1 MR. BAILEY: YOUR HONOR, IF THE WILL AND TRUST WERE 2 UPHELD, THE ESTATE TRUST HAD THE RIGHTS TO PREVENT 3 TERMINATION BY HEIRS AND IT MAY HAVE TO BE LITIGATED, BUT 4 THEY DO HAVE THAT RIGHT.

5 THE COURT: I THOUGHT THEY -- I MAY BE COMPLETELY 6 WRONG. I THOUGHT THEY TERMINATED AFTER THE PASSAGE OF 7 TIME ON THEIR OWN -- OF THEIR OWN WILL -- NOT OWN WILL, 8 BUT THEY EXPIRE AND THEY HAVE THE RIGHT TO RENEW THEM. IS 9 THAT NOT CORRECT?

10 MR. MEDLIN: YOUR HONOR, IF I MAY, COPYRIGHTS DO 11 EXPIRE EVENTUALLY AND GO INTO THE PUBLIC DOMAIN, BUT 12 COPYRIGHTS ESSENTIALLY NOW LAST 95 YEARS.

13 THE COURT: WHAT HAPPENS IN 35 YEARS?

14 MR. MEDLIN: FIFTY-SIX YEARS FOR PRE-1978 COPYRIGHTS
15 AND 36 YEARS FOR POST-1978 COPYRIGHTS. THE WRITER, IF 16 ALIVE AT THAT DATE, HAS THE RIGHT TO TERMINATE ANY 17 ASSIGNMENT OF COPYRIGHTS EITHER TO A PUBLISHER OR TO ANY 18 OTHER ENTITY. IN OTHER WORDS, TAKE IT BACK AND RESELL IT.
19 IF THE WRITER DIES BEFORE THAT TERMINATION RIGHT ARISES --

20 THE COURT: WHICH WE HAVE HERE.

21 MR. MEDLIN: YES, SIR. BECAUSE THE FIRST BIG HIT
22 WOULD BE, "PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE," 2012. THAT 23 UNQUESTIONABLY PASSES TO THE SURVIVING HEIRS. THERE IS 24 NOTHING IN THE LAW THAT SUGGESTS OTHERWISE AND THAT'S A 25 QUESTION OF LAW.

1 THE COURT: ALL RIGHT. MR. BAILEY, YOU MAY RESPOND
2 TO THAT.

3 MR. BAILEY: WELL, THE ONLY INFORMATION I CAN PROVIDE 4 THE COURT IS THAT MR. BROWN HAS ENTERED INTO SOME 5 AGREEMENTS IN 1993, IN 1994, AND THEY HAVE NOT BEEN 6 ANALYZED.

7 THE COURT: ALL RIGHT. THANK Y'ALL ALL VERY MUCH.

8 MR. MEDLIN: YOUR HONOR, COULD WE ASK FOR ONE MORE
9 DISCUSSION JUST BRIEFLY? I BELIEVE AT THE MARCH 6 HEARING
10 YOU SAID THAT THE PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVES AND TRUSTEES 11 WOULDN'T DISPOSE OF ASSETS WITHOUT COURT APPROVAL AND WE 12 WOULD JUST ASK FOR THAT TO BE CONTINUING UNTIL YOU ISSUE
13 YOUR ORDER.

14 THE COURT: ALL RIGHT. THANK Y'ALL.

1 know, there's no reason for this to even come into 2 this case.

3 And let me go further. There are motions
4 pending to limit the discovery in this case. You
5 know, seven years ago I filed a motion for summary
6 judgment. And my position then and my position now 7 is the same; she's either married to James Brown or 8 she is isn't. And that's a decision for you to make 9 and maybe ultimately for the Supreme Court to make.
10 Whether she's married or not really depends on the 11 law and not the facts. It doesn't really matter 12 what anybody says.

13 In the first instance, either the ceremonial
14 marriage and the annulment of the Javed Ahmed
15 marriage together, the court order of the family 16 court means, under whatever authority you want to 17 take, that the marriage is legal. And if the 18 marriage is legal, we don't need any discovery at 19 all. In fact, I've already got a motion to limit 20 discovery. You already issued an order, actually, 21 limiting discovery in view of the fact that our 22 motion for summary judgment was going to be heard 23 seven years ago. So they don't need the diary; they 24 don't need it because it's not relevant. And the 25 reason it's not relevant is -- and it can't be

1 relevant because either Tommie Rae Brown, when she 2 married James Brown, either was married to Javed 3 Ahmed or she was not married to Javed Ahmed. And 4 there's nothing that anybody can say that can change
5 that because the annulment says she wasn't married, 6 and that order is binding on this Court in my view,
7 not binding on this Court in others'. That's a 8 legal issue. And what I'm trying to say today is --

9 THE COURT: Well, is that motion still viable
10 for summary judgment?

11 MR. ROSEN: Well, I don't know. It was filed, 12 it was never ruled on. But to --

13 THE COURT: A lot of things happened after 14 that.

15 MR. ROSEN: A lot of things happened after 16 that. So probably what I'm going to is file an 17 amended and supplemental motion for summary
18 judgment. I'm going to file a motion for protective 19 order. They've sent me 30 pages of interrogatories 20 and requests to produce, which that's their job, and 21 I'm going to move for a protective order that the 22 discovery not be had at least until the summary 23 judgment motion is heard, because we can take 24 depositions from now till Doomsday, spend $250,000, 25 fly all over the country, and there's really

1 nothing -- there's no point in it, because either
2 the annulment is a valid annulment and the marriage
3 to James Brown is a valid marriage or it isn't. And 4 I think that's a legal matter for the Court, 5 ultimately.

6 THE COURT: Then why don't you file your motion
7 for summary judgment?

8 MR. ROSEN: That's what I think we ought to do.
9 I don't want to argue it today but, I mean, I would 10 like to argue it.

11 And so --

12 THE COURT: What is your position to let him
13 file that and then depending on how you rule, then 14 it may be needed in discovery? But we don't need 15 the diary for your motion for summary judgment.

16 MR. ROSEN: That's what I'm saying, we don't 17 need the diary.

18 THE COURT: Because it's a legal argument on 19 annulment, and if it was annuled, and if not, could 20 be married to two people at once.

21 MR. ROSEN: Right. The family court issued a 22 final order that's binding on the world, according 23 to us -- is not binding on the --

24 THE COURT: Let me hear from Mr. Beach. It is 25 a -- the diary and the whole surrounding of how the

1 diary was acquired, it's not the most tasteful thing :
2 in the world. But on the other side of the coin, if 3 this thing has factual issues that preclude summary
4 judgment, then there may be a lot of stuff in there
5 that could be -- some stuff that may be, I don't 6 know, relevant to the issues at hand. And some of 7 the stuff obviously is not, but it may require 8 in-camera review. I certainly don't want to take on 9 that.

10 MR. BARR: Your Honor, before Mr. Beach starts, 11 I'd like to bring to the Court's attention that I 12 filed a special appearance notice for this motion 13 and the protective order because we were never 14 served on that either.

15 THE COURT: Thank you. When did you file it?

16 MR. BARR: I handed it to the Court this 17 morning.

18 THE COURT: Thank you.

19 MR. BARR: Thank you. I just wanted to get 20 that on the record.

21 THE COURT: Thank you. You're on the record.

22 So if it's truly a legal argument -- and you
23 may not agree with that, Mr. Beach -- but seems to me
24 that if we could hear the motion for summary 25 judgment, depending on how I go with that, then we

1 could hear the diary. If I say, fellows, there's 2 factual issues that's got to be developed, then I
3 think the diary probably should be discoverable 4 after somebody maybe does an in-camera review to 5 determine, obviously, what she's alleging to her 12
6 step people or her religious beliefs probably don't 7 have a thing to do with it if she's in there talking 8 about -- if she is or she isn't, I don't know what 9 she -- I've never seen them, never even looked at 10 them. There may be some things in there that are 11 relevant to this particular litigation and those 12 things may be discoverable. Everything in the 13 diary, I don't know that that's discoverable, so we 14 may need to work around that.

15 But I guess my question is, Mr. Rosen is saying 16 his case rises or falls on a legal argument, seems 17 like to me you'd give him that shot to file it 18 quickly and let's move on it. And then if I rule 19 with it, y'all go Columbia and if I rule against it, 20 y'all go to Columbia. Let's see where we are.

21 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge, we do agree that his 22 case could fall on the question of whether Tommie 23 Rae Brown is the surviving spouse. We think he 24 could lose the case based --

25 THE COURT: Surviving spouse. But to be a

1 surviving spouse, she's got to be a spouse.

2 MR. BEACH: Correct.

3 THE COURT: And to be a spouse, she has to have 4 a valid marriage.

5 MR. BEACH: Exactly. And we think --

6 THE COURT: Is the question --

7 MR. BEACH: I'm sorry.

8 THE COURT: I didn't mean to cut you off.

9 MR. BEACH: No, no.

10 THE COURT: Is the question of the validity of 11 the marriage, is that a legal question or does -- or 12 do you have to develop facts to protect your client 13 on that matter? And you may not want to answer that 14 right now, you may want to think about it. But it 15 seems to me if it's strictly a legal question, then 16 maybe we get around all this discovery and save some 17 money and just hear that motion and then go from 18 there. That's just me thinking out loud a little 19 bit.

20 MR. BEACH: Your Honor, I think the question of 21 whether the decision that was made in the Charleston 22 family court in 2004 -- I think it was April 15th of 23 2004 -- that annulled Tommie Rae Brown's marriage 24 to -- 1997 marriage to Javed Ahmed, the question of 25 whether that under the Lucas decision legally can

1 be -- can relate back, if you will, to the marriage 2 so that it would make her subsequent marriage to 3 James Brown in 2001 valid, that question is, in 4 fact, a legal question, and we agree that that is a 5 legal question.

6 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Rosen, is that sort of 7 where your summary judgment is headed to?

8 MR. ROSEN: Yes, sir. Yeah. Yeah. We have 9 the argument that the annulment is binding and that 10 she's there for the spouse.

11 THE COURT: Well --

12 MR. BEACH: Now, Judge, there are -- that 13 simple question could be a legal question. On the 14 other hand, if Mr. Rosen asserts that the -- if 15 Mr. Rosen asserts that James Brown is estopped by 16 that order, then Mr. Rosen is probably going to have 17 to assert some facts to support that estoppel
18 argument because Mr. Brown --

19 THE COURT: Well, if he does -- if he does 20 that, then I think the summary judgment goes out the 21 window.

22 MR. BEACH: I think so, because Mr. Brown was 23 not a party -- a named party to that case. So the 24 only thing that we can assume Mr. Rosen might argue 25 on that is that Mr. Brown was a de facto party to

1 the case and therefore should be estopped from that.
2 And those are factual questions. So even the 3 question of whether the annulment order is -- bars
4 her claim, could end up turning on some factual 5 decision.

6 THE COURT: Well, here's what I may do,
7 Mr. Beach, in trying to be efficient and not sending 8 you all over the world and spending a quarter of a 9 million dollars, as Mr. Rosen said: I may hold this 10 motion in abeyance for 30 days, giving Mr. Rosen an 11 opportunity, if he chooses to do so, to file a 12 motion for summary judgment, and depending on how 13 that goes, if it's strictly a legal question, that 14 may be dispositive. If it involves factual issues, 15 obviously I would not rule on it; I will say you 16 have to have an opportunity to complete discovery 17 before I rule to determine whether or not there were 18 genuine issues of material fact in dispute.

19 MR. BEACH: Okay.

20 THE COURT: And then depending on how I rule on 21 that, if need be, we'll come back and revisit the 22 production of the Tommie Rae Brown's diary. But my 23 thoughts on that would probably be if there's 24 factual issues involved, that it would be something 25 that would be discoverable, it would be subject to a

1 very strict protective order, and probably would 2 want some type of in-camera review. And since I'm 3 going to be listening to a lot of stuff in this 4 case, I probably might appoint a special person to 5 have the in-camera review so I will not have read 6 all of that other stuff that may not be germane to 7 this. That's sort of going through my mind.

8 MR. BEACH: Well, that is sort of going through 9 our mind too, Your Honor. So we're thinking along 10 the same lines.

11 MR. ROSEN: That sounds very reasonable, Judge.

12 THE COURT: All right. Let's do this:
13 Mr. Rosen, I'll give you 30 days -- I'll give 14 Mr. Rosen 30 days to file a motion for summary 15 judgment, if he intends to do so. If he does not, 16 then I will reconvene this or either issue an order.
17 Mr. Rosen, I think we've made a record of --

18 MR. ROSEN: Thank you.

19 THE COURT: Are we okay with that? I'm sorry.

20 MR. BEACH: Your Honor, I'm sorry, my client 21 was trying to give me some thoughts and --

22 THE COURT: I know you've got a -- I won't 23 comment.

1 (The following proceedings were held November 2 24, 2014.)

3 THE COURT: Mr. Rosen.

4 MR. ROSEN: Good morning, Your Honor. May it
5 please the Court.

6 This matter is before the Court on several 7 motions for summary judgment, as you know, request
8 to admit stipulation. The standard, I'm not -- you 9 know, the Court has handled summary judgment 10 motions --

11 THE COURT: I don't --

12 MR. ROSEN: You don't need to hear all that.

13 THE COURT: We're moving forward this morning,
14 as I understand, based on the stipulation of facts 15 that every concerned party has signed.

16 MR. ROSEN: Yes, sir.

17 THE COURT: So we do not have any issues of 18 fact in dispute on those stipulations.

19 MR. ROSEN: That's correct.

20 THE COURT: And if I decide this case based 21 solely on the stipulations, then we won't have the 22 argument before the Supreme Court or the Court of 23 Appeals that there were issues of fact in dispute or 24 we didn't have time to do discovery. We have 25 stipulated the number of stipulations you have given

1 to me, along with exhibits, and I'm to make my 2 ruling therefrom. Is that correct?

3 MR. ROSEN: That's correct, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Mr. Bell?

5 MR. BELL: No, Your Honor, that is not correct.

6 THE COURT: Can I make my rulings from those 7 stipulations?

8 MR. BELL: Your Honor, that is a critical issue
9 of procedure as to whether or not we have got a 10 stipulated fact that we do agree on.

11 THE COURT: You do, don't you? You signed it.

12 MR. BELL: That's correct. But what we have 13 not agreed that -- that there are not additional 14 facts or that discovery is not needed.

15 THE COURT: Well, then you can defeat my 16 summary judgment in a minute by simply going to the 17 Court of Appeals and saying the Judge ruled 18 prematurely.

19 MR. BELL: That is correct, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: I'm so glad you told me before now.

21 MR. BELL: That is a major position from this 22 side, and everyone on this side would agree with 23 that, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Well, y'all have delayed it and 25 delayed it and delayed it and you continue to try to

1 delay it. I'm going to hear the motions for summary
2 judgment. If I feel like I can rule based on the 3 stipulated facts, I will rule; if I feel like there 4 are additional facts that need to be developed, I'll 5 find that they're issues of fact.

6 MR. ROSEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

7 Your Honor, I -- it probably isn't necessary to 8 point out, but they have filed affidavits that I
9 just didn't want to point out that those affidavits, 10 the Court doesn't need to consider them. Anyways, 11 it's a moot point because they don't follow the 12 rule. In other words --

13 THE COURT: Well, I --

14 MR. ROSEN: -- you know, they have to be your 15 own personal knowledge. You know --

16 THE COURT: Let me just ask you this: There's 17 no question that Tomi Rae Hynie was married to 18 Ahmed; right?

19 MR. ROSEN: Well, she -- no question she --

20 THE COURT: She went through a marriage
21 ceremony?

22 MR. ROSEN: Yes, sir. That's correct.

23 THE COURT: She went through a marriage
24 ceremony with Mr. Brown.

25 MR. ROSEN: That's correct.

1 THE COURT: She had her marriage to Ahmed
2 thereafter annulled.

3 MR. ROSEN: Correct.

4 THE COURT: If we look at the Lukich case, can 5 we not make the decision strictly on Lukich and 6 strictly on those three sets of fact?

7 MR. ROSEN: I do not -- let me tell you this:
8 I don't disagree with that, but I would add to that.
9 That's what I want to argue to you for a few 10 minutes. I mean, as a matter of law, I think you
11 could; I think I have some additional points that I 12 think would help with that decision.

13 THE COURT: Well, what is your position on 14 Lukich? I mean, I think I know.

15 MR. ROSEN: Well, professor --

16 THE COURT: You're going to say that there was 17 no impediment to Mr. Brown's marriage because her 18 marriage to Ahmed was void from the inception, 19 therefore she was a single lady and could marry
20 Mr. Brown.

21 MR. ROSEN: Well, that's right, that is our 22 position.

23 THE COURT: Pretty simple.

24 MR. ROSEN: I think it is. I think it is.
25 This -- I have -- what I was going to do, Your

1 Honor, is to argue a point to you that I think is 2 very important. I was telling my associate on the 3 way up, sometimes lawyers argue points that the 4 Court is not the least bit interested in and we 5 walked in there. So I may be arguing a point to you 6 that you may not be interested in, but I think it's 7 an important point.

8 Mr. Medlin and I were going to divide our 9 argument. I wanted to address what I think is the 10 benefit-of-the-bargain rule, which I think is very, 11 very important, and Mr. Medlin was going to argue 12 Lukich and some jurisdictional --

13 THE COURT: I'll let you argue it however you 14 want to.

15 MR. ROSEN: I'm not going to take a long time, 16 Your Honor, because I agree -- first of all, let me
17 say this: I think summary judgment can be granted 18 when the Court finds there's no genuine issue of 19 material fact. It doesn't matter what position 20 anybody takes. In other words, if the Court is so 21 well-aware of summary judgment, you don't need to 22 hear it from me. So if you feel there's no genuine 23 issue of any material fact, then you can grant 24 summary judgment; it doesn't matter what anybody
25 says, but it can't defeat summary judgment by coming

1 in and saying there's a factual issue when that's up 2 to you.

3 The stipulated facts, Your Honor, are that -- 4 are that she was married to Mr. Brown, it was 5 stipulated that there was a marriage certificate, 6 stipulated that he paid the fees for her annulment.
7 That's a stipulated fact. Now, I agree some of the 8 briefs get overheated and a lot of rederick that 9 people are making jury arguments, outside included, 10 but the fact of the matter is, they stipulate that 11 he did pay for it and I think that's an important 12 consideration. They stipulated that he knew about 13 it, which is an important consideration; they 14 stipulated they had a child together, which is an 15 important consideration.

16 There was a -- there was a -- she filed a -- an 17 action on December 15th, 2003, while they were 18 married in our view and living together. That's an 19 important point. It's not unlike the Lukich case, I 20 might add. There was no divorce or separation 21 action pending, which the Supreme Court got wrong in 22 its opinion inadvertently because they were told 23 certain things that weren't true; there was no 24 separation action pending at that time -- this is 25 stipulated, this is all in the stipulations, I'm

1 going strictly by the stipulations -- and they 2 reconciled in an order dated August 14th, 2004, 3 which is also stipulated, resolved their differences 4 in residing together...

5 Now --

6 (Brief interruption.)

7 THE COURT: Hold on a second.

8 Go ahead.

9 MR. ROSEN: I don't know that you need to even 10 hear from me on this service of -- this whole 11 service by publication issue. I mean, I think it's 12 a bunch of baloney. But I didn't want to not 13 address it because, obviously, it's important. You 14 know, Mrs. Brown come to me, we get the case -- the 15 only thing I can say, Your Honor, is this: That 16 when we got the case, we handled it in a, I think, 17 workmanlike manner; we located the man, we got the 18 last address. But there's a lot of stuff in the 19 record about that, which I think is all of no 20 consequence. But I will point this out, which is 21 not in the brief, and that is, our investigator, 22 just so that the record is clear, found, and we 23 reverified it, that his driver's license that's in 24 the -- this is in the record --

25 THE COURT: You're getting into facts now,

1 Mr. Rosen. If I'm going to decide this on summary 2 judgment, it's going to be on the narrow issue that 3 she had a marriage ceremony with Ahmed, she married 4 Mr. Brown. How does that -- how does Lukich affect 5 that? And it's going to be very narrow.

6 MR. ROSEN: My only point is, Your Honor, 7 they've attacked the service of the annulment. And 8 I just didn't want to leave it -- if Your Honor 9 doesn't need to hear from me, I don't need to go 10 into it.

11 THE COURT: Thank you.

12 MR. ROSEN: Now --

13 THE COURT: But I do want to hear the Lukich
14 argument.

15 MR. ROSEN: Well, then maybe what I'll do is 16 sit down and let Mr. Medlin address that. Thank 17 you, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: That's where we're going.

19 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, if I may --

20 THE COURT: Do you take the position that her 21 first marriage or her first ceremony or whatever the 22 relationship with Ahmed, is void and of no 23 consequence and she had no impediments and she could 24 marry Mr. Brown? Is that your position?

25 MR. MEDLIN: Yes, Your Honor. But I can

1 preface that position in a number of ways under the 2 law, which I would like to do this morning.. And, in 3 fact, Your Honor, as I will explain --

4 THE COURT: Well, I'm reading from Lukich, and 5 it says -- this is the Supreme Court ruling: Under 6 the statute's terms, Wife's marriage Husband No. 2 7 was void from the inception -- that was because she 8 was married before -- at the time of the marriage
9 because she had a living spouse and that marriage 10 had not been declared void.

11 Well, when she married Mr. Brown, the marriage 12 to Ahmed had not been declared void, had it?

13 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, in Lukich --

14 THE COURT: You're not answering me.

15 MR. MEDLIN: Well, Your Honor, I'm trying to 16 answer.

17 THE COURT: All right.

18 MR. MEDLIN: In Lukich there were two marriages 19 that were invalidated; the first marriage, which was 20 not based on bigamy, was annulled on the grounds of 21 intoxication.

22 THE COURT: That's correct.

23 MR. MEDLIN: It wasn't annulled until after he 24 attempted marriage to her second husband.

25 THE COURT: That's correct.

1 MR. MEDLIN: Because the Court found that the 2 first marriage which was annuled not for bigamy, but 3 for intoxication, did not relate back, then she had 4 an impediment when she attempted to marry the second 5 husband because that would have been a bigamous
6 marriage.

7 What hasn't gotten a lot of play in the memos, 8 Your Honor, is that Lukich followed the line of the 9 statute and every single case that has dealt with a 10 bigamous marriage in South Carolina. And that is 11 defined -- for status purposes, it is void ab
12 initio. The difference --

13 THE COURT: What case do you recite on that?
14 Is that the Day case?

15 MR. MEDLIN: Well, the Day case, the Blizzard
16 case, Howard, I mean, all the cases that the Lukich
17 Court cites that some would argue on the contestant 18 side that Lukich somehow magically overrules, in 19 fact, they cite as part of their invalidation of the 20 second marriage. Your Honor, the difference in the 21 two is the difference that they don't want to talk
22 about. A bigamous marriage, which is what Tomi Rae 23 had, is always void ab initio.

24 The Court has no choice; the statute says is 25 it's void. It doesn't say void or voidable, it

1 doesn't say maybe it's void, it says it's void. And 2 that's exactly what Lukich found as to the marriage.
3 On the other marriage, there is no bigamy statute 4 because it's being annuled for purposes of 5 intoxication. That could be voidable and, in fact,
6 the Court said that because it's voidable, we treat 7 that differently.

8 And of course that's the basic distinction 9 between something that's void under the law and 10 something that's voidable under the law. Something 11 that's void under the law is never valid. If you
12 read the cases, it says: If it's with respect to a 13 marriage that was bigamous and void, it was never a 14 marriage. By contrast, a voidable action is one 15 that is valid unless and until a Court decides that 16 it's not.

17 THE COURT: Well, Lukich says: A mere marriage
18 ceremony between a man and a woman where one of them 19 has a living wife or husband is not a marriage at 20 all.

21 MR. MEDLIN: That's correct.

22 THE COURT: A marriage is absolutely void and 23 not merely voidable. So, therein, you hang your hat 24 that when she married Ahmed, if he in fact did have 25 other wives, that was a bigamous marriage and void

1 and no marriage at all.

2 MR. MEDLIN: Lukich supports the whole line of 3 cases which supports the statute that says exactly 4 that. The marriages in Lukich are reversed from our 5 situation and our situation --

6 THE COURT: Assume that you're correct, then we 7 get to the point of whether or not it becomes a 8 factual issue as to whether or not Ahmed had 9 additional wives. Then you got Judge 10 Segars-Andrews' order found that -- and annulled the 11 marriage and she made certain findings of fact, 12 i.e., that he did have additional wives which voided 13 or made that marriage void thereby removing any 14 impediment to her marriage to Mr. Brown, does that 15 not become a factual issue? I assume you're going 16 to argue that's the law of the case.

17 Mr. Rosen, that becomes the law of the case 18 and you can't go behind that.

19 MR. MEDLIN: Well, Your Honor, we agree with 20 that. And if I may, once I start fleshing out our 21 argument --

22 THE COURT: I won't interrupt you again. Go
23 ahead.

24 MR. MEDLIN: Well, I'll -- but I'd like to 25 address your question because, obviously, Your

1 Honor, you've gotten to the two points that we think 2 are the important points.

3 For several reasons, we can't go behind that 4 order in this action. It is the law of the case.
5 One reason is because, as I'll explain in more 6 detail in just a minute, the probate code says that 7 the only way that you're not a surviving spouse is 8 if you have been divorced or had your marriage 9 annulled by the time of the decedent's death. The 10 only way that Mr. Brown could have attacked that 11 family court order --

12 THE COURT: That order. Which family court
13 order?

14 MR. MEDLIN: The only family court order about 15 the annulment, which is the Ahmed annulment order.
16 The only way he could have attacked that, if he 17 could, and we don't think he could anyway for other 18 reasons, but even if he could, the only way he could 19 do it is collateral. He couldn't be involved in the 20 action; in fact, he wasn't. So he can't make a 21 direct attack on it, he can't appeal it; he can only 22 collaterally attack it, at best.

23 The only way to collaterally attack that is to 24 bring an annulment action for his own marriage to 25 Tomi Rae which, in fact, he did briefly --

1 THE COURT: He did.

2 MR. MEDLIN: -- and did not attack that order,
3 Your Honor. In fact, he did the opposite; he asked
4 the Court to hold her to the facts that were found 5 in that case, in that order. The problem he has is 6 that he's no longer with us and, under the probate
7 code, as I will explain in more detail, Your Honor, 8 if you'll grant me that leeway, it's too late and 9 the contestants are standing in Mr. Brown's shoes, 10 they don't have independent rights to collaterally 11 attack that judgment. Standing in his shoes, it's 12 too late, probate code, case law, is clear on that.
13 So that's one reason that it's law of the case.

14 The second reason, Your Honor, is that, as I'm 15 sure the Court knows having been a family law
16 practitioner to some degree, only the family court
17 has jurisdiction over annulments and divorces. So 18 this Court, even if it weren't too late, and it is, 19 to let the contestants bring this surrogate
20 annulment action against Tomi Rae, this Court 21 doesn't have the subject matter jurisdiction, only 22 the family court does. That's just another 23 argument. The main argument is under the probate 24 code, it's too late.

25 So, Your Honor, if I can just briefly address

1 those two points, I do have more arguments to make 2 about those, if I may.

3 THE COURT: Well, aside from attacking family 4 court annulment order, your position is that the 5 marriage to Ahmed was void from the very beginning, 6 therefore there was no marriage, therefore there was 7 no impediment to her marriage to Mr. Brown, 8 therefore she was married when Mr. Brown dies, 9 therefore she's the surviving spouse.

10 MR. MEDLIN: Correct.

11 Their argument is that the annulment order was 12 what was necessary to terminate the marriage to 13 Ahmed and it's effect was prospective only. That's 14 their argument. That's not what any of the cases 15 say. But, Your Honor, there's another problem with 16 their argument that I will get into, if I may, in 17 more detail. If that, in fact, is the law now, and 18 it's not, but if that's the law now that an 19 annulment based on bigamy isn't void ab initio, 20 doesn't make that attempted marriage never a 21 marriage, but that it becomes effective only when 22 the Court issues the annulment order. They have 23 exactly that same problem trying to overturn the 24 marriage between Tomi Rae and James Brown.

25 Under their argument, the marriage of Tomi Rae

1 and James Brown is bigamous. Under their own 2 theory, that bigamous marriage is valid and 3 effective until a Court annuls it. That never 4 happened, it cannot happen, it's too late... On the 5 date of Mr. Brown's death, even under their theory, 6 they lose. That's our argument.

7 THE COURT: She has no impediment, she marries 8 Mr. Brown, it's never annuled, therefore it's good.

9 MR. MEDLIN: That's the right answer. Their 10 argument is that she did have an impediment because 11 she didn't have a Court order annulling it yet.
12 Their argument is, until a Court annuls a marriage, 13 even if it's bigamous and despite what the statute 14 and all the cases say, that marriage is valid until 15 you get a Court order annulling it. So, they argue, 16 Mrs. Brown was married when she married Mr. Brown, 17 so that the Brown-Brown marriage was bigamous.
18 What's problematic about their argument, Your Honor, 19 if, in fact, they're right about the effect of that 20 annulment order, and they're not, but even if they 21 are, they lose. Because by their own argument, the 22 only way you can have an effective order terminating 23 a bigamous marriage is through an annulment order.
24 It's too late for that.

25 Now, what they want is to have it both ways:

1 They want to argue that with respect to the 2 Ahmed-Tomi Rae marriage, that's voidable, even 3 though it's bigamous; they want to argue that with 4 respect to the Brown-Tomi Rae marriage, that's void, 5 even though it's bigamous. Their argument is 6 completely inconsistent. They're picking fruit that 7 they want to pick from a tree. They're wrong about 8 the effect of the annulment order. But even if 9 they're right, they lose --

10 THE COURT: Well, let's leave the annulment 11 order out of it for a second. Of course that's 12 where the findings of fact were that she -- Ahmed 13 had a number of wives. But if, in fact, he did have 14 a number of wives or more than one wife, that would 15 be a bigamous marriage, and under the statute shall 16 be void, no effect from the very beginning, from the 17 get-go.

18 MR. MEDLIN: That's our position and that is 19 the right answer, according to the statute and to 20 every case, including Lukich.

21 THE COURT: Therefore, it had no impediment
22 when it came time to marry Mr. Brown.

23 MR. MEDLIN: Correct.

24 THE COURT: Well, you go back to the Tilley vs.
25 Pacesetter, which was cited in Lukich. Under the

1 statute's terms, Wife's marriage to Husband No. 2
2 was void at the inception since at the time of that 3 marriage, she had a living spouse and that marriage
4 did not declared void.

5 Does it take that second step to declare it 6 void before it becomes ordered or is it just void 7 right out of the chute?

8 MR. MEDLIN: No, Your Honor, it doesn't take 9 that second step to declare it void.

10 THE COURT: Then why do they say that in 11 Lukich?

12 MR. MEDLIN: They don't say that in Lukich.

13 THE COURT: I'm reading it. Unless I can't 14 read right, under headnote 2 it says: The question
15 is whether the October 2003 annulment order 16 declaring Wife's first marriage is void ab initio or 17 relates back so as to validate her purported 1985 18 marriage. In construing a statute, we need not to 19 resort to rules of construction where the statute's 20 language is plain. Under the statute's terms, 21 marriage -- Wife's marriage to Husband No. 2 was 22 void from the inception of that marriage since she 23 had a living spouse and that marriage had not been 24 declared void.

25 MR. MEDLIN: That's exactly consistent with the

1 argument, Your Honor. They're talking about two 2 different marriages in Lukich; the first marriage is 3 voidable because it's not based on bigamy, it's 4 based on intoxication; the second marriage is void
5 ab initio, which is what the Lukich court recognizes 6 and cites the cases that recognize exactly that. If 7 it's never a marriage -- if it's never a marriage, 8 then you don't even need a court order to invalidate 9 it. Now, you do need a court order, of course, in 10 this case to show that one existed. But under the 11 law, if you had a bigamous marriage, it's never 12 valid.

13 Your Honor, if -- again, you also require a 14 court order in addition to the marriage being 15 bigamous. First of all, that's counterintuitive to 16 the marriage never being a marriage. But even if 17 that's the case, they failed, because they don't 18 have a court order declaring the Tomi Rae Brown 19 marriage bigamous. So if you need both, they still 20 don't have both. But, Your Honor, I will tell you, 21 that's not the right answer.

22 THE COURT: So your argument is very simple:
23 Ahmed had different wives, therefore that marriage
24 is void; there's no impediment, she marries
25 Mr. Brown, she's his spouse when he died.

1 MR. MEDLIN: That's the right answer, we think,
2 Your Honor, but our argument also looks at the other 3 side. And the other side says that you have to have 4 an order to determine that the marriage is invalid 5 for purposes of bigamy and, according to them, that 6 order is prospective only. If that, in fact, is the 7 case, and if, in fact, one can have a bigamous
8 marriage until a Court orders it not to be bigamous, 9 and that order is prospective only, they don't have 10 such an order for Mr. Brown and Tomi Rae, and they 11 can't get one because he's no longer with us. He 12 can't bring an annulment action now. It's too late, 13 the Probate Code is -- I'll give you some cites on 14 it in just a minute -- and case law says you can't 15 for elective shares, surviving spouse purposes. I 16 don't think that's the law anyway, but that's 17 domestic law and that's certainly outside my realm.
18 But I don't think you can bring an annulment.

