidence, p. 8. R.p. 873. ⁶

The Motion Hearing

During the preliminary motions before Judge Harrington, the State made its argument as to why the potential evidence should be excluded consistent with their motion. R.p. 3– 6, Tr.p. 124-127. Solicitor Wilson noted the argument was undercut by the fact that Rivers used the gun an hour before the Lions shooting. R.p. 4, Tr.p. 125. The solicitor argued that if there is a need

⁶ The defense responded to the motion on October 7, 2013. He contended that the evidence was admissible as “third party guilt” as well as Rule 404(b). He contends that the admission of the Chopper shooting showed facts “inconsistent with [the defendant’s] own guilt . . . and raises a reasonable inference or presumption as to . . . a defendant’s own innocence”, citing State v. Gregory, supra. Defense Response to State Motion, p. 3. R.p. 879. He contends that other crime standard for third party guilt should be a lower standard for admissibility. Defense Response to State Motion, p. 3. R.p. 879. The defense asserted that it must be reversible error to exclude evidence that Bryan Rivers was serially committing similar crimes at the time of the offense at issue in participated in the offense. Defense Response to State Motion, p. 6-7. R. p. 882-883. The defense further asserted that there was a sufficient similarity between the Chopper shooting and the liens shooting where he contends that the crimes were plan by the same individuals that there was a common plan to rob an individual which was executed under their theory by Bryan Rivers in the same manner to rob an individual at gunpoint and with the same weapon during the nighttime. The appellant further asserted in the motion that the two-week time difference does not preclude admission of other act evidence under Lyle. He contends that the admission of evidence of Rivers’ other crimes is relevant evidence of intent and the identity of the person who really shot Lion’s. He asserts that they passage of a mere 2 weeks did not make the June 1 shooting so remote to preclude them from being a common plan or scheme. Finally he contends that unlike Cope, the evidence was not being offered against a codefendant’s rights on trial were trying to be protected. Defense Response to State Motion, p. 6-7. R.p. 882-883.

to show that someone else had used the murder weapon other than Deleston, the Defense has an armed robbery that occurred about one hour prior to the shooting using the same weapon. The solicitor claimed the two shootings were nothing alike. She stated that Chopper was someone who was known by Bryan Rivers and the other codefendants. She asserted that they had set out to rob Chopper whereas “Marley Lion just happened to be in the wrong place and the wrong time” and were not the “intended target.” She contend that George Brown drove the men to the Chopper shooting while the men walked to Famous Joe’s the night of the Marley Lion shooting. [R.p. 5, ll 1-20, Tr. 126, 11. 1-20.]. Additionally, the solicitor claims that the evidence is more prejudicial than it is probative. She opined that was not probative because it was nothing like the shooting of Marley Lion. [R.p. 5, l. 21 – p. 6, l. 1., Tr. 126, 1. 21 – p. 127, 1. 1.].

The defense contended that this does not reach the Lyle analysis because it is evidence of 3rd party guilt. They asserted that the evidence of the Chopper shooting was evidence that somebody else use this weapon in the very same manner as it was used in the liens shooting and that it showed that somebody else was the shooter in the Lion murder as third party guilt evidence. Ignoring “the hand of one hand of all” theory of the State, the defense urged that he should be entitled to present a defense because he did not do this and that somebody else was the triggerman. R.p. 6, Tr.p. 127. The defense opined that the evidence was probative that somebody else committed the murder, did not prejudice anyone and was only probative of Deleston’s innocence. He additionally contended that due process should allow him to present a defense saying that he was not the shooter and that it is more likely than not that Bryan was the shooter due to the earlier incident.

Solicitor Wilson responded that you have to look at the relevance of their request and that just because another armed robbery took place 2 weeks before does not automatically make it probative in this particular case. She pointed out that in the June 1 shooting the evidence would be that Chopper was called on the telephone told to be at a certain place under the ruse of buying drugs and there he was ambushed, robbed, and shot. She noted this is nothing like the shooting of Marley. It was her contention that under the defense analysis every armed robbery would involve a plan to hold someone at gunpoint, which is what armed robbery is, and that is not a sufficient similarity to allow the admission. However, the defendant cannot be prejudiced when there will evidence that the crimes that night began with a gun in Bryan Rivers' hand committing an armed robbery before Marley Lion attempted robbery. R.p. 11, Tr.p. 132. See also, R.p. 12-16, Tr.p. 133-137.

The Trial Court's Rulings.

Judge Harrington ruled to exclude the admission of the Chopper shooting by the defense. In its pertinent part, she stated in denying the admission under Rule 404(b):

Rivers' armed robbery and the shooting of Leroy "Chopper" Townsend and the Marley Lion attempted armed robbery and shooting are not sufficiently similar, based upon the testimony that has been presented, to prove a common scheme or plan. The Chopper shooting involved a victim that was known and targeted by the assailants. The assailants created a ruse to lure him out of his apartment.

The Marley Lion shooting involved a victim of circumstance who was unknown to the assailants. While there was bad blood, according to testimony, of the chart that was given, between the victim and the assailants, there was no bad blood between the victim and the assailants in the Marley Lion murder.

The victim in the Chopper shooting was a 30-year-old African male, while Marley Lion was a 17-year-old white male. In the Chopper shooting, the victim was shot once, was forced to strip and received a minor injury. Marley Lion was shot five times fatally. In the Chopper shooting, they were driven to the crime scene.

In the current case, the assailants walked to the crime scene. And Rivers' partner in Rodney Chopper was Valentino Hayward. Other partners in the attempted robbery of Marley Lion's were Rivers, Deleston, and Brown. Finally, the Chopper shooting occurred at 9:30 at an apartment complex. Marley Lion was killed at approximately 4:00 a.m. in the parking lot of a business.

The similarities between the two shootings and the fact that the gun used belonged to George Brown, and that Rivers was present at that crime scene, accordingly, Rivers' prior bad act of shooting Chopper is not sufficiently similar to the shooting of Marley Lion to qualify for the common scheme or plan under Rule 404(b).

Judge Harrington next addressed the issue concerning excluding the evidence under third party guilt.

As to the issue involving third-party guilt, the rule governing the admissibility of the evidence under third-party guilt doctrine provides that evidence offered by the accused as to the commission of the crime by another person must be limited to such facts that are inconsistent with his own guilt and to such facts as raise a reasonable inference of presumption as to his own innocence. Evidence that has no other fact other than to cast a suspicion upon another or to raise a conjectural inference as to the commission of the crime is not admissible. The evidence of third-party guilt may include facts that are inconsistent with the Defendant's guilt and evidence raising a reasonable inference as to the accused innocent.