19 But under their theory, even if you have a 20 bigamous marriage, which the statute said is void 21 from the beginning and the cases say is void from 22 the beginning and Professor Stuckey and the treatise
23 in marital litigation in South Carolina says you 24 don't even need an order because it's void from the 25 beginning. Even if all of that is not correct, then

1 under their theory, they don't have an order and 2 under their theory, Your Honor, you can marry -- not 3 you specifically, Your Honor, but you generically, a 4 South Carolina citizen, can marry as many people as 5 you want and those marriages are all valid until one 6 of them at least is terminated with an annulment
7 order.

8 If an order is required to terminate a marriage
9 that is void, then you can commit bigamy in South 10 Carolina as long as somebody doesn't go to Court and 11 get an order. That, Your Honor, would open the 12 floodgates of litigation, among other reasons that 13 it would open the floodgates of litigation.

14 All right. May I?

15 THE COURT: (Nods head).

16 MR. MEDLIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

17 Your Honor, let me stress from my part of the 18 argument that we don't think any of the facts matter 19 other than, of course, the facts that you've stated, 20 all of which we all understand and I don't think 21 anybody is arguing about: The punitive marriage to 22 Ahmed, the ceremonial marriage to Mr. Brown, and the 23 order of the family court annulling, as bigamous and 24 void ab initio, the marriage of Ahmed and Tomi Rae.

25 We think we went on the law, Your Honor, and

1 again, in very broad terms, I've just explained to 2 you what our argument is. But let me clarify, Your 3 Honor, what we're here today to do. It's a probate
4 case, it's an elective-share, omitted-share claim.
5 The Probate Code governs such claims. And we're 6 here for just one issue, which are mirror images:
7 Does Tomi Rae qualify as the surviving spouse,
8 because she has to qualify for the surviving spouse 9 status to be able to collect an elective share or an 10 omitted spouse's share.

11 Now -- by the way, one of the memos suggest 12 that if she's not the surviving spouse, she can't 13 also have standing to bring an undue influence 14 claim. We disagree with that. That's beyond the 15 scope of this argument, but just for the record, we 16 disagree with that. When you look at the Probate
17 Code -- and the Legislature says that the Probate
18 Code, when it's specific, covers these issues.
19 Section 62-2-802, Your Honor, which I think maybe 20 somehow got left out of the memos, but I think may 21 be in the motions -- but in any event, it's the 22 outcome of the statute that defines the surviving 23 spouse. Your Honor, I have copies of that section 24 if the Court would like one. I have extra copies 25 for opposing counsel.

1 THE COURT: All right. Pass that up, please.

2 MR. MEDLIN: 62-802 (a) says that, in effect, 3 to be a surviving spouse, you cannot have been 4 divorced from the decedent and you cannot have that 5 marriage annuled from the decedent. She's presented 6 a marriage license, we all know she had a ceremonial 7 marriage. So the issue under 2-802 is whether she 8 got divorced or whether she had her marriage 9 annuled.

10 If you look at paragraph C of that section, 11 Your Honor, it adds an additional requirement: One 12 has to get that annulment order or the divorce 13 decree signed by the judge and filed the Clerk of 14 Court before the decedent dies. That's clear under 15 the statute. And, in fact, we have a case, Hatchell 16 Freeman, which is exactly on point because they were 17 in the middle of a divorce proceeding, the divorce 18 decree didn't get filed before death, so the 19 surviving spouse wasn't disqualified under the clear 20 terms, the expressed terms of the statute.

21 So Tomi Rae's presented a marriage license.
22 Unless somehow there's a question about the validity 23 of that marriage license, then the only way to 24 defeat her claim as the surviving spouse under the 25 probate code is to find that Mr. Brown divorced her

1 or Mr. Brown annulled that marriage. That didn't 2 happen and it's too late, clearly under a probate 3 case, but I think also generally under the law, for 4 a decedent to annul his marriage to somebody.

5 Again, Your Honor, they're standing in 6 Mr. Brown's shoes. They don't have independent 7 rights. We're here today because Mr. Brown died and 8 certain people are claiming, through him or, in the 9 LSA's case, for him today. They have his rights.
10 And so under Section 62-2-802 (c), as explained by 11 the Hatchell Freeman case, we can't even get there.
12 There is no annulment by Mr. Brown of his marriage 13 to Tomi Rae.

14 Now, we know he tried at one time to get an 15 annulment. And again, as I mentioned, Your Honor, 16 we all know that in those proceedings, which are 17 part of the stipulated facts as I understand it, he 18 didn't try to attack the annulment order that came 19 down in the Tomi Rae Ahmed case. So obviously he 20 knew how to annul a marriage, because he brought an 21 annulment action; he brought it a few months later 22 when he changed his mind.

23 Your Honor, I'd ask that this Court take 24 judicial notice that from the time that that action 25 was dismissed by consent order, Mr. Brown never

1 filed another action in any court in South Carolina
2 to annul the marriage or divorce Tomi Rae. Even if 3 he did, under 2-802 (c), if he didn't get a signed 4 order filed with the Clerk of Court, it's too late 5 anyway, even if that were a pending action. So we 6 don't get there under 2-802 (c) because he couldn't 7 bring an annulment, it's too late; his 8 representatives can't bring an annulment, it's too 9 late, and so we have to accept that underlying order 10 as the law of the case, as you've explained it.

11 With that in mind, Your Honor, that takes us 12 back to my point about the fallacy of their 13 argument. Their argument is that despite what all 14 the cases say as to status and despite what the 15 statute says, expressly, no mincing of words, a 16 bigamous marriage is void ab initio. Tomi Rae, as 17 you noted at the outside of this, never had a 18 marriage to Ahmed because it was bigamous, and so 19 she had no impediment when she married James. But 20 even if she did -- because under their theory, that 21 annulment was prospective in effect only; in other 22 words, treated that marriage as voidable rather than 23 void -- in that case, under their own argument, they 24 would have to have that same order annulling the 25 marriage between Mr. Brown and Tomi Rae, because

1 under their theory, it's okay to have a bigamous
2 marriage in South Carolina as long as the Court
3 doesn't declare it invalid. And once the Court does 4 declared it invalid, they say, then the invalidity 5 is prospective only; in other words, treating it as 6 voidable.

7 With that same argument, therefore, would be 8 true for the, as they put it, bigamous marriage 9 between Tomi Rae and James. They would need an 10 order terminating that because under their theory, 11 it's valid until some Court orders that it's not, 12 and under their theory, that order, even though it's 13 bigamous, it's prospective only. So on the date of 14 Mr. Brown's death, no such order having been given, 15 he was married to Tomi Rae, under 62-2-802. That's 16 when we determine who qualifies as the surviving 17 spouse.

18 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Medlin, it sounds like it
19 boils down to this -- I mean, I have read and reread
20 all of these briefs and, if I may add, the briefs
21 are excellent. I think everybody put a lot of time
22 and effort into them and I commend every party. I 23 sat at my beach house Saturday and it rained from 24 sun up to sun down when I was there. My wife, she's 25 in the other room, and I read these things backwards

1 and forwards til I was blue in the face with them.

2 But when you boil it all down, I have to make a
3 decision on whether or not that marriage to Ahmed, 4 if it were void and never was a marriage to begin 5 with, then she had the right to marry Mr. Brown; she 6 had no impediment. If we have to wait until it's 7 annuled, what effect does the annulment have on for 8 the marriage that took place to Mr. Brown before the 9 annulment? And that's where I'm --

10 MR. MEDLIN: That's the fallacy of their 11 argument, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: Well, there's some validity to it 13 though, I think.

14 MR. MEDLIN: Well, Your Honor, I disagree.

15 THE COURT: I know you're going to disagree.

16 MR. MEDLIN: Well, I disagree with their very 17 logic. If in fact -- if an order finding a marriage 18 invalid for purposes of bigamy and annulling the 19 marriage for that, if that doesn't treat the 20 marriage as void, which it does, under their 21 argument, such an order in this particular case as 22 to the Ahmed annulment is prospective only.

23 THE COURT: Well, do me a favor. Leave out 24 their argument; give me your argument on just 25 succinctly how you claim she is the wife with Lukich

1 being your sort of flagship to go by.

2 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, you've expressed it
3 perfectly. Every marriage that's bigamous is void
4 ab initio; otherwise, there would be chaos. Her 5 marriage was found to be bigamous. As long as that 6 order cannot be attacked, and we don't think it can 7 be, then they lose --

8 THE COURT: What if it can be attacked?

9 MR. MEDLIN: Well, then they're going to have 10 to go and reopen all the underlying facts in a case 11 where the party who was -- the other party who was 12 most directly affected by it hasn't bothered in at 13 least six years to attack it. That would be a 14 direct attack. Thanks to Mr. Bell and 15 Mr. Allezai's [phonetic] affidavits, we know that at 16 least six years ago, Mr. Ahmed knew his marriage had 17 been terminated with Tomi Rae.

18 THE COURT: Is that not the law of the case?

19 MR. MEDLIN: It's the law of the case, Your 20 Honor, because --

21 THE COURT: Does the law of the --

22 MR. MEDLIN: -- he's --

23 THE COURT: -- case include the findings that 24 she made to rely on in making her ruling?

25 MR. MEDLIN: Absolutely, because Mr. Brown

1 cannot collaterally attack it. Maybe he could have 2 if he weren't estopped and all the reasons that we 3 talked about. If it weren't for that, maybe he 4 could have while he was alive. But the probate code 5 clearly says that that annulment, which is the only 6 way I know that he could attack that order is 7 collaterally by trying to get an annulment from Tomi 8 Rae, it's too late. The statute is clear and the 9 case law is clear.

10 That order annulling the marriage, if there 11 were one between -- an order, if there were one 12 between Tomi Rae and James Brown, would have had to 13 have been signed by a family court judge. No other 14 judge because no other judge has jurisdiction of 15 annulments. It would have had to have been signed 16 by a family court judge and it would have to be 17 filed with the clerk of court before Mr. Brown died.
18 That didn't happen. They want to do something that 19 Mr. Brown can't do and the probate code doesn't 20 allow; they want to relitigate that case. They want 21 to relitigate it standing in his shoes, make a 22 collateral attack, because he wasn't a party to it.
23 It can't be done. So you can't attack the order.
24 It's the law of the case. The probate code makes 25 that clear.

1 And Lukich, in fact, points out the difference
2 between those two types of marriages. Lukich has 3 those two different types of marriages in it. It's 4 got a voidable marriage, which is the first 5 marriage, which was voidable because it was based on 6 intoxication, not bigamy. It has a second marriage 7 which was bigamous because when she didn't get her 8 order until after that attempted second marriage, 9 the Court said that because we can, the statute says 10 if it's not bigamous -- or the statute that says if 11 it's bigamous it must be void doesn't apply --

12 THE COURT: Well, it says it shall be void.

13 MR. MEDLIN: Shall be void, right. The statute
14 requires that determination. But this Court said 15 that because it's a marriage annulment based on 16 intoxication, the first marriage can be treated as 17 voidable, not void. And again, there's a big 18 difference under the law, Your Honor. In fact, if I 19 may, the Legislature understands that difference.
20 In the probate code they have a provision, for 21 example, that deals with fiduciaries who are 22 self-dealing, Section 62-3-713.

23 But it says, expressly, that if fiduciary
24 self-deals, that act is voidable unless and until a 25 beneficiary successfully contests that in court.

1 That's a voidable act. A voidable act is valid 2 until somebody rules that it's not.

3 THE COURT: I understand that.

4 MR. MEDLIN: And a void act -- well, Your 5 Honor, I just want to make sure I get my argument 6 out so that I understand it. The void act is never 7 an act. The Legislature knows the difference
8 between those two words clearly; they use voidable
9 in the probate code, they use void in the bigamy
10 statute. And Lukich noted that difference. Lukich
11 talked about the void part being the second marriage 12 because since it didn't relate the voidable marriage 13 back, she did have an impediment; consequently. The 14 second marriage was never a marriage.

15 THE COURT: Thank you.

16 Mr. Beach.

17 MR. BEACH: Judge --

18 THE COURT: Judge Segars-Andrews' order is 19 valid, final order, a finding that Ahmed had 20 multiple wives, i.e., a bigamous marriage, why is 21 that marriage not void as set out in the Lukich case 22 which says a mere marriage ceremony between a man 23 and a woman where one of them has a living wife or 24 husband is not a marriage at all? Such a marriage 25 is absolutely void and not merely voidable. So if

1 it was void, she had the right to marry Mr. Brown 2 and, hence, is his spouse.

3 MR. BEACH: Judge, let me first correct one 4 thing that has been said, and it relates to the 5 question you've just asked. The Ahmed annulment 6 order is not the law of this case.

7 THE COURT: I didn't ask you that.

8 MR. BEACH: Well --

9 THE COURT: I said if it is the law of this -- 10 if that is the law of this case -- you're not giving 11 up any position, you're just answering my 12 question -- if it's the law of the case, does not -- 13 the marriage between Tomi Rae and Ahmed, is it not 14 void and not a marriage at all and is she not free
15 to marry Mr. Brown, if Judge Segars-Andrews' order
16 is the law of the case? You're not conceding 17 anything, I'm just asking you that question.

18 MR. BEACH: Judge, I don't think so.

19 THE COURT: Why?

20 MR. BEACH: Well --

21 MR. BELL: Can I answer that?

22 THE COURT: Hold on now. You'll get to talk,
23 Mr. Bell.

24 Mr. Beach, how do I get around the statute that 25 says all marriages contracted while either of the 1 parties has a former wife or husband shall be void?

2 And that order of Judge Segars-Andrews is the 3 order -- is the law of the case. Hypothetically, as 4 a question to you, how is that marriage of any 5 validity at all? It's void, it's no marriage at all
6 and she's free to marry Mr. Brown.

7 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge --

8 THE COURT: You disagree with that?

9 MR. BEACH: First of all, that order, the 10 judgment in that case was the judgment -- was that 11 the marriage was annuled. The order had some 12 findings that underlay that judgment.

13 THE COURT: You're not answering my question.

14 MR. BEACH: Well, I'm trying to, Your Honor.

15 THE COURT: No, you're equivocating.

16 If the whole order is valid and I go with that 17 order, how is her marriage to Ahmed not void? How 18 is it a marriage under the statute if Ahmed, in 19 fact, had additional wives?

21 THE COURT: If.

22 MR. BEACH: -- setting aside for a moment the 23 fact that in South Carolina it's impossible to have 24 additional wives because you can't be married to 25 more than one person at a time, which is -- I mean,

1 the order said that, Your Honor, so it's a very -- I 2 think it's a valid --

3 THE COURT: Maybe I --

4 MR. BEACH: -- observation --

5 THE COURT: You're right; you can't have 6 additional because they're all void. But what if he 7 were married to different women at the same time?

8 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge, honestly, it's --

9 THE COURT: You see where I'm coming from.

10 MR. BEACH: I see exactly where you're coming 11 from, Judge.

12 THE COURT: All right. Then get me around it.

13 MR. BEACH: Well, let me -- I can get you 14 around it by reading you this one point that 15 explains the law of the case, Judge.

16 It says: The doctrine of the law of the case 17 that when a Court decides upon a rule of law -- and 18 rule of law, Judge, not a finding of fact -- that 19 decision -- and we're not talking about a rule of 20 law here, we're talking about a finding -- that 21 decision should continue to govern the same issues 22 at subsequent stages of the same case.

23 Now, Judge, this case is clearly not the same 24 case and, in fact, as pointed out over and over 25 again by the petitioners' attorneys, Mr. Brown could

1 not have been part of that -- couldn't have been 2 part of that case. But it's clearly not the same 3 case, Judge, so the notion that it is the law of the 4 case is a nonstarter. The question of whether the 5 order applies retroactively under Lukich is a 6 different question.

7 THE COURT: I understand that.

8 MR. BEACH: And we're prepared to go through --

9 THE COURT: Well, I want you to tell me why
10 Judge Segars-Andrews' order is not something that I 11 should rely on in making my ruling as to whether or 12 not the marriage between Tomi Rae and Ahmed was no 13 marriage at all.

14 MR. BEACH: Well, I can do that, Judge. I 15 would like Your Honor -- Judge, this case has been, 16 up until this point, a little bit like a boxing 17 match. And it's been --

18 THE COURT: Well, I don't know about a boxing 19 match.

20 MR. BEACH: In terms of this particular issue, 21 we've got 500 pages of briefs that have been passed 22 back and forth on the question that we're here today
23 to discuss. And as a -- I mean, there's piecemeal 24 discussions about particular points that are all 25 important. But, Judge, there's a case that tells

1 the Court -- a Supreme Court case that tells the 2 Court the exact analysis that needs to occur here to 3 make this decision.

4 And if I could, Judge --

5 THE COURT: Sure. I'm not stopping you.

6 MR. BEACH: -- I'd love to go into how the 7 Court says -- and I'll try to get through it as 8 quickly as I can.

9 THE COURT: I'm not pushing anybody.

10 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge, if you give me just a 11 minute, I can set up my tripod here.

12 THE COURT: You may.

13 MR. BEACH: All right. Judge, I hope you'll 14 excuse this old-school approach that I've taken 15 here, but it's the one that I'm comfortable with and 16 I think it will serve the purpose very well.

17 Judge, the case that lays out the framework for 18 the Court's decision here, not just -- and not, as 19 they have suggested, to jump in and try to find a 20 quick fix, because there's really no quick fix to 21 this question that's before us. It has to be 22 addressed methodically and there's a case that tells 23 us exactly where we stand right now in regards to 24 burden of proof. And I would argue to you that 25 burden of proof is the absolute crucial fulcrum over

1 what we're arguing about right now, because this 2 case will show you, and I'll show you in a minute, 3 that the burden of proof is on the petitioner to 4 show that the marriage between Ahmed and the 5 petitioner was invalid and bigamous. That's the 6 burden, and I want to go through that if I could,
7 Judge. This case --

8 THE COURT: The burden of proof is on the 9 petition to show that the marriage to Ahmed was 10 bigamous; is that what you're saying?

11 MR. BEACH: That's correct. Yes. And the case
12 here --

13 THE COURT: Well, they can't say they've met
14 the burden of proof. They've shown Judge
15 Segars-Andrews' order.

16 MR. BEACH: Well, we'll talk about that, Judge, 17 because I think they haven't.

18 Judge, I'll have to tell you, I almost fell out 19 of my chair when Ms. Zwing brought this case to me 20 about a month and a half ago because I didn't think 21 it was possible for there to be another case that 22 had the exact same facts that we're dealing where 23 here. It's Hallums vs. Hallums. But this case has 24 identical facts, Judge. And also, even though it 25 was decided in 1906, it's still good law. It was

1 cited by Yarbrough vs. Yarbrough, which is one of 2 the cases that's at play here in these rulings in a 3 fairly recent decision.

4 -- And what that case was, Judge, is -- it was 5 just like this case; it started with the decedent's 6 death and the purported wife making a claim against 7 the Estate as the surviving spouse. And just like 8 this case, Judge, there was a marriage ceremony 9 between the purported wife and the decedent, and 10 also just like this case, it was five years earlier.
11 And also just like this case, Judge, the wife in 12 Hallums had been married to another man about four 13 years prior to that. Well, Judge, also just like 14 this case, the Estate said, because of this prior 15 marriage, we believe that you were not married to 16 the decedent; you couldn't have married him because 17 you were already married, your marriage is bigamous 18 and, therefore, you haven't met the first 19 requirement of showing surviving spouse which is 20 that you were the decedent's wife at some point.

21 So the -- the trial court looked at this and in 22 sort of a simplistic way said, well, the only 23 evidence in the record or the only thing in the 24 record to show the husband had already been married 25 was the wife's hearsay testimony. And so we're

1 going to agree with the Estate that she was married
2 to Husband No. 1 when she participated in that 3 marriage ceremony, not the surviving spouse.

4 Judge, when the case went up on appeal, that's 5 when things got even more interesting and even more 6 like our case, because the argument that was made by 7 the wife -- purported wife in there was that the 8 primacy of the most recent marriage, the inclination 9 to give it tremendous deference, is enough to say 10 that unless you have proven that -- well, their 11 argument was that the primacy covers everything, 12 which is the argument the petitioners made here, and 13 she should be recognized as the surviving spouse.

14 Well, what the Supreme Court said is, we're 15 going to go only so far with you on that. We agree 16 that we should give some weight to the most recent 17 marriage, but only to show -- we're only going to 18 put the burden on the Estate to show that there was 19 no divorce between the first marriage and the second 20 marriage ceremony, and there was no death.

21 Now, Judge -- and they said, if that is 22 proven -- the wife says, well, wait a minute, you've 23 also got to presume that this marriage was bigamous 24 because, remember, you've got to give great 25 deference to the most recent marriage. The Court

1 said no. The Court said -- and it's interesting
2 why -- why the Court would say no now. It's a crime
3 to -- bigamy is a crime. And so since in South 4 Carolina and the United States people are presumed 5 to be innocent and not guilty, we are going to say 6 that the presumption of this marriage is that it is 7 valid and that the burden is therefore on the wife 8 to show this -- her burden to show that this 9 marriage was invalid.

10 THE COURT: Okay.

11 MR. BEACH: Now, the wife only had the hearsay 12 testimony that she knew that her husband -- she had 13 heard that her husband was already married. The 14 Court said, that's not enough to meet your burden
15 because it's really no evidence. And so as a 16 result, we're going to find that this marriage still 17 existed -- they showed no divorce, no death -- and 18 that your marriage to the decedent is invalid and as 19 a result, we're going to turn down your claim as 20 surviving spouse. It tracks perfectly with our 21 case.

22 THE COURT: Well, not really because Ms. Hynie
23 Brown has an annulment order where the judge said 24 that it's otherwise.

25 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge, that's this annulment

1 order right here. And that doesn't change the 2 presumption here and the burden. What it is, Judge, 3 in this case, it is a way -- it is a potential way
4 that they could argue that they meet this burden.
5 They could -- and they've argued it in two ways.

6 The first way they've argued it is that the 7 Estate is collaterally estopped by the underlying 8 findings. And, Judge, let's just be real clear:
9 We're only talking about one underlying finding in 10 the Ahmed annulment order, and that is the finding 11 that Ahmed was married at the time of the 1997 12 marriage and he lacked the capacity to marry the 13 petitioner. That's what we're talking about.

14 THE COURT: I know that's what we're talking 15 about.

16 MR. BEACH: And their first argument is, we 17 meet our burden here, even though we know we don't 18 have any evidence other than the affidavits that 19 Ms. Brown has filed, we meet this burden because the 20 Estate is collaterally estopped to -- on that 21 finding, the underlying finding in the order. Well, 22 Judge, and then the second argument --

23 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Bell says you're not 24 collaterally estopped.

25 MR. BEACH: Well -- and we're not. And I can

1 explain that, Judge. The second argument that 2 they're making is --

3 THE COURT: Not Mr. Bell; somebody did.

4 MR. BELL: Yes, Your Honor.

5 MR. BEACH: In addition to the saying, we're 6 collaterally estopped, they're also saying that this 7 order should be given retroactive effect back to 8 1997 to make it legally perceived so that this 9 marriage never occurred. So that's their second 10 argument. And I can explain -- well, the -- the 11 collateral estoppel argument doesn't work, Judge; it 12 fails because James Brown was not a party to the 13 Ahmed annulment action, couldn't have been. And 14 collateral estoppel, like it or not, only works in 15 South Carolina against parties or their privies.
16 And, Judge, they've admitted in their reply that 17 James Brown was obviously not a party, they've said 18 he couldn't have been a party, we stipulated that he 19 was not a party.

20 He also wasn't a privy to the petitioner back 21 then. And the reason he wasn't a privy, Judge, is 22 because to be a privy, the legal interests and the 23 goal in the action, the Ahmed annulment action, the 24 privy's interest and goal has to be identical to the 25 parties' interests.

1 Now, they're arguing that James Brown was Tomi
2 Rae Brown's privy because they'd engaged in a 3 marriage ceremony or they would argue that they were 4 married. That's not the test for privy. The test 5 for privy, Judge, is whether parties -- whether the 6 person you're arguing was a privy has the exact same 7 legal goal. Well, we can very clearly see that 8 James Brown did not have that legal goal in the 9 Ahmed annulment action because he had filed a 10 complaint seeking an annulment from the petitioner 11 in Aiken County during this same time in which he 12 argued that the marriage to Ahmed was valid and that 13 it made their marriage annulity [sic]. And then 14 after Mr. Rosen faxed a copy of the order that was 15 issued on April 15th, 2004 from Judge Segars-Andrews
16 to James Brown's lawyer in the annulment action
17 going on in Aiken, he filed an amended complaint.
18 And in the amended complaint, he said the same 19 thing; he said, the marriage was valid, you were not 20 married to someone previously, Ahmed did have the 21 capacity to marry you at that time and, therefore, 22 the marriage between you and me was annulity. So 23 he's not a privy. That's, I would say, beyond 24 dispute here.

25 So then they -- the next argument that they

1 make, Judge, is, well, in South Carolina there's a 2 line of cases that -- or a case that they cited that 3 says that even a nonparty can be bound by the 4 underlying findings of an order if they acquiesced 5 to and join in the action that occurred. And,
6 Judge, that case is Carolina Baking vs. Gallfus
7 [phonetic]. They've cited it for the proposition 8 that a nonparty is bound if they acquiesced to and 9 participated in the proceeding.

10 Now, putting aside for a moment the fact that 11 James Brown didn't participate or promote the 12 proceeding, that's not what Carolina Baking says; in 13 fact, it's the exact opposite of what Carolina 14 Baking says. Judge, Carolina Baking decision dealt 15 with parties who had not appealed a circuit court
16 order. And the circuit court said that the parties 17 to the underlying action were estopped or bound by 18 those findings because they acquiesced to and 19 participated in it. It didn't say that the 20 nonparties were bound; in fact, Judge, you can look 21 at the case, we've cited it in the brief, there's 22 absolutely no nonparties involved in that case. So 23 the notion that Carolina Baking supports -- says,
24 okay, well, if he's not a party, South Carolina 25 still recognizes collateral estoppel against

1 nonparties, it doesn't. It doesn't, Judge.

2 In the other case that they cited for that 3 proposition -- and it's Tillman, I believe -- deals 4 with the privy. It deals with a father and 5 grandparents who both have the identical same goal 6 of getting custody of the children. Their goal was 7 identical. He was a privy, that's why Tillman says
8 what it does. So those two cases absolutely do not 9 support the position that the underlying findings in 10 the Ahmed annulment order -- that underlying finding 11 can be applied to prove what we're talking about 12 here.

13 So then they go out to other
14 outside-of-South-Carolina cases and they say, well, 15 outside of South Carolina there's some cases that 16 say that if you control the proceeding, then even if 17 you're not a party, you're bound by it. Well, 18 Judge, the only evidence -- and as you point out, 19 we're bound by the stipulation. The only evidence 20 that shows control here -- and it doesn't show 21 control -- is that at some point in time, and it
22 doesn't say when, James Brown paid the petitioner
23 for the cost of the Ahmed annulment action. Doesn't 24 say it was before, doesn't say it was after; we're 25 bound by the stipulation. And --

1 THE COURT: So the bottom line of your argument
2 is this: You're saying, Judge, we need to be able 3 to go behind that order and explore, through 4 discovery, et cetera, et cetera, whether, in fact,
5 he did have multiple marriages or wives or whatever 6 you call it.

7 MR. BEACH: That may be the result of my 8 argument, Judge. But what I'm saying is, they can't 9 use the finding in that order to meet their burden
10 that it's on them right now. And so there's no 11 control here and that's outside of South Carolina, 12 and I don't really want to talk about that anymore.

13 What I'd like to talk about now, Judge -- and 14 if we have to -- if their inferences -- for 15 instance, they're arguing that their inferences from 16 what James Brown did -- well, Judge, when you're 17 ruling on their motion, inferences have to be in 18 LSA's favor, not in their favor. But if there are 19 inferences that we're dealing with here, Judge, we 20 got to go do some discovery because there are only 21 three people that know what control, if any, James 22 Brown exercised over that proceeding; it's the 23 petitioner, it is the petitioner's attorney Jim 24 Huff, and it's Mr. Rosen. Well, we're not going to 25 be able to know anything about that until we conduct

1 some discovery, Judge. So -- but hopefully we're 2 not going to even have to go there because the idea 3 that they would somehow be bound -- the LSA would 4 somehow be bound by that underlying finding, even 5 though they're not a party, is, again, something 6 that they cannot sustain.

7 So the second way that they try to meet their 8 burden, Judge, is by arguing that the Ahmed
9 annulment order applies retroactively back to 1997 10 to make it so that legally this marriage between the 11 petitioner and Ahmed is perceived as never having 12 existed.

13 THE COURT: Are they trying --

14 MR. BEACH: And that's --

15 THE COURT: Are they trying to do that or are 16 they simply using the annulment order as proof that 17 he did have multiple wives and, therefore, that 18 marriage was void at inception?

19 MR. BEACH: Well, the only way they could do 20 the first one is by -- through collateral estoppel, 21 Judge. And we've talked about that. They can only 22 use it as proof if they are able to collaterally 23 estop us now and use it as proof, which they can't.
24 So they're making more of the same technical 25 argument that the wife in Lukich made, which is that

1 the mere existence of this order relates back and 2 makes it so that it basically erases this marriage 3 from -- the Ahmed-petitioner marriage from 4 existence. And that's the Lukich question that 5 you've asked us about, which I'd like to address
6 now.

7 The petitioners have either argued that Lukich
8 is not controlling or it is controlling and it 9 causes them to win. But we don't even have to get 10 to Lukich to know how South Carolina courts rule on 11 the question of whether a family court order that 12 annuls a bigamous marriage relates back.

13 The first case that addresses that directly,
14 Judge, and we would say is controlling here is a 15 case that was cited by the petitioner in support of 16 their position in their initial brief. It's Joye
17 vs. Yon. And, Judge, if you'll bear with me -- 18 because, again, this case is controlling. Joye vs.
19 Yon, there was a couple that was married for a long 20 time and they got a divorce, and the family court 21 ordered that the husband had to pay alimony. So in 22 March of 1993, a few years after the divorce -- he'd 23 been paying monthly alimony -- the wife remarried.
24 And, Judge, I'm going to use this chart, if you 25 don't mind, for these next two cases that I'm going

1 to discuss because it really helps us. It's all the 2 same; we've got a marriage here, we've got a family
3 court order annulling the marriage as bigamous here, 4 and the question is whether that annulment order
5 goes back and changes something that happened here 6 in the middle. That's what the petitioner is 7 arguing and it's also what was decided by Joye vs.
8 Yon and also this line of cases dealing with the 9 family court's jurisdiction to equitably apportion 10 the couple's property. So I'm going to use this 11 chart.

12 So in March of 1999, the wife remarried. And 13 in South Carolina, if your ex-wife remarries or your 14 ex-spouse, you can stop paying alimony because that 15 terminates the alimony obligation, obviously. So 16 the husband stopped paying alimony. Shortly
17 thereafter, the wife figured out that her husband 18 that she had just married was already married to 19 another woman and had not gotten a divorce. So she 20 went in to the family court and filed for an 21 annulment. The family court gave her an annulment 22 six months after their marriage in September of 23 1999, and the Court ruled that the marriage was 24 bigamous and therefore void ab initio and it 25 annulled the marriage on the notion that her husband

1 didn't have the capacity to marry her at that time.

2 So the wife then went in the family court and 3 said, I'm going to get an order requiring my husband 4 to pay my alimony -- this was after this -- from 5 this point forward and also back to the date of the 6 marriage and -- because I've gotten this annulment
7 and it's as if the marriage never existed.

8 Now, the family court actually agreed with the 9 wife. And there doesn't seem to be much analysis, 10 but the family court said, yeah, we're going to 11 reinstate the obligation to pay you alimony 12 prospectively and we're also going to tell you that 13 you've got to pay it back to the day of the marriage 14 which has now been annuled. The husband said, that 15 doesn't seem fair to me, and he appealed to the 16 Court of Appeals.

17 Now, that Court of Appeals decision is the 18 decision that the petitioners have cited in support 19 of their position here, Judge. And what the Court 20 of Appeals said was the family court is right. The 21 Court of Appeals said, when you get an annulment of 22 a bigamous marriage, the bigamous marriage is void
23 from its inception and the annulment makes it 24 legally so that -- and the words they use say that 25 the marriage is perceived to have never existed.

1 That's what the Court of Appeals said.

2 And so the Court of Appeals said, Husband, 3 you've got to pay alimony prospectively from the 4 annulment order forward and because this annulment 5 makes this marriage so that it never existed, you've 6 also got to go back and you've got to pay alimony
7 all the way back until the date of that marriage, 8 retroactively. The husband then -- and that's the 9 petitioner's position here. The husband appealed 10 that to the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court
11 reversed the Court of Appeals.