⁷ Solicitor Wilson clarified that George Brown drove Deleston, Julius Brown and Rivers to the apartment complex where the Chopper shooting took place, along with Valentino Heyward. She stated that Tino and Rivers were the ones that actually did the robbery of Chopper and Rivers is actually the man who shot Chopper. R.p. 24, l. 1-10, Tr.p. 214, l. 1-10. Further, Solicitor Wilson clarified that in the Lion case, an hour before the (Lion) robbery, an attempted robbery, George Brown drove the perpetrators through a parking lot and they went home. Brown's truck stayed at the location. At some point after that the Appellant, Bryan Rivers, and Julius Brown discussed looking for people to rob and then walked the third of a mile down to Joe's where Marley interrupted the employees leaving. Solicitor Wilson clarifies that this meant George Brown did not drive anyone to the Lion robbery, unlike the Chopper case when he did drive them to the apartment. R.p. 24, l. 1-24, Tr.p. 214, l. 1-24.

The evidence, again, to be sought by the Defendant's Motion to -- to Include Third-Party Guilt Evidence does not pass the same for admissibility. The evidence in question exceeds the scope of the facts that are inconsistent with his own guilt. It does not pertain to the commission of the crime currently before this Court or the Defendants involved in it whatsoever.

Despite his contention that – despite Deleston's contention that Bryan Rivers was the shooter and that Bryan Rivers used the same weapon used in the submission of the crime currently before this Court, I do not find that the Defendant states a sufficient factual basis to cast more than a mere suspicion upon a third party. I find that the introduction of this evidence would also amount to solely a conjectural inference as to commission of a crime by third party.

And I find that the evidence sought to be admitted is inadmissible as it pertains to the third-party guilt of Bryan Rivers. Again, noting your exception to my ruling.

The next morning, the defense pursued a ruling on the exclusion of the Chopper evidence under their due process argument. Counsel Pennington noted that in their response to the State's motion, they had also included a chart purporting to show similarities in the two crimes. R.p. 28-29, Tr.p. 224-225. Counsel Pennington noted that Rivers would testify that he was the shooter in the June 1 incident and that it is the same gun that was used by him later on the night of this incident against two victims. He contended that this supports identity and intent and is consistent with targeting individuals in the nighttime at gunpoint.

Judge Harrington opined that the Appellant's due process arguments were addressed in her earlier orders. R.p. 30-31, Tr.p. 226-227.

The Trial Evidence Concerning "Chopper" Townsend's Shooting

During the trial, further discussion occurred about the Chopper incident prior to the testimony of Julius Brown. The State made a court exhibit the full incident report about the Chopper shooting. Court Exhibit 5. The State called Julius Brown in camera who testified concerning the Chopper shooting. R.p. 125-143, Tr.p. 329-347. In direct, he testified that Julius Brown, Rayshawn Milligan, Ryan Deleston, George Brown and Valentino went to where Chopper was. R.p. 125-126, Tr.p. 329-330. He stated that Chopper was a drug dealer known by Rivers and the witness and had bought drugs from him before. R.p. 126, Tr.p. 330. Julius recalled that George Brown drove them to Andrews Garden Apartments. He was aware that they decided they were going to rob Chopper that day. Valentino in Bryan Rivers was supposed to do the robbery. Julius Brown stated that George, Rayshawn and Deleston stayed in the truck and could not see the robbery take place. After they had let out Tino and Bryan Rivers, he next saw them running from the apartment and got in the car with them. Julius Brown testified that around $1300 was taken from Chopper and the six of them split it up between them. R.p. 129-130, Tr.p. 333-334. Julius Brown testified that he did not see who shot Chopper. R.p. 130, Tr.p. 334.

During the in camera cross-examination, Julius Brown testified that he had not been charged with the robbery of LeRoy Townsend. He stated that it was something that was planned and agreed that Deleston actually knew there were going over the Saint Andrews Garden Apartments to commit a robbery. R.p. 138, l. 17-19, Tr.p. 342, l. 17-19. He stated that when Rivers and Tino got out they were carrying the same pistol that was later used to shoot Marley Lion. R.p. 139, Tr.p. 343. He also stated that it was in the nighttime and that they had approached Mr. Townsend on foot with the plan to rob him at gunpoint. He described Bryan and Tino returning to the Shires where they had parked and initially ran past the truck because the police had come through. R.p. 141, Tr.p. 345. He stated the plan was always that they would provide the transportation, which they did. R.p. 143, Tr.p. 347.⁸

During Julius Brown's trial testimony before the jury, he confirmed that that they had agreed to "hit a lick" and drove in George's car with Bryan Rivers and Ryan Deleston in the backseat (on the night of Marley's shooting). R.p. 173, Tr. 378. He stated that they had George Brown's gun to use which they carried around often. R.p. 173, Tr.p. 378. He stated that they spotted a boy and girl who were walking. He stated that Rivers and Deleston got out and Bryan had the gun. R.p. 175, Tr.p. 380. He saw Bryan Rivers point the gun and get the pocketbook from the couple. R.p. 175-176, Tr.p. 380-381. At that time he said while Bryan ran back to the ⁸ Solicitor Wilson stated that she did not have anything further to add to the arguments other than if the court were to reconsider its position, this witness does not have enough facts about the shooting itself independently about who shot. R.p. 143, l. 17-23, Tr.p. 347, l. 17-23.

Counsel Pennington stated that he understood Bryan Rivers would be called that afternoon. He stated that he desired to cross-examine Rivers about an interview with Detective Osborne when Rivers was asked about his involvement in the robbery at St. Andrews Garden Apartments with Tino. Pennington stated that Rivers denied involvement, which was not truthful. Counsel Pennington stated he sought to use that to show when Rivers needed to rely he knew how to lie. He also stated that with regards to a follow-up conversation that Rivers had on July 30 and 31, he admitted that on June 1 he rode along with a preplanned robbery of Mr. Townsend, that he got $1300 in cash and drugs, that he used the Marley Lion murder weapon to rob Townsend, that he shot Townsend in the leg, that it was George Brown's gun, that is not been charged with this arm robbery pursuant to his proffer agreement, and that he is also not been charged with attempted armed robbery pursuant to the agreement. R.p. 145, l. 1-11, Tr.p. 349, l. 1-11.

Solicitor Wilson stated that she took issue with the assertion that Rivers not being charged with the Chopper shooting was not pursuant to any agreement with the Solicitor's office. She stated that their agreement was only that they could not use Rivers words against him and that they could make a case from other folks against them and that he does not have immunity from that prosecution. R.p. 145, Tr.p. 349. See also, R.p. 243-244, Tr.p. 451-452. Solicitor Wilson reaffirmed that even the limited testimony of Julius Brown shows the stark difference between the Chopper shooting and the Lion shooting. R.p. 146, Tr.p. 350. Counsel Pennington renewed his objection concerning the Chopper shooting proffer. R.p. 146-147, Tr.p. 350-351.

car, Deleston walked the other way and they met Deleston at McDonalds after he called George to pick him up there. R.p. 176, Tr.p. 381.⁹

He stated that next plan was to rob Famous Joe's, which the appellant had discussed robbing before. Julius testified that they drove through the parking area and then Julius told Ryan he did not think it was a good idea. R.p. 179, Tr.p. 384. Julius Brown said the gun was under the driver's side mat after Bryan gave it to George. Julius testified that when they got back to Cashew, Deleston wanted to go back and check out Famous Joe's again. Julius stated that he was to be the lookout in the wonder robbed them was going to be the appellant. R.p.181, Tr. p. 386. Julius recalled the George gave the list and the gun before they left and he put it inside his pants on his hip. R.p. 181, l. 12-13, Tr.p. 386, l. 12-13. He stated that he walked down to Famous Joe's with Rivers and the appellant. The plan was to wait for the people inside Joe's to come out with the moneybag. He stated that Rivers role was also to be a lookout. R.p.182, Tr.p. 387.

Julius testified there was a discussion and a decision was made to change the plan after Marley Lion pulled up into the area. He said Deleston was going to try to see what Marley had. R.p. 183-184, Tr.p. 388-389. He stated that he later then saw Deleston and Bryan discussing who was going to do what and passing the gun back and forth. R.p. 187-188, Tr.p. 392-393. Julius testified that he then saw Deleston approach Marley's truck and tell him to open the door and Marley set off the alarm, which caused him to run back. At that time Julius testified he told the appellant to “bust the window” and Deleston turned back around and started shooting. R.p. 188, Tr.p. 393. He stated after the appellant shot five times he took off running. R.p. 189, Tr.p. 394. When they got back to Cashew Street, both Julius and Rivers cursed at Deleston for shooting for nothing. Deleston stated that he thought Julius had told him to shot. R.p.192, Tr.p. 397. Julius confirmed that Exhibit 23 was the gun used to kill Marley Lion owned by George Brown and that Deleston had it and that it was used by Bryan Rivers that date to rob the couple. R.p. 212, Tr.p. 417. Julius confirms that on the video he is telling Deleston with the white shoes and striped shirt to bust the window. R.p. 213-214, Tr.p. 418-419.

On cross-examination, Julius confirms that Rivers got out with the gun to rob the couple and that Ryan had gone away from the robbery. R.p. 223, Tr.p. 440.

At the conclusion of the cross-examination, counsel Pennington renewed his request to go further, implicitly concerning the Chopper case. The court denied the motion. R.p. 240, Tr.p. 447. There was a further discussion about no further need to proffer Rivers testimony concerning the Chopper incident. R.p. 243-244, Tr.p. 451-452.

Bryan Rivers testified about his involvement in the couple’s robbery and the Marley Lion incident. He stated he was involved in the shooting of Marley Lion with Julius Brown, George Brown and Ryan Deleston. R.p. 246-247, Tr.p. 466-467. He testified that he pled guilty to voluntary manslaughter for the killing of Marley Lion because the hand of one is a hand of all. R.p. 255, Tr.p. 475. He testifies on that night that he went downtown with Deleston, Julius, George, and Rayshawn looking for robberies to be done with George Brown’s gun. He stated that he had seen a couple that looked like they had been drinking which would be a good target.

He thought George spotted them first and they pulled over in part. He stated that George gave him the gun and that he and Deleston got out. Although the appellant was supposed to help him, Rivers thought he did not help him and that he walked the other way. Rivers stated that he approach the couple and held them at gunpoint and the female victim gave her purse to him. R.p. 260-261, Tr.p. 480-481.

He stated that he later picked up the appellant when they ran into him at McDonalds. R.p. 263, Tr.p. 483. Then, they drove around and scoped out the scene at Famous Joe's parking lot. Rivers stated that everybody was planning to rob the people coming out of Joe's. R.p. 264, l. 9-11, Tr.p. 484, l. 9-11. He stated in on this planning was himself, Deleston, Julius and George. Because they did not see anybody in the parking lot, Rivers thought that gave them the idea to continue with the robbery. R.p. 265, Tr.p. 485. They returned to Cashew Street and then Rivers left with Deleston and Julius. R.p. 265, Tr.p. 485. Rivers stated that they walked and that Deleston had the gun he had gotten from George Brown. R.p. 266, Tr.p. 486. Rivers stated that after the earlier robbery, he had given the gun back to George Brown. He saw that Deleston had the gun before they left for Famous Joe's because he tucked it under waistline. R.p. 267, Tr.p. 487. Deleston had on a striped shirt. R.p. 267, l. 2-22, Tr.p. 487, l. 2-22.

Rivers stated he saw Marley Lion pull up while the employees were leaving. R.p. 269, Tr.p. 489. The big fish money was leaving according to Rivers. He stated that Julius check out the scene while Deleston had the gun. Rivers stated that Deleston tried to pass the gun to him, but he pushed it back. R.p. 270-271, Tr.p. 490-491. Also R.p. 309-310, Tr.p. 529-530. He said his attention was not to rob the boy, but to get the person with the bag coming out of Joe's. R.p. 270-271, Tr.p. 490-491. He told Deleston to go ahead. R.p. 271; R.p. 310, Tr.p. 491; Tr.p. 530.

("to rob Marley Lion"). He described Deleston walking up to the window and knocking on it and the alarm went off. R.p. 271, Tr.p. 491. Deleston then initially ran back towards them and Rivers heard Julius say "get him" to continue with the robbery, but not as to shot the man. R.p. 272, Tr.p. 492. However, instead of robbing the man, the appellant started shooting the man about 5 times. Rivers stated he knew that the appellant hit him because the way the victim was yelling and screaming. At that point he turned and started running. He also thought the appellant turned and start running also and caught up with them. On the way back Deleston hid the gun under a pool. R.p. 274, Tr.p. 494. Rivers confirmed to this on the video of the crime scene. R.p. 282-283, Tr. 502-503. Rivers admitted that he was wearing all black and testified that Appellant was wearing a striped shirt and white sneakers called Willie Dee's. [R.p. 261, ll. 9-12; Tr. 267, ll. 1-17, Tr. 481, ll. 9-12; Tr. 487, ll. 1-17.]

On cross-examination, Rivers confirmed he had the weapon earlier that night and robbed the woman of her purse. R.p. 293, Tr. 513. As to the second robbery, Rivers testified that he did not know the appellant was going to do something like that. R.p. 297, Tr. 517.