12 Now, in the ruling, it did two things; one, is 13 the one that's mentioned in the petitioner's reply
14 brief or initial brief -- I'm beginning to lose 15 track -- and that is that we're not going to make it 16 automatic so that when you've got a marriage that's 17 annuled, that it automatically reinstates the 18 husband's alimony obligation from the date of the 19 annulment order forward, we're going to let the 20 family courts consider some different factors and 21 make that decision.

22 But here's what the order said that literally 23 kills the petitioner's case and it controls our 24 position. And, Judge, it's so important that I'm 25 going to read it -- I'm going to read the Court's

1 ruling just so that we're all clear on this. They 2 said this, Judge. Now understand -- and I'm going 3 to read the Court of Appeals' ruling first.

4 Wife's remarriage is void from its inception
5 and is perceived as never having existed.
6 Consequently, the husband's alimony obligation never 7 ceased.

8 In other words, the change that this 9 occurred -- you know, this is going back and wiping 10 the slate clean. That's the Court of Appeals. The 11 Supreme Court said: We also hold that regardless of 12 whether the family court determines to reinstate 13 periodic alimony payments or not -- and that means 14 going forward -- Husband has -- and this is the 15 keywords -- no obligation to pay retroactive alimony 16 to the wife for the time period that the wife was 17 married to her bigamous husband. In other words, 18 the Court held that the annulment order declaring 19 the marriage bigamous could not be applied 20 retroactively to make it as if the marriage never 21 existed. That's the Joye vs. Yon holding, Judge, 22 and it directly controls the way the Court should 23 decide this case.

24 So -- and the Court -- I would argue that this 25 order requires the same ruling here which is that

1 the Ahmed annulment order cannot be given 2 retroactive effect to make it so that the 3 Ahmed-petitioner marriage in 1997 is legally
4 perceived to have never existed. That was reversed
5 by the Supreme Court.

6 The second area that -- and again, we're not 7 quite at Lukich yet, but we're almost there. The 8 second area deals, Judge, with the family court -- 9 when a family courts annuls a marriage as bigamous, 10 Judge, it then has the jurisdiction to distribute 11 the couple's marital property. Now, this may seem 12 like a pretty mundane topic for us to be talking 13 about here and, Judge, I'll have to admit, it does 14 seem a little boring in its -- you know, just to 15 throw it out there. But, Judge, this point was so 16 important to the Supreme Court in the Lukich case 17 that in an opinion that was less than one page long, 18 they devoted an entire paragraph to mentioning this 19 concept. It was that important to them.

20 Now, it's a little enigmatic as to why they 21 have it in there, but it was that important. And 22 again, it's the notion that the marriage -- when a 23 family court annuls a marriage as bigamous, then all 24 the property that was accumulated by the couple is 25 treated as marital property and the -- and then the

1 family court has the jurisdiction to distribute that 2 marital property.

3 Now, Judge, as you know, the family court is a 4 court of limited jurisdiction. It's a court whose 5 jurisdiction is circumscribed by the Legislature 6 through statute. So what they can and cannot do is 7 laid out in our laws. So the family court has 8 jurisdiction over marital property; that is,
9 property accumulated by married couples. And 10 there's actually a statute that says -- and it is 11 20-3-630 (b) that says that the family court does 12 not have jurisdiction over nonmarital property.
13 Okay?

14 Now, if you'll bear with me for just a minute, 15 I'm going to bring this point all the way home. And 16 I'm dwelling on it because it controls where we have 17 to go here and it was also important enough for the 18 Lukich Supreme Court to mention it.

19 Judge, there's a case called Hallums vs.
20 Bowens. This was a case that was decided in the 21 '90s. As far as I know, not the same Hallums as the 22 1906 case. But in this case, Judge, the couple was 23 together and they filed at the family court to get 24 a -- they filed to -- I guess to get a divorce. And 25 the allegation of the wife is that they had a

1 common-law marriage and that during the time that -- 2 that she wanted to have the family court disburse
3 their property through equitable distribution.

4 The family court ruled -- and this was because 5 the couple actually agreed to this during the 6 proceeding -- that there was no common-law marriage, 7 so the family Court said, all right, I've looked at 8 this and I've seen your stipulation, you've both 9 decided there was no common-law marriage, but I'm 10 going to go ahead and distribute your property as 11 you've asked. And so the family Court distributed 12 the property of the couple. The husband obviously 13 didn't like the distribution, because he appealed 14 that decision. And on appeal, the Court said the 15 family Court didn't have the jurisdiction to 16 distribute that property because while it was being 17 accumulated, even though the couple lived together, 18 they were not married. The family Court found that 19 there was no common-law marriage. They hadn't had a 20 marriage ceremony. So the Court said because the 21 family Court has no jurisdiction to distribute 22 nonmarital property, we are going to overturn that 23 and erase the slates of that ruling.

24 And, Judge, the reason I mention that is 25 because the notion that the family court, when it

1 issues an order annulling a marriage that's 2 bigamous, has the jurisdiction to then equitably
3 distribute the martial property that was accumulated 4 while they were together establishes the fact that 5 that order does not apply retroactively to make the 6 marriage legally perceived as if it never existed.
7 Because if it were legally perceived as if it never 8 existed, then during this whole time -- and 9 remember, the question is what effect does this 10 order now have on what happened in here. During 11 this whole time, that couple would have been just 12 like the couple in Hallums vs. Bowens; they wouldn't 13 be married. So if the petitioner's position is 14 correct, then the family court couldn't have 15 jurisdiction to equitably distribute this marital 16 property because it wouldn't be marital property.
17 And we think the fact that Lukich took the time to 18 mention that is very important.

19 Now, Judge, that brings us to Lukich. And I 20 believe the Court has very clearly stated our 21 position there. While the Court of Appeals had some 22 language in their order that might suggest that 23 there would be a different conclusion if the order 24 voiding the marriage had voided it as bigamous, the 25 Supreme Court's ruling had no such language. What

1 it said is, all you got to do is look at the statute
2 to answer this. And it said, as you pointed out,
3 Judge, that the order declaring the marriage annuled 4 has to have been issued before the next marriage or 5 else the next marriage is void as bigamous under 6 20-1-80. That case is really that simple and they 7 have --

8 THE COURT: Say that again.

9 MR. BEACH: Well, they -- let me make sure that 10 I -- 20-1-80 says: All marriages contracted while 11 either of the parties has a former wife or husband 12 living shall be void.

13 THE COURT: Okay.

14 MR. BEACH: And that's -- we're all onboard 15 with that.

16 But this section shall not extend to a person 17 whose first marriage shall be declared void by a 18 sentence of a competent Court. And so here's an 19 order declaring the marriage void, one can or cannot 20 argue that it was by a competent Court. But what 21 the petitioner argued in Lukich was that that order 22 is the order that's mentioned in 20-1-80 and, 23 therefore, the marriage took place in the 24 intervening time is not bigamous and not void; it's 25 the exception that they've argued. And the 1 petitioner has made the exact same argument.

2 When the Court ruled -- and, Judge, we've 3 already gone through this, but I think it's worthy 4 of reading what the Supreme Court says. We agree 5 with the Court of Appeals that this statute is 6 dispositive of the wife's claim. Under the 7 statute's terms, the wife's, quote, marriage, closed
8 quote, to Husband No. 2 was void from the inception
9 since at the time of that marriage, she had a living 10 spouse and that marriage had not been declared void.
11 So the Lukich decision is very clear; it reads the 12 exception in 20-1-80 to require the order declaring 13 it void not to be issued four years later or three 14 years later or even six months later. It has to 15 have existed before this marriage occurred or else 16 the fact that there was a marriage, the fact that 17 there's no divorce and no death, means that the 18 second marriage is void because it's bigamous, and 19 20-1-80 says that. And 20-1-80 controls, as far as 20 Lukich is concerned.

21 And they don't say, and we're going to be 22 treating this a little bit differently if we ever 23 look at something where the order voids it as 24 bigamous. They don't say that. What they do is in 25 the very last paragraph of the ruling, they

1 reference the family Court's ongoing jurisdiction to 2 equitably apportion the property after they've 3 declared a marriage void as bigamous. And they've 4 said that if we ruled any other way, then we would 5 throw that situation into a state of chaos. So 6 that's where we are.

7 Joye vs. Yon absolutely controls. The cases
8 that hold that the family Court has the jurisdiction 9 to apportion marital property when they annul a 10 marriage as bigamous absolutely controls. They both 11 say that you can't apply that order, it doesn't 12 apply retroactively to make it as if legally 13 perceived that the marriage never existed. They 14 both say that. And Lukich is completely consistent 15 with it and cites the second of those two.

16 So, Judge, where we really believe this all is, 17 is here. Hallums vs. Hallums very clearly says that 18 the petitioner has the burden now to show that her 19 marriage was invalid, the one -- and to show that 20 her marriage to Ahmed was bigamous. That's her 21 burden, and Hallums vs. Hallums very clearly states 22 that on exactly the same facts. She can't use the 23 underlying findings of the annulment order to prove 24 that because the only way she could do that is if 25 James Brown or the Estate were a party to that

1 action and collateral estoppel. And collateral
2 estoppel doesn't work here, Judge, and we know that.
3 So then the only other way that she might do it is 4 by arguing that the Ahmed annulment order applies 5 retroactively to make it so that this marriage to 6 Ahmed and Petitioner is perceived to never having 7 existed. And she can't do that either because of 8 Joye vs. Yon and the other two items that I
9 mentioned, the Lukich decision and the family
10 Court's jurisdiction over the marital property. So 11 she can't carry her burden.

12 And, Judge, if there's some question -- 13 again -- let me back up. That all deals with the 14 petitioner's motion for summary judgment. And as 15 you know, the LSA has filed a motion for summary 16 judgment on the issue of surviving spouse as well.
17 Now, the standard of review for those two motions is 18 slightly different. All of the legal issues, 19 they're all the same. The question of who has the 20 presumption, it's the same in both motions, Judge.
21 If we move forward, the presumption is going to be 22 that this marriage is valid and the burden is going 23 to be on the petitioner to disprove it or to show
24 that Ahmed was previously married. There's no 25 difference there between those two motions.

1 But if you're deciding those motions, if 2 deciding the petitioner's motion, you have to 3 consider all the facts in the light most favorable 4 to the nonmoving party and you also have to consider 5 all reasonable inferences in our favor. Now, the 6 LSA's motion against the petitioner, that changes so 7 that you've got to consider the facts in the light 8 most favorable to the petitioner, and you've also 9 got to consider all reasonable inferences in favor 10 of the petitioner.

11 So given that difference, Judge, it's possible 12 for the Court to deny both motions and allow the 13 case to go forward, allow the parties to conduct 14 discovery, and allow the question of surviving 15 spouse to be decided based on testimony here. If 16 you do that, Judge, I do think it would be crucial 17 to make sure that this is a very pointed trial, to 18 rule that the Ahmed annulment order is out of play.
19 It is out of play for the reasons that we've just 20 discussed. The only way that the petitioner could 21 win is to be able to come forward with evidence here 22 now that Ahmed was married to other wives and that 23 that marriage that she had to Ahmed in 1997 was 24 bigamous and void.

25 But, Judge, in order to do that, the Court

1 would have to determine that the petitioner has 2 created a genuine issue of material fact here that 3 Ahmed was already married at the time they married.
4 And they can only do that through some evidence and 5 they've -- there's no evidence to that effect; 6 there's an affidavit, but it's hearsay. So -- and 7 so we haven't seen a single particle of evidence to 8 that effect, Judge. And so I would say in light of 9 the petitioner's, I will call it relentless 10 insistence, that there's no need for additional 11 discovery here. They got an order from the Judge 12 back on March 31st that stayed all discovery because 13 they said it was unnecessary for the Court to rule 14 on this question.

15 The Court could take them on their word there, 16 find that there's no material issue of fact with 17 relationship to the validity of this marriage, and 18 the Court could not only rule against the 19 petitioner's motion, but could rule, and we would 20 argue should rule, in favor of the limited special 21 administrator finding that the petitioner is not the 22 decedent's surviving spouse and granting summary 23 judgment to the limited special administrator based 24 upon that.

25 THE COURT: Thank you. Anything else?

1 MR. BEACH: No, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Thank you.

3 Mr. Bell.

4 MR. BELL: Thank you, Your Honor. And I will 5 be brief.

6 I second everything that Mr. Beach has set out.
7 Your Honor, I'll touch on Judge Andrews' order 8 briefly. Although Mr. Beach and I have talked, he 9 has totally addressed the substantive issues. I'm 10 going to be more -- my focus is going to be more on 11 the procedural aspects of the case.

12 The interesting thing, Your Honor, about Judge
13 Andrews' order is it was not issued for the main 14 purpose of the annulment. It was not issued to 15 prove that he had annuled the prior marriage because 16 if it was, then the Lukich case would control and it 17 would be given prospective application. It was only 18 offered to prove facts and those of the collateral
19 issues contained in there. The statement of Tomi
20 Rae Hynie that she gave to Judge Andrews saying, oh, 21 early on, my then-husband, the man that I married, 22 told me that he had prior unrelated marriages.
23 That's hearsay. And the interesting thing is Judge 24 Andrews' order is being offered to the Court to 25 prove and establish a set of facts that could not

1 have been established or proven by Tomi Rae Hynie
2 otherwise because if she came into Court, Your 3 Honor, to say, he told me this, that would be clear 4 hearsay and a self-serving declaration that the 5 Court would not accept.

6 So we submitted in our brief two cases that are 7 set out; one -- both of them are domestic cases and 8 they're both divorce cases. In one case, in the 9 decree, it stated that the -- one of the parties' 10 father owed a debt.. So the person to whom the 11 father allegedly owed the debt said this establishes 12 that your father owed me this money. And the 13 subsequent Court said, oh, no, that's a collateral 14 issue. The dissolution of the marriage is obviously 15 binding on the whole world but --

16 THE COURT: But the marriage was dissolved 17 because the Court found that she had -- he had 18 additional wives.

19 MR. BELL: That's correct. But the cases are 20 very clear that those collateral findings are only 21 binding -- the factual findings are only binding on 22 those who are a party to that action, but that the 23 main argument that it is a bigamous marriage is 24 binding on the world. The marriage was ending. But 25 the factual findings under case law are not -- are

1 only binding on the people that were a party, 2 because otherwise, Your Honor, she has, through the 3 back door, gotten in facts and evidence that she 4 could not have directly argued to the Court.

5 THE COURT: So what is your solution; to deny 6 summary judgment and open up discovery so she can 7 attempt to prove that he was in fact --

8 MR. BELL: And, Your Honor, that was the -- as 9 I said a moment ago, Mr. Beach addressed the 10 substantive issues and I'm going to talk about the 11 procedural. The Court's goal is certainly twofold; 12 one is to move the case along properly --

13 THE COURT: Well, that is a goal, but not 14 nearly as important as getting it right.

15 MR. BELL: That is absolutely. And that is -- 16 getting it right would mean that Columbia would 17 affirm what is done. And I think Your Honor 18 appreciates that if summary judgment is granted for 19 either side, it will go up.

20 THE COURT: Sure it will.

21 MR. BELL: And, Your Honor, over the weekend, 22 as we all read a lot and we all read a lot of 23 briefs, I reread Dallas vs. Wilson. And the 24 interesting thing, when I reread it, I was looking 25 for substantive answers, you know, a substantive

1 statement as to why the will could be set aside or 2 affirmed as being obtained through undue influence;
3 substantive issues as to whether or not the marriage
4 to Tomi Rae Hynie, what's the standard. And what 5 was interesting to me, Your Honor, there were no 6 substantive holdings in that decision, but rather 7 what it criticized the settlement for is 8 short-circuiting the process. And it criticized the 9 settlement for not developing the facts.

10 And, Your Honor, it would be nice to be able to 11 eliminate discovery in some cases. The truth be 12 known, the Supreme Court wanted this case developed.
13 And the only way to fully develop it is to open the 14 door and do discovery. And that's what the Supreme 15 Court said in Dallas v. Wilson, the shortcuts don't 16 work. And as hard as everybody worked on --

17 THE COURT: Well, I don't know if I agree with 18 the shortcuts don't work. We made a -- everybody in 19 this room made a -- I thought made an honest effort
20 to resolve the whole thing. We took six days to do 21 a settlement. So I don't think it was a shortcut.
22 I do agree with you about it coming back to me, you 23 can rest assured it will be developed fully, unless 24 I can dispose of it simply on these stipulated 25 facts.

1 But from the arguments this morning, you're 2 going more and more into a factual quagmire that may 3 preclude summary judgment, I'll let y'all do 4 discovery. But we aren't going to take forever to 5 do it, if I rule that way.

6 MR. BELL: Yes, sir. But I think --

7 THE COURT: That may be the prudent way to do
8 it. I don't know.

9 MR. BELL: I think that the safe way at this 10 point is to open discovery. This debate began when 11 there was a motion before Your Honor as to whether 12 the diary would be discoverable. And Your Honor did 13 not want to get into that quagmire and I believe you 14 told us at that time, if you were going to allow it, 15 you might appoint a special master to review it and 16 hear it just so that you wouldn't get stuck in the 17 quagmire. And that was when Mr. Rosen said, well, 18 we need more facts --

19 THE COURT: And that's when I said if y'all can 20 stipulate the facts, then we could maybe decide it 21 on summary judgment on the stipulated facts.

22 MR. BELL: But the interesting thing, Your 23 Honor, we agreed on certain facts, but I don't think 24 anybody thinks it's all. Right after the stipulated 25 facts were signed, the petitioner, Mr. Rosen, file

1 the affidavit of Tomi Rae Hynie adding additional 2 facts. You know, they want to get in their facts, 3 which is fine, but we should be permitted and 4 allowed to conduct discovery. And I think --

5 THE COURT: Discovery to do what, Mr. Bell; to 6 explore what particular aspect? And I think I know 7 the answer, but you tell me what it is.

8 MR. BELL: I think the question becomes the 9 marital status.

10 THE COURT: And whether or not she can prove 11 that Ahmed had different wives and additional 12 marriages or whatever.

13 MR. BELL: She has stipulated that she had no 14 evidence or facts other than what he told her; that 15 she doesn't know any witnesses and that she has no 16 documents. Interestingly enough, Your Honor, on the 17 other hand, Ahmed signed an affidavit with the court 18 in Texas where he obtained the marriage license and 19 the affidavit said I have no prior unresolved 20 marriages.

21 THE COURT: Well, obviously he's going to say 22 that because if he said he had other marriages, they 23 wouldn't issue the marriage license. •

24 MR. BELL: Well, that's right. But, you know, 25 evidence -- you know --

1 THE COURT: I understand.

2 MR. BELL: We're bound by -- that would be an 3 admissible document, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: Well, that's true.

5 MR. BELL: But her unsubstantiated statement
6 saying, he told me this, that's not --

7 THE COURT: Well, here's where we stand: We've 8 got her telling the judge in a family court 9 proceeding, my husband told me he had wives when he 10 married me --

11 MR. BELL: That's right.

12 THE COURT: Judge found that as a matter of 13 fact and she concluded as a matter of law that that 14 marriage was bigamous and she was entitled to an 15 annulment. Now, years later, she's using that 16 annulment order, simply that finding of fact and 17 really nothing else, to try to say that that 18 marriage was void based on that assertion or that 19 representation and you should hold that as the law
20 in the case because Judge Andrews signed it, 21 therefore my marriage to Mr. Brown did not have any 22 impediments and I should be the wife.

23 Now, maybe that begs for discovery to develop 24 whether or not that was a true representation on one 25 side or, on the other side, because Judge Andrews

1 has conducted that hearing and that's the law of 2 that particular case, does it bind me in this case?
3 That's where we are. You agree?

4 MR. BELL: I think that's where we are, Your 5 Honor, and --

6 THE COURT: And then you go into all the issues
7 where you're collaterally estopped from attacking 8 this order, but really and truly that was never 9 litigated before Judge Andrews other than that 10 representation. And there's some excellent language 11 in one of the briefs yesterday -- I forgot whose 12 brief it was. I've read so many. The -- 13 Mr. Donsbach. Where is he?

14 MR. BELL: Right there, Your Honor.

15 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Talking about on page 18 of his 17 brief the fact is I must consider whether the 18 defense of collateral estoppel exists and whether or 19 not these issues were actually litigated in the 20 first suit. It goes on to a number of things. But 21 he then cites in his brief the restatement of 22 judgments, the second, which our courts have cited 23 in the Pye case. And number 5, which strikes me as 24 pretty compelling, is: There is a clear and 25 convincing need for a new determination of the issue

1 because of the potential adverse impact of the 2 determination on the public interest or the 3 interests of the persons not themselves party to an 4 initial action -- i.e., all the heirs, all the 5 children, everybody else, the needy children who 6 need to be educated -- and because it was not 7 sufficiently foreseeable at the time of the initial 8 action that issue would arise in the context of this 9 subsequent action.

10 So it is a huge issue in the James Brown 11 Estate's litigation as to whether or not she was the 12 wife of someone who had multiple wives or whether 13 that finding by Judge Segars-Andrews is the law in 14 the case or whether or not discovery should be had 15 or everybody can develop that so there won't be 16 anybody saying, well, we don't know what would have 17 been out there if we had a chance to look at it.
18 That's where I am.

19 MR. BELL: Yes, sir. And I think -- you asked 20 a moment ago a very important question, what would 21 discovery consist of? And I think there are two 22 things: First off, Your Honor, Mr. Ahmed is a 23 citizen of Pakistan.

24 THE COURT: We assume he's still over there. I
25 mean --

1 MR. BELL: I spoke to him.

2 THE COURT: I understand that. He may be gone
3 now.

4 MR. BELL: But that was a number of years ago.
5 I don't know whether the numbers would still be good 6 or not.

7 But, Your Honor, I remember from watching the 8 Broadway play Miss Saigon, there were questions in 9 the Vietnamese culture as to whether marriage
10 occurred that might not be recognized as a marriage
11 in our country. And I don't know the legal standard 12 of a marriage in Pakistan, whether that's an 13 official act that our Courts would recognize or 14 whether when he said I have multiple marriages, that 15 meant multiple girlfriends. There are different 16 standards. That's something to be answered.

17 There's a second thing, Your Honor: Tomi Rae
18 Hynie has said, I believe, at some point that this 19 was a marriage just to help him get through 20 immigration. Well, I talked -- I did talk to a man 21 in St. Lewis who told me that he had roomed with 22 Ahmed and that he was at the marriage and that they 23 lived together for some period of time. Now, 24 whether he could still be found or whether he would 25 say that under oath for a deposition to be taken for

1 use at trial, I don't know. But those are the facts 2 that would need to be developed and discovered and 3 undertaken if Your Honor sees fit to open discovery.
4 So --

5 THE COURT: Well, as I understand it, the way 6 we got here and, obviously, the way I've been 7 handling this case is being criticized in some other 8 areas of the country -- I'll leave that at that -- 9 but when we had the status conference on where we 10 stood, it was represented to me that we could 11 resolve it on a stipulation of facts.

12 It seems to me that it has evolved into a 13 factual dispute of some sort if I allow the parties 14 to go behind Judge Segars-Andrews' annulment order.
15 If that's the case, if that's not going to be the 16 law of the case, so to speak, her representation -- 17 her being Ms. Hynie Brown -- then I think we do have 18 to have discovery. If we can decide it based on the 19 legality of that annulment order, maybe we can 20 decide it on this summary judgment.

21 MR. BELL: And that's a legal issue that I
22 think Your Honor has to decide.

23 THE COURT: So that's your position, you think 24 we need to --

25 MR. BELL: I think that's a legal issue that

1 you have to decide whether or not that is binding on 2 all of the parties or whether the factual findings 3 in Judge Andrews' order are collateral issues. The 4 fact that he -- that the Judge annuled the marriage, 5 that's binding on the world. The factual findings, 6 we would argue, are collateral issues that are not 7 binding.

8 THE COURT: Well, that factual issue is so
9 important in this litigation and a naked
10 representation that he was married to somebody else 11 when it has the effect of what it could have in this 12 case -- and it may be the truth. I mean --

13 MR. BELL: It might be.

14 THE COURT: It might be. But that's what I'm 15 dealing with. And then, of course, not only the 16 factual situations in the effects of Lukich and all 17 the other arguments that both counsel have made.

18 MR. BELL: If it's a legal matter that is 19 binding on all of us, it might end there. But 20 that's a legal decision you have to make. But then 21 if it's not binding on all of us, then it opens the 22 door for discovery.

23 THE COURT: Thank you.

24 MR. BELL: Thank you, Your Honor.

25 THE COURT: Mr. Levenson --

1 MR. LEVENSON: Yes, sir.

2 THE COURT: I liked your brief. It was the 3 easiest one to read.

4 MR. LEVENSON: Well, thank you, Judge. On 5 behalf of my clients, Danisha Brown, Deanna Brown 6 Thomas, Yama Brown and Larry Brown, I rise to urge 7 Your Honor to follow what I thought was the plan 8 that we discussed in Aiken on the 10th, which was to 9 get this case in a -- with an adjudication on a 10 summary basis so that it could be concluded one way 11 or the other by -- your Honor said, rather 12 parenthetically -- Columbia, when we were in Your 13 Honor's court a couple weeks ago.

14 THE COURT: Well, that was the plan. But, you 15 know, every plan, sometimes facts develop and you 16 can't follow the plan. And people are saying now we 17 have factual issues that need to be resolved, 18 obviously I got to give you a little bit of time to 19 do discovery to come back in probably the same 20 situation.

21 MR. LEVENSON: Well, I rise to urge that you
22 not do that. I understand there's been requests 23 here for some discovery.

24 The Supreme Court has told this Court and the 25 litigants in its decision that there are, quote,

1 major impediments to Tomi Rae's spousal claim,
2 quote, unquote. The Supreme Court has told this 3 court on page 27 that the Circuit Court did not 4 acknowledge the sizable bar posed by a prenuptial
5 agreement, unquote. I would think --

6 THE COURT: Well, we're not here on the prenu 7 because that doesn't even come into play unless she 8 was, in fact, his wife.

9 MR. LEVENSON: I'm simply observing -- the 10 Supreme Court seemed to have made -- it wasn't 11 called upon to rule on those issues at the time the 12 settlement agreement was before the Supreme Court.
13 But it seemed prepared to address some of the 14 issues, and if Your Honor were to 15 summarily adjudicate the claims that I've asked that 16 you -- well, frankly, either way, at this point, if 17 there was a summary adjudication, I believe the 18 direction from the Supreme Court could be very 19 prompt and would avoid the, what's likely to be, 20 lengthy delay in this case, returning in a summary
21 fashion to this Court following the discovery.

22 I know that Mr. Bell says discovery -- or Your 23 Honor was asking what the scope of the discovery 24 would be. But my problem is that -- exactly; it's 25 like hurting the proverbial cats. We will be back

1 here in 2015 without a summary adjudication of this 2 case, while in the interim we could get Supreme 3 Court to decide this case.

4 And the worst that could happen would be the 5 Supreme Court would say that this Court erred in 6 failing to allow facts to be considered to 7 collaterally attack the Charleston Court decision.

8 THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Levenson.

9 MR. LEVENSON: Thank you, Judge.

10 MR. DONSBACH: Your Honor, if I may. John 11 Donsbach. I agree with Mr. Bell in this matter that 12 this Court cannot grant Mr. Rosen and company 13 summary judgment because additional discovery would 14 be necessary.

15 THE COURT: Why can I grant your side's summary
16 judgment?

17 MR. LEVENSON: That's what I'm about to 18 explain, Your Honor. In this case -- I want to take 19 this Court back to Lukich, which is what the Court 20 astutely --

21 THE COURT: Hold on one second, if you don't 22 mind.

23 Mr. Bell, where is the stipulation that you
24 referred to a while ago that Tomi Rae Hynie Brown 25 could not provide any additional facts other than

1 her representation that was made in Judge
2 Segars-Andrews' court? Number 18? Nope, that's not 3 it.

4 MR. BELL: Give me just one moment.

5 MR. ROSEN: Number 18, Judge. It says:
6 Petitioner's testimony was the only evidence for the 7 Court. That's all it says.

8 MR. BEACH: No, there's another one.

9 At number 10, Your Honor, I think may be what 10 we're talking about. It says here -- well, 9 and 11 10, actually, Judge. You see it?

12 THE COURT: I do.

13 All right. Go ahead, sir.

14 MR. LEVENSON: As this Court astutely noted
15 when it began today, Ahmed's prior relationships 16 don't matter, Your Honor. In the analysis of 17 Lukich, this Court is absolutely correct; it doesn't 18 matter if you're going to grant the LSA's summary 19 judgment motion because there are three facts that 20 have been stipulated to in this matter that make 21 Lukich apply across the continuum. And I think 22 Mr. Medlin has created the chaos that Lukich is 23 trying to avoid. He's confused people a little bit 24 by throwing out the ab initio and the continuum of 25 how the analysis works.

1 I think what's important to recognize is the 2 only three facts that matter in this case for the 3 application of Lukich: Ahmed and Ms. Hynie were 4 married, Mr. Brown and Ms. Hynie entered into a 5 ceremonial marriage.

6 THE COURT: Correct.

7 MR. DONSBACH: And number 3, Ms. Hynie didn't 8 get an annulment action until 2004.

9 THE COURT: Correct.

10 MR. DONSBACH: Those three facts, every person 11 in this room have stipulated to.

12 THE COURT: Agreed.

13 MR. LEVENSON: There is no dispute. And what 14 Lukich then does, it takes those facts and the 15 Supreme Court takes the construction and says when 16 we have that situation, the marriage as between the 17 parties involved in the marital relationship -- and 18 I think that's where the confusion comes in in 19 Mr. Medlin's analysis -- is void ab initio. It 20 absolutely --

21 THE COURT: Say that again.

22 MR. DONSBACH: It's void ab initio.

23 THE COURT: No. Say the first part of what you 24 just said.

25 MR. DONSBACH: I said that Mr. Medlin's

1 analysis is --

2 THE COURT: No. What did you say the Supreme 3 Court said about Lukich?

4 MR. DONSBACH: I said the Supreme Court's 5 analysis and everything that they adopt through it 6 in what they're saying is that when you apply those 7 facts and their analysis, that the relationship is 8 void ab initio. They're quoting the statute when 9 they do it. And you have to take the three points 10 that we pointed out in our brief and put together 11 where they take the statute, the quotes from the 12 statement, and the law that they put forward in 13 Lukich.

14 And when you take their analytical framework
15 that they put together, what happens is that you 16 analyze every relationship for purposes of annulment
17 under Lukich on a one-time-point continuum. You 18 don't do it retrospectively, you don't do it 19 prospectively; you take the point in time that 20 you're trying to analyze, whether it's valid, and 21 analyze it. That's what Lukich says in layman's 22 terms, getting it down where the goats can get at 23 it, which I like to try to do, explain it in 24 straightforward terms. So in this case, that date 25 is December 14th, 2001.

1 THE COURT: Marriage to James Brown.

2 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor, that's correct.
3 And that's the point in time on the continuum that 4 the Lukich analysis applies... All we need to know at 5 that point in time, Ms. Hynie was still legally in a 6 relationship with Mr. Ahmed, she had not had it 7 declared void as of yet, and so as a result, her 8 relationship to Mr. Brown was void ab initio.

9 Now, this Court asked a question earlier, 10 doesn't that make the Ahmed -- if their facts are 11 correct -- and we would contend that they are not.
12 It's our contention that that was a default 13 judgment, there were services issues, there were all 14 sorts of problems with the Charleston order. But 15 even if their contention is correct and Ahmed did 16 have other wives, it doesn't matter.

17 THE COURT: Why?

18 MR. DONSBACH: It doesn't matter for this 19 reason: Yeah, their relationship is void ab initio
20 under the Lukich analysis, absolutely correct, I 21 agree with that point. But the issue is, that 22 relationship, as to Ms. Hynie's ability to then go 23 out and marry a third party, a person who is not a 24 not party to the Ahmed-Hynie relationship, has to be 25 declared void as to the world.

1 As to Hynie and Ahmed, that relationship would 2 be void ab initio, from the beginning, as the 3 statute says. But in order for her to get her 4 capacity back to remarry, it has to be declared void 5 by a court order of competent jurisdiction. That's 6 what the statute says.

7 THE COURT: So you're citing right here from 8 Lukich, what I asked about earlier, under the 9 statute's terms: Wife's marriage to Husband No. 2 10 was void from the inception since at the time of 11 that marriage, she had a living spouse and that 12 marriage had not been declared void.

13 MR. DONSBACH: That is correct. There's an and 14 there, Your Honor. And that's absolutely correct, 15 it requires both. It means the relationship as to 16 the parties. And in this case, it works perfectly 17 on this continuum. I disagree completely with 18 Mr. Medlin because both relationships, if the facts 19 as they want to present them to this Court, would be 20 void ab initio.

21 But Ms. Hynie did not have the capacity to get 22 remarried in accordance with the plain construction
23 of the statute, as the Supreme Court points out, 24 until her marriage was annuled in 2004. And it's 25 clear by the facts of this case and what's been

1 argued and put forth for this case, Mr. Brown and 2 Ms. Hynie did not ever enter into a marriage
3 ceremony after 2004.