At the conclusion of Rivers's examination, counsel Pennington renewed his motion pursuant to the motion in limine. R.p. 308-309, Tr. 528-529.¹⁰

¹⁰ George Brown, the gun owner, testified consistently with Julius and Rivers. He testified that during the first robbery that he had the gun in his vehicle and gave it to Rivers. R.p.457, Tr.p. 686. After the robbery of the couple, Rivers returned with the purse. He stated that Deleston had gotten out with Rivers, but they had split up. He said Deleston called him on his cellphone and they picked him up at the McDonald's. R.p.458-459, Tr.p. 687-688. After they returned to Cashew Street after casing out Famous Joe's, George stated he did not want to be part of robbing Joe's. However, he stated that Rivers had returned the gun to him after the first robbery, but gave it to Deleston who put it in his waistband when he left. R.p. 462-463, Tr.p. 691-692. He saw Deleston, Rivers and Julius leave. When they returned, they were made with Deleston. R.p.463-464, Tr.p. 692-693. George stated he did not know what happened but

The state subsequently introduced the video of the Appellant's statements the next day, reflecting a change in strategy. On the day of his arrest, Appellant was interviewed twice. In the morning interview, he denied involvement in the crime. State Exhibit 29 (9:48-9:54, 10:59 - 11:03, 2:19-2:20, 2:49). In the evening interview, State Exhibit 30, he initially named "Tino" as the perpetrator. State Exhibit 30 (8:00:12). Subsequently, in the interview, he named Bryan Rivers as the person who shot Marley Lion. State Exhibit 30 (8:16:25). He admits being with Rivers and Julius and described how it occurred. State Exhibit 30 (8:16 - 8:30). He claimed that Julius and Rivers were the ones who went up to rob the employees of Famous Joe's but then decided to rob Marley. He "identified Julius Brown as the person walking across in front of . . . Marley Lion's vehicle, and said that Bryan Rivers had the firearm and went up to the vehicle and shot into the vehicle." R.p. 756, l. 23- p. 759, l. 1, Tr. 1010, l. 23 - p. 1013, l. 1. State Exhibit 30. Deleston also stated at some point during the event at Joe's, Rivers gave the gun to him and wanted him to go up to the car but he did not want any part of it and gave the gun back to Rivers. State Exhibit 30 (8:17 - 8:30).

At the conclusion of the state's case, counsel Pennington renewed his motion to thoroughly cross-examine witnesses in relation to the prior shooting of Chopper, although never mentioning similar evidence had been presented through the statement, nor rely upon SCRE Rule gleaned that Ryan had shot someone because he came back and washed his hands. R.p. 465, Tr.p. 694. George learned the next day that someone had been killed from the news. R.p. 467, Tr.p. 696. When he viewed the footage, George Brown identifies Deleston as the shooter from the video he viewed. R.p. 467-468, Tr. p. 696-697. He described the person as wearing the clothes that appellant had on that day and he had the physical characteristics of Deleston, as opposed to Rivers (too skinny). R.p.468-469, Tr.p. 697-698. State Exhibit 1 (Video). R.p. 469, l. 9-10, Tr.p. 698, l. 9-10. Detective Osborne testifies that Deleston fit the description of the shooting on the video, not Julius or Rivers. R.p. 611-615, Tr.p. 857-861. State Exhibit 1 (Mantek Video).

611. R.p. 769, l. 4-6, Tr.p. 1039, l. 4-6. The Court denied the motion asserting that it had heard nothing to change its ruling. R.p. 770, Tr.p. 1040.

In his defense closing argument, counsel Pennington urges the jury to accept that Rivers was the shooter. The factors he points out are that Bryan had the gun that night, he had the gun earlier that day at Shawn Turner's video production and was waving it around,¹¹ that Rivers was the gunman during the robbery on Rutledge Avenue when Deleston walked away. R.p. 808-809, Tr.p. 1091-1092. He also described the tip that the police had received from Leroy Townsend that Bryan was involved in the shooting. R.p. 812, Tr.p. 1095.¹² In addition, counsel Pennington argued that Appellant was not wearing black or a striped shirt when he is stopped riding the bicycle shortly after the crime. R.p. 813, Tr.p. 1096.¹³ However, counsel stated that "we're not disputing that Ryan was out there as a part of a plan to do a robbery of Marley." R.p. 823, Tr.p. 1106, l. 2-4. Counsel also thought a moment of revelation during the examination of Rivers was when the question was asked about what set off the alarm and whether it was set off by Lion. R.p. 825, Tr.p. 1108.¹⁴ Counsel claimed that this proved that he was close enough to see the cell phone light. Id. Counsel further asserted that he indicated that his involvement in trying to hide the pistol. R.p. 826, Tr.p. 1109. Counsel described that the Appellant's statement was what really happened and that it was unforeseeable and did not fit the plan. R.p. 829, Tr.p. 1112. After the verdict, counsel renewed his motions, which were denied. Tr.p. 1148-49.

Evidence of the "Chopper Shooting" did not pertain to the commission of the crime involving the death of Marley Lion and thus was not admissible under a "third party guilt" theory.

The third party guilt claim is a "red herring" in this case. Contrary to the bare assertion by the Petitioner, the evidence of the Chopper shooting is not inconsistent with his guilt for the Marley Lion shooting. The additional evidence actually supports the culpability of Deleston in the Lion shooting as being involved in the violent incident with knowledge and foreseeability. A new trial on this claim is without merit. Deleston contends that he was entitled to present the evidence of the Chopper shooting by Rivers as evidence of third party guilt of Rivers in Lion's death.

The foundation of his claim is that the Townsend evidence only suggests that at the Lion crime, only Rivers possessed the weapon rather than Deleston. However, this assertion does not absolve Deleston of his criminal culpability in Lion's death. There was no dispute at the trial that Rivers was involved in the attempted robbery of Lion that led to his death. In fact, Rivers admitted his personal guilt to the jury under hand of one hand of all and that he had pled guilty to the Lion crime. R. 255, Also ROA pp. 246-247, 269-282, 297. Under the state's version, although it could prove that Deleston was the triggerperson in Marley's death, under the theory of "hand of one hand of all," Deleston would have been guilty, even if Rivers shot the weapon because he had been a participant in the crime.¹⁵ In fact, the defense acknowledged in their closing argument that “Ryan was out there as a part of the plan to do a robbery of Marley.” R.p. 823, Tr.p. 1106. “Third party guilt” therefore was not at issue in the case. To the contrary, the Petitioner also ignores that as to the Chopper Townsend shooting, Deleston would have been as guilty as Rivers of the Chopper crime even though he was not the triggerperson but was involved in the planning, went to the scene, and although he remained in the vehicle he shared in the proceeds. As recognized in the Court of Appeals opinion, the rule for the admissibility of evidence of third party guilt comes from State v. Gregory, 198 S.C. 98, 16 S.E.2d 532 (1941). In Gregory, our Supreme Court stated:

[T]he evidence offered by accused as to the commission of the crime by another person must be limited to such facts as are inconsistent with his own guilt, and to such facts as raise a reasonable inference or presumption as to his own innocence; evidence which can have no other effect than to cast a bare suspicion upon another, or to raise a conjectural inference as to the commission of the crime by another, is not admissible. . . . But before such testimony can be received, there must be such proof of connection with it, such a train of facts or circumstances, as tends clearly to point out such other person as the guilty party. Remote acts, disconnected and outside the crime itself, cannot be separately proved for such a purpose.