4 THE COURT: Well, that's stipulated.

5 MR. DONSBACH: That's correct. So neither -- 6 if their facts are correct and Mr. Ahmed had other 7 wives, then, yeah, their relationship was void ab
8 initio, but so was the Brown-Hynie relationship, 9 because she had not retained or gained her capacity 10 back --

11 THE COURT: She had not removed the impediment
12 to the marriage to Mr. Brown --

13 MR. DONSBACH: That is correct.

14 THE COURT: -- i.e., the marriage to Ahmed.

15 MR. DONSBACH: That's exactly correct. And 16 that is what Lukich says.

17 THE COURT: And that can be decided on summary
18 judgment.

19 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor, absolutely can.
20 And that's why the LSA's motion is the only motion 21 that can be granted today on summary judgment.
22 There are a couple others, but that point is the 23 biggest one because as a matter of law, there's no 24 other fact or scintilla of evidence or anything that 25 can be presented to this Court that would make it

1 so, because the three facts that matter have been 2 stipulated to.

3 And so there is no doubt in my mind that this 4 Court must grant summary judgment to the LSA Andrews
5 based on Lukich and the analysis underneath it.

6 THE COURT: Thank you.

7 MR. DONSBACH: Thank you, Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: All right.

9 MR. SHAHID: Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Yes, sir.

11 MR. SHAHID: It's interesting that folks 12 standing in this courtroom, on the stipulation of 13 facts, admit one of the most important facts in this 14 case; that is a birth of James Brown, II, and his 15 status regarding the legitimacy as a child of Tomi
16 Rae Brown and James Brown. If this Court has a 17 compelling reason to uphold that Tomi Rae Brown is 18 the surviving spouse because that one issue alone as 19 to his legitimacy -- let me go beyond that for a few 20 seconds, Judge. It has been stated --

21 THE COURT: So I ignore her marriage to Ahmed?

22 MR. SHAHID: Your Honor, you're bound by the 23 Charleston County family court order. The only 24 person who can attack that order is the other party.

25 THE COURT: Who; Mr. Ahmed?

1 MR. SHAHID: There are two type of 2 jurisdiction -- yes, sir, Mr. Ahmed -- in persona
3 jurisdiction and in rem jurisdiction.

4 THE COURT: I'm aware.

5 MR. SHAHID: In persona jurisdiction the Court 6 found attached to Mr. Ahmed. They have cited in 7 their brief about in re jurisdiction, which I think 8 is correct. They are bound by Mrs. Brown's status, 9 and her status is her marriage has been annuled. If 10 her marriage is annuled, that applies to the whole 11 world. Now, they can't have it both ways in this 12 thing.

13 And they talked about the point in time. If 14 there's a point in time, the point in time happened, 15 that Court found her marriage never existed. The 16 factual issues behind it applied as the law in the 17 case. If you say we're going to need to have 18 discovery on this thing, what are we going to 19 discover, because a statement against interest is 20 credible evidence.

21 If a person makes a statement to a third party
22 that's against their interest, that's admissible
23 evidence. Now, what are we going to do? We're 24 going to do discovery and go beyond Judge 25 Segars-Andrews' order? Think of the chaos that

1 creates against public policy by undoing annulments
2 or undoing divorces. What if Mr. Rosen decided not 3 to do an annulment of that particular day --

4 THE COURT: Well, what if we didn't have Judge
5 Andrews' order? What if simply Ms. Brown just says 6 he was married to someone else? Is that enough to 7 void that marriage right out the chute?

8 MR. SHAHID: Well, Judge, let's just take that 9 point for a few seconds. If Mr. Rosen did not go 10 and file that action in Charleston County and we 11 came forward with competent evidence that he was 12 married to other people, her marriage to him was 13 void ab initio because that's what Professor Medlin 14 said. It never happened. And the word that we 15 should be using at that particular point in time is 16 not that she married him; she attempted marriage, 17 because it never was, it never happened, because he 18 had the incapacity to marry her. It never existed.

19 Now, if -- you have to do something extra at 20 the point in time. If you've got to do something 21 extra at the point in time, the one thing that we 22 have ignored in here is the second order, the 23 consent order that Mr. Brown signed and filed ending 24 his annulment case. And we're stuck with that order 25 as well. He's stopped. Now, nobody in this

1 courtroom can go beyond what he did or he didn't do.
2 And we know for a fact, which is stipulated as fact,
3 the two orders were issued; one by Judge
4 Segars-Andrews in Charleston annulling Tomi Rae
5 Brown's marriage, and the second order in which 6 Mr. Brown, during his lifetime, took Judge Segars' 7 orders, adopted it, accepted it, urged the Court to 8 approve it and to incorporate it, and then he took a 9 step back and said, I'm ending the case.

10 The point in time is that consent order ending 11 everything. The point in time is that during his 12 lifetime, Mr. Brown did not file an action for 13 divorce, did not file an action for annulment a 14 second time. He adopted his status, which is then 15 the status of the world to accept, and has to adopt;
16 his status was, he's married to Tomi Rae Brown. So 17 if you started going into discovery, what are we 18 going to discover beyond these two orders? These 19 two orders bind this Court, binds everybody in this 20 courtroom.

21 If we start going back and undoing orders,
22 we're going to be here forever. And the public 23 policy that that violates, that creates a precedent 24 of undoing what a family court judge has done, 25 creates chaos, because orders, by their nature, have

1 got to be final.

2 Now, there is a procedure to come back and 3 attack an order, under rule 59 and rule 60. Nobody 4 has done that. They want to go back and have 5 discovery to do what? They can't, they're 6 prohibited from doing that.

7 THE COURT: Well, as I understand, the latest
8 argument is to accept Judge Segars-Andrews' orders 9 as a valid order. Even with that, it's still as an 10 impediment to Tomi Rae's marriage to Mr. Brown 11 because it had not been annuled before that 12 marriage.

13 MR. SHAHID: Let's assume that's correct.
14 Let's just assume that there's no retroactive 15 application to Judge Segars-Andrews' order. What 16 did Mr. Brown do when he was fully aware of that 17 annulment order? What did he do? He asked the 18 Court to adopt it and accept the findings of fact.
19 He asked the Court to do that. He said, I want the 20 Court to take that order in Aiken County family 21 court and make it a finding of fact. That's his 22 complaint. Then he punted and said, wait a minute, 23 I'm not doing anything else.

24 Now, the LSA cannot take a position contrary to 25 what Mr. Brown did. He has a fiduciary obligation

1 to follow what Mr. Brown did and did not do. He 2 can't go beyond that. That's what Mr. Brown did.
3 That's a stipulation of fact. What is discovery 4 going to do to create anything different along those 5 lines? Are we going to find a magical annulment 6 order that Mr. Brown did? Are we going to find an 7 imaginary divorce order that Mr. Brown did? It 8 doesn't exist. And they can't come in and now seek 9 to annul the marriage between Mr. Brown and 10 Mrs. Brown that took place; they don't have the 11 capacity to do that, it's too late. We don't need 12 any more discovery, we don't need to engage beyond 13 the stipulated facts because this Court is bound by 14 those two orders. The status of Mrs. Brown from 15 that annulment order is binding on everybody.

16 THE COURT: Thank you.

17 All right. Let's take a ten-minute break.

18 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor --

19 THE COURT: Sir?

20 MR. MEDLIN: I'm going to be a while. They've 21 raised a bunch of issues that I think I have to 22 address for the record. So I don't know if that 23 affects your timing for the lunch break or whatever.

24 THE COURT: No, sir. We'll keep moving along.

25 MR. MEDLIN: Very good. Thank you, Your Honor.

1 (Brief recess.)

2 THE COURT: All right. It's 12:30. I think
3 I'll complete the last argument and then we'll see 4 how much time we need for reply.

5 You've got one, don't you, ma'am?

6 MS. GILFORD: Yes, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Okay. And then if we all want to 8 take a lunch break, we'll take a lunch break; if you 9 don't, we won't. We'll just see where we stand.

10 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, I apologize. I didn't 11 realize that Ms. Gilford wanted to speak, so when I 12 made that comment before the break, I thought I was 13 next up.

14 THE COURT: Oh, I thought you said you were 15 mixed up.

16 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, I think everybody else 17 in here thinks that.

18 THE COURT: Ms. GILFORD, what would suit you?
19 What's easiest for you?

20 MS. GILFORD: This is fine here.

21 THE COURT: That's fine. Just don't act like 22 some of these guys in here, speak up loud for me.

23 MS. GILFORD: Okay, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Yes, ma'am.

25 MS. GILFORD: Well, first I'd like to say that

1 I'm totally supporting the position of Mr. Donsbach
2 because the case in Lukich does talk about a point 3 in time. And that point in time is the point in 4 time when the marriage took place on December 14th, 5 2001, between Tomi Rae and James Brown. At that 6 moment, she was already engaged in a marriage with 7 someone.

8 Now, Mr. Medlin talked earlier about having to 9 file a court -- file with the clerk in order to 10 terminate the prior annulment. In that case, Tomi 11 Rae's annulment was not filed until -- well, it was 12 entered on April 14th, 2004, so, therefore, the time 13 that James Brown and Tomi Rae were married on 14 December 14th of 2001, that order had not been 15 entered yet. So under the Lukich case, at that 16 point in time --

17 THE COURT: Not only that it hadn't been 18 entered, it hadn't even been had. It wasn't in 19 existence, was it?

20 MS. GILFORD: That's right, Your Honor. So 21 under the statute that says -- and this is the -- 22 when you marry someone and you're already married, 23 the marriage is void. So at the time when 24 Mr. Brown -- James Brown -- and Tomi Rae married, at 25 that moment in time, she was already married to

1 Hynie Rae [sic]. That marriage had not been 2 terminated by a decree by the Court so, therefore, 3 at that moment in time, the Court would look and 4 say, at that moment in time, that marriage would 5 have been a bigamous marriage under the statute.

6 Now I'd like to go back for a moment and point 7 out -- and the bigamous statute I'm referring to is 8 20-1-80, of course. I'd like to reference a case
9 that John Beach passed out. And it's interesting 10 because --

11 THE COURT: Which one is that, ma'am?

12 MS. GILFORD: This is the case Hallums vs.
13 Hallums. When Tomi Rae did get her annulment before 14 the Court in Charleston, she was the only witness 15 that testified.

16 THE COURT: That's correct.

17 MS. GILFORD: And I will go into now some of 18 the inconsistencies and -- and I'll bring up the 19 prenuptial, not for the purpose of what Your Honor 20 discussed earlier, but for the purpose of showing 21 inconsistencies, because the South Carolina Rules of 22 Evidence 804 and 807 and 808 require that there be 23 competent testimony by the witnesses. And competent 24 means you can consider bias of the witness, any type 25 of -- the character of the witness should be

1 considered.

2 And the case -- this is on to the right about 3 midway down. It talks about when a marriage -- and 4 this is the Hallums case, which was passed over by 5 John Beach. It says: When a marriage, in fact, has 6 been established and is sought to be impeached and 7 to be made void by proof of a prior marriage, the 8 testimony should be clear and convincing, the 9 presumption of law being in favor of innocence and 10 marriage and against bigamy.

11 In this particular case, the Court said the 12 testimony in relation to an alleged prior marriage 13 between Bill Williams and another woman was 14 insufficient. So the Court found the testimony was 15 insufficient to annul and to make void the actual 16 marriage to the plaintiff.

17 In this particular case -- and I would like to 18 apply this to the actual proceeding -- the annulment
19 proceeding which took on April the 15th of 2004.
20 She was the only witness that testified, and there 21 were inconsistencies in her testimony, which I think 22 the Court should consider the character, the 23 inconsistencies, the bias of the witness to 24 determine -- or to make a consideration -- take into 25 consideration, because if the order of the Court is

1 based upon testimony that -- and Mr. Bell also 2 reiterated upon this, that the Court should have 3 testimony that is competent under the rules. So 4 that would be -- I'm just making a point there that 5 the Court should consider that.

6 But even in light of that, I have, I believe, a 7 stronger testimony -- or stronger argument with 8 regard to why that order, the final order, which was 9 the April 15th, 2004 order of annulment, is void 10 because there was no service upon Ahmed. The -- and 11 I go to the service of process, the affidavit, and 12 the statute that allows service by publication,
13 which is -- South Carolina Code Section 15-9-710
14 requires that the -- after due diligence is made, 15 that the defendant cannot be found within the 16 state -- and that would be within the state of South 17 Carolina -- and that fact has to appear in an 18 affidavit. That fact does not appear in the 19 affidavit which is the affidavit of Mr. -- that is 20 the joint stipulation of facts, and that is the 21 affidavit of -- that's Exhibit 6 of the joint 22 stipulation of fact.

23 The fact that -- and South Carolina law 24 requires strict compliance with the requirements to 25 service of -- for service of process. The fact that

1 that statement was not in there, Courts in South
2 Carolina have found that affidavits are defective 3 where they do not strictly comply with the 4 requirements of the statute. And the statute says:
5 When the person on whom service of summons is to be 6 made cannot, after due diligence, be found within 7 the state... and that fact had to appear within the 8 affidavit. And the affidavit does not say that he 9 could not be found within the state. As a matter of 10 fact, Mr. Medlin, I think, was from Texas -- yeah, 11 he had an address in Texas.

12 In addition to that, the affidavit of Hynie
13 Rae, which -- well, before the Court, she testified 14 in the proceeding on April the 15th, 2004, that 15 Ahmed's last-known address was Apartment 314, 16 however -- and that testimony is the transcript
17 which is Exhibit 13, joint stipulation of fact.
18 However, in the certified marriage license between 19 Ahmed and Tomi Rae, it showed that the address was 20 1314, not 314. So her testimony in the transcript 21 that his last-known address was 314 was inaccurate.
22 And nowhere in the transcript does it discuss or say 23 that after due diligence, Ahmed, the defendant, 24 could not be found within the state.

25 So, one, the statement of his last-known

1 address was incorrect; two, the required language 2 that the statute requires or the code requires is 3 not there. It's not in the final order, it's not in 4 the affidavit of service. In addition, there is 5 inconsistency as to what was his last-known address.
6 Tomi Rae's affidavit that's dated February 2nd, 2004
7 states that his last-known address was Apartment 8 1314, which is consistent with the certified copy of 9 the marriage license which is on file here and it's 10 also attached as Mitchell's Exhibit 32. That shows 11 that the marriage license was mailed to Tomi Rae and 12 Ahmed at Apartment 1314, not 314.

13 So the affidavit -- in addition, the affidavit 14 of Mr. Ronald -- and this is a minor point, but it's 15 important when you put all of minor points together.
16 I mean, if the code requires strict compliance, then 17 it's important, it becomes important because, as I 18 think Mr. Bell pointed out, the case Dallas -- I'm 19 sorry, Wilson v. Dallas didn't know how quickly the 20 annulment took place. There was a comment about 21 that. And this annulment proceeded to the courts 22 very rapidly.

23 And so if you look at all of the errors, the 24 affidavit of Mr. Bodelli [phonetic], it is -- it 25 says that on -- it's dated January of 2003, but it

1 says on December -- in December of 2003, I took the 2 action of attempting to locate the defendant, Ahmed.
3 Well, that's impossible because you can't sign
4 something on January of 2003 saying that you did 5 something in January of 2003 -- I'm sorry, I'm 6 sorry, December. You can't sign something in 7 January of 2003 saying that you did something in 8 December of 2003.

9 So there again, that's a -- and it may have 10 been just a typographical error; however, that 11 error, in addition to the lack of the correct
12 address, the failure to include that strict language 13 that the statute requires after due diligence, 14 cannot be found in the state, that amounts to a 15 defective affidavit. And that affidavit was used 16 for service by publication. The statute for service 17 by publication requires strict requirements, and so 18 if the affidavit that it was based upon, the order 19 allowing publication, if the affidavit upon which it 20 was based was defective, then that would make the 21 order of publication defective.

22 In addition, the notice requirements are 23 also -- they require strict compliance because if -- 24 if Ahmed was never properly served, that would mean 25 that the Court didn't have personal jurisdiction

1 over him. If the Court didn't have personal 2 jurisdiction over him, then anything that the Court
3 entered would be void.

4 And lack of personal jurisdiction can come 5 several ways. It can be -- they got failure to 6 properly serve or it can also be by failure to give 7 notice of a proceeding. And in this case, the 8 notice requirements also were not properly met 9 because if the notice of the hearing which -- 10 actually, the publication that was published three 11 weeks in the -- I think it was the Houston Chronicle
12 saying that the hearing would be on March the 29th.
13 I believe it's the 26th. But the hearing actually 14 took place on April the 15th, not on March as the 15 date that was published. So even if he had seen it 16 in the paper, there's a discrepancy there. So, 17 again, strict compliance because we're talking about 18 due process of a person being able to have his day 19 in court and to be heard.

20 So lack of personal jurisdiction for both 21 reasons that the -- there was no proper service upon 22 him personally and that the Court -- that there was 23 no proper notice of the hearing that took place.
24 And so for that reason, I would argue that the Court
25 didn't have jurisdiction to enter the order. Now,

1 if the Court didn't have jurisdiction to enter the 2 order, then the order that was entered saying that 3 the annulment of -- the order annulling the marriage 4 of Tomi Rae and Ahmed on April the 15th of 2004, if 5 that order is void, then that would mean that they'd 6 still be married.

7 So -- and then -- and now, that's a separate 8 argument in addition to the fact that Tomi Rae and 9 James Brown had already entered into a contractual 10 marriage which was void at the time that they 11 entered into it because Tomi Rae was already married 12 December the 14th, 2001 when James Brown married 13 Tomi Rae.

14 So for two different reasons, actually -- and I
15 don't want to confuse the two. But, one, when Tomi
16 Rae -- under the Lukich case, when Tomi Rae married
17 James Brown, she was already married and no court 18 order had been entered terminating that -- or 19 terminated by annulment, so she was still married, 20 therefore her marriage to James Brown would have 21 been void for that reason. But at the time that she 22 did go to court to get an order terminating her 23 marriage to Ahmed, then if -- the Court did not have 24 jurisdiction at that time; then for a second reason, 25 that order would have been void and she still

1 would've have been married to Ahmed; and then for a 2 third reason, her testimony was, I will say, not the 3 most credible and that the Court -- and that's not a 4 reason to overturn an order. But I would argue
5 that -- and this Court, I believe, has jurisdiction, 6 although the Courts have said that -- the statute 7 says that the family Court has jurisdiction with 8 regard to annulment. And the Lukich case even talks 9 about the reasoning for that, especially if the 10 annulment order states void ab initio, is because it 11 would create conflict or chaos where different 12 Courts are ruling upon property, child support, and 13 all these different things.

14 However, with regard to the issue of 15 jurisdiction, I argue that that's not the ancillary 16 proceeding that the Lukich case was referring to 17 when it says the family Court has jurisdiction over 18 matters relating to annulment, because it would be a 19 matter relating to whether the Court had 20 jurisdiction to enter an order of annulment because 21 before the Court can enter on the merits, the Court 22 has to have jurisdiction over the person or the 23 subject matter of the case.

24 And so for that reason, I would argue that the 25 Court, based on the case of Foster, that the Court

1 of Common Pleas has jurisdiction to enter or to hear 2 matters involving marriage contracts. So it would 3 be more of a jurisdiction of the Court for that 4 reason. And...

5 THE COURT: Anything else?

6 MS. GILFORD: Just one second, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Yes, ma'am.

8 MS. GILFORD: Oh, yes. I'd like to -- the 9 Court in the case of -- bear with me just a second,
10 Your Honor.

11 In the case of Prevatte vs. Prevatte, 297 SC 12 345, the Court said that a relationship illicit at 13 its inception does not ripen into a common law 14 marriage once the impediment to marriages is 15 removed. Instead, the Court said, the law in South 16 Carolina presumes that the relationship retains its 17 illicit character after removal of impediment. And 18 in order for a common law marriage to rise in a 19 second marriage after the first marriage is annulled, 20 the parties must agree to enter into a common law 21 marriage after the impediment is removed.

22 So in this case -- and this on a completely 23 separate argument without waiving any arguments I've 24 already made -- when Tomi Rae received the annulment 25 on April the 15th, 2004, that would have -- under

1 this particular case, that -- annulling her marriage
2 to Ahmed on that date would have removed an 3 impediment to her relationship to James Brown and 4 after that point in time -- prior to that point in 5 time, she did not have a relationship or contractual 6 marriage with James Brown. However, under this 7 case, and I think South Carolina case law, after 8 that point in time, if they chose, the parties could 9 then agree that they would like to continue in a 10 common law relationship. And I'd like to -- just 11 for --

12 THE COURT: Or either get married.

13 MS. GILFORD: Right, get married or show to the 14 world that they are still involved in a common law
15 marriage. But in this particular case -- and I 16 think it's important to make sure it's on the record 17 because I see some inconsistencies here, that James 18 Brown made sure -- he made sure that his intention 19 was put out there. He filed an amended complaint to 20 his annulment action after the Court entered this 21 annulment for Tomi Rae and Hynie [sic]. So after 22 the impediment was removed, Tomi Rae and Hynie's 23 [sic] marriage was annuled, then James Brown took 24 the action of amending his complaint to say, I want 25 an annulment from Tomi Rae. Now, that was showing

1 that he was not of the intent to enter or remain in 2 a common law marriage.

3 And not only that, when the parties signed the 4 consent order -- I think it was dated August the 5 14th of 2004 -- the consent order said -- and he 6 agreed to pay her attorney's fees. But she in turn 7 agreed that she would not claim -- not then or ever
8 in the future claim a common law marriage. And I
9 think that the reason it only referred to common law 10 marriage is because if you look at the statute and 11 you understand the statute that says the initial 12 ceremonial marriage in December of 2001 was void, 13 then he would have had no reason to mention that 14 marriage, because it didn't exist. So under that 15 line of reasoning, then it would have been sense for 16 him to say that she's only -- she's not claiming any 17 type of common law marriage at that point in time.

18 Now, that -- and this Court can take judicial 19 notice or -- or can estop Tomi Rae from changing her 20 position and now claiming common law marriage with 21 James Brown. In addition -- now, there's several 22 things that -- I mean, I've seen -- for instance, 23 the affidavit which was recently filed by Tomi Rae
24 and filed on September the 24th had attached to it 25 some pictures of James Brown and Tomi Rae together.

1 Now, that's one of the things that can be used. It 2 says your conduct can show that you intend to 3 maintain a common law marriage.

4 Now, this picture -- and I look at the bottom 5 of the picture and there's a date on here and this 6 date is December of 2003. That date would have been 7 before the impediment was removed so, therefore, 8 this picture could not be used to show that James 9 Brown intended to enter into a common law marriage 10 after the impediment was removed. So I would just 11 like to make that point on the record.

12 And also, there was a mention about a book.
13 James Brown's book said that he was married to Tomi 14 Rae. Now, as an author I know that when you first 15 edit a book and when the book comes to print or 16 publication, there are many facts in there that 17 could have changed and you may wish you had not said
18 certain things or done certain things, but it 19 doesn't change what's printed. So the fact that 20 there's a book out there that says -- where James 21 Brown says that he was married to Tomi Rae does not 22 mean that that book was not initially started prior 23 to the impediment or prior to him learning that 24 there was another husband because when he -- husband
25 of Tomi Rae. I mean, when he entered into a

1 prenuptial, she never told him that she had another 2 husband that -- from which she had not had an 3 annulment or divorce. When he married her December 4 the 14th, 2001, she did not disclose that she had 5 another husband from which she had not received an 6 annulment or divorce.

7 And even though -- and this goes to credibility
8 again. Even though the prenuptial agreement said 9 that the parties had disclosed and considered all 10 the facts that were pertinent to them entering into 11 the agreement, he could not have considered 12 everything if he did not know that she was married 13 to someone else at the time that she signed the 14 prenuptial agreement on November the 27th, 2001, and 15 at the time that he married her on December the 16 14th, 2004, then he could not have had all the 17 facts. But as soon as she did learn that she had 18 another husband from which she had not received an 19 annulment or divorce, he went straight to the court
20 and he filed for an annulment. So in January -- I
21 think it was January 27th, 2004 -- he immediately 22 filed for an annulment. Of course her annulment was 23 filed before that time. But again, he expressed his 24 intent that he -- when he did learn the truth, that 25 he wanted out of the contractual relationship and he

1 also made clear that he did not want to maintain a 2 common law relationship with her.

3 THE COURT: Thank you.

4 Mr. Barr, aren't y'all together?

5 MR. BARR: Yes. I just want to make sure we're 6 on the record. We weren't here when we first 7 started.

8 THE COURT: Sir?

9 MR. BARR: We weren't here when the Court first 10 started.

11 THE COURT: That's right. You were late.

12 MR. BARR: Yeah. William Barr and Vera
13 Gilford.

14 THE COURT: Mr. Donsbach, did you tell me that 15 if we assume that the Segars-Andrews order is 16 legally binding and correct, it still makes no 17 difference under your analysis?

18 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor, that's correct.

19 THE COURT: And why is that?

20 MR. DONSBACH: Because even if the Ahmed-Hynie 21 relationship is void ab initio, as they contend, as 22 a result of those facts being correct -- now, we of 23 course --

24 THE COURT: I understand that.

25 MR. DONSBACH: It doesn't matter because it was

1 never declared void by a competent Court of 2 jurisdiction, as the statute and construction of the 3 statute requires, until 2004. And so as to the 4 parties involved in that relationship, Ms. Hynie and 5 Mr. Ahmed, it was void from the beginning, if their 6 facts are correct. But what that means is that 7 Mr. Ahmed and Ms. Hynie could not pursue a marriage 8 or the obligations or the restrictions or the 9 alimony or whatever you want against each other 10 because there was no marriage.

11 Now, as to the rest of the world, that marriage 12 certificate was not invalidated until 2004. So the 13 rest of the world, i.e., third parties or, in this 14 case, Mr. Brown, would have no way to know that that 15 impediment is removed until 2004. This is the idea 16 of the chaos that Lukich is trying to avoid. It's 17 drawing clear lines by saying, as to the parties, 18 it's void ab initio; as to the rest of the world, 19 until it's declared void, there's an impediment to 20 marriage to a third party.

21 And that analysis works in all of the 22 relationships in this case. They want to argue that 23 Mr. Brown didn't go get an annulment or didn't 24 finalize his own marital situation because he 25 entered into this relationship with Ms. Hynie. The

1 Court could even determine -- now, we're not 2 agreeing that that's correct, but the Court could 3 agree that's correct. Had Mr. Brown wanted to go 4 enter another relationship, he might have needed to 5 clear up that consent order a little bit more to get 6 that relationship annuled. But as to the 7 relationship with Ms. Hynie, it was void ab initio.
8 And neither one of them could enforce rights against 9 the other because it was void ab initio, as the 10 statute says. But as to the world, they had to have 11 it declared void by a Court of competent 12 jurisdiction which means that, sure, they could make 13 the argument that Mr. Brown needed to have that 14 consent order cleaned up, but it didn't matter 15 because we're not here to argue that. We're not 16 here to argue the third party that came after 17 Mr. Brown and Ms. Hynie, we're here to argue the 18 party, Mr. Brown, that came after Ahmed and Hynie.

19 And that's why Lukich analysis works on a 20 continuum in every relationship, and it applies and 21 gives you the same result every time, regardless of 22 why the marriage was annuled too. That's the 23 sublime beauty of the Supreme Court decision. We 24 don't have to get into the void, voidable; they've 25 taken that out of play. They've basically said,

1 look, it's a timeline, it's a point in time, that's 2 it, and that's what we're going to make it be. And 3 that's what they said. And they effectively picked 4 up through the statement second of marriage when 5 they said if the Court of Appeals pointed to -- 6 which laid this out in as crystal clear of fashion 7 as possible when it said that just because the 8 marriage was void ab initio, it does not validate 9 the second relationship until that second 10 relationship goes through an either common law or 11 ceremonial marriage after the impediment is removed.
12 And that's Lukich. And that's why this Court can 13 make that decision today.

14 THE COURT: Thank you.

15 All right. Who's in favor of some lunch and 16 who's not? Who wants to do what?

17 MR. ROSEN: We'd like to move on.

18 THE COURT: All right. Anybody else? Who 19 wants to break for lunch? Raise your hand.

20 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, I'm going to be quite 21 a while.

22 THE COURT: Does that mean you want to break
23 for lunch? What does quite a while mean; 30 24 minutes?

25 MR. MEDLIN: Forty-five minutes, an hour maybe.

1 I got a lot to cover.

2 THE COURT: Well, I understand that.

3 All right. We'll take a lunch break and start 4 back up at 2:00.

5 (A luncheon recess transpired.)

6 THE COURT: Okay. I think where we are now is,
7 Professor Medlin, your rebuttal or whatever you want 8 to call it.

9 MR. MEDLIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

10 We've talked a lot about some factual issues, 11 affidavits, issues about prenups and the focus about 12 the diary. But again, we argue that none of that 13 matters today; we think we can get a ruling on the 14 law. And I would like to explain a little better 15 the status of this case at this point.

16 Our competing summary judgments are simply to 17 determine whether Mrs. Brown is a surviving spouse 18 for the elective share and omitted share purposes; 19 again, a probate issue.

20 To make it clear to the Court, of course, even 21 if she is a surviving spouse, she still has to 22 overcome the question of whether she waived any 23 spousal rights because of an alleged prenup. We 24 don't think she did, but certainly --

25 THE COURT: That's still there.

1 MR. MEDLIN: That's an issue to go to. And 2 also, the Supreme Court mentioned the fact that in 3 the 2000 will and trust, Mr. Brown may have had 4 some -- they even ruled this, but may have had some 5 language that overrode the omitted spouse statute, 6 which a testator can do. You cannot override the 7 elective share statute, but you can do that. So all 8 we're doing today is really affecting nonprobate
9 property. We will affect nonprobate property today 10 by your ruling.

11 If, in fact, Mrs. Brown is the surviving 12 spouse, it legitimizes James Brown. Now, he's 13 legitimized by their attempt to marry for the 14 purposes of intestates. But this would legitimize 15 him for other purposes. And certainly, I think, 16 that we've got enough evidence in the record that 17 Mr. Brown was saying that it was his son and, in 18 fact, we now have two DNA tests. And it would be a 19 shame not to get that established. It will get 20 Mrs. Brown some social security and health 21 insurance, perhaps some termination rights. From 22 the Estate's prospective, it will confirm what was 23 on the tax return with the IRS and which the IRS
24 accepted, in fact, that Mrs. Brown was the surviving 25 spouse of James Brown.

1 So to clean up a whole lot of issues that won't 2 affect the probate assets -- because even if she's a 3 surviving spouse, those issues get resolved, but not 4 necessarily the probate estate. There will be 5 another date to take a bite at that.

6 THE COURT: And how is she a surviving spouse?

7 MR. BELL: She's a surviving spouse, Your 8 Honor, because under Section 62-2-802, which is the 9 section that I handed out earlier, it says that one 10 is not a surviving spouse if she has been divorced 11 or her marriage has been annuled. And she has 12 presented all the evidence she needs to present for 13 purposes of 62-2-802; she's got a marriage license, 14 she's got a ceremonial marriage and, in fact, it is 15 now too late for Mr. Brown or those standing in his 16 shoes to annul that marriage. Certainly he didn't 17 try to do that. He, as we know and it's part of the 18 stipulation of facts, withdrew his annulment 19 complaint and consented, without prejudice, of 20 course, that the annulment complaint was withdrawn.

21 Now, again I ask the Court to take judicial 22 notice of the fact that there's no filing anywhere
23 in a court -- I think this is correct -- showing 24 that he obtained an annulment or a divorce from 25 Mrs. Brown before death. So everybody here is

1 standing in Mr. Brown's shoes; the LSA is 2 representing Mr. Brown's estate, all the other 3 parties are claiming through Mr. Brown and, in fact, 4 that's the privity that we're talking about.

5 Now I know Mr. Beach brought up privy with 6 respect to collateral estoppel issues and so forth, 7 but we're really talking about the privity that 8 stems from everybody in here claiming through 9 Mr. Brown. So what affects Mr. Brown affects all of 10 them in the same way.

11 Now, there were several arguments made this 12 morning that we'd like to disagree with. First of 13 all, Your Honor, with respect to the two different 14 marriages in Lukich, this quote that came up several 15 times this morning -- and, in fact, Your Honor, I 16 believe you raised it -- which says that under the 17 statute's terms, Wife's marriage to Husband 2 was 18 void from the inception, since at the time of the 19 marriage she had a living spouse and that marriage
20 had not been declared void. All right. So we're 21 focusing on the first marriage in Lukich, which 22 makes it different from our case.

23 In Lukich, the first marriage was, in fact, 24 voidable because it was based on intoxication. And 25 when you have a voidable order, the order takes

1 effect going forward only; otherwise, it's valid
2 until someone issues an order finding that it's not.
3 But the statute in every case, including Lukich, as 4 to the second marriage says that a void marriage is 5 never a marriage. It's never a marriage under the 6 statute, it's never a marriage under the cases, with 7 some exceptions about the difference between status
8 and ancillary issues that I'm going to talk about 9 that doesn't affect our argument, and it follows the 10 public policy that people should never enter into a 11 bigamous marriage in South Carolina. So the status 12 is what's the issue here. And Tomi Rae's status was 13 that she was never married to Ahmed ab initio.
14 Every case says that with respect to the status of 15 the case. Now --

16 THE COURT: And that's based on the fact that 17 he had wives or other marriages?

18 MR. BELL: Correct. And, Your Honor, if I may, 19 I'll get to the issue of whether we can look 20 underneath that existing order, which, of course, we 21 don't think we can. But it depends on the fact 22 that, in fact, it was bigamous. In fact, Professor 23 Stuckey, in his treatise on marital litigation in 24 South Carolina, which I understand is the only 25 treatise dealing with marital litigation in South

1 Carolina, says that clearly. It says that bigamous
2 marriage is void ab initio under the statute. One
3 doesn't even need to get an order to invalidate it 4 because it never has validity.

5 So Tomi Rae's status assuming, again, the 6 validity of the bigamy of Mr. Ahmed, which we think 7 we have to assume, is that she was never married.
8 She never personally carried an impediment into a 9 marriage with anyone else. And there's no case that 10 we could find in South Carolina that says anything 11 to the contrary. The treatise says the same thing 12 and, in fact, Lukich says the same thing. Once you 13 get the right marriage in perspective, it's the 14 second marriage that was void ab initio. Didn't 15 even need to get an order as to the second marriage, 16 it was void ab initio.

17 THE COURT: Because the first marriage was not 18 void, it was voidable --

19 MR. MEDLIN: Voidable.

20 THE COURT: -- and had not been voided.

21 MR. MEDLIN: Correct, Your Honor. That's our 22 position.

23 Now, there was some discussion about the order 24 itself and that somehow the order is separate and 25 apart from the findings of fact and conclusions of 1 law. Well, again, Mr. Brown affirmed the findings 2 of fact in the pleading, he wanted those facts to 3 apply. And again, Mr. Brown didn't attack the 4 Ahmed-Tomi Rae order. And, in fact, Mr. Brown 5 withdrew his annulment and he never tried to 6 terminate his marriage to Tomi Rae in any way. And 7 as we've seen in evidence in the court, he's held 8 himself out to be married up until the time of his 9 death.

10 Ms. Gilford raises the issue of the picture and 11 the book. Well, the book is both copyrighted and 12 published in 2005, which is after all of the family
13 court shenanigans. So even though the picture may 14 have been a 2003 three picture, and just one of the 15 pictures in the book, the autobiography, now that 16 she's raised it, says, this is my wife. And by the 17 way, Your Honor, if the other side who wants so much 18 discovery cares about what James Brown wanted, which 19 they should -- it really doesn't matter for purposes 20 of the summary adjustment argument -- but if they 21 cared about it, they don't need to -- if they want 22 to know what he thought, they don't need to ask 23 somebody else, they can Google any number of videos 24 and so forth. They'll see all that and --

25 THE COURT: Well, I'm not into Googling videos

1 and --

2 MR. MEDLIN: And I understand that.

3 THE COURT: I want to know --

4 MR. MEDLIN: All right. So, Your Honor, the -- 5 THE COURT: -- about the two marriages.

6 MR. MEDLIN: So they say the order doesn't 7 preserve the findings of fact and conclusions of 8 law. Well, that's like saying two plus two equals 9 four, but we can go back and dispute whether two 10 plus two is there. If that order is going to be 11 affected, then it can't be subject to attack later 12 on. And again, if it's going to be collaterally
13 attacked by Mr. Brown, again, we think he's estopped 14 from that and we think he's taken positions to the 15 contrary, accepted benefits, et cetera, of all that, 16 things you've seen in the brief. If he's going to 17 do that, it's too late. The only way he can try to 18 annul his marriage or attack collaterally the 19 validity of that order is to bring his own annulment 20 action -- how else can he do it -- and, under the 21 Probate Code, for purposes of this, it's too late.
22 Hatchell-Freeman case and others and Professor 23 Stuckey all say, clearly, you can't bring an 24 annulment after the fact. So it's too late to 25 attack that order.

1 And it wouldn't make sense to be able to 2 separate the orders, so what are we going to do?
3 We're going to find that the family Court made an 4 error? Only the family Court has jurisdiction over 5 annulments. The probate Court and the circuit
6 Court -- and we're sitting in probate for this -- 7 clearly don't have jurisdiction over annulments, so 8 we're going to question the validity of the basis of 9 the order that the Judge with exclusive jurisdiction 10 in South Carolina determined after hearing the 11 case --

12 THE COURT: They're not --

13 MR. MEDLIN: -- in realtime.

14 THE COURT: They're not contesting the order, 15 they're contesting the facts from which the order 16 was --

17 MR. MEDLIN: Well, so what if it turns out,
18 Your Honor, that, in fact, the facts and conclusions 19 of law are incorrect as you see it? Are you going 20 to overturn that order? Because that order says 21 that it was an annulment. So if the facts aren't 22 right, then how is that going to happen? And that 23 means that we would never have finality with 24 annulment orders.

25 If third parties can go back, particularly

1 after the decedent dies, and attack orders, divorce
2 or annulment, the orders would be never final, it
3 would go on forever. And the next time somebody 4 walked up and decided to adapt the order, we'd have 5 to go through the same thing. It seems to me, 6 clearly, the Court with the jurisdiction to 7 determine the annulment is the only Court to 8 consider that. And it considered that and it could 9 have been appealed, but it wasn't. And so the 10 jurisdictional issue, I think, is a real problem for 11 this Court to dig underneath that order.

12 Now, I read this morning about how former Coach
13 Lou Holtz --- in fact, I saw him a couple of times 14 give speeches where he would tear up a newspaper and 15 turn it into a newspaper. Well, he was a magician, 16 so part of what he would do in his talks is perform
17 magic. So I sort of felt like that was happening 18 today as I was listening to those burden of proof 19 arguments.

20 Again, I really don't think we need to worry 21 about the burden of proof as a matter of law. If 22 Tomi Rae has the burden of proof, she's given a 23 marriage license and unless somebody can show that 24 there's been a divorce or an annulment, as the 25 statute requires, before his death, then that's the

1 end of the story; she's satisfied the burden of 2 proof, if any. But they're acting as if --

3 THE COURT: Unless that marriage to Ahmed was 4 still in effect when she married Mr. Brown.

5 MR. MEDLIN: Well, again, she satisfied the 6 burden of proof. They've got to figure out how to 7 do that, Your Honor, and that would be to overturn 8 the standing family court order by a Court that 9 doesn't have jurisdiction over that.

10 THE COURT: So your argument is very simple.

11 MR. MEDLIN: Well, it's more complicated than 12 that, Your Honor, but that part is very simple.

13 We're not contesting the Ahmed marriage, that's 14 not the subject of this action. They're contesting 15 the Tomi Rae marriage. They've got the burden of 16 proof. All this stuff about who has the burden of 17 proof and whether we satisfied that, we've already 18 done that, that happened, it's a binding family
19 court order and, in fact, happened while Mr. Brown 20 was alive as opposed to doing it after the fact and 21 maybe undoing his intent. So I think we've got the 22 burden of proof argument upside down.

23 Now, that chart, I am impressed. The problems 24 with the Hallums vs. Hallums case, as I read it, is 25 it isn't exactly on point because in Hallums case,

1 they were deciding the validity of both marriages in 2 the same case. They didn't have, unless I'm wrong, 3 a preexisting order like we do in this case. So the 4 Court could take all that into account and, in fact, 5 made the determination that the first marriage was 6 bigamous. So she was married and then her second 7 marriage was, therefore, bigamous.

8 The result would have been the opposite, by the 9 way, if it had found to the contrary. If, in fact, 10 it had found, issued an order like we have that the 11 first marriage isn't bigamous, then we'd have a 12 different result and it would have been void ab 13 initio, but because this order wasn't sought until 14 after the second husband died. So if the order 15 isn't void ab initio against the decedent, then why 16 did we have the Hallums case? The difference is 17 Hallums decided both marriage issues in the same 18 case, and in our case we already have an existing 19 order that was obtained while the decedent, the 20 second husband in this situation, was alive. It was 21 pre-probate code, so we didn't get into those 22 jurisdictional issues.

23 So it's not the same case by any stretch of the 24 imagination because we're missing that first order, 25 but it does show that if the Court had found that

1 the first marriage was bigamous, then this idea of 2 point in time is consistent with what I'm saying.
3 The marriage is void ab initio and would not have 4 been an impediment, therefore, to her second 5 marriage, even though the order wasn't sought to be 6 obtained until later.

7 Now, we don't know if you want to get into 8 these issues or not. And if you do, Your Honor, 9 then Mr. Rosen will be happy to address it. But the 10 focus of our estoppel argument was more of an 11 equitable estoppel acceptance of the benefits
12 arguments. I don't understand estoppel or res 13 judicata or any of that. But I do know that 14 Mr. Brown accepted the benefits of his marriage to 15 Mrs. Brown, including --

16 THE COURT: Once we start getting into estoppel 17 and all those issues, we may be getting into some 18 real factual issues that would need --

19 MR. MEDLIN: So then --

20 THE COURT: -- some discovery.

21 MR. MEDLIN: And again, I mean, I think that 22 was a nice newspaper. But I think if we don't have 23 enough facts to justify our summary judgment, then 24 certainly the reverse is going to be true. But I do 25 think we have enough facts because I think the law

1 is on our side and I don't think we need discovery.
2 And I'll address that in just a little bit, although 3 I don't think I can address it as eloquently as 4 Mr. Shahid did.

5 If we go back into the order, it raises all 6 kinds of concerns, not just from a subject matter 7 jurisdiction standpoint but, for example, what if 8 Ahmed, who now has known, thanks to Mr. Bell's 9 affidavit, for at least six years that his marriage 10 was terminated, what if he relied on that and got 11 married to someone else? Are we going to undo that 12 family court order with the impact that it would 13 have on him and maybe his children if he has any?
14 So to go back in and dig up these family court 15 orders, jurisdiction aside, raises all kinds of 16 possible chaos. Again, Mr. Brown apparently went to 17 his grave thinking he was married, so we're going to 18 switch that as well? If we had him here, he might 19 say, well, of course not, I don't want that to 20 happen. So we're not just impacting this case when 21 we start digging back into that order and trying to 22 figure out what happened. And again, I'll discuss 23 more of that because it came up in a different 24 setting as well.

25 Mr. Beach raised the Joye case, and there are 1 other cases that are similar in what they say; the 2 Rodman case and the Splawn case. In fact, Professor 3 Stuckey notes this as well: In the Joye case, the 4 Court never said that a bigamous marriage is not 5 void ab initio; in fact, it said the opposite, just 6 as I read every case to say.

7 THE COURT: Well, nobody contests that, do
8 they? A bigamous marriage is void.

9 MR. MEDLIN: Well, they are contesting it.

10 THE COURT: And is no marriage at all.

11 MR. MEDLIN: Well, they're saying that under 12 Lukich, we wouldn't prevail even if she weren't ever 13 married to Ahmed because we didn't get the order in 14 time. I think that's a pretty important argument 15 that a bigamous marriage is never valid, and that's 16 what every case has said.

17 Joye was dealing with an entirely different 18 situation. You've got a man who's the first husband 19 who's required to pay alimony, he moves off, she 20 then marries a second husband, and then the argument 21 is whether that second marriage is bigamous and 22 invalid. And the Court said, sure, you're still 23 married to the first husband. So then the question 24 became, should the first husband continue paying 25 alimony because she'd attempted to enter into a

1 bigamous marriage that was never valid? And the 2 Court of Appeals said, no, we're going to go with 3 the void and voidable distinction and, in fact, you 4 need to keep paying alimony. Seems rather 5 inequitable, but that's what they did. And that 6 Supreme Court didn't do anything other than make a 7 nice recitation of the different theories of a 8 difficult problem.

9 Because a marriage is void ab initio, it 10 created this ancillary problem of what do we do with 11 the existing husband's obligations for alimony. And 12 it said, we've looked at the different views that 13 other Courts have taken around the country, and what 14 we've decided is for that issue, that ancillary 15 issue, we're going to go on a case-by-case basis; in 16 other words, they're going to look at the equities
17 of that. It had nothing to do with the marriage 18 that was declared bigamous as void ab initio; in 19 fact, that's what triggered that whole concern.
20 There's a difference between status and ancillary 21 issues, there's a difference between status and 22 equitable disruption and division of property, 23 because if you found that a marriage was, in fact, 24 invalid and had to be annuled -- and that could be 25 either voidable if it's not bigamous or void if

1 so -- you've still got to figure out how to undo the 2 property. And, in fact, the statute in the family 3 code says that the family Court has jurisdiction to 4 deal with those kinds of equitable distribution 5 issues. So it's the status that matters. That's 6 how you reconcile all these in rem cases and so 7 forth.

8 Tomi Rae's status was that she had no
9 impediment to marrying James Brown. That's what 10 every case has said and that's what Lukich says.
11 When it talks about that court order before the 12 second marriage, it's only because it was talking 13 about a voidable marriage, not a void marriage.

14 If Joye says something other than that, then 15 Joye is overlooking the statute. And I'm no kind of 16 law scholar, among many other things I'm not, but I
17 don't think that that Court could have overturned a 18 statute unless it found it unconstitutional. The 19 statute says what it says, as we discussed this 20 morning. It says void and the Court didn't say, oh, 21 we're changing what the statute says as to status; 22 no, the Court just said the status is what it is, 23 we've got to deal with an ancillary issue. And 24 again, there are no ancillary issues with 25 Mrs. Brown. The sole question is this: Was her

1 status married to Mr. Ahmed when she married
2 Mr. Brown or not? And the status is, by statute, by 3 every case, including Lukich, as to the second 4 marriage, she wasn't married.

5 THE COURT: Married who?

6 MR. MEDLIN: Ahmed.

7 THE COURT: Why? Because --

8 MR. MEDLIN: Because a bigamous marriage is 9 void ab initio and, again, according to Professor 10 Stuckey, you don't even need a court order for that.
11 But we do have a court order that proves that. And 12 that's stipulated too, but we wouldn't even need 13 that, according to Professor Stuckey.

14 So when they talk about the Lukich quote and 15 add the and a court order requirement, they're 16 trying to stick that into the second marriage, the 17 bigamous marriage. But, clearly, the Lukich Court 18 was talking about the voidable marriage. That's 19 what's consistent in all this, it's the status;
20 otherwise, it seems rather foolish to say that a 21 marriage is void ab initio and that you don't even 22 need an order to prove it so that someone who finds 23 out that she's been in a bigamous marriage can't 24 marry someone else even though her status says she's 25 single, not married. Again, it just seems to makes

1 no sense to me.

2 And the other Hallums case, they never married,
3 and Mr. Beach wanted to talk about the property 4 issues and somehow that we're here not dealing with 5 marital property because we don't know whether they 6 were married. Well, that seems a circular argument:
7 We get there only if, in fact, there wasn't a 8 marriage. Again, we've got the marriage license, 9 we've got the certificate, we've got a binding court 10 order, we've got the statute, we've got all the case
11 law that says she had no impediment to marrying 12 James Brown and the only way that James Brown could 13 have attacked that order and could have terminated
14 his marriage to Tomi Rae was either through 15 annulment or divorce, and under the probate code 16 it's too late. It's the date of death point in time 17 that's so crucial here.

18 I'm sorry, Your Honor. I'm trying to be as 19 brief as possible, so I apologize.

20 THE COURT: You don't have to.

21 MR. MEDLIN: Again, this is so far out of my 22 league. And just to address another issue -- but I 23 understand Mr. Rosen whispering to me earlier, the 24 testimony by Tomi Rae wasn't hearsay because it was 25 based on the parties' admission, so that's not

1 hearsay. But that really doesn't matter because,
2 like I've said, we can't attack that anyway.

3 The Wilson v. Dallas case, with respect to 4 Lukich, Your Honor, if Lukich said what they wanted 5 it to say, we wouldn't be here today, because all of 6 that had been teed up for the Supreme Court. And,
7 in fact, I would ask that it be permissible for you 8 to take judicial notice of that, and that would be 9 the transcript of the oral argument and even the 10 tape of the oral argument which involved a rather 11 contentious debate between the Chief Justice of the 12 Supreme Court and the former Chief Judge of 4th 13 Circuit Court of Appeals. Made me uncomfortable, 14 but it was contentious.

15 Chief Justice said that Lukich killed Tomi
16 Rae's marriage to James Brown. And Mr. Wilkins -- 17 more on that in just a second -- said, absolutely 18 not, that's not what your case says. And they 19 argued back and forth about that. And when the 20 opinion comes out, the Court doesn't say, as it 21 could have so easily said, if the Chief Justice left 22 was convinced that she was right, convinced her 23 colleagues that she was right about that, they could 24 have just said Tomi Rae's not married because of 25 Lukich. But the Court didn't say that. Of course

1 we're just going to leave Lukich alone, we're not 2 going to deal with that.

3 What worries us about the alleged rights of 4 Tomi Rae are the prenup and the 2000 will and trust
5 which, of course, was executed before he ever 6 married Tomi Rae and before he ever had Little Man.
7 So that's what they sent the spousal issues back on, 8 those two things. If you take judicial notice of 9 that argument, one has to come to the -- inference 10 if not the conclusion that if Lukich killed Tomi
11 Rae, we wouldn't be here today; the Supreme Court 12 would have killed her based on that colloquy between 13 the two.

14 Now, Your Honor, just to address some of the 15 issues in the brief, which I think are legal 16 arguments, this goes to standing and estoppel:
17 Mr. Bauknight, we think, represented the Estate 18 during the appeal and the trust. We understood that 19 you terminated the previous fiduciaries, which is 20 the May 26, 2009 order, we understood that 21 Mr. Bauknight rightly was operating in those roles 22 for the long period of time that it took to process
23 the appeal and, by the way, process other appeals
24 that had already started, like the Cannon matter
25 where Ms. Pope particularly didn't want to step

1 aside even though she'd been removed and so 2 Mr. Bauknight had to go to considerable trouble and 3 expense for the Estate to get her replaced so that 4 he could argue on behalf of the Estate.

5 Now, our argument there is that Mr. Bauknight, 6 who did not sign the settlement agreement, operated 7 under the settlement agreement. He acquiesced to 8 it, he argued for the validity of the settlement
9 agreement before the Supreme Court. Billy Wilkins 10 was his lawyer. Billy Wilkins signed the briefs on 11 his behalf. The only other person who argued at 12 that oral argument was Sonny Jones from the Attorney 13 General's Office. So everybody involved -- and, by 14 the way, every party here except for those who have 15 just had their illegitimate status determined, 16 Michael maybe being the only one that I can think of 17 who's had it determined yet, signed on to the 18 settlement agreement. And the settlement agreement 19 says a couple of important things. But the LSA has 20 taken the position in the first brief that, well, 21 no, Bauknight didn't really represent the Estate, 22 Pope did, and we don't like that, we think that 23 causes all kinds of problems. How do fees get paid, 24 how it contracts with the Estate binding entered 25 into in the meantime, we just think that's a

1 remarkable argument.

2 And then the response after we made that 3 argument and our reply brief was, well, no, 4 actually, Pope and Bauknight both represented the 5 Estate, which creates all kinds of other problems.
6 So they all argued at that time through Mr. Wilkins, 7 through the brief, that -- and I can't recall if 8 Sonny Jones had to bring this up, but certainly he 9 was onboard with this -- that Lukich didn't apply to 10 invalidate the marriage between Tomi Rae and James.
11 So they all agreed to it. The Supreme Court didn't 12 take the easy answer, which would have been, well, 13 if Lukich says what the contestants say, we'll just 14 say that now. They didn't do that.

15 So we think that our understanding of Lukich is 16 on all fours with the statute in every other case, 17 but also inferentially with the Supreme Court's 18 order in that situation. Now, importantly, that 19 settlement agreement with respect to binding the 20 parties here would bind the LSA because 21 Mr. Bauknight went along with it, and we're happy he 22 did -- listen, we think Mr. Bauknight is entitled to 23 being knighted. So he did a marvelous job for the 24 Estate and he continues to do so. That's not us 25 saying those things, that was the LSA saying that

1 Pope represented the Estate during the appeal.

2 But we think Mr. Bauknight binds the Estate, 3 which I argued to you before unsuccessfully, should 4 be the only party to the elective share omitted
5 spouse's share. But that aside, everything other 6 party to this case that has been allowed to 7 intervene, other than those illegitimate children, 8 one or more who have just been recently added, were 9 also signatory parties to the settlement agreement.

10 And here's what the settlement agreement said:
11 That the agreement is a binding private settlement
12 agreement under section 62-3-912 of the Probate 13 Code. You've heard this before, Your Honor, but 14 it's been a few years since you've had to deal with 15 this. 62-3-912 allows the parties to an estate, 16 those who have claims against the Estate including 17 Mrs. Brown as a claimant under the elective share, 18 to agree. Now, the statute clearly says that that 19 binding private settlement agreement is binding 20 among the parties. Now, of course it can't affect 21 those who aren't parties -- creditors, other 22 claimants, parties who haven't joined in -- and, of 23 course, because of that, we've stipulated with the 24 three potentially illegitimate children at the time
25 that we wouldn't let that settlement agreement

1 affect their rights. And that's still the case.
2 They're here because they're worried about the 3 termination rights. They would take, at best, utter 4 intestacy. And they're not arguing for an 5 intestacy.

6 So we're good to our word. We're not doing
7 anything in the world to have that settlement 8 agreement take away any rights that they have. But 9 the settlement agreement said it's a binding private 10 settlement agreement, which is allowed by law
11 without Court approval, even if we don't get Court
12 approval. Well, one Court, in my opinion, got it 13 right, but we didn't get Court approval, ultimately.
14 Settlement agreement still stands among the parties.

15 THE COURT: Does it?

16 MR. MEDLIN: Yes, Your Honor, it does. It says
17 so. It says it's a binding private settlement 18 agreement --

19 THE COURT: I know what it says. But didn't 20 the Supreme Court throw it out? Didn't they --

21 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, we also sought Court
22 approval. That's separate, separate sections, 23 62-3-1101 and -1102. You can do either or you can 24 do both. And that language clearly says we were 25 going to do both. We knew we were going to get a

1 settlement, mostly because the Attorney General
2 wanted to shine some sunshine on it, which I 3 appreciate. That's what the Court overturned, your 4 approval under 62-3-1101 and -1102. It didn't even 5 address the binding private settlement agreement 6 issue. I don't even think that was appealed. But 7 it wasn't addressed. Among the parties, that still 8 stands, that's still a binding agreement.

9 Now Ms. Gilford, in her proposed brief, argues, 10 well, Tomi Rae is going to make this next argument 11 and she shouldn't because she's not abiding by the 12 settlement agreement. She's not abiding by the 13 settlement agreement because nobody will abide by it 14 with her. If everybody here wants to say the 15 settlement agreement is binding, we can move on, 16 we're happy. That settlement agreement also has a 17 severability clause and it also says that for every 18 purpose, Tomi Rae Brown is the surviving spouse of 19 James Brown, for every purpose. It's a binding 20 private settlement agreement, the parties are still 21 bound by it, including the LSA, the Estate, because 22 of Mr. Bauknight's excellent execution of that 23 settlement agreement.

24 And so there's an estoppel issue there too, but 25 that's really sort of subsidiary to me. The major

1 issue is, we still have a binding agreement and that 2 binding agreement with the severability provision 3 provides that everybody to that settlement agreement
4 agrees that Tomi Rae was the surviving spouse. It
5 also agrees that Little Man's the child of James 6 Brown, which would legitimate him. It also agrees, 7 by the way, that others to the agreement are also 8 legitimate children of James Brown which, if the 9 settlement is not binding, could also become an 10 issue down the road. So when Mr. Beach talked about 11 peeling onions a couple weeks ago, we're going to be 12 peeling a whole lot of onions if all of that sort of 13 falls apart.

14 So again, the issue of Lukich is that it
15 focused on the first marriage, which was voidable; 16 it also, without having a lot of fanfare about it,
17 said the second marriage was void ab initio. It 18 cites cases that say the same thing. The status is 19 what's important. Those other cases, Joye, Splawn, 20 Rodman, all deal with ancillary issues, but they 21 don't mess with the status which the statute
22 requires, void ab initio. And the Supreme Court, I 23 would argue, if it disagreed with it, had it teed up 24 perfectly in Wilson v. Dallas and didn't take a 25 swing.

1 Now, all these other issues, therefore, become 2 unnecessary. It doesn't matter what Tomi Rae 3 thought about the marriage, whether her diary which 4 was in fact a diary somehow affects the validity of 5 the marriage to me is beside the point. It doesn't 6 matter what Mr. Brown said, actually, although 7 again, as I mentioned this morning, it seems to me 8 the contestants, who are claiming through him or 9 acting on his behalf, ought to care about what he 10 said he wanted and what he did. But all those facts 11 are going to get dredged up. So what happens if we 12 dredge all that up? What happens if we engage in 13 discovery? What are we going to do? What if Tomi
14 Rae gets in front of Your Honor and sort of in a 15 Perry Mason moment -- remember Perry Mason, Your 16 Honor? You're probably too young. But there was 17 always --

18 THE COURT: I'm too young.

19 MR. MEDLIN: I took professorial notice of 20 that, Your Honor. That somebody always stood up in 21 the back and confessed at the end.

22 Well, so Tomi Rae stands up to you and 23 confesses to say, I lied. What are you going to do 24 then? You're going to undo the annulment order?
25 You're going to impact Ahmed's rights if he doesn't

1 show up when, apparently, he's known about it six 2 years and hasn't bothered to attempt a direct attack 3 on it himself? You're going assume that James Brown 4 didn't know all those things and yet it suited him 5 to be married at the time of his death? What if 6 Ahmed shows up and says, no, I wasn't married?
7 We're going to have a weighing of credible evidence 8 to see who's believable? Again, if you believe 9 Ahmed, then that affects James Brown's rights and 10 the status that he wanted, and it affects Little 11 Man's rights. Talk about affecting the rest of the 12 world, it's going to affect Little Man's rights.
13 He's the one true innocent in all this because even 14 though he's been vilified and had to suffer the 15 ignominy of having not one, but two DNA tests 16 proving what we've known all along, that he is the 17 biological child of James Brown. He had to do that 18 at a young age. He has to wonder why that's 19 happening to him. And so now we're going to undo 20 that order and somehow say that Little Man is not 21 the child. But what if Tomi Rae cannot provide 22 additional facts? Does she lose now? She based her 23 testimony, which a judge sat and listened to and 24 determined in realtime, just as you do every day, 25 Your Honor, in trials, whether her testimony was

1 credible, and decided that it was. A judge decided 2 that in realtime.

3 So what if she doesn't have any additional 4 evidence? What if we go through all this discovery 5 and we delay things for however long it's going to 6 take to delay and it turns out that we don't have 7 anything more than what we already have as to this 8 particular issue? So are you going to say, well, 9 even though the family court judge believed you, I 10 don't, so I'm going to overturn the order and affect 11 Ahmed's life if he's not here and is remarried and 12 has children and affect James Brown's intent because 13 the way she testifies today is different and she 14 can't give me any additional facts? We're not going 15 to go anywhere with discovery except create a big, 16 old wormhole that I think we're going to go down for 17 a very long time with no avail.

18 As far as fleshing this out and getting it
19 right, that's sort of a charged implication, I 20 think, that got mentioned before. But if they're 21 worried about what the Supreme Court is going to do, 22 it seems to me that we can worry just as much that 23 we'll spend a lot more of this estate's resources 24 going through discovery. And by the way, Your 25 Honor, the Estate has spent a lot of resources in 1 litigation.

2 We continue to go through discovery and you
3 come to a different conclusion and the Supreme Court 4 says, you didn't have jurisdiction to do that, 5 you're not a family Court, you're sitting in 6 probate; you're not an appellate Court from the 7 family court, what in the world are you doing? And 8 again, Mr. Rosen said, don't you dare sit up in 9 front of Judge Early and say that he doesn't have 10 jurisdiction. And I'm not saying this to you 11 personally, you know, Judge Early; I'm talking about 12 the Circuit Court or, in this case, the Probate
13 Court not having the jurisdiction. So we're going 14 to spend all that time and then have the Supreme 15 Court send it back and say, you didn't have the 16 authority to do any of that, all you had to do was 17 look at 63-3-350 and know that only a family Court 18 has jurisdiction over an annulment. And, by the 19 way, what kind of chaos are we creating if we can 20 open up those orders? Anybody who wants to attack 21 that order can now come in and attack it and, most 22 problematically, decedents who went to their grave 23 thinking they're married, if it doesn't suit the 24 heirs who have other motives, they can go back in 25 and undo that marriage? The consequences of that

1 are mind-numbing about doing that and getting into 2 the discovery, Your Honor.

3 So again, we think that that order is 4 unassailable. And in any event, the discovery is 5 absolutely unnecessary, problematic, and perhaps 6 even would have sinister results with respect to the 7 Estate because it's going to cost a lot of money and 8 it's going to -- we're going to spend a lot more 9 time. I mean, Mr. Levinson, as he always does, said 10 it eloquently, if we're going to go to Columbia 11 anyway, let's just do it, and if it needs to be done 12 on this issue, let's do it on this issue, and then 13 we can continue to deal with other issues.

14 So Lukich doesn't say anything different than 15 the statute. That quote is not another requirement 16 for a bigamous marriage that you have to have the 17 order first before it's void ab initio. That makes 18 no sense. That's contrary to the definition of void 19 ab initio. That says that that first marriage, 20 which was voidable, was still valid because she 21 hadn't yet invalidated it. If she had, then the 22 second marriage would not have been bigamous. So 23 those arguments confuse those two marriages. And 24 again, we'd be creating new law in South Carolina
25 and changing legislative intent if we looked at 2180

1 and say, oh, it says bigamous marriages are void, 2 period, and every case that's looked at that as to 3 status says it was never a marriage, and then we add 4 a footnote and say, well, until we get a court
5 order. That changes it. That means that that is a 6 marriage until you get a court order. It would be 7 the first case in history, as Mr. Rosen reminds me.

8 So it's the status that matters. The statute 9 is clear, the cases are clear, Lukich is clear on 10 the bigamous marriage, that you're never married.
11 So Tomi Rae's status, which is the only issue as to 12 an impediment to her marriage to James Brown -- 13 that's the only issue. Any of these ancillary 14 issues in the Splawn and the Joye and the Rodman 15 case, et cetera, those issues have nothing to do 16 with her status. She's married or not, and the 17 statute indicates she's not. So, therefore, she 18 doesn't have an impediment or we're going to create 19 some new law if we go down some other road. Thank 20 you, Your Honor.

21 MR. ROSEN: Your Honor, would you allow me a 22 few minutes?

23 THE COURT: Sure.

24 MR. ROSEN: I was going to begin my argument at 25 10:00 with discussing this business about service.

1 I don't need to go into it if you don't need to hear 2 from me.

3 THE COURT: No, sir.

4 MR. ROSEN: All right. Because, you know,
5 Ms. Gilford went into it kind of late --

6 THE COURT: I understand that.

7 MR. ROSEN: I didn't want my silence to 8 indicate that --

9 THE COURT: I understand that.

10 MR. ROSEN: I'm prepared to argue --

11 THE COURT: I'm going to decide this case based 12 solely on the marriage to Ahmed and marriage to 13 Mr. Brown, the annulment order, and Lukich.

14 MR. ROSEN: Right.

15 THE COURT: Everybody is arguing today.

16 MR. ROSEN: Your Honor, I just want to make one 17 point, and I want to make it if you'll allow me to.
18 I realize that estoppel, in your view of it, somehow 19 creates a factual issue. But I heard for two hours 20 about collateral estoppel from the other side, so if 21 you'd allow me, I'd like to address that issue.

22 THE COURT: Briefly.

23 MR. ROSEN: Well, Your Honor, let me just say 24 this. In our brief, what we say is this: James 25 Brown went into court in Aiken County and he brought

1 an action. All right. That's a matter of record;
2 it's not in dispute and it's not a factual question,
3 it's a fact, it's in this record. And when he went 4 into court in Beaufort County, he --

5 THE COURT: In Beaufort County?

6 MR. ROSEN: Excuse me. When he went into court
7 in Aiken County -- I don't know where I got Beaufort
8 County from. I want you to look at, if you'd do me
9 the favor, page 16 of the LSA briefs. I don't mean 10 right now, but when you consider this. It says that 11 we have misconstrued the decedent's use of the Ahmed 12 annulment order and that we -- it actually says that 13 we've misrepresented things to the Court. Well, I'm 14 not that sensitive. Everybody has said a lot of 15 things about everything I've done. But the fact of 16 the matter is, this is what Mr. Brown did: He 17 waited for the annulment order to come down, all 18 right, and he waited for that order to come down 19 that he paid for, which is stipulated to, and when 20 that order came down, he filed a suit in Aiken 21 County.

22 And this is what he said -- I think this is 23 determinative of the case. He said the defendant in 24 that action, meaning Tomi Rae Brown, has not filed 25 any appeal from the family court order and as such,

1 the findings of fact of the Charleston Family Court
2 are binding on this Court. That's what he said.
3 That's at page 70 of the agreed stipulations.