198 S.C. at 104-105, 16 S.E.2d at 534-535 (internal citations omitted). In Gregory, the Supreme Court held evidence of third-party guilt that only tends to raise a conjectural inference that the third party, rather than the defendant, committed the crime should be excluded. 198 S.C. at 105, 16 S.E.2d at 534. See 20 Am.Jur. Evidence § 265 (1939)); State v. Burgess, 391 S.C. 15, 23, 703 S.E.2d 512, 517 (Ct.App.2010) (accord).

The evidence of Bryan Rivers’ involvement with the Chopper shooting coupled with the evidence that he robbed a couple at gunpoint hours before the Marley Lion shooting does not

Tr.p. 1127, l. 10-17), mere presence (R.p. 844, l. 18-23, Tr.p. 1127, l. 18-23), and “the act of one is the act of all.” R.p. 845, l. 8- p. 845, l. 2, Tr.p. 1128, l. 8 – p. 1130, l. 2.

“tend[s] clearly to point” to Rivers as the individual who approached Marley Lion’s car, attempted to rob him, and shot into his car. It ignores the fact that Petitioner was also involved. It ignores the fact that Petitioner conceded in his statement that he was present and aware of the intended robbery. It ignores that fact that proof of earlier possession by Rivers of the weapon is not inconsistent with Petitioner’s guilt for the crime of murder. Petitioner failed to show that there was a clear “train of facts or circumstances” between all three known armed robberies – the Townsend shooting two weeks before, the admitted robbery of the couple by Rivers, and the Lion robbery and shooting on the same date.

Although the similar perpetrators were involved and the same gun used, the Chopper shooting differs greatly from the circumstances surrounding the Marley Lion shooting and the armed robbery of the couple downtown. The shooting of Leroy “Chopper” Townsend was one that was targeted and involved “bad blood.” The armed robbery of the couple downtown and the attempted robbery and shooting of Marley Lion were both acts toward random victims who the codefendants did not know.

The trial court’s holding that the “evidence in question exceeds the scope of the facts that are inconsistent with his [Petitioner’s] own guilt [and] does not pertain to the commission of the crime currently before this Court” was not an abuse of discretion. The evidence of the Chopper would only cast “a mere suspicion upon a third party” and “the introduction of this evidence would . . . amount to solely conjectural inference as to commission of a crime by [a] third party.” [R.p. 26, l. 7- p. 27, l. 16, Tr. 216, l. 7-p. 217, l. 16.]. Under the discrete circumstances of the case where the proffered evidence was not inconsistent with Petitioner’s guilt, a new trial is not warranted.

Deleston's Due Process Right to Present a Complete Defense was not violated by the initial exclusion of the evidence in cross-examination when similar evidence was presented, Deleston failed to recall the witnesses after the door was opened by the admission of similar evidence and any error was harmless.

The Petitioner finally asserts that his constitutional right to present a defense was violated by the trial court's failure to allow him to put in evidence that Rivers possessed the murder weapon and shot Townsend two weeks before in a robbery in which Deleston actually has assisted and shared the proceeds. The Constitution guarantees "a meaningful opportunity to present a complete defense," Crane v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 683, 690, 106 S.Ct. 2142, 90 L.Ed.2d 636 (1986) (quotation marks omitted), but "not an unlimited right to ride roughshod over reasonable evidentiary restrictions," Rockwell v. Yukins, 341 F.3d 507, 512 (6th Cir.2003) (en banc). The right to present a complete defense - including the purported third-party culpability defense raised here - thus does not mean that a defendant may introduce whatever evidence he wishes, only that any state-law evidentiary restrictions cannot be "arbitrary" or "disproportionate to the purposes they are designed to serve." Holmes v. South Carolina, 547 U.S. 319, 325-26, 126 S.Ct. 1727, 164 L.Ed.2d 503 (2006).

Here, the defense was allowed to explore the fact that Rivers had possessed the murder weapon prior to the Lion incident. R. p 293. The assertion that Rivers had possessed the murder weapon in an armed robbery immediately prior to the Lion killing was an uncontested fact. R. 260-261. The robbery of the couple just two hours before was documented throughout the trial by evidence from each of the perpetrators - Julius Brown, Bryan Rivers, George Brown, and the victim. R.175-176, 260-61, 457-458, 702-704, In addition, evidence was presented that during the day before the two robberies, Rivers was waving a gun at the video shoot. R. 535-536. Further, Rivers conceded that prior to Lion's killing he had a discussion with Petitioner where they attempted to pass the gun between each, a discussion that was documented within the testimony of Rivers, Julius Brown and Petitioner's own evening statement. R. 270-271. Simply put, the exclusion of the Chopper evidence did not prevent Petitioner from articulating that Rivers had used the weapon in a robbery, a robbery that in fact had close temporal proximity to the Lion crime.

Petitioner looks to Holmes v. South Carolina, 547 U.S. 319 (2006), to argue that the standard for presenting evidence of third party guilt has been lowered. In Holmes, the defendant "sought to introduce evidence that another man, White, had actually perpetrated the crimes for which he was charged. He proffered several witnesses who testified that White had been in the neighborhood where the crime occurred on that morning. He also presented testimony of witnesses who claimed White had admitted committing the crimes. The evidence that Petitioner wishes to enter creates only the mere suspicion that Rivers may have held the weapon at the time of Lion's death. Unlike Holmes, the evidence that Petitioner wishes to enter here is evidence of a previous crime not directly related to the Marley Lion shooting. The Holmes case involves very different circumstances than our present case.

In Cope, Cope's third party culpability evidence was excluded under the standard rules of admissibility which apply to all evidence by application of Rule 404(b). The attempted showing for using the other act evidence against Sanders was minimally relevant to prove what the defense was seeking it to prove, that Sanders was able to secure entry for his other crimes without a showing of forced entry. The reasoning behind Rule 404(b) is one of relevance balanced against undue prejudice and confusion of the issues. In the state Supreme Court and trial court's reasoning that the other acts were not sufficiently similar, the trial court reasonably applied standards that did not violate the Constitution and thereby did not deprive him of a meaningful defense.

Similarly, the evidence that Rivers had possessed George Brown's gun two weeks before during a robbery that Deleston was a participant was minimally relevant to prove that Rivers possessed the weapon at the Lion robbery, in light of the more temporally probative evidence supporting that defense theory. The exclusion did not undermine his Deleston's right to present a defense. There was extensive evidence presented about Rivers prior possession of weapons during a robbery before the jury. See United States v. Lucas, 357 F.3d 599, 606–07 (6th Cir.2004) (exclusion of third party's prior conviction did not violated defendant's right to present a defense where defendant “was able to explore her theory that [another individual] was in fact the culprit” through other evidence). The Court “may exclude marginally relevant evidence and evidence posing an undue risk of confusion of the issues without offending a defendant's constitutional rights.” United States v. Alayeto, 628 F.3d 917, 922 (7th Cir.2010) (citing Holmes v. South Carolina, 547 U.S. 319, 326–27, 126 S.Ct. 1727, 164 L.Ed.2d 503 (2006)). The trial court did not abuse its discretion in the exclusion. [R.p. 31, ll. 5-10, Tr. 227, 11. 5-10.]. This is particularly true when the evidence to support the common scheme would have supported Deleston' guilt as part of the earlier scheme as well.