4 THE COURT: He's not the Supreme Court and he's 5 not the -- I mean, he's just a litigant.

6 MR. ROSEN: Mr. Brown asked Aiken County Court 7 to find that the findings of fact of the order he 8 helped procure, the annulment order, should be 9 binding on the Court. Well, those findings of fact, 10 Your Honor, are that Mrs. Brown married a man who 11 was already married to somebody else. That's what's 12 in the findings of fact. And I -- there's a body of 13 law that allows you to grant summary judgment on the 14 doctrine of equitable estoppel. Now, I happen to 15 know a lot about equitable estoppel because the 16 leading case is Smoak vs. Smoak, which I'm sure you 17 know all about, about our friend Gerald Smoak. And 18 my daddy happened to be the lawyer in the case and, 19 actually, he lost the case.

20 THE COURT: That's the Haitian divorce.

21 MR. ROSEN: That's exactly right. And when you 22 ask the Court to enforce even a void order -- and 23 let's say they're right. When you ask a Court, 24 which he did, there's no dispute about it, to 25 invoice a void order, you're stuck with that.

1 Now, when Mr. Brown himself said, adopt these 2 findings of fact, under Smoak, he cannot now be 3 heard to complaint about the findings of fact.
4 What's before you today is this: There's a finding 5 of fact in the family court. We've talked now for 6 four hours about it. There was a finding of fact.
7 They don't like the findings of fact, they say we're 8 not bound by the findings of fact. They cite 15 9 cases saying the findings of fact are not binding on 10 you. They are binding on you because Mr. Brown is 11 estopped from coming in and making this entire 12 argument, none of these people can make this 13 argument, because he went into another court and 14 a -- with a lawyer, with his eyes open, and said to 15 that Court, adopt the finding of fact that my wife 16 was married to a man that had three wives. He said 17 adopt it, he did that. Now he cannot be heard in 18 this court today under Smoak, under Tillman, and 19 under Edwards. By the way, none of them have 20 addressed our argument in their briefs. I had a 21 word search done last night. They've ignored the 22 argument; you know why? Because it's irrefutable.
23 It's irrefutable.

24 The Tillman case, which I don't know if anyone 25 in this room realizes it, involved Pitchfork Ben

1 Tillman and his son. It's a very interesting case.
2 Senator Tillman was, by that time, already in 3 Washington, and his son, apparently, was an 4 alcoholic. And the son deeded the children to the 5 old man and to the wife, and they figured they could 6 get the Supreme Court to give them custody, which 7 they didn't because by then he was already on his 8 way out, he was in Washington by then. The Court 9 said he was bound by that because he participated in 10 the litigation. He didn't pay for it, he wasn't a 11 party, but he was identified with it. That's the 12 Tillman case. That's a very important case.

13 The Edwards case, equitable estoppel, even a 14 void order, which you want to take advantage of, you 15 cannot be heard to say now that it's void as to you.
16 And James Brown, during his lifetime, went into the 17 Aiken court to take advantage of that order. And 18 under the doctrine of equitable estoppel -- and I 19 think you can grant judgment solely based on that.

20 We're here for the last few hours arguing about 21 findings of fact. That's what we've been arguing 22 about. They say that, oh, findings of fact 23 shouldn't be given any weight. But that's not true.
24 There's a whole body of law and it -- search in 25 vain -- search in vain for the LSA's argument

1 against Smoak and Edwards and Tillman. Thank you.

2 THE COURT: All right. Normally I allow 3 argument and then reply, but I'll open up the floor.
4 I don't want anybody accusing me of cutting them
5 off.

6 MR. BEACH: Well, Judge --

7 THE COURT: Sir?

8 MR. BEACH: -- Mr. Rosen has asked to search in 9 vain, and I need to go ahead and address the Smoak 10 case right now because --

11 THE COURT: You're ready to search now or have 12 you already searched?

13 MR. BEACH: I don't need to search anywhere,
14 Judge. The Smoak case is completely distinguishable 15 from this case. And the reason it is --

16 MR. ROSEN: I rest my case.

17 THE COURT: Well, give me the facts of Smoak.

18 MR. BEACH: Well, I'm not sure that I can give 19 you all of them, but I do know this --

20 THE COURT: But didn't he go somewhere, the 21 Islands, Haiti or somewhere, and obtain a divorce -- 22 a foreign divorce?

23 MR. BEACH: Right. He tried to use that order 24 in the case, as I understand it.

25 THE COURT: Well, it suited him to get the

1 divorce, but it didn't suit him to have to do 2 something else.

3 MR. BEACH: I'm sorry. I --

4 MR. ROSEN: Right. He didn't like it later and 5 he got a Haitian divorce, which is a void order, 6 void, absolutely void. And the Supreme Court said,
7 it's not void as to you, you --

8 THE COURT: Because you got it.

9 MR. ROSEN: Yes, sir.

10 THE COURT: Go ahead.

11 MR. BEACH: And the Court said that he was 12 equitably estopped from making that order, Judge.
13 The difference is it's the husband who got the order 14 who's equitably estopped against it. Here the 15 petitioner got the order and they're trying to 16 equitably estop someone who didn't get the order.
17 And that's the crucial difference between this case
18 and Smoak, Your Honor. They're completely 19 distinguishable because the effort is being made in 20 Smoak by the husband to use an order that -- I'm 21 sorry.

22 The husband got an order. The wife is using 23 the order that the husband got. The husband 24 participated -- obtained -- he participated in 25 whatever and the Court was trying --

1 THE COURT: Who went and got the divorce.

2 MR. MEDLIN: Right. Well, that's -- and so
3 it's a completely different situation here. If we 4 were trying to equitably estop the petitioner from 5 something that was in Ahmed annulment order, then 6 that would be Smoak, but not the other way around.
7 And, Judge, that is precisely what James Brown was 8 trying to do when he filed the amended complaint
9 that Mr. Rosen just mentioned.

10 He -- Mr. Rosen read paragraph 10, which says 11 the defendant in that action does not appeal from 12 the family court order and, as such, the findings of 13 fact and conclusions are binding on this Court. But 14 he didn't read the next paragraph, Judge, which is 15 paragraph 11, and it says: Pursuant to the order
16 from the Charleston Family Court, Defendant -- 17 that's the petitioner here -- is collaterally and 18 judicially estopped from denying the allegations in 19 that action. So it's quite clear, Judge, that what 20 James Brown was trying to do when he -- after the 21 Ahmed annulment order came out and he filed his 22 amended complaint, he says it: I'm trying to apply
23 Smoak against her, I'm trying to apply collateral 24 estoppel against her. And the reason he can do that 25 and she can't provide it back against him is because

1 he wasn't a party to the Ahmed annulment litigation.
2 And that's the precise difference with what he was 3 trying to do there and it is the precise difference
4 with what they're trying to do here, Judge.

5 Judge, the other thing that I want to mention
6 is that we do believe, Judge, that if Mr. Medlin --
7 Professor Medlin tries to argue that this Court 8 doesn't have the jurisdiction to find whether the 9 petitioner was married to James -- Mr. Medlin just 10 argued that this Court does not have the 11 jurisdiction to determine whether the petitioner was 12 married to James Brown when he died; in other words, 13 doesn't have the jurisdiction to determine whether 14 her marriage to James Brown December 14th of 2001
15 was valid. Mr. Medlin has made that argument, says
16 you don't have the jurisdiction, only a family Court
17 can do that. Well, Judge, that's the essence of why 18 we're here right now. If you're going to determine 19 whether she's the surviving spouse, you have to be 20 able to have the jurisdiction to determine whether 21 that marriage was valid. It's a professorial 22 argument that is theoretical, Judge, but it really 23 doesn't -- it doesn't fly because, otherwise, what 24 in the world are we here for? Of course you have 25 jurisdiction to determine whether she was the 1 surviving spouse.

2 THE COURT: That's why Mr. Rosen told him not 3 to stand up and argue I didn't have jurisdiction.

4 MR. ROSEN: I didn't say not to say he didn't 5 have authority.

6 THE COURT: Well, I'm going to rule on a very 7 narrow issue. If it gets any further than that, I 8 think we got factual issues involved.

9 MR. BEACH: Okay. And, Judge, the only thing
10 that I will finally say is this --

11 THE COURT: Well, tell me how you're taking a 12 different position now than you took in the argument
13 before the Supreme Court.

14 MR. BEACH: Well, I can explain that, Judge.
15 The -- they're talking about judicial estoppel
16 there. That's the legal theory that they're trying 17 to apply against us. They say that by judicial 18 estoppel, you made an argument before the Supreme 19 Court through Mr. Bauknight's attorney, and now the 20 Estate can't make the opposite argument in this 21 Court. Argument before the Supreme Court, Tomi Rae 22 Brown, there -- and we can argue about what the 23 argument was, but for the purposes of this 24 discussion, let's assume that he argued that Tomi
25 Rae Brown was the surviving spouse and that Tomi Rae

1 Brown -- and that Lukich doesn't control.

2 I don't know that's what he argued. I think he 3 said there was a valid -- a good-faith controversy
4 that was created by all of those facts that you 5 found to exist. I don't think he was arguing she's 6 the surviving spouse. But for a moment, let's 7 assume that that's -- I do think he said Lukich
8 doesn't control. And I read the transcript and I 9 saw him say that.

10 Judicial estoppel, Judge, first of all, it's an 11 equitable doctrine, so it's completely up to you 12 whether to apply it or not. But the cases say 13 that -- and this is really the -- it kills their 14 argument, Judge. You've got to show that the person 15 making that argument actually won on that argument 16 when they were making it. In other words, you would 17 have to show that the Supreme Court agreed that she 18 was the surviving spouse and also agreed that --

19 THE COURT: Well, that question never was 20 answered by the Supreme Court one way or the other.

21 MR. BEACH: Right. But they didn't win on it.
22 And you've got to have -- that's one of the 23 requirements; you've got to win on the argument, 24 Judge, in order to --

25 THE COURT: Is it just a red herring?

1 MR. BEACH: It's a complete red herring, Judge.
2 Thank you very much. I appreciate you making that 3 point for me.

4 THE COURT: I didn't say it was, I said is it.

5 MR. BEACH: It is a red herring, Your Honor.
6 And, Judge, the other thing -- and I think I need to 7 just sort of say this because the road that 8 Mr. Medlin and Mr. Rosen want this Court to go down 9 here, Judge, wow. It's clear that after the 10 decision in Wilson v. Dallas, the Estate had its 11 marching orders from the Court, and that was, you've 12 got to go back and you've got to defend against the 13 will and trust challenges. So from that point 14 forward, it was clear what the Estate's fiduciary 15 obligations were. And, arguably, they may be 16 different. Those obligations are probably 17 different, completely different from what 18 Mr. Bauknight's obligations were during the appeal.

19 THE COURT: I.e., to uphold the agreement.

20 MR. BEACH: And so, Judge --

21 THE COURT: Well, we all got different marching 22 orders. You know --

23 MR. BEACH: Right.

24 THE COURT: -- we went for a long time trying 25 to resolve the case by way of settlement. We didn't

1 conclude that or we didn't succeed at that, and now 2 we've got marching orders to move forward with the 3 undo influence, the surviving spouse issues, and 4 Little Man's issues.

5 MR. BEACH: Right. Right.

6 THE COURT: Those are three main things.

7 MR. BEACH: That's right.

8 THE COURT: I think we've done it as 9 efficiently as we can, although some people don't 10 agree with that, and we're trying to do this in an 11 efficient manner.

12 MR. BEACH: I think so too.

13 THE COURT: And y'all have done briefs that 14 go -- and I'm not being critical, but y'all have 15 covered every issue known to man.

16 MR. BEACH: I agree with you, Judge, we have 17 covered every issue known to man.

18 THE COURT: But when you boil it all down -- 19 have you ever made gravy and try to boil it down --

20 MR. BEACH: Absolutely.

21 THE COURT: -- get it down just to the rue --

22 MR. BEACH: Yes, sir.

23 THE COURT: -- put a little bit of water in it?
24 Well, that's what we're doing; boiling it down. She 25 married Ahmed, she married James Brown; she got an

1 annulment, the annulment says that Ahmed had other 2 wives. Is that a bigamous marriage? And if so, is 3 it void right from the beginning, which gives her
4 the freedom to marry Mr. Brown? And what effect 5 does Judge Segars-Andrews' order, if any, have on 6 the whole --

7 MR. BEACH: Okay. And I can answer that,
8 Judge. The judgment was the annulment of the 9 marriage. Now, underlying that judgment, there were 10 three findings, Judge --

11 THE COURT: That's correct.

12 MR. BEACH: -- one was that it was procured by 13 fraud.

14 THE COURT: Correct.

15 MR. BEACH: The second one was that --

16 THE COURT: They didn't sleep together.

17 MR. BEACH: -- it wasn't consummated, failure 18 to consummate the marriage. The third one was that 19 he lacked the capacity to marry her because he was 20 already married to someone else.

21 THE COURT: Correct.

22 MR. BEACH: Now, if you were to, for instance, 23 say -- and again, we don't think that those 24 findings -- those findings are not applicable to 25 James Brown's estate because he wasn't a party. But

1 if -- and so if the Court did find that -- as you
2 have the jurisdiction to find, that the marriage
3 to -- between Ahmed and the petitioner was valid or 4 that the petitioner hasn't -- more importantly that 5 the petitioner hasn't carried her burden to prove it 6 invalid, which is really where we are right now. If 7 you were to find that, the Ahmed annulment order 8 would still stand, Judge. First of all, it's an in 9 rem order, so if -- it is as to the world from the 10 point of April 15th, 2004 forward, it establishes 11 Ahmed's and petitioner's relationship as to each 12 other as to the entire world. So there's no 13 apocalypse that's going to occur where people have 14 to relitigate and all that. That is done, it's 15 established, it's an in rem order. So we're good on 16 that. But --

17 THE COURT: What you're not good on is that he 18 had additional wives.

19 MR. BEACH: Correct. And, Judge --

20 THE COURT: Then how do you get around
21 Segars-Andrews' order?

22 MR. BEACH: Well, because those underlying 23 findings are only applicable against the parties to 24 that order, Judge. And so we get around that by 25 saying that those don't apply to us because we

1 weren't a party or privy, and that's pretty simple.

2 But the other thing is, Judge, we've got this 3 argument that the order somehow applies
4 retroactively and then makes it as if that marriage
5 never existed. I understand that Professor Medlin 6 and Professor Stuckey can spend time theorizing on 7 what this means and the metaphysical aspects of it,
8 but here's the truth: We've got only --

9 THE COURT: Hold on. Before you tell me what 10 the truth is, what does this mean? I'm reading from 11 Lukich. Tell me what this means or is it way over 12 my head: A mere marriage ceremony between a man and 13 a woman where one of them has a living wife or 14 husband is not a marriage at all. So if it wasn't a 15 marriage at all, there's no impediment for her to 16 marry Mr. Brown.

17 MR. BEACH: And she can come in here now, 18 Judge, and prove that before this Court. What she 19 can't do is use the Ahmed annulment order to 20 establish that, and that's the difference.

21 THE COURT: And that's your position.

22 MR. MEDLIN: It is, Judge. And there have only 23 been two other areas of the law where the Court has 24 been asked the question of whether an annulment 25 order by a family Court ruling that a marriage is

1 bigamous applies retroactively. There are only two 2 that I can find, Judge, and both of them say, no, it
3 cannot be applied retroactively. Joye vs. Yon 4 reversed the Court of Appeals on that point, and the 5 Splawn case that's in the other that deals with 6 marital property very clearly say that.

7 The one thing that I have not seen other than 8 theory and metaphysical discussion from Mr. Medlin
9 is a single case where he finds in South Carolina
10 that a Court has said that this order of annulment
11 of a family Court finding is bigamous does not apply 12 retroactively. He's found a Court of Appeals case, 13 Joye vs. Yon, but that point was reversed by the 14 Supreme Court.

15 THE COURT: So your position is, to make it 16 void, she has to take some positive action, i.e., 17 the annulment, to make it void?

18 MR. BEACH: With regard to Mr. Ahmed, I think 19 that she could do the annulment because they're both 20 parties to that. But to make it void here in this 21 lawsuit, Judge, she's got to come in and present
22 testimony. And that's what Hallums basically says.
23 And she can't do it through the Ahmed annulment ord 24 er.

25 THE COURT: Okay. I don't know how we can

1 argue it anymore. I've just got to make a call on 2 it.

3 Anything else?

4 MR. ROSEN: Your Honor, thank you for your 5 patience.

6 MR. BEACH: Judge, my client has asked me to 7 mention one other thing because he's a probate
8 attorney and he sees the importance of this. And I 9 apologize for not --

10 THE COURT: Go ahead.

11 MR. BEACH: -- seeing the importance of it. I 12 mean, I do see the importance of it. Judge, 13 Mr. Medlin has raised today, I think for the first 14 time, 62-2-802 which he argues -- he has passed it 15 up to everyone and he argues that this basically 16 decides it because he says that the annulment order 17 has to be issued prior to the death of the decedent 18 in order for it to apply here.

19 And Judge, two points: We don't disagree with 20 this point here which says that an individual who is 21 divorced from the decedent or whose marriage to the 22 decedent has been annuled is not a surviving spouse.
23 We don't disagree with that and we also don't 24 disagree that Item No. C says that the divorce or 25 annulment is not final until signed by the Court and

1 filed in the office of Clerk of Court.

2 What we do point out is number 1, the decedent
3 whose marriage -- I'm sorry -- yeah. The decedent 4 who's -- an individual who's divorced from the 5 decedent or whose marriage to the decedent has been 6 annuled -- first of all --

7 THE COURT: Where are you reading that?

8 MR. BEACH: That's in the very first part of 9 that. A, an individual who is divorced from the 10 decedent or whose marriage to the decedent has been 11 annuled is not a surviving spouse. Item No. 1, this 12 doesn't mention every situation, and we're arguing 13 that there was no marriage to the decedent. We're 14 not talking about an annulment here, Judge, we're 15 talking about the fact that the petitioner lacked 16 the capacity to marry --

17 THE COURT: Because she was married to Ahmed.

18 MR. BEACH: -- the decedent. That's correct.
19 And --

20 THE COURT: But if Ahmed -- their marriage is 21 void from inception, she wasn't married to him.

22 MR. BEACH: That's correct, Judge, but she can 23 only prove that by coming in here to court and 24 giving evidence. Now --

25 THE COURT: She can't prove that by

1 Segars-Andrews' decree?

2 MR. BEACH: She cannot.

3 Now, here's the point that I think is very 4 important. And, Judge, it's the -- if you look at 5 the third page up at the top, it's part of the 6 reporter's comments on here.

7 THE COURT: Tell me where to start.

8 MR. BEACH: We start at the word perhaps, 9 Judge. Do you see that?

10 THE COURT: I do.

11 MR. BEACH: Perhaps -- whoever the reporter
12 here was, Judge, felt it was very important to say 13 this: Perhaps other marital conditions not valid as 14 divorces or annulments and not detailed in section 15 62-802 (b) will continue by common law to estop a 16 punitive spouse from claiming as a surviving spouse.
17 In other words, there can be other conditions, one 18 of which is there's no marriage.

19 So, clearly, what they're saying here is, this 20 is not everything. This comment makes -- opens the 21 door to exactly where we are right now.

22 THE COURT: So we're really not too far apart.
23 I mean, you say I can't rely on Segars-Andrews' 24 decree.

25 MR. BEACH: Correct.

1 THE COURT: Professor Medlin and Mr. Rosen says
2 I can, I have to. So if I have to and I do, that 3 marriage is void and she has no impediment to marry
4 Mr. Brown. If you're right and I can't rely on -- I

5 can only rely on the annulment itself but not the 6 findings of fact, they haven't proven, at this point 7 in time, that Ahmed had different wives.

8 MR. MEDLIN: That is correct.

9 THE COURT: In fact, they say there's no
10 evidence to that effect other than my annulment.

11 MR. MEDLIN: Right.

12 THE COURT: Is that where we are?

13 MR. BEACH: I think it is, Judge.

14 THE COURT: We got consents all over the place, 15 not that that matters. I mean, seriously, that's 16 where we are.

17 MR. BEACH: It is, Judge.

18 THE COURT: After all this. Listen, this has 19 been the most challenging case of my judicial 20 career, obviously. And I can't thank all of you -- 21 I mean, you cannot have represented your clients any 22 better than you have, cannot be more prepared than 23 you have in your briefs, and your arguments have 24 been just as adversarial as they can be.

25 But I think it boils down to what effect, if

1 any, I give Judge -- the former Judge Charlie 2 Segars-Andrews, who is a female -- what effect, if 3 any, do I give that order. If it's an order that I 4 can't rely on the factual findings, then we've got 5 one way we're going to go; if it's an order that I'm 6 bound to adopt, I got to go another way. And I 7 don't know if we have to get into all this other -- 8 all the other collateral issues -- and I hate to use 9 the word collateral -- all the other side issues.
10 But I thank you and -- Mr. Levenson?

11 MR. LEVENSON: Just because, number one, on the 12 Supreme Court, I'm going to relay that to the Court.
13 I do want to make it clear to the Court what I 14 intended by that.

15 We do say that there is some estoppel there. I 16 don't understand estoppel, so whatever that is, that 17 is. My point is that it's a binding settlement 18 agreement and the Estate is bound by it because 19 Mr. Bauknight argued that. And I know Mr. Beach and 20 Mr. Sojourner weren't there. And I think the Court 21 may know that I could not have greater respect for 22 two people than I have for Mr. Beach and 23 Mr. Sojourner, but they weren't there --

24 THE COURT: Well, I know, but --

25 MR. LEVENSON: Mr. Wilkins said to the Chief

1 Justice, it's a slam-dunk on the issue.

2 THE COURT: I read that.

3 MR. LEVENSON: Okay. So it wasn't that it was 4 some wishy-washy thing. We took Mr. Bauknight, 5 through his lawyer, Mr. Wilkins, the position that 6 Lukich slam-dunk said that Tomi Rae was married to 7 James Brown. There wasn't any wishy-washiness about 8 that whatsoever.

9 THE COURT: Well, it wasn't any wishy-washiness
10 to his argument and his position.

11 MR. LEVENSON: Well, that's my point. So, I
12 mean, I heard it. I may have misheard Mr. Beach say 13 that he wasn't sure that that was raised directly.
14 It was in the argument. Slam dunk is about as 15 direct as one can raise it --

16 THE COURT: I understand that. But --

17 MR. LEVENSON: -- to a chief justice.

18 THE COURT: -- they didn't go along with his 19 slam-dunk argument.

20 MR. LEVENSON: They did not -- well, we don't 21 know because they found on other grounds, Your 22 Honor. They found on the possible prenup and the 23 possible overriding in the will of the omitted
24 spouse's statute. So we don't know that they didn't 25 agree and, in fact, I think the inference is they

1 must have agreed.

2 We're not saying that if we open the door to 3 this that maybe there will be other people who want 4 to argue underneath the Judge Segars-Andrews, we're 5 saying that if we open this door, all divorces and 6 all annulments will be subject to collateral attack 7 by third parties, even after someone has died.
8 That's a Pandora's Box I think you don't want to 9 open. And, in fact, if Mr. Ahmed shows up, if we 10 start doing that --

11 THE COURT: You're repeating yourself.

12 MR. LEVENSON: No, Your Honor, this is 13 different. If he shows up, we'll be allowing him 14 to, in effect, collaterally attack what he cannot 15 now do with a direct attack because it's too late.

16 Now, let me get to the real reason why I had to 17 stand up, because I got to offend Professor Stuckey, 18 which I understand is an impossible position. And 19 Professor Stuckey, who taught clinics and is a real 20 lawyer, wrote this book. But I guess the professors
21 and the General Assembly and all the Supreme Court
22 Justices who have always said a marriage is bigamous
23 is void ab initio, I guess we can dispel that too.
24 They're not professors. They were applying real 25 facts to real law. And that Splawn case and the

1 Joye case -- again, there's a difference between 2 status, and status is always void ab initio as 3 opposed to alimony and equitable distribution --

4 THE COURT: They're not arguing that's not the 5 law. They agree with me that if Ahmed had wives, 6 that marriage was void from the get-go. What 7 they're disagreeing with you on is can I rely on the 8 family court order where they made those findings 9 that he did. And they say, no, you can't do that; 10 you say, yes, I can.

11 MR. LEVENSON: If that's what Mr. Beach said, 12 then I'll --

13 THE COURT: I hope.

14 MR. LEVENSON: The reporter's comment, I will 15 have to say I didn't draft that sentence, but I'm 16 responsible for reporter's comments.

17 THE COURT: All right.

18 MR. LEVENSON: But that doesn't change anything 19 before us today.

20 THE COURT: No.

21 MR. LEVENSON: It was just a point I wanted to 22 make.

23 THE COURT: All right.

24 We've been moving along, trying to get this 25 thing resolved. I want proposed orders dealing with

1 just the issue that I just defined. When do you 2 think would be appropriate to have them by,
3 Professor Medlin, Mr. Beach et al, Mr. Donsbach?

4 MR. ROSEN: With Thanksgiving coming up, Your
5 Honor --

6 THE COURT: I understand.

7 MR. ROSEN: I propose two weeks. But if that's 8 too long, we can do it sooner.

9 MR. BEACH: I was thinking about 30 days,
10 Judge.

11 THE COURT: Well, you know, I'm being 12 criticized in some national newspapers and they're 13 being critical of me taking so much time to do 14 things.

15 MR. BEACH: I don't want to prolong that, 16 Judge. I just hope that we can get it done in two 17 weeks.

18 MR. ROSEN: Are you be criticized by any 19 credible paper?

20 MR. BEACH: I think we can do it in two weeks 21 if you need it in two weeks, Judge.

22 THE COURT: No. Thirty days?

23 MR. ROSEN: That's fine with me. Whatever you
24 decide, Your Honor.

25 MR. BEACH: Why don't we -- Judge, 30 days is

1 the 24th. Let's back it up a little closer and say 2 whatever -- a week before Christmas maybe instead of 3 the day before might be a better one. I don't know 4 where that puts us.

5 THE COURT: Or January 1.

6 MR. BEACH: Three weeks instead of four,
7 basically, is, I guess, the suggestion.

8 MR. ROSEN: And I'll waive any interest in 9 Hanukkah, Your Honor.

10 MR. BEACH: Friday the 19th is what date
11 Sojourner has suggested.

12 THE COURT: All right. By Friday, December the 13 19th. Thank you all.

1 (The following proceedings were held June 30, 2 2015.)

3 THE COURT: All right. We'll do the motion to 4 reconsider the summary judgment last. So I
5 have motion to determine an heir, Ciara Pettit
6 and -- strike that. Laronda Pettit as an heir. Do 7 we have that motion.

8 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir, Your Honor. That's my 9 motion.

10 THE COURT: Come forward.

11 MR. JENKINS: I'm sorry, Your Honor, I'm 12 unfamiliar with the protocol. Would you like me to 13 stand here?

14 THE COURT: Wherever suits you. Where do you 15 feel most comfortable?

16 MR. JENKINS: I think I'm good here, Your 17 Honor.

18 THE COURT: Can everybody hear him?

19 MR. JENKINS: I like to stand like this, Your 20 Honor, that way everyone can hear me. Thank you.

21 THE COURT: Have you got a copy of your motion?

22 MR. JENKINS: I have this one, Your Honor. I'm 23 sorry. I thought one was already filed with the 24 Court.

25 THE COURT: It may be, but we're in Bamberg.

1 You name for the record, please.

2 MR. JENKINS: Ittriss Jenkins.

3 THE COURT: Spell that for me, please.

4 MR. JENKINS: I-T-T-R-I-S-S Jenkins.

5 THE COURT: Where do you practice, Mr. Jenkins?

6 MR. JENKINS: In Charleston, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: Welcome.

8 MR. JENKINS: Thank you, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: I'll be glad to hear from you.

10 MR. JENKINS: Thank you.

11 Your Honor, we filed this motion based on the 12 fact that Ms. Laronda Pettit filed an exhibit in 13 2007, which was basically done in August of 2007, 14 August 23rd, 2007, which was within the eight-month
15 statutory period. And from that time, Your Honor, 16 she was considered part of this case.

17 So it wasn't until, I guess, in 2013 that she 18 received notice that she would not be part of this 19 case. When she died in 2013, she was all the sudden 20 excluded. And, in fact, there was an attempted 21 consent agreement that came, and her name was 22 included in that. So we believe, Your Honor, since 23 she was timely filed and she was already part of 24 this suit, she had a LabCorps DNA test done that 25 showed she was 99.99 percent a match or probability

1 with James Brown.

2 And we feel with that, Your Honor, she should 3 be appointed as an heir of this case.

4 THE COURT: But she has since died?

5 MR. JENKINS: Yes, Your Honor, she has since 6 died. And that's why we're asking her daughter
7 Ciara Pettit to be named a limited administrator 8 over her estate.

9 THE COURT: Well, I don't think I can do that 10 now. I don't think I have jurisdiction to appoint 11 an administrator for an estate. I think that's a 12 probate matter.

13 MR. JENKINS: Yes, Your Honor. We'll be more 14 than happy to file her as PR once her mom's actually 15 appointed as an heir to the -- or an heir to James 16 Brown.

17 THE COURT: So to make sure I'm understanding, 18 before she died, she had filed with this Court a 19 document showing that she was 99.99 probability that 20 she was the daughter of Mr. Brown, and you're asking 21 she be declared as an heir?

22 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir.

23 THE COURT: Pretty simple thing.

24 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir.

25 THE COURT: All right. Anybody oppose that?

1 MR. ROSEN: We do, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Mr. Rosen on behalf Tommie Rae
3 Hiney Brown.

4 MR. ROSEN: Your Honor, we oppose it because 5 the probate code allows a determination of heirs 6 only as part of a formal testacy petition, which 7 requires a summons and a complaint and service on 8 all relevant parties, which she has not done. This 9 is required under Section 62-3-401. She's filed a 10 creditors claim, so she hasn't complied with the 11 statute. The probate code defines an heir as 12 someone entitled to take under intestacy.

13 THE COURT: So you've got a procedural 14 objection, basically. As I understand -- what was 15 the lady's name?

16 MR. JENKINS: Ms. Laronda Pettit.

17 THE COURT: Ms. Laronda Pettit had filed a 18 creditors claim, but never anything more than that.

19 MR. ROSEN: Correct. So she hasn't done that.
20 And then for an illegitimate to be an heir, there 21 has to be an adjudication of paternity within the 22 later of eight months after the death or six months
23 after initial appointment of PR. She did not timely 24 commence that and has not filed the proper 25 pleadings. So I think she's just out of court.

1 That's our position, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: Anyone else oppose it?

3 Mr. Jenkins, your response to that?

4 MR. JENKINS: Your Honor, there's a Parker vs.
5 Parker case that also says -- I have a copy for Your 6 Honor -- also says that she was supposed to be 7 challenged within the eight months, and that wasn't 8 done also. So considering that up until this point 9 she was considered an heir and that they treated her 10 as an heir, now would be a point that they'd be past 11 the statute that they can actually challenge her as 12 far as being heir of the estate.

13 THE COURT: All right. I'll take it under 14 advisement. Mr. Jenkins, send me a proposed order.

15 And, Mr. Rosen, send me a proposed order within 16 15 days.

17 MR. ROSEN: Thank you.

18 MR. JENKINS: Thank you, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Mr. Rosen, going back to that, 20 haven't we had other heirs that we've used that 21 Parker case? There's been some orders signed 22 that --

23 MR. ROSEN: Well, I think you've held in some 24 previous matters that there was a collateral 25 estoppel in regard to some other -- but those are

1 people who, I think, were named in the will. I 2 might be wrong about that.

3 THE COURT: I don't think that's correct.

4 MR. ROSEN: Yeah, I might be wrong. But I 5 don't --

6 THE COURT: Who were those heirs? Mr. Beech, 7 do you know?

8 MS. ZWING: Your Honor, Lyndey Zwing --

9 THE COURT: Name, please.

10 MS. ZWING: Lyndey Zwing on behalf of the LSA.
11 I believe that the other two heirs were Janette
12 Mitchell and Sara Latonya Brown Fegan.

13 THE COURT: Fagin, F-A-G-I-N?

14 MS. ZWING: F-E-G-A-N, I believe.

15 The LSA is pretty sure that they used the 16 Parker case for Janette Mitchell; we're not 100 17 percent sure about Tonya but --

18 THE COURT: Mr. Jenkins, send me a copy of my 19 two orders on Mitchell and Fegan, please.

20 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir, I will.

21 THE COURT: Mr. Beech, do we have a motion to 22 correct an error in two orders today?

23 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: And identify yourself for my court 25 reporter, please.

1 MR. BEECH: Okay. My name is John Beech and 2 I'm representing the Limited Special Administrator
3 in this case.

4 THE COURT: And at the last status conference,
5 we mentioned that there -- you claimed that there
6 was scrivener's errors or either we'd put one thing 7 in one order, it was sent, and one order was sent 8 back, and we needed to clear that up.

9 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Well, how about just read into the 11 record those two for me, please.

12 MR. BEECH: Let's go with the first one first, 13 Your Honor, which is the one -- order granting Sara 14 Latonya Brown Fegan's motion to be declared an heir
15 of James Brown. The other one is Ms. Mitchell's, 16 but let's -- if we could, Your Honor, the motion
17 with regard to Janette Mitchell will make more sense 18 if we can deal with this one first.