Any error in the alleged exclusion was harmless error.

Evidence about the Chopper robbery and shooting by Rivers was developed in the admitted statement of Deleston the evening of July 30 and commented on by the Solicitor in her argument. Evidence that Rivers possessed the weapon within two hours of the Lion shooting was presented, as well as evidence that Petitioner and Rivers were conferencing with each other at the Lion crime on who would have the weapon. There was overwhelming evidence of Petitioner's criminal participation in the Lion incident through the testimony of Julius Brown, the surveillance videos which identified similarities with Deleston as opposed to the other perpetrators, and portions of Petitioner's own statement where he acknowledged involvement in the Lion attempted robbery. Under accomplice liability theory, any alleged error could only be harmless error as to murder.

Under these discrete circumstances, a new trial is not warranted.

II. The Court of Appeals reasonably concluded a new trial is not warranted where the trial court stated during the court's opening remarks that a trial was "a search for the truth in an effort to make sure that justice is done" and the "State has the burden of proving each of the elements beyond a reasonable doubt" when viewing the instructions as a whole in the opening and in final instructions on the law which do not dilute the jury's responsibility to determine whether the State had met its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

A. Further, where no request for a mistrial was made and only a modification of the opening remarks was requested and denied, the issue was not preserved for an appeal where the requested language of the specific modified charge does not appear in the record.

B. Any alleged error in the opening remarks is harmless beyond a reasonable doubt.

During Judge Harrington's opening charge to the jury she used the phrase concerning a trial that "it is a search for the truth in an effort to make you sure that justice is done." In his appeal before this court, the Petitioner contends that this "seek the truth" language was an inaccurate instruction and should require a new trial. He contends that this instruction at the opening of the trial would have allowed the jury to concentrate on evaluating the quality of the evidence in a search for the truth rather than thinking in terms of their actual task of determining whether the state had proved its case beyond a reasonable doubt. He states in his brief before this Court that the South Carolina Supreme Court one year before the trial in Petitioner's case had instructed courts to remove similar language from their instructions which may potentially alter to the jury's perception of the burden of proof, substituting justice and fairness for the presumption of innocence and the State's burden to prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, citing State v. Daniels, 401 S.C. 251, 737 S.E.2d 473 (2012).

As the Petitioner noted in their opening brief, the Supreme Court recently issued an opinion in State v. Beaty, Op. No. 27693, 2016 Westlaw 7474479(S.C.Sup. Ct. filed December 29, 2016). (rehearing pending at time of filing). In Beaty, the Court found that the trial judge's preliminary remarks to the jury, that jury's role was to "search for the truth," determine "true facts," and render a "just verdict," were improper based upon State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 538 S.E.2d 248 (2000). Importantly, and similarly applicable here, the Beaty court concluded: "[A]lthough there was error here, our review of the entirety of the judge's opening comments and the entire trial record convinces us that appellant has not shown prejudice from this error sufficient to warrant reversal," citing State v. Coggins, 210 S.C. 242, 42 S.E.2d 240 (1947) (trial court's choice of words and comments, while not "happy," did not require reversal). See State v. Beaty, No. 2015-000718, 2016 WL 7474479, at *2 (S.C. Dec. 29, 2016).

Respondent respectfully submits that a new trial is not warranted where the opening charge to the jury by Judge Harrington and use of "search for the truth and making sure that justice is done" language viewed with the opening instructions as a whole did not dilute the jury's ultimate sense of responsibility where the jury was specifically told in the opening instructions that the instructions were only intended to serve as an introduction to the trial of the case and that the remarks were not a charge on the law which would be instructed at the close of the trial before the jury retires to consider the verdict. R.p. 35, l. 10-15, Tr. p.231, l. 10-15. Further, the Petitioner's claim is ameliorated by the language stated by Judge Harrington that "the defendant has pled not guilty to this indictment. The state has a burden of proving each of the elements of the indictment beyond a reasonable doubt it is your duty, ladies and gentlemen, to determine whether the State has met that burden." R.p. 36, l. 3-8, Tr. p. 232, l. 3-8. Furthermore, when viewed with the closing instructions to the jury where the burden of proof was fully and properly charged, the Petitioner's claim that the brief mention of seek the truth in the opening charge does not minimize the jury's responsibility to determine if the State met its burden of proof under the instructions as a whole. A new trial is not warranted. See State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 27, 538 S.E.2d 248, 251 (2000) (“[J]ury instructions should be considered as a whole, and if as a whole they are free from error, any isolated portions which may be misleading do not constitute reversible error.”).

The Issue is not preserved because the requested charge is not in the record.

Respondent submits this matter is not preserved for review because the precise language of the requested “modified charge” by counsel Pennington after the objection does not appear in the record. R.p. 73, l. 14-16, Tr.p. 269, l. 14-16. An appellate court will not review the failure to give a requested jury charge where the request to charge does not appear on the record. See Wren v. Kirkland Distrib. Co., 250 S.C. 178, 181–82, 156 S.E.2d 865, 866 (1967) State v. Jenkins, 249 S.C. 570, 155 S.E.2d 624 (1967); State v. Barksdale, 311 S.C. 210, 428 S.E.2d 498 (Ct. App. 1993).

Here, the request at trial that was denied was actually a request for a modified charge and not a request for a new trial. R.p. 73-74, Tr.p. 269-270. At no point was the precise language of the instruction as requested made a part of the record. There is nothing for this Court to act upon concerning the failure to give the requested modification because the particular modification was not stated on the record. The issue must be dismissed for lack of preservation. The Petitioner has the burden of presenting a sufficient record to allow review. State v. Mitchell, 330 S.C. 189, 498 S.E.2d 642 (1998); State v. Hutto, 279 S.C. 131, 303 S.E.2d 90 (1983). Due to the lack of specificity as to the charge Petitioner sought as a modification to the opening remarks, the Court should find no prejudicial error in the trial court's failure to charge the same.

The opening remarks to “seek the truth” were not reversible error.

Respondent agrees that this current case law presented shows a general disfavor for the “seek the truth” language, however, does not require a new trial here where the opening remarks were ameliorated by surrounding instructions and where the closing instructions repeatedly expressed the correct burden of proof and was not burden shifting. Petitioner challenged the fact that Judge Harrington in her opening remarks described a jury trial as a search for the truth, which Petitioner’s trial counsel candidly admitted that he had used himself and heard in other trials. Although the record does not reflect the modified instruction defense counsel sought to have the judge use instead, even if the issue is preserved, a new trial is not warranted.