19 THE COURT: Fegan first?

20 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: All right. Hand me my order,
22 please.

23 MR. BEECH: Okay, Judge.

24 There were two orders issued in this matter; 25 one was issued in December and another one was

1 issued, I believe, in January, Judge. And the --

2 THE COURT: And in the first one, I had 3 scratched out that last sentence and apparently 4 re-signed it again in January and did not scratch
5 out the last sentence.

6 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor, that's correct.
7 And I believe that that -- this order was submitted 8 to the Court by Ms. Fegan's attorneys, and the 9 Court, I think, correctly struck out the part where 10 it had stated that this order finds that she's 11 entitled to receive a share of the Estate equal in 12 value to that which she would have received if 13 Decedent had died intestate.

14 And I don't think anyone, Judge, is entitled to 15 receive a share of the estate at this point. I 16 don't think there's been any judicial findings. So 17 the first order, we believe, correctly states the 18 Court's intention; we think the second order was 19 issued in error and, as a result, under Rule 60, we 20 ask that the Court clarify that the first order, 21 which was signed, I believe, on December 18th of 22 2014, is the order of the Court with regard to Sara 23 Latonya Brown Fegan.

24 THE COURT: All right. Anyone have any 25 opposition to that?

1 MR. BARR: Yes, Your Honor. This is William
2 Barr on behalf of --

3 THE COURT: Well, Mr. Barr, I signed the same
4 order twice. And the first time I signed it, I did 5 what I was supposed to do. Apparently, when it came 6 across my desk again, I, in error, signed it again 7 without scratching out that last sentence.

8 Tell me why that should not be corrected.

9 MR. BARR: Well, we don't think it is an error,
10 Your Honor; we think it is a --

11 THE COURT: Well, I'm telling you it was an 12 error.

13 MR. BARR: It was a correct citation of the law 14 in terms of what an intestate heir would be entitled 15 to. And the keywords are: If the Estate is 16 determined to be an intestate one --

17 THE COURT: Well, that's if.

18 MR. BARR: Right. And that's what's there. So 19 there's nothing with it. It says: If...

20 THE COURT: Anyone else have anything else you 21 want to put on the record?

22 MR. BEECH: Judge, I don't see the word if in 23 there, Judge, is the only thing I'd like to put on 24 the record.

25 MR. BARR: If Decedent had died intestate, she

1 would have received -- if Decedent had died
2 intestate, then she would receive whatever intestate
3 heir would be entitled to under the statute --

4 THE COURT: Well, that's not what it says.

5 MR. BARR: The one I'm looking at.

6 THE COURT: All right. Anything else?

7 MR. BARR: Your Honor, what I'm looking at -- 8 THE COURT: I'm looking at it too.

9 MR. BARR: The one that you signed on the -- I 10 think that's --

11 THE COURT: January --

12 MR. BARR: -- January 22nd, uh-huh, 2014.

13 THE COURT: Well, why in the world would I have 14 signed the same order twice, other than I just made 15 a mistake?

16 MR. BARR: That's what the Court signed.

17 THE COURT: I know it. But do you ever make a 18 mistake?

19 MR. BARR: Oh, golly, I might be a mistake.

20 THE COURT: All right. I'm going to clarify
21 this. Obviously, when I signed it in December, I 22 struck that out intentionally because of the effects 23 that it may have. Obviously, by striking that out, 24 it does not prejudice Ms. Fegan in any way 25 whatsoever; it just depends on how it ultimately

1 turns out after all the litigation has been 2 resolved.

3 I stand by my order of December 18, 2014, as 4 modified by striking out the last sentence, and I
5 hereby void the order of January 21 and ask that it 6 be stricken from the record.

7 Mr. Beech, please prepare me an order stating 8 that.

9 MR. BEECH: I'll do that, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: Then we had one also with Janette
11 Mitchell.

12 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor. Now, Janette
13 Mitchell, this order was signed the day after you 14 signed the second order for Ms. Fegan. It was 15 signed on January 22nd. Your Honor, it says 2014, 16 Judge, but what I think the Court intended to do was 17 to strike out not just -- was to say 2015, because 18 as you can see on the first page, it was filed on 19 January 26 of 2015. So we believe this order was 20 signed the next day after the incorrect order on 21 Ms. Fegan.

22 It contains the same problem with regard to the 23 last sentence, Judge, that Ms. Fegan's second order 24 did. And if we read it, it states that she's 25 entitled to receive a share of the Estate equal in

1 value to that which she would have received if the 2 decedent died intestate. And we don't think --
3 again, just like Ms. Fagan, we don't think the Court
4 intended to issue an order that gives Ms. Mitchell 5 some portion of the estate, because we don't think 6 anyone has made such a showing at this time. And so 7 we ask the Court to clarify and correct this 8 typographical error in the order by stricken the 9 same language that the Court stricken in --

10 THE COURT: I haven't stricken anything; I'm 11 striking.

12 MR. BEECH: Thank you, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Mr. Barr?

14 MR. BARR: Your Honor, we would -- and we would 15 pose the argument, and we stand by what we 16 originally said for Ms. Fegan. It's the exact same 17 language and we don't -- we just don't see the 18 error. I mean, if -- if the Court, by its own 19 admission, says that the Estate is determined to be 20 intestate, then she would share what any intestate
21 heir would share. So we don't see where the error 22 is.

23 THE COURT: She's not being prejudiced by 24 striking it. I'm going to strike it and, once 25 again, find that the -- an error in including that.

1 I tried to make it -- was attempting to make it 2 consistent with my December 18, 2014 order. So the 3 motion is granted. Mr. Beech, please prepare an 4 order similar to the one I just stated in the Fegan 5 case, please.

6 MR. BEECH: I will, Your Honor. Thank you so 7 much.

8 THE COURT: All right. I think next would be a 9 motion to intervene by two people; is that correct?
10 Mr. Bodman, you have one and, Mr. Barr, you have the 11 other one?

12 MR. BODMAN: Your Honor, if I could clarify one 13 thing -- and I don't represent her. But Your Honor 14 signed an order January 26th of this year granting 15 Janette Mitchell's motion to intervene. She's 16 already been made a party. But -- and I have a copy 17 of that order, if needed. So --

18 THE COURT: Well, I was just doing what --

19 MR. BODMAN: Yes, Your Honor. But I do
20 represent Michael Deon Brown and we have the exact 21 same motion that was heard back in November. I'd be 22 happy to review it again. But our position would be 23 that they're the exact same issues heard with 24 Janette Mitchell back in Bamberg right before 25 Thanksgiving, I believe, here in this court.

1 I've prepared a simple order that's exactly the 2 same order that Your Honor signed regarding Janette
3 Mitchell granting the motion to intervene, and we'd 4 ask the same for Michael Deon Brown.

5 THE COURT: When did he hear those?

6 MR. BODMAN: Your Honor, if I could just put 7 something down. We heard the --

8 THE COURT: Let me see the Mitchell order,
9 please.

10 MR. BODMAN: Yes, sir. We heard those motions, 11 if my memory serves -- we've had a lot of hearings,
12 but I believe it was right here --

13 THE COURT: Your memory is right about that.

14 MR. BODMAN: -- in this courtroom a couple days
15 before Thanksgiving.

16 THE COURT: It was a very complex order, wasn't 17 it?

18 MR. BODMAN: Yes, sir. They're identically
19 situated people, Michael Deon Brown and --

20 THE COURT: Did you argue it back in --

21 MR. BODMAN: We did.

22 THE COURT: -- when you argued Ms. Mitchell's
23 case?

24 MR. BODMAN: We did. And we submitted a 25 proposed order towards the end of January, beginning

1 of February to Your Honor and sent it to all 2 parties, the identical order as this, then the 3 Court -- the Supreme Court stayed everything, so 4 Your Honor never ruled on it. So we're just asking 5 that you simply sign that order today. I'll be 6 happy to give copies to everybody today so he can be 7 allowed to participate.

8 THE COURT: Anybody have any objection to that?

9 MR. ROSEN: We object to Michael Deon Brown
10 being allowed to intervene, if that's the question.

11 THE COURT: Well, I've heard it, they sent me a 12 proposed order; I was going to rule on it, but then 13 I got stayed. That's the reason it didn't get 14 signed, I suspect.

15 When did you send it to me, Mr. Bodman?

16 MR. BODMAN: February 6th, I believe, Your 17 Honor. And I've got --

18 THE COURT: When were we put on hold? Anybody 19 remember that date?

20 MR. BODMAN: Maybe a week after that.

21 MR. ROSEN: Seemed pretty quickly --

22 THE COURT: February 29?

23 MR. BODMAN: Okay. Three weeks, I'm sorry,

24 This is -- if I may approach, this is the 25 letter that we had sent -- I gave a copy to 1 Mr. Rosen -- and the proposed order is exactly the 2 same order Your Honor has already signed from 3 Ms. Mitchell. This hearing was fully aired, they 4 opposed, we moved to intervene, both sides had 5 submitted proposed orders, and we were just waiting 6 for Your Honor to make a ruling.

7 At the time of the hearing, you seemed inclined 8 to grant the motion, but then things got stayed.
9 And here we are back going again.

10 THE COURT: Is that your recollection,
11 Mr. Rosen, that y'all had already argued it?

12 MR. ROSEN: I don't have a recollection, Your 13 Honor, about that. But let me see. I've been 14 thinking about it. But in any event, Your Honor, 15 let me tell you my problem with it. Okay?

16 I understand you've heard -- we opposed the 17 intervention at the time. I know that --

18 THE COURT: I know you did.

19 MR. ROSEN: We did. And I'm not going to 20 re-argue that, just like I don't think people should 21 be re-arguing a lot of things. But what I was going 22 to say today is, this is my dilemma -- and not a 23 dilemma. This is something I would like the Court 24 to address: There's been a lot of people who have 25 shown up, you know, after we entered into a

1 stipulation who are now taking the position they are 2 not bound by stipulations, they are not bound by -- 3 and, you know, the Court has been very liberal in 4 granting intervention. And, you know, I'm not 5 quarreling with Your Honor's rulings; I don't think 6 they're correct, but I understand Your Honor's 7 ruling.

8 But the practical effect of it is, is that a 9 lot of people get to come in and say a lot of 10 things, which is fine if that's what Your Honor, you 11 know, is intending to for them to do. But the 12 problem that I foresee is we've got something, you
13 know, ruining by weekend because I had to spend a 14 lot of time on this, objection to hearing on motion 15 to reconsider because, you know, we didn't agree to 16 stipulation and we --

17 THE COURT: We aren't there yet. We're talking
18 about --

19 MR. BODMAN: And, Your Honor, let me briefly
20 answer that with first of all, that wasn't Michael 21 Deon Brown's motion.

22 MR. ROSEN: Oh, I know.

23 MR. BODMAN: Your Honor, I have no problem 24 agreeing to the joint stipulation of facts with 25 regard to Michael Deon Brown, if Your Honor wants to 1 write another sentence in that order. It does 2 not -- it does not --

3 MR. ROSEN: I just don't want to be going 4 backwards.

5 THE COURT: I'm going to address the 6 stipulations fully in just a few minutes.

7 MR. ROSEN: Yes, sir. All right. Well, that's 8 our main concern. We don't think they should be 9 allowed to intervene, but Your Honor has ruled 10 against us on that. We accept that without any 11 quarreling.

12 But as to the stipulation, we don't want 13 anybody to jump in at this late date and then start 14 arguing about things that have already been decided.
15 Thank you.

16 THE COURT: All right. I don't think that's 17 going to preclude anyone from arguing, but there was 18 a purpose for the stipulation.

19 MR. ROSEN: Thank you.

20 THE COURT: All right. What else do we have on 21 the agenda? Mr. Beech, help me. I'm looking at 22 this --

23 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, the other.

24 THE COURT: -- administrative order of Michael 25 Deon Brown, motion to intervene. We've taken care

1 of that.

2 MR. BEECH: I think we only have two other
3 things, Your Honor; one would be James Brown II's 4 motion for protective order on our discovery
5 request, and the other is the motion to reconsider 6 the summary judgment order on the spousal status.
7 That's what I have on my list, Judge. There may 8 be --

9 THE COURT: Also have the diary of Tommie Rae
10 Brown.

11 MR. ROSEN: Mr. Beech agreed that he would ask 12 the Court to continue that. I need to file some 13 more things with regard to that, if the Court would 14 allow us to.

15 MR. BEECH: I agreed that Mr. Rosen could ask 16 the Court to continue that, Your Honor, and we would 17 not object to his request, which we don't.

18 THE COURT: Okay. Let's talk about that 19 without having to argue everything. How long do you 20 need, Mr. Rosen, because, obviously, we're going to 21 be having these hearings every couple weeks.

22 MR. ROSEN: Not long. I mean --

23 THE COURT: What's not long?

24 MR. ROSEN: -- if the Court gave us -- well, 25 two weeks, ten days.

1 MR. BEECH: Judge, just so we'll know, I'll be 2 out of town until the 26th of July. We --

3 THE COURT: So am I. I've got two weeks of 4 vacation starting next -- not next week, but the -- 5 whatever weeks in July, the two in the middle.

6 MR. BEECH: Me too. We're pretty much in sync,
7 Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: So let's look at August. The first 9 hearing we have in August we'll do Tommie Rae Brown 10 diaries. Fair enough?

11 MR. ROSEN: Thank you very much, Your Honor.

12 THE COURT: And that will probably -- I'm going 13 to be in Lexington the week of the 10th and then 14 chambers the week of the 17th. We'll probably do it 15 late the week of the 10th, 13 or 14, or early the 16 17th, 17 or 18. I'll get something out on that and 17 that will be the next scheduled date to consider 18 everything.

19 Mr. Beech, you'll be back. Anybody else got 20 problems? Vacations or anything? That's an idea; 21 we may do it the 19th or 20th in Columbia. I'll see 22 how that goes.

23 MR. SHAHID: Your Honor, whenever --

24 THE COURT: You have a protected order request?

25 MR. SHAHID: No, no. You're talking about the

1 last week in July. I've got depositions scheduled
2 in Birmingham, Alabama and --

3 THE COURT: I didn't talk about the last week
4 in July --

5 MR. SHAHID: I thought that was a consideration.

6 THE COURT: No, sir. The week of August 10th
7 or 17th.

8 MR. SHAHID: Which is fine. The other thing I 9 was going to suggest is that in addition to the 10 motion I filed for protective order, I also filed a 11 motion for fees; Monday I mailed out a motion for 12 partial summary judgment. So I don't know if you 13 want to consider those motions at that time as well.
14 I may have another motion coming down -- 15 Mr. Sojourner and I will talk about that later, but 16 another motion you may want to hear during that same 17 timeframe.

18 THE COURT: All right. And we know for sure 19 we're going to do the diary motions on that date.
20 Now, are you ready to do the motion for protective 21 order today?

22 MR. SHAHID: Yeah.

23 THE COURT: So then between now and the first 24 or second week of August, you'll be filing other 25 motions dealing with--

1 THE WITNESS: Well, we've already filed a
2 motion for fees and we filed a motion yesterday 3 for -- or put in the mail yesterday a motion for 4 summary judgment. I'm not sure about the third
5 motion; I need to talk to Mr. Sojourner a little bit 6 more about that. So I may have three motions to be 7 heard at that time.

8 THE COURT: But you know fees and summary
9 judgment. There may be one more coming down; right?

10 MR. SHAHID: Yes, sir.

11 THE COURT: All right. I'm trying to kill a 12 few minutes waiting on Professor Medlin. Any 13 other business that we need to do on the --

14 (Mr. Medlin enters the courtroom.)

15 THE COURT: Just got out of my mouth: I'm 16 trying to kill time waiting for Professor Medlin.

17 MR. MEDLIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: Let's go around the table.
19 Mr. Shahid, you've already mentioned yours.
20 Mr. Rosen, do you think y'all are going to have 21 anything else by August?

22 MR. ROSEN: I don't believe so, Your Honor. If 23 we don't move on the summary judgment on the 24 prenuptial agreement, maybe we'll be ready with 25 that.

1 THE COURT: That's not here yet.

2 Mr. Bodman, can you think of anything that's 3 outstanding right now? Mr. Beech?

4 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, I mean, I don't mean to 5 do someone else's work here, but I do think there
6 may have been a motion by Terry Brown to intervene 7 in the spousal cases that may not have been decided.
8 And then -- but maybe I'm missing that. Well, maybe 9 I've got that wrong, Your Honor. And there was 10 also -- I believe that Mr. Shahid's client may have 11 moved to intervene in the spousal case, and I'm not 12 sure that was ever ruled upon --

13 MR. SHAHID: That was ruled upon. I don't 14 think I -- I thought I had submitted an order, and I
15 think it got lost in the shuffle. But I'll resubmit 16 a prepared order on that. That was heard at the 17 same time Mr. Bodman's motion was heard.

18 THE COURT: Mr. Barr, have you got anything 19 outstanding?

20 MR. BARR: Nothing -- maybe some collateral
21 matters that could be addressed subsequently. What 22 I'm talking about is that we've already been granted 23 the right to intervene heirship and so forth, but 24 the order granting Tommie Rae summary judgment
25 treated us as only friends of the Court. So I don't

1 know if that's something we'll deal with later on 2 or -- because we've already intervened. But --

3 THE COURT: That's fine. I can modify that.

4 Mr. J, do you have anything else?

5 MR. JENKINS: No, Your Honor. We just have the 6 motion that I thought was going to be heard today, 7 the Rule 60 motion for Ms. Tanya Brown. We wanted 8 to withdraw the Rule 60 motion. We hear it in 9 August, if you want.

10 THE COURT: What was that one about?

11 MR. JENKINS: It was -- Tanya Brown is trying 12 to withdraw the rule -- we filed the Rule 60(b) 13 motion; Ms. Tanya Brown withdrew her withdrawal from 14 the contesting the will and the trust.

15 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, as I understand it, the 16 chronology was this: Tanya Brown filed -- under 17 David Bell's representation, filed a withdrawal of 18 her claim that the will and trust were invalid. She 19 was originally Mr. Levenson's client and was onboard 20 with the undue influence claims that he was 21 asserting on their behalf. She withdrew that.

22 I believe what Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Barr and 23 Ms. Gilford have now asked is for the Court to allow 24 her to withdraw her withdrawal, if you will, Your 25 Honor. And even though I know that is pending, we 1 didn't understand that it would be heard today.

2 THE COURT: What's her name?

3 THE WITNESS: Her name is Tanya Brown, sir.

4 THE COURT: All right. 60(b), Tanya Brown?

5 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir.

6 THE COURT: We'll do that in August. Fair 7 enough?

8 MR. JENKINS: Yes, sir.

9 MR. BARR: Your Honor, so that's moot now in 10 terms of how we're treated the summary judgment, 11 because it was --

12 THE COURT: What's moot?

13 MR. BARR: Well, the summary judgment motion
14 granting Tommie Rae summary judgment --

15 THE COURT: Tommie Rae Hiney Brown.

16 MR. BARR: That's correct. We weren't included 17 as attorneys, but I guess that would be moot now in 18 light of the intervention order and the heirship
19 order of Janette Mitchell and the others.

20 THE COURT: I don't know. We'll address that 21 in just a few minutes. I'm not sure where you're 22 going with that.

23 MR. BARR: Okay, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Mr. Black?

25 MR. BLACK: Nothing, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: So it looks like in August we'll be 2 doing the diary, two or three motions with James 3 Brown II, the 60(b) on Tanya Brown and, obviously, 4 anything else that will come up between now and 5 then.

6 So that brings us to the motion to reconsider 7 the summary judgment order. Is that where we are?

8 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor.

9 THE COURT: Now, I sent out a note to everybody 10 that each side would have 15 minutes.

11 Mr. Beech, how long do you need?

12 MR. BEECH: Judge, there are different
13 parties --

14 THE COURT: I understand. I'm just asking --

15 MR. BEECH: -- to these different positions.

16 THE COURT: -- how long do you need?

17 MR. BEECH: So I personally believe that I can 18 make my argument in about four or five minutes, Your 19 Honor. But I understand Mr. Donsbach may have a 20 little more expansive argument that he would like to 21 give to the Court.

22 THE COURT: I'll give you ten minutes.

23 How long do you need, Mr. Donsbach?

24 MR. DONSBACH: About 15 or 20 minutes, Your 25 Honor.

1 THE COURT: I'll give you 15. And if you get 2 to 15 and you see you need a few more, just go
3 ahead.

4 Who else is arguing? Anybody else? How long 5 do you need; ten? five?

6 MR. BARR: I'd say 15, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: All right.

8 Anyone else? Y'all need how long; five?

9 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, it depends on what 10 they say and their expanded time. I would assume 15 11 at most.

12 THE COURT: All right.

13 MR. BEECH: Judge, will we end the hearing 14 today with the motion for protective order on the 15 discovery for James Brown II?

16 THE COURT: I can either do that now or do it 17 after the -- whichever suits y'all.

18 MR. BEECH: I think maybe if we did it 19 afterwards might be -- but either way is fine with 20 us, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: Does that make any difference to 22 anybody?

23 MR. SHAHID: Doing it afterwards is fine,
24 Judge.

25 THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Beech, you want to lead

1 off?

2 MR. BEECH: Well, I was --

3 THE COURT: Or would you rather somebody else?

4 MR. BEECH: I think Mr. Donsbach may do the 5 honors, Judge, if that's acceptable to the Court.

6 THE COURT: All right.

7 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor. I understand 8 this is kind of like the minister putting his watch 9 on to lecture at the beginning of church.

10 THE COURT: No, it's sort of like the Supreme 11 Court when those little lights go off. But don't 12 compare me to --

13 MR. DONSBACH: I will keep that in mind.

14 Your Honor, obviously, we adopt all of our 15 briefs and previous motions and other issues that we 16 presented with this Court on this issue.

17 And we're here today because we believe that a 18 serious injustice has happened in this matter
19 relative to the Estate, the heirs, the needy
20 children of South Carolina, Georgia, everybody 21 involved on this side of the table.

22 THE COURT: Were you part of the stipulation?

23 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor, we were.

24 THE COURT: Didn't I decide it based on a
25 stipulation of facts?

1 MR. DONSBACH: You did, Your Honor. But we 2 believe that the Court misconstrued and misread some 3 of those stipulations of facts, and that's what I'm 4 about to go through and discuss. Because we believe 5 that what Ms. Hiney has presented in this matter is 6 based entirely on what we could call a fabricated 7 marriage, which makes her a bigamist. Because the 8 only evidence she has admitted to this courtroom or 9 presented to this Court is her own hearsay testimony 10 from a court order in Charleston that she presented, 11 and that's --

12 THE COURT: How can I go behind the court order
13 in Charleston?

14 MR. DONSBACH: Well, Your Honor, we do not 15 believe --

16 THE COURT: Didn't that court order find that 17 it was a bigamous marriage and she's --

18 MR. DONSBACH: Your Honor, that court order -- 19 and this is where we believe the Court erred in this 20 matter, is the structure of collateral estoppel as 21 it relates to that court order.

22 That court order specifically determined the 23 status of the Hiney-Ahmed marriage, not the 24 Hiney-Brown marriage.

25 THE COURT: What was it supposed to do about

1 that? Didn't it have to determine that status in 2 order to --

3 MR. DONSBACH: And we're not contending or 4 disagreeing that that status wasn't determined at 5 that point in time in 2004.

6 THE COURT: That it was?

7 MR. DONSBACH: That it was. That order
8 absolutely dealt with the Ahmed-Hiney marriage. And 9 what the restatements in collateral estoppel say on 10 that issue are this, Your Honor: Is that the status 11 of the Hiney-Ahmed marriage were determined by the 12 facts and circumstances, but those facts can't be 13 binding on a third party outside of that 14 relationship or outside of that order or that 15 courtroom. And so those facts went to determine 16 that status relationship. And that's what happened 17 in that particular order.

18 Now, Ms. Hiney wants to then twist, threw her 19 statements, and twist collateral estoppel and say 20 that those facts now apply to the James Brown and 21 Hiney relationship.

22 THE COURT: Well, let's make -- let's be sure 23 that everybody understands my order. I encouraged, 24 I suggested, and y'all did agree to a stipulation of 25 facts so there would be no facts in dispute for a

1 reviewing court to look at. One of those facts was 2 that the family court in Charleston found and 3 annuled her marriage, and I'm not going to go behind 4 that. If you find that that was wrong of them, 5 y'all can file after-discovered evidence in the 6 family court and try to undo it down there and we 7 can look at it again, or if you find it now that 8 that was a wrong and you're moved to have a motion 9 on the after-discovered evidence, maybe so. But I
10 don't know how I can go behind that order.

11 MR. DONSBACH: Understand. We're not asking 12 this Court to do that.

13 THE COURT: All right.

14 MR. DONSBACH: That's not what we're saying.
15 Is -- what happened is, we agreed -- we agreed to 16 the stipulation of facts that that order happened 17 and exists; no doubt of that.

18 What we're disagreeing with is that the facts
19 that were used or applied in that order -- all it 20 did was annul the Ahmed-Hiney marriage in 2004. And 21 I think, as we're going to get to, the Lukich 22 decision makes it very clear that that's the point 23 in time that the annulment occurred and put the 24 world on notice that their relationship was annuled, 25 which means as to third parties, i.e., the James

1 Brown or any other party, that that's the point in 2 time in which Mr. Brown would have understood that 3 the Ahmed-Hiney relationship had ended. They had 4 entered into a relationship prior to that point in 5 time.

6 THE COURT: But isn't that marriage void, as it 7 never existed?

8 MR. DONSBACH: Your Honor, under the Lukich 9 decision, it is void, the marriages are void, and 10 the statute as well under 20-1-80. Marriages are 11 void ab initio as to the parties; but as to the rest 12 of the world, they can't be voided until they decree
13 is entered. There is no way you or I -- and a 14 perfect example would be an employer who has a 15 married couple that they have employed, and they're 16 providing spousal health insurance coverage. And 17 they've got a marriage certificate that says that 18 they're married, and they're required under their 19 plan to provide that spousal coverage. Well, until 20 that annulment order shows up, that employer has to 21 provide that coverage. There's no change in that.
22 But as soon as that annulment order shows up, it 23 stops as to the third party, who is the employer.
24 Well, in this case -- and I don't want the 25 Court to get confused here. The third party in this

1 case is very clearly James Brown. He was not a
2 party to that annulment action. No matter how much 3 they want to argue that and say he was in privity or 4 he paid for it or whatever else, he was not a party
5 to that. In fact, in their brief they specifically 6 stated that. And collateral estoppel very clearly 7 says and res judicata very clearly says, for them to 8 apply, they have to be a party, and it has to be 9 dealing with the same issue. This was not the same 10 issue.

11 The Charleston family court decided the 12 Hiney-Ahmed marriage relationship, not the James 13 Brown-Hiney relationship.

14 THE COURT: And they found it to be void.

15 MR. DONSBACH: They found the Hiney-Ahmed
16 relationship to be void, that's correct. In 17 2000- --

18 THE COURT: Which eliminated any impediment to 19 her getting married to Mr Brown.

20 MR. DONSBACH: In 2004, which was after she had 21 already entered into a marital relationship with 22 Mr. Brown.

23 THE COURT: Well, I --

24 MR. DONSBACH: And Lukich very clearly says
25 that. In fact --

1 THE COURT: I don't think so.

2 MR. DONSBACH: -- the Supreme Court noted that 3 in Footnote 16 in Wilson v. Dallas. They spoke to 4 this Court's ruling on Lukich in the similar 5 analysis that this Court put forward on this. And 6 in that footnote they very clearly said they didn't 7 necessarily -- and weren't going to comment on this 8 Court's analysis of Lukich. Had they agreed with 9 it, they could have simply said, we agree, the 10 analysis is correct. But they didn't say that.
11 They went through the trouble to say, we aren't 12 going to make an opinion on it.

13 Just like in the most recent order the Supreme 14 Court issued where they complimented Your Honor's
15 handling on this, they also reminded this Court 16 about Wilson v. Dallas. If they weren't sure that 17 that needed to apply, they would have just simply 18 said, you're doing a great job; they wouldn't have 19 reminded this Court about the dictates and dictum 20 that they put in Wilson v. Dallas in deciding it and 21 their discussion of Lukich.

22 So, Your Honor, in this particular instance, 23 collateral estoppel doesn't apply. Because if it 24 did -- let's take it to the next step. Let's say 25 Your Honor's decision on this was correct. Well,

1 what this Court would have ruled by ruling that that 2 order keeps this Estate from arguing an annulment,
3 this Court is basically saying that James Brown 4 couldn't have filed his own annulment and argued 5 that his relationship or marriage should have been 6 annuled. Because if, in fact, that Charleston order 7 was so binding, as this Court has stated, James 8 Brown couldn't have annuled his own marriage, 9 couldn't have presented facts before this Court and 10 said, she was previously married.

11 Well, we know that's ludicrous. We know that 12 is not possible. We know Mr. Brown was not bound by 13 that order and, hence, his estate and heirs can't 14 be. Collateral estoppel does not apply here. The 15 whole foundation of this Court's ruling on this is 16 an error based on that. It just can't, based on the 17 Pie vs. Adcock and all of the discussions that we've 18 laid out in our briefs and motions for 19 reconsideration on that. It very clearly involves 20 party, requires similar issues, it requires justice 21 to be served. And, specifically, even if those 22 things are the same, collateral estoppel exceptions 23 can imply if an injustice is going to work or some 24 fallacy or problem is going to happen, this Court 25 could still -- we don't even need to get that far.

1 In this case, none of the first factors exist, 2 so they can't be estopped from arguing. The 3 petitioner, Ms. Hiney, has presented no evidence to 4 this Court about the relationship.

5 THE COURT: I disagree. She presented --

6 MR. DONSBACH: Not -- not about the 7 relationship as it relates to the Ahmed-Hiney 8 relationship. All she presented was an order that 9 was based purely upon her fabricated testimony.

10 THE COURT: How do you know it's fabricated?
11 That judge found it to be credible. She based 12 her ruling on it.

13 MR. DONSBACH: Your Honor, just because she 14 said it was so doesn't make it a fact. Just because 15 she used hearsay testimony doesn't make it a fact 16 that it happened. And it doesn't make it a fact as 17 far as James Brown's status of his relationship to 18 Ms. Hiney is concerned. And that's the problem 19 here; that order cannot bind James Brown. And 20 that's the other aspect of this that's so troubling 21 is that we've had our hands tied on discovery on 22 this.

23 And there re other aspects of this that we 24 believe could be presented from a discovery 25 standpoint; obviously the marriage license, which

1 has been presented of the Ahmed-Hiney relationship, 2 obviously the certificate wherein Mr. Ahmed, under 3 oath, stated he had not been previously married.
4 Those facts balance out against her testimony.

5 We have additional facts -- and, Your Honor,
6 I'm certain we have very good lawyers on the other 7 side here. I am certain if there were other facts 8 that proved the existence of other wives or that 9 Mr. Ahmed was previously married --

10 THE COURT: Well, if you had those facts --

11 MR. DONSBACH: -- they'd be waving it from a 12 flagpole.

13 THE COURT: -- you'd give me an affidavit.

14 MR. DONSBACH: They'd be waving it from a
15 flagpole, if they had it.

16 THE COURT: You'd be coming in and saying, 17 Judge, we've got after-discovered evidence and 18 your -- your ruling on the summary judgment, here's 19 where we went out and found this, that, and the 20 other. The rules clearly provide for that if you 21 discover after-discovered evidence that you --

22 MR. DONSBACH: We don't even have to go to 23 after-discovered evidence. We have evidence that 24 we've submitted in the form of a marriage
25 certificate, in the form of a --

1 THE COURT: You submitted a stipulation of 2 facts that I issued my order on. And my order was 3 based on the validity of the family court judge's 4 rulings in Charleston.

5 MR. DONSBACH: Which we believe to be in error, 6 because we believe that under collateral estoppel, 7 that should not have applied to this situation. We 8 believe that the Estate was not collaterally
9 estopped and the heirs were not collaterally 10 estopped by that order from seeking proof through 11 discovery and other evidence that they could prove 12 that Ahmed was not married prior to.

13 THE COURT: I understand your position.

14 MR. DONSBACH: But here's the interesting
15 point, Your Honor: All of that being said, I don't 16 think it matters. I don't think it matters about 17 discovery. I don't think it matters about the 18 consent orders that we've all talked about who -- 19 interestingly enough, that's the only order that 20 actually exists between Ms. Hiney and Mr. Brown, 21 which is the consent order dealing with their 22 annulment and divorce actions.

23 A lot has been said about that and I would 24 argue that that could be construed a bunch of 25 different ways, which is why discovery would

1 absolutely be necessary to determine what the 2 parties really knew or didn't, why the diaries would 3 be important for state of mind, why all those issues 4 would come into play.

5 But I think the most important fact before this 6 Court is very simple; none of that matters because 7 we the Lukich case. None of that matters. And I
8 agree with Your Honor wholeheartedly that this case 9 could be decided as a matter of law. We just 10 believe it should be decided in favor of the Estate 11 and the heirs based on Lukich, because Lukich, we 12 believe, is very clear when it interprets 20-1-80.
13 It very clearly states that --

14 THE COURT: So what you're telling me, if I had 15 taken your position on Lukich, you wouldn't be in 16 here arguing that you need additional discovery and 17 you need to do this and you need to do that.