The central function of the trial process in both criminal and civil cases is to discover the truth. See Portuondo v. Agard, 529 U.S. 61, 73 (2000) (stating “the central function of [a] trial . . . is to discover the truth”); see also State v. Wren, 322 S.C. 103, 105, 470 S.E.2d 111, 112 (Ct. App. 1996) (“A trial is a search for the truth[.]”). As part of the truth-seeking process, the State is constitutionally required to prove a criminal defendant’s guilt for every element of a criminal offense beyond a reasonable doubt. In re Winship, 397 U.S. 358, 364 (1970); see also Burr v. Florida, 474 U.S. 879, 880 (1985) (“[T]he beacon of the truth-seeking process in criminal cases is not absolute certainty, but the ‘reasonable doubt’ standard[.]” (emphasis added)). As a result, it is essential that the trial judge identify the State’s burden of proof to the jury by instructing on the necessity that the defendant’s guilt be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Victor v. Nebraska, 511 U.S. 1, 5 (1994). However, the trial judge must avoid defining reasonable doubt in a manner that could lead the jury to convict on a lesser degree of proof than proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Id. at 22.

Significantly though, this Court has cautioned trial judges to avoid using language that instructs the jury to “seek the truth” due to the risk that such language could potentially shift the burden of proof to the defendant in an unconstitutional manner. State v. Beaty, supra.; State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 27-28, 538 S.E.2d 248, 251 (2000). See also State v. Daniels, 401 S.C. 251, 258, 737 S.E.2d 473, 477 (2012) (Toal, C.J., concurring for the majority). However, the Court has specifically declined to hold any mere mention of “the truth” in jury charges is unconstitutional or require a new trial. See Aleksey, 343 S.C. at 28, n. 2, 538 S.E.2d at 252 (“Although settled law disfavors instructing jurors to seek the truth in some contexts because it might be misleading as to the burden of proof, we decline to hold any mention of ‘the truth’ in jury charges is unconstitutional.”). See State v. Needs, 333 S.C. 134, 508 S.E.2d 857 (1998).

In Deleston’s case, like Beaty, the “truth” language in the opening remarks was not given in conjunction with other “confusing or burden shifting language.” Cf. Needs, supra. (“seek the truth” language is also troublesome when given in conjunction with other confusing or burden shifting language such as a reasonable doubt ‘is a doubt for which you can give a real reason’). The majority in Daniels, like the Court in Aleksey, found that there was not a reasonable likelihood that the jury applied the challenged instruction in a manner inconsistent with the state’s burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Daniels, 401 S.C. 251, 258, 737 S.E.2d 473, 477 (2012)(Toal, C.J., concurring for the majority). Similarly in State v. Aleksey, 343 S.C. 20, 27, 538 S.E.2d 248, 251-253 (2000), the Court held that there was no reasonable likelihood the jury applied trial court’s instructions in an unconstitutional way when an instruction related to witness credibility contained truth seeking language but was “prefaced by a full instruction on reasonable doubt and followed by an additional exhortation to bear in mind the State's heavy burden of proof”).

Like the defendant in Beaty, Petitioner claims that a preliminary instruction of this type is far more harmful than when the same language is used in a closing instruction from the trial court. Petitioner makes a speculative claim that with this preliminary instruction, the jurors throughout the trial were concentrating only on evaluating the quality of the evidence in a search for the truth rather than thinking in terms of their actual straightforward task of determining whether the state was proving its case beyond a reasonable doubt. However, he still ignores that the trial judge also instructed that they were to be guided by the instructions at the conclusion of the case in their decision and that the state’s burden of proof was beyond a reasonable doubt. R.p.35, l. 16- p. 36, l. 8; R.p. 38, l. 11-15, Tr.p. 231, l. 16- p. 232, l. 8; Tr.p. 234, l. 11-15.

Deleston’s further suggests this challenged language would lead to prohibited premature deliberations. Petition, p. 10. Petitioner’s contention that the jury was inappropriately evaluating the evidence as it is presented is defeated by the clear language in the opening remarks of Judge Harrington. She stated her remarks were only an introduction to the trial and not a charge on the law, which would be done at the close of the case. R.p. 35, l. 10-17, Tr.p. 231, l. 10-17. This additional qualification places that challenged language in its proper context. A reasonable juror with these opening remarks would understand that the juror needed to hear all of the evidence before considering whether the state has met its burden of proof, not some speculative on-going premature conclusion about the evidence before the conclusion of the trial.

Petitioner mistakenly argues that the challenged language became the centerpiece of the opening remarks by the trial court. Petitioner highlights language from the opening remarks stating that at the conclusion of the case the jury would be in a position to “render a true and just verdict.” [R.p. 40, ll. 17-22, Tr. 236, ll. 17-22.] Using this language, Petitioner again makes a speculative claim that this reinforced in the jurors’ minds that it was their duty to “seek the truth” and render a “true and just verdict,” rather than do what the Constitution requires, determine if the state met its burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt. However, at no time does he point out the critical fact – the jury was instructed in the opening remarks that “the state has the burden of proving each if the elements beyond a reasonable doubt” and that “it is your duty . . . to determine whether the State has met that burden.” R.p. 36, l. 4-8, Tr.p. 232, l. 4-8. Furthermore, an important salient factor is that the court had earlier stated that it would not tell them the elements of the crimes until the conclusion of that case “at a later time.” R.p. 35, l. 24-25, Tr.p. 231, l. 24-25. Viewing the opening remarks as a whole, a reasonable juror would not interpret it in the manner that Petitioner suggests.

More importantly, his speculation about burden-shifting evaporates when viewed with the actual instructions on the law at the conclusion of the case. First, there was no similar “search for the truth language” included in the actual jury charge at the conclusion of the case. R.p. 833-856, Tr.p. 1116-1139. Further, during the actual instructions on the law, the jury was charged with the presumption of innocence including proof beyond a reasonable doubt (R.p. 836, l. 8 – p. 837, l. 1, Tr. p. 1119, l. 8 – p. 1120, l. 1) and the explanation of the state’s burden of proving defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. R.p. 837, l. 2-21, Tr.p. 1120, l. 2-21. In addition, the jury was charged that the burden of proving the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt

“rests with the state regardless of whether the state relies on direct evidence, circumstantial evidence or some combination of the two.”¹⁶

Concerning accomplice liability, the jury charge included that “the State must prove beyond a reasonable doubt by competent evidence the theory of the hand of one is a hand of all.” R.p. 846, l. 8-12, Tr. page 1129, l. 8-12. The jury was also advised that “intent” must be proved “beyond a reasonable doubt.” R.p. 847, l. 6-9, Tr.p. 1130, l. 6-9.

Judge Harrington then proceeded to charge on each of the elements of the crimes. As to murder, she instructed, “the State must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant killed another with malice aforethought.” R.p. 848, l. 21-24, Tr. p. 1131, l. 21-24. As to attempted armed robbery, Judge Harrington went through each of the elements that “the state must prove.”

Similarly, the jury was instructed concerning evidence of the identification of the defendant as the person who committed the crime, “the state is a burden of proving identity beyond a reasonable doubt. You must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt. You must be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt of the accuracy of the identification of the defendant before you may convict the defendant.” R.p. 843, l. 2-9, Tr. p. 1126, l. 2-9. The jury was additionally reinstructed concerning the fact that “the burden of proof on the state extends to every element of the crime charged and this includes the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt the identity of the defendant as the person who committed or participated in the crime. If after examining the testimony, you have a reasonable doubt as to the accuracy of the identification, you must find the defendant not guilty.” R.p. 844, l. 10-17, Tr. p. 1127, l. 10-17. The jury was also charged concerning mere presence that the burden was on the State to prove every element of the crime charged. R.p. 844, l. 24-25, Tr. p. 1127, l. 24-25. The instruction further required if “the State’s prove the defendant was only present at the scene of the crime and that they had not proved beyond a reasonable doubt any other participation in the crime, then you must find the defendant not guilty.” R.p. 845, l. 2-7, Tr. p. 1128, l. 2-7.

R.p. 850, l. 18 – p 851, l. 9, Tr.p. 1133, l. 18 – p. 1134, l. 9. See e.g. R.p. 850, Tr.p. 1133, l. 24 (“the state must show”); R.p. 851, Tr. p. 1134, l. 9-10 (“the state must prove”); R.p. 851, Tr.p. 1134, l. 15-16 (the State must also prove”); R.p. 852, Tr.p. 1135, l. 2-3 (the State must prove”). As to possession of a handgun with an obliterated serial number that jury was charged the “state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt” the particular elements of that crime. R.p. 852, Tr.p. 1135, l. 10-17. Similarly, the requirement that “the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt” was charged on the particular elements of the crime of possession of a firearm during the commission of a violent crime. R.p. 852, Tr.p. 1135, l. 18- R.p. 853, Tr. p. 1136, l. 7.

Viewing the instructions as a whole, there is no reasonable likelihood that a juror would conclude that the burden of proof was other than upon the state to prove each of the elements beyond a reasonable doubt. Petitioner claims that the judge’s initial instruction to the jury regarding the jury’s function is burden shifting due to the lack of instruction on the duty of the jury to find the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and its emphasis that a criminal trial was a “search for the truth” and also that it was the jury’s “solemn responsibility to determine the guilt or innocence of the Defendant. . .” Contrary to the claim in the Petitioner’s petition for rehearing , even in the opening remarks the jury was advised “the defendant has pled not guilty to this indictment. The State has the burden of proving each of the elements of the indictment beyond a reasonable doubt.” The Petitioner’s claim is grounded upon a misstatement of the record of the opening remarks of Judge Harrington. ¹⁷

¹⁷ Additionally, Petitioner asserts that the judge’s statement to the jury that her opening instructions were not instructions on the law should be disregarded. According to Petitioner, the reality, and not the legal fiction, is that the jury “naturally looks up to the trial judge and expects guidance from her on how they should act and what their responsibility were.” (Petitioner Brief pg. 39-40). Petitioner refers to instruction as giving the antithesis of the jury’s real function

Significantly, the trial judge thoroughly and repeatedly explained to the jury that Petitioner was presumed to be innocent and the State had the burden of proving Petitioner's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt for every element of the indicted offenses before he could be convicted. Furthermore, at no point in his jury instructions did the trial judge suggest to the jury that it was required to "seek" some reasonable explanation of Petitioner's innocence. See State v. Raffaldt, 318 S.C. 110, 115-116, 456 S.E.2d 390, 393 (1995)(finding a jury charge instructing the jury to "seek some reasonable explanation other than the guilt of the accused" was erroneously burden-shifting but determining any error with that instruction was harmless because the charge as a whole properly explained the State had the burden of establishing Raffaldt's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt). Accordingly, because the trial judge's opening remarks and jury instructions thoroughly explained the State's burden of proof and Petitioner's presumed innocence, the jury charge as a whole was not erroneous and does not warrant reversal. See State v. Smith, 315 S.C. 547, 554, 446 S.E.2d 411, 415 (1994)("Jury instructions should be considered as a whole, and if as a whole they are free from error, any isolated portions which may be misleading do not constitute reversible error.").

As an alternate ground, any alleged error in the opening remarks is harmless beyond a reasonable doubt. Beaty, supra.; Aleksey, supra. State v. Daniels, 401 S.C. 251, 260, 737 S.E.2d

"which was to determine whether the state proved the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

However, the Court cannot ignore that Judge Harrington's remarks in the opening statement were expressly stated to the jury as not being the charge on the law that would be done later. The judge was essentially telling the jury to wait to act until the conclusion of the case when the judge would tell them what their responsibility is in determining a proper verdict. The attempt to enhance the instruction by isolating the language and ignoring the context it is in with the surrounding instructions is not how a reasonable juror would have viewed it.

473, 478 (2012) (Toal, C.J., concurring for the majority). First, like in Beaty and Aleksey, the “seek the truth language did not appear in either the reasonable doubt or circumstantial evidence instructions. Second, as in Daniels, as stated in the Respondent’s statement of the facts, the state presented substantial evidence that Petitioner was involved in the criminal act that led to the death of Marley Lion through the testimony of his accomplices in crime. See State v. Bailey, 298 S.C. 1, 5, 377 S.E.2d 581, 584 (1989)(“When guilt has been conclusively proven by competent evidence such that no other rational conclusion can be reached, the Court should not set aside a conviction because of insubstantial errors not affecting the result.”). Based on the overwhelming evidence of guilt presented to the jury and the breadth of the instructions on reasonable doubt, the trial court’s allegedly erroneous opening remarks could not have contributed to the guilty verdict. See Lowry v. State, 376 S.C. 499, 509, 657 S.E.2d 760, 765 (2008)(“From this perspective, in order to conclude that the error did not contribute to the verdict, the Court must ‘find that error unimportant in relation to everything else the jury considered on the issue in question, as revealed in the record.’ ”)(internal citation omitted).

CONCLUSION

For all the foregoing reasons, Respondent, the State, submits that the judgment and conviction of the Petitioner should be affirmed.

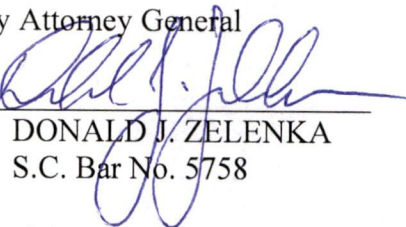

Respectfully submitted,