18 MR. DONSBACH: This part of this case would --

19 THE COURT: Because you'd be relying on --

20 MR. DONSBACH: This --

21 THE COURT: -- the family court's order.

22 MR. DONSBACH: This -- no, Your Honor. I'm not 23 relying on the family court's order at all. I'm 24 relying on three stipulated facts. I'm relying on 25 the fact that Mr. Ahmed and Ms. Hiney entered into a

1 marital relationship February 17th of 1997. I'm 2 relying on the fact that Mr. Brown and Ms. Hiney 3 entered into a purported marriage ceremony on 4 December 14th, 2001, and I'm relying on the fact
5 that on April 14th, 2004, is when Ms. Hiney obtained 6 her annulment order.

7 The Supreme Court opinion makes it clear that 8 you cannot retrospectively or prospectively move an 9 annulment order back and forth; that it's that date 10 and time forward that it determines the status of 11 the parties.

12 THE COURT: Then why would when a marriage is 13 annuled is a marriage -- is annuled and a marriage 14 becomes void as it was -- never even happed, is the 15 language that was used?

16 MR. DONSBACH: It becomes void ab initio as to 17 those two parties. It becomes void ab initio as to 18 the two individuals that were in the relationship, 19 because those two individuals are the people who 20 have, A, the most rights that they can enforce 21 against one another. And the courts, in their 22 infinite wisdom, have determined that they can't 23 step in and go, hey, I was married so I can get this 24 child support or alimony or something else from you 25 during this period of time and said, no, it goes all

1 the way back to the beginning as to you two. But 2 the rest of the world can't know. Third parties, 3 which in this case Mr. Brown was, cannot know until 4 that decree is entered by a competent court, as 5 20-1-80 says, that they are annuled. So from that 6 point forward, the person now has the ability -- 7 yes, the initial relationship is voided ab initio, 8 but that person's --

9 THE COURT: Does that not remove the impediment 10 for her?

11 MR. DONSBACH: It does, Your Honor, but it 12 doesn't, as the Court said, and I would quote -- and 13 this is the important part of this that is 14 critically important here --

15 THE COURT: You're quoting from what?

16 MR. DONSBACH: I'm quoting from Lukich, Your 17 Honor. And I'm quoting from the Lukich case and 18 restatement on that which they very clearly said 19 in -- in the South Carolina Court of Appeals in 20 their Lukich case, which was affirmed by the Supreme 21 Court, this is what they said -- and they cited 22 56 Am. Jur. (2d), Marriage, 57. And it applies to 23 our case on point.

24 Even where the annulment decree expressly 25 declares the first marriage void ab initio, it does

1 not relate back so as to validate the second 2 marriage. In order for the subsequent marriage to 3 be valid, it has been held that there must be a new 4 ceremony following the termination of the earlier 5 marriage. That's exactly what's happened here, Your 6 Honor.

7 An annulment decree was issued in 2004, it
8 voided the Ahmed marriage, no marriage existed 9 between Hiney and Brown because the -- in order for 10 them to be declared married, they had to re-enter a 11 marriage ceremony. That hasn't happened. The 12 parties have stipulated that hasn't happened. And 13 so I would tell this Court that, yes, we have 14 stipulated to the facts that this Court could decide 15 under Lukich as a matter of law. And it -- it -- 16 that is why in Footnote 16 of Wilson v. Dallas, the 17 Supreme Court said, hey, we just decided Lukich, we 18 know at the time we made this decision we hadn't 19 decided Lukich; we have now, take a look back at 20 this, Court, because we believe this is going to 21 help you out. And that's our contention here, Your 22 Honor.

23 THE COURT: So your argument is that we can 24 decide this on the stipulated facts, we don't need 25 any additional discovery, my interpretation of

1 Lukich does not -- is not correct, and if I 2 correctly interpreted it and reverse my motion for 3 summary judgment, then everything is okay?

4 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor. And I'm not -- 5 it's an odd case because it's a matter of law. The 6 parties did do their job --

7 THE COURT: Well, that's why I got everybody to 8 stipulate; it's a matter of law --

9 MR. DONSBACH: And that's correct.

10 THE COURT: -- and you're dissatisfied with my 11 interpretation of Lukich.

12 MR. DONSBACH: I believe the Court has erred.

13 THE COURT: I respect that. And I'm going to 14 go back and reread and reread and reread it. I 15 thought I had read it enough til I'm blue in the 16 face, but I will certainly revisit it.

17 MR. DONSBACH: And I'd ask that the Court read 18 both the Court of Appeals' decision and the Supreme 19 Court decision.

20 THE COURT: I certainly will. And I'm familiar 21 with the comments made at oral argument about the 22 application of Lukich and I'm -- but I'll certainly 23 revisit it.

24 MR. DONSBACH: Well, as Mr. Rosen has so 25 graciously pointed out, Your Honor, I'm beyond my

1 time but --

2 MR. ROSEN: He's at 18 minutes, Your Honor.

3 But to be honest --

4 THE COURT: He's at 18:56, but I didn't have 5 my --

6 MR. ROSEN: I have it.

7 MR. DONSBACH: I believe I stand by our motion 8 for consideration and I believe I stand by all the 9 points. And there are several other points which I
10 believe there are certain facts that this Court 11 adopted in the order that the parties actually did 12 not stipulate to and that I believe shouldn't be 13 part of the actual order because they weren't part 14 of the stipulation and they've been included in the 15 final order --

16 THE COURT: But you're being -- you've been 17 very candid with me in saying, Judge, you know, the 18 stipulations, they can be used to decide this case, 19 we just think you applied the crucial case on those 20 facts wrong.

21 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor. And I --

22 THE COURT: And if I applied it the way you 23 read it, everything would be fine on your side, but 24 they'd be screaming on that side. But I promise you 25 I'm going to go back and re-read and re-read look at

1 it. And if y'all want to re-brief Lukich, I'll be 2 glad to look at anything y'all send me.

3 MR. DONSBACH: We would just point the Court to 4 our briefs and our motions because we believe those 5 adequately and very strongly brief the issue.

6 THE COURT: Thank you very much.

7 MR. DONSBACH: Thank you, Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: Mr. Beech?

9 MR. BEECH: Thank you, Your Honor. Judge,
10 Mr. Donsbach --

11 THE COURT: Are you in agreement on stipulated 12 facts and I just read it wrong or decided it wrong?

13 MR. BEECH: Judge, I may be able to shed a bit 14 of light on this question that you've just discussed
15 on the stipulated facts because I was directly 16 involved in the negotiation of those and kind of 17 started that process moving forward based on the 18 Court's suggestion, which was a good one.

19 Unfortunately, Judge, there were a number of 20 items that the parties were trying to include in the 21 stipulated facts that we just couldn't come to an 22 agreement on. And so in the end, Judge, what we 23 decided was, these stipulated facts are as good as 24 we can get and there are going to be other facts 25 upon which the parties are simply going to have to 1 have a dispute.

2 So no one agreed when we finished the 3 stipulated facts that they covered everything and 4 that no other material facts were in dispute. And, 5 in fact, we all agreed that we were not at that 6 point, unfortunately.

7 THE COURT: That's not my question though. My 8 question is, based on the stipulations that y'all 9 worked so hard and agreed on, aren't those facts 10 sufficient for me to make my decision?

11 MR. BEECH: Judge, we believe that they're 12 sufficient for your to grant the motion for summary 13 judgment in favor of -- or that Ms. Brown was not 14 the spouse of the decedent --

15 THE COURT: Well, is your argument the same as 16 just presented to me by the interpretation of 17 Lukich?

18 MR. BEECH: We don't believe that the Court can 19 grant the petitioner's motion for summary judgment 20 based on the stipulated facts. We think that the 21 Court had to include other facts --

22 THE COURT: Such as?

23 MR. BEECH: -- in its finding.

24 THE COURT: Such as?

25 MR. BEECH: Well, Judge, there were -- the

1 Court made some assumptions that, based on documents
2 that were stipulated -- and I do want to be very 3 clear, Judge, we did stipulate that on April 15th of 4 2004 the family court in Charleston issued an order 5 that we attached as an exhibit to the stipulation.
6 We admit --

7 THE COURT: There's no question she issued the 8 order.

9 MR. BEECH: It's no question about that, Judge.
10 What we didn't stipulate is that that annulment
11 order applies to this case or these parties. Again, 12 I agree completely with Mr. Donsbach; I think the 13 whole fundamental problem here is a
14 misinterpretation of the application of collateral 15 estoppel, judicial estoppel, and equitable estoppel.

16 THE COURT: Well, he says disregard all of 17 that; all you had to do, Judge, is correctly
18 interpret Lukich and the facts that we stipulated 19 would take us to the Promised Land.

20 MR. BEECH: Well, I think that Mr. Donsbach is 21 correct. All you need to know to grant the -- our 22 motion for summary judgment is, there was a marriage
23 between Tommie Rae Hiney and Mr. Ahmed in 1997.
24 That marriage was not ended by divorce or death 25 prior to her marriage ceremony with Mr. Brown in 1 2001, and that the annulment order that she got was 2 issued after that, three years later. I think that 3 based on those three things, Mr. Donsbach has stated 4 it very correctly, which is Lukich says that 5 annulment order cannot be used now in this 6 proceeding, either through collateral estoppel or 7 the concepts in Lukich, to go back and invalidate 8 the marriage and then validate the bigamous marriage 9 between Tommie Rae Brown and James Brown. In other 10 words --

11 THE COURT: So was it bigamous if the first 12 marriage was annuled and made void ab initio, void 13 as it never existed? Doesn't that --

14 MR. BEECH: Judge, I --

15 THE COURT: -- eliminate the impediment?

16 MR. BEECH: -- think the crucial point is that 17 void ab initio is only between the two parties to 18 that annulment action; in other words, Tommie Rae
19 Hiney and Ahmed.

20 THE COURT: What case are y'all relying on to 21 say it only affects those two people?

22 MR. BEECH: Well, Judge, there are a number of 23 cases that we cite in our briefs that we submitted 24 or memos in the motions for -- the motions that we 25 argued back in November, Judge.

1 And what they talk about, the line of cases is 2 the cases that say that that type of order is an in 3 rem order. And in rem, Judge, means that from the 4 point of the order forward as to the entire world,
5 their marriage is annuled. From April 15th of 2004
6 forward, their marriage is annuled. But from the 7 date of the marriage until 2004, it only has 8 governing force against Mr. Ahmed and Ms. Hiney 9 because -- and that's what an in rem order is,
10 Judge.

11 We're not saying that the April 15th, 2004
12 order was not valid; what we're saying is that 13 because it's in rem, that the status of the two 14 parties that it determined as to the rest of the 15 world is only established as of April 15th, 2004, 16 and it can't go back and then validate what was an 17 invalid bigamous marriage between --

18 THE COURT: You take the position --

19 MR. BEECH: -- Hiney --

20 THE COURT: -- it cannot eliminate the 21 impediment that she had, had that marriage been 22 valid?

23 MR. BEECH: Correct, Your Honor. We believe 24 that's consistent with the concepts of collateral 25 estoppel and we also feel very confident it's

1 consistent with the ruling in Lukich. We think 2 that's what Lukich was saying. We think --

3 THE COURT: But you're on the same argument
4 Mr. Donsbach just had that, I mean, if I apply
5 Lukich correct, we're okay with the stipulated 6 facts? You don't want to go that far?

7 MR. BEECH: Judge, I think if you -- if want to 8 grant -- if you want to determine that she was not 9 the surviving spouse, then I think you can go with 10 the stipulated fact and that application of Lukich.

11 If you want to determine that she is the 12 surviving spouse, the only way that you can do that 13 is by either misapplying the collateral estoppel 14 rules or by including other facts that were 15 mentioned throughout the order, Judge. The order is 16 46 pages long. It has a lot of things in there that 17 are outside of the stipulated facts.

18 For instance, it says things like the parties 19 are bound by the stipulation that was entered in 20 2008 that Tommie Rae Brown was the surviving spouse, 21 even though that stipulation was reversed on appeal.
22 The order says that that stipulation is binding on 23 all of us, and that's their argument.

24 And the order says that because that was what 25 the arguments they made before the Court said,

1 Judge. They drafted an order that --

2 THE COURT: Maybe I ought to issue a new order, 3 if I'm going to stick with my new order, as to just 4 simply narrow it down to a couple pages and apply
5 Lukich to the stipulated facts, and that will be it.

6 MR. BEECH: Judge, if you applied it in our 7 favor, we'd be thrilled with that.

8 THE COURT: I know you would.

9 MR. BEECH: So, Judge, I guess to --

10 THE COURT: But if I applied it in their favor 11 and just narrowed it down to two or three pages 12 dealing with Lukich, then that eliminates all this 13 other stuff.

14 MR. BEECH: Well, that would eliminate all that 15 other stuff, Your Honor. And I think that you can't 16 reach the same conclusion that you did in this order 17 if you correctly applied Lukich, Judge.

18 THE COURT: Well, they're going to get up and 19 say that I have correctly applied Lukich and, Judge, 20 Early, your application was exactly right, you can 21 rely on Lukich and that's the end of it because when 22 she got the annulment, that did away with the 23 impediment and the marriage to Mr. Brown is good.

24 MR. BEECH: Of course they will say that.

25 THE COURT: Sure. And who's right; you? them?

1 somewhere in between?

2 MR. BEECH: We're right, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: I know. I ask that -- I didn't
4 mean --

5 MR. BEECH: So I can be clear on that, Judge, I 6 know you're asking a rhetorical question, but --

7 THE COURT: But that's where we are, Mr. Beech.
8 And I think that's the reason I try to encourage the 9 stipulation. And I cannot thank y'all enough for 10 doing it. And I had hoped -- and maybe I'm wrong on 11 my application of Lukich. I'm certainly going to 12 look at it. But if I am wrong and I want to redo 13 it, I'm going to limit it just to that little narrow 14 issue and disregard all this other stuff. And when 15 I say other stuff, I mean issues involved.

16 MR. BEECH: Yes, sir. Well -- and we think 17 those three factors that we mentioned that are in 18 the stipulation, you could rely on those defined
19 under Lukich that the marriage between Tommie Rae 20 Brown and James Brown, the purported marriage, was 21 bigamous and that the Ahmed annulment order did not 22 retroactively change that. We think that's what 23 Lukich says and what --

24 THE COURT: Well, what you're saying is that 25 even though it's void ab initio, they still have to 1 remarry Mr. Brown in order to revive the 2 relationship they had or to start a relationship, 3 and the fact that the initial marriage to Ahmed was 4 void as if no marriage ever happened, there's still 5 an impediment that had to be resurrected, so to 6 speak, to have her as the surviving spouse.

7 MR. DONSBACH: Yes, Your Honor. That's what 8 Lukich says. That's what they --

9 THE COURT: And I appreciate it. And I'm going 10 to definitely re-look at that.

11 MR. DONSBACH: Okay.

12 MR. BEECH: So, Judge, we just incorporate all 13 of our arguments we made in our motion and also in 14 our briefs we've submitted in the initial motion, 15 Judge, and just ask for you to change your decision, 16 rule in favor of our position on this. Thank you,
17 Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: Mr. Barr?

19 MR. BARR: Yes, Your Honor. I might have been 20 a little bit premature when I first stood up. I'm 21 glad the Court understood better than I did.

22 What I was trying to say is that we take the 23 position that although were not referred to as a 24 party, just a friend of the Court -- we're glad we 25 were that, but we should have been a party because

1 we filed a claim back since 2007.

2 THE COURT: Well, I don't think anybody would 3 object to making you a party as opposed to a friend
4 of the Court.

5 MR. ROSEN: As long as they accept the 6 stipulation.

7 MR. BARR: Here's the problem: Because we 8 weren't a party, I guess, technically, I mean, in 9 terms of order --

10 THE COURT: You got to be -- either you want to 11 be or you don't want to be.

12 MR. BARR: That's the quagmire. We didn't have 13 the opportunity to challenge anything. You know, we 14 weren't -- we didn't sign off on the stipulation of 15 fact because we couldn't. So we really couldn't 16 participate in any kind of discovery at that time.
17 And of course --

18 THE COURT: Well, I asked about two weeks ago 19 when we had our first reconvening of everyone, the 20 first question out of my mouth on the motion to 21 reconsider the summary judgment was, does anything 22 else need to be done before we meet to decide it or 23 hear it, and everybody said, no, Judge, we'll stand 24 on our briefs. And I didn't hear anything different 25 from you. Now you're coming in here and saying you

1 want to do something else.

2 MR. BARR: Well, Judge, we just never had an 3 opportunity to do anything. And even if we had 4 agreed at that time, we'd still be in the position
5 that we are now because we didn't take part in all 6 the stuff that was going on. The stipulation of 7 facts had already been, you know, signed off on by 8 everybody. We couldn't --

9 THE COURT: Well, do you disagree with the 10 stipulation of facts?

11 MR. BARR: Well, we never had an opportunity to 12 really, you know, dig further into some of the 13 issues that was raised.

14 THE COURT: How much longer do you need?

15 MR. BARR: And we would have done that.

16 THE COURT: We've been doing this stuff for 17 years.

18 MR. BARR: And, Judge, that's what we think.
19 Maybe everything kind of needs to be held in 20 abeyance until such time we could have our chance to 21 dig.

22 THE COURT: You've had all the chance you --

23 MR. BARR: But we couldn't, Judge. We couldn't 24 agree with the -- and I don't mean to repetitious, 25 but we couldn't do anything, our hands were tied,

1 because as was said, you're not in this fight. So 2 we had to stand on the sidelines and look.

3 THE COURT: But you didn't ask to be intervened 4 until when?

5 MR. BARR: Well, we thought we were already 6 there until, of course, Mr. Beech made the motion 7 that said we shouldn't -- that we weren't an heir or 8 we shouldn't be participating in --

9 THE COURT: When you thought you were already 10 there, what did you do?

11 MR. BARR: Sir?

12 THE COURT: When you thought you were already 13 there, what did you do? I mean, don't come in here 14 and tell me you didn't have time to do what you were 15 supposed to do. This case has been going on since 16 his death.

17 MR. BARR: Well, I understand, Your Honor. We 18 just -- I mean, that's --

19 MR. ROSEN: Your Honor --

20 THE COURT: Hold on a second.

21 MR. BARR: -- our position.

22 MR. ROSEN: -- there's a transcript of November 23 10th where you asked these lawyers whether they 24 agreed to the facts, and they said they did. In 25 other words, Your Honor was very careful before we

1 went down this road that whoever was going to 2 participate was going to be bound by the facts. And 3 so I --

4 THE COURT: Let me see that transcript.

5 MR. ROSEN: The stipulated facts. Yeah.

6 There's so much paper in this case, it's hard 7 to keep track of everything. Ms. Gilford at least 8 represented to the Court --

9 THE COURT: What were we here on that for?
10 What was that?

11 MR. ROSEN: That was November 10th. And I
12 guess we were here about --

13 THE COURT: Ms. Mitchell's motion to intervene.

14 Mr. Barr, is that correct?

15 Correct.

16 MR. BARR: I'm sorry. Repeat that again,
17 please, Your Honor.

18 THE COURT: November 10 of 2014, before the 19 Court was this:

20 I said, all right, ladies and gentlemen. As I
21 understand, I've got about six or seven matters 22 before me this afternoon. Let's everybody listen to 23 make sure we're all on the same page. Janette 24 Mitchell's motion to intervene. Mr. Barr, is that 25 correct?

1 That's correct.

2 And then when we get to it, I was going through 3 about the stipulation of facts and I said,
4 Ms. Gilford.

5 Ms. Gilford said, Your Honor, I did not -- 6 well, to some extent I did participate. But we -- 7 we did participate, but we did not sign it the day 8 and -- but were not objecting to the facts as 9 stipulated.

10 So you're now objecting to them?

11 MR. BARR: To the -- to the extent that what -- 12 and I -- and Mr. Beech has indicated, in that 13 regard, we would take their position as well. But 14 we never signed it. I think you had to sign it.

15 THE COURT: Well, I know you didn't sign it,
16 but you agreed to it. Can't I take y'all's word?

17 The point is, I was trying to get -- and I did,
18 I thought -- a stipulation that everybody from here 19 on out who had a dog in the fight, so to speak, 20 would agree to the stipulations of facts so that 21 when it got to the Supreme Court or the Court of 22 Appeals would at least have an agreed-upon set of 23 facts to apply it to Lukich or whatever else they 24 want to apply it to.

25 So I'm asking you today, do you still agree to 1 the stipulation of facts as set forth or as 2 represented to me by Ms. Gilford back in November of 3 2014, November 10?

4 MR. BARR: Your Honor, to be quite honest, I
5 was not intricately involved myself. Ms. Gilford
6 was basically handling it, so I cannot --

7 THE COURT: Well, she hasn't shown up today or 8 the last -- two weeks ago. So I've got to depend on 9 you, Mr. Barr. You're right here in my neighborhood 10 in Kingstree, so I can get to you; I can't get to 11 Ms. Gilford.

12 MR. BARR: Well, I'd be kind of doing myself a 13 disservice if I said I agreed with it and I haven't 14 had a chance to really comb through it. I just 15 can't --

16 THE COURT: Well, other than you maybe not 17 agreeing to the stipulations, what else do you want 18 to tell me?

19 MR. BARR: All right, sir. Well, that kind of 20 bleeds over to everything else, Your Honor, that 21 she, you know, had a right to, you know, engage in 22 the discovery. You know, the diary issue and all of 23 that, we didn't get the chance to do that.

24 And, basically, you know, she has been denied 25 her right to, you know, due process in terms of 1 determining whether or not she got any property in 2 the James Brown estate.

3 THE COURT: In all due respect, if Ms. Gilford
4 had sat there and told me in November of 2014 that 5 she adamantly opposed the stipulation, she needed to 6 do additional work, I probably would have stopped it 7 right there. She agreed to it, so we moved forward.
8 That's all I can do. Thank you.

9 All right. Professor?

10 MR. ROSEN: I want the Court to take judicial 11 notice that I'm also timing Professor Medlin.

12 THE COURT: He's got seven minutes.

13 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, I left class early 14 today to get here, and I appreciate your indulgence.

15 THE COURT: You don't need to be using up all 16 your time --

17 MR. MEDLIN: Not one student was upset that I 18 left early. So you are now their hero.

19 THE COURT: I bet they're all out doing what I
20 used to do when I got out early, which was go home 21 and study. Right, Mr. Lewis?

22 MR. BEECH: They still do that, Your Honor.

23 THE COURT: Mr. Beech, I know you and 24 Mr. Sojourner and Mr. Barr. Mr. Jenkins, how about 25 you? The teacher let you out early, you'd go back

1 and study; right?

2 MR. JENKINS: Absolutely.

3 THE COURT: All right. I appreciate y'all for 4 a little levity.

5 MR. MEDLIN: Your Honor, here's what the 6 stipulated facts in the order tell us: Mr. Brown, 7 who had knowledge of the Ahmed-Tommie Rae annulment
8 action that he paid for, dismissed his own annulment 9 action brought after the commencement of the 10 Ahmed-Tommie Rae action, he dismissed it. He never 11 again tried to terminate his marriage, even by 12 annulment or divorce. We don't need any of the 13 facts to know that at the time he died, he thought 14 he was married to Tommie Rae, he intended to do be 15 married to Tommie Rae.

16 The LSA and the children don't want to do what 17 their daddy wanted to do or what the person in whose 18 shoes they're standing wanted to do. He wanted to 19 be married. And there's lots of evidence you'll 20 have under stipulations to look to other matters in 21 the record as I read the stipulation, but we don't 22 need that. But there's plenty of evidence that 23 shows that that's what he thought.

24 There's an argument in one of their memos that 25 the -- that the autobiography might have been

1 printed or created before the family court matters
2 were over. Well, all you have to do is look at the 3 copyright. The copyright is a year after the family 4 court matters involved concluded.

5 So Mr. Brown, clearly, just on the record of 6 the Aiken and Charleston County family courts, chose 7 to be married to Ms. Brown at the time of his death.
8 They --

9 THE COURT: But could he be married if the 10 other side says that he had to go through another 11 marriage regarding Lukich?

12 MR. MEDLIN: Well, first of all, at that time, 13 there was no Lukich. And they, as I will get to in 14 a few minutes, Your Honor --

15 THE COURT: But there is one now.

16 MR. MEDLIN: Yeah, there is one now, which they 17 purport overturns every other case in South Carolina 18 without saying that they're overturning it. In 19 fact, quoting that for the fact that a bigamous 20 marriage is void ab initio, never a marriage, they 21 want never a marriage to mean, oh, well, never 22 sometimes and never other times, and overturning the 23 bigamy statute, which says a bigamous marriage is 24 void ab initio, it's never a marriage. It doesn't 25 say, only once an order is issued. It doesn't say

1 that at all.

2 THE COURT: Well, that's how I ruled. I ruled 3 that once Judge Segars-Andrews ruled that that 4 marriage was annuled, it was bigamous and she was 5 never married, she had no impediment, that marriage 6 to Mr. Brown was --

7 MR. MEDLIN: And, Your Honor --

8 THE COURT: Is that wrong?

9 MR. MEDLIN: -- we think your order was 10 impeccable and, of course, it was correct. And, no, 11 because otherwise, you'd be overturning every other 12 case the Supreme Court ruled that a marriage was 13 void ab initio, not what Terry Brown or the LSA want 14 to add. If they want to run for the Supreme Court 15 or run for legislature, they can change that. But 16 that's not what the law says.

17 THE COURT: What does the law say, Mr. Medlin?

18 MR. MEDLIN: The law says that a bigamous 19 marriage is void ab initio. And Lukich says the 20 same thing. And if --

21 THE COURT: What does void ab initio mean?

22 MR. MEDLIN: It means never. And in fact --

23 THE COURT: As if it never happened.

24 MR. MEDLIN: As if it never happened. And in 25 fact, we argued before, Your Honor, that the

1 Legislature clearly knows the difference between 2 void and voidable. There's a statute in the Probate
3 Code that talks about self-dealing. It talks about 4 voidable.. And that means that it doesn't have to be 5 invalid from the start, only if the parties want it
6 to be. They know the difference in the terms.

7 Void means never. And they don't want to 8 believe that in this particular case, but not in the 9 case of Mr. Brown's marriage to Mrs. Brown, which 10 I'd like to get to in a minute. But we don't need 11 anything but those Charleston County and Aiken 12 County family court orders to come to the 13 conclusion. We agree with that too. We don't think 14 that you've made other errors.

15 THE COURT: Well, they -- once they're 16 oppressed, they agree that I can decide it on the 17 stipulated facts, they just take issue with my 18 application of Lukich to the stipulated facts. And 19 that's where you differ from them and I differ from 20 them in my ruling. And my ruling was based on long, 21 long, long line of cases that say a bigamous
22 marriage, as if it never happened, it's void. If it 23 never happened, then she had no impediment and she 24 was free to marry Mr. Brown, and she did.

25 That's pretty elementary, but that's the manner

1 they perked my interest about maybe Lukich changes
2 all that and maybe I didn't read Lukich correctly.
3 But you can bet your bottom dollar I'm going to go
4 back and read Lukich again until I fall asleep.

5 MR. MEDLIN: Well, I'd like to un-perk that 6 interest, Your Honor. You were absolutely
7 correct --

8 THE COURT: Well, you're not going to un-perk 9 it because --

10 MR. MEDLIN: Failing that, I wanted to tell you
11 that you were correct. Because remember in Lukich, 12 we had two marriages that were invalidated; one was 13 based on bigamy. And the bigamy statute says a 14 bigamous marriage is never a marriage. There's a 15 reason for that. Bigamy is against public policy.
16 It's so much against public policy, it's a crime.

17 So the legislature and the courts can't be 18 saying that a bigamous marriage is void sometimes, 19 but not other times or to some people and not to 20 other people. It's against public policy. It's 21 just void from the beginning. And Lukich treats 22 that second marriage, which was the bigamous
23 marriage, exactly like that; it was never a marriage
24 from the beginning. Remember in Lukich, the order 25 of the marriages are reversed from our particular

1 case here.

2 Marriage based on intoxication was the other 3 marriage. That's the order that came after the 4 bigamous marriage in Lukich. That was not given 5 retroactive effect because the Court does have 6 discretion as to an intoxication-based annulment, 7 that is a voidable marriage. There's no public 8 policy and no statute prohibiting an intoxication 9 marriage. I suspect many marriages would not be 10 valid from the beginning if that, in fact, were the 11 case, Your Honor. Nobody in this room, but it could 12 be there are some people out there who would have 13 that problem.

14 Their theory leads to absurd results. Somebody 15 could be married to two people unless and until 16 there was a court order saying that it's not valid.
17 And other parties would be caught up in the same 18 sort of issue having to deal with two spouses, for 19 example. Again, that's not what the law has ever 20 said and is not what Lukich says. Lukich treats the 21 bigamous marriage as void from the beginning, never 22 a marriage; otherwise --

23 THE COURT: Which has been the law in this 24 state for a long time.

25 MR. MEDLIN: Since the Hallums case which rules

1 in the same way; in fact, it sets up exactly that 2 same argument.

3 Now, in Lukich, the Court said, you don't have 4 to pay alimony because you were never married. That 5 proves the retroactive effect, the never part of the 6 void treatment that the courts have always treated.
7 And in Lukich, the Court cited case after case after 8 case saying that a void marriage is never a marriage 9 and a bigamous marriage is a void marriage.

10 Now, there's some cases they cite that deal
11 with collateral issues. How do we divide property 12 when people thought they had a marriage but it turns 13 out they didn't? Or one case, the Joy case, where 14 you had the divorce, fellow is paying alimony to the 15 ex-wife, she thinks she marries her second husband, 16 ex-husband is happy alimony is over, and then it 17 turns out the second husband was already married, so 18 that was bigamous and void ab initio. And so the 19 Court said that even though the status -- and here's 20 the difference: The status of that bigamous 21 marriage is void ab initio. We'd have some 22 collateral issues and, in fact, the Supreme Court 23 ultimately ruled that the alimony could stop because 24 of that bigamous marriage. But that didn't affect 25 the status at all.

1 But here's the biggest problem with their 2 theory, if they think it through: Let's assume that 3 your marriage is bigamous until you get an order and 4 that order is effective prospectively only. Well, 5 Mr. Brown, therefore, according to them, entered 6 into a bigamous marriage with Mrs. Brown. We don't 7 have an order and it's too late to get an order.
8 You can't get an annulment, which is the only way to 9 find that a marriage was invalid from the start.
10 You can't get that after death. And the Probate 11 Code, which defines a surviving spouse, and related 12 case law says, of course, that you can't get an 13 annulment after death.

14 So even if they were right about the theory of 15 a bigamous marriage not being void from the 16 outset -- and they're not -- Mr. Brown doesn't have 17 an order he can't get one. So they get a real 18 problem that, again, they want to dance around by 19 saying, well, in some cases -- in other words, 20 Tommie Rae's case -- the law is this way, and in 21 everybody else's case, the law is a different way.

22 So how do they get around that problem? Well, 23 they attack the family court order and they say that 24 it's fabricated -- interestingly, I don't think 25 Terry Brown was there -- that the Charleston County

1 judge wasn't competent to make a decision about the 2 evidence presented to her in the court. Again, they 3 just want to try to retry this case so badly --

4 THE COURT: They finally came around after I
5 questioned them enough to say that if I interpreted 6 Lukich correctly, they were satisfied with the 7 family court judge's order in Charleston.

8 MR. MEDLIN: Well, I hope that's correct, Your 9 Honor. And we would say that that would be the 10 right understanding, because there are any number of 11 reasons that we can't go behind that order. Number 12 one, even though Mr. Rosen told me not to tell you 13 this last time, you don't have jurisdiction; only a 14 family court has jurisdiction over annulments. So 15 this is not an appeal to you because family courts 16 don't appeal to you, there's no way you could be 17 deciding an annulment anyway.

18 Now, if they want to figure out how to go back 19 to family court and get that undone, which I don't 20 think can happen at this stage, as you pointed out 21 earlier, that's something else. But not here, not 22 in this court.

23 This Court can't decide whether the 24 Mr. Brown-Mrs. Brown marriage was bigamous because 25 that requires an annulment. Mr. Brown knew that, he

1 brought an annulment action, which he dismissed with 2 consent. Mrs. Brown counterclaimed to divorce and 3 they mutually consented to dismiss that. But more 4 about what they think about that in just a second,
5 Your Honor.

6 The only parties who have standing to attack an 7 annulment are the parties to the annulment. We 8 agree Mr. Brown was not a party to that annulment.
9 Of course he wasn't; he could not be. Lukich tells 10 us that too: You can't be a party to someone else's 11 annulment. His only recourse would be to try to 12 annul his own marriage, which he did try to do for a 13 brief while, and then he dismissed the action, never 14 to bring it again.

15 The children and the LSA, at best, stand in his 16 shoes. They want us to think they have some 17 rights -- due process rights or some rights created 18 somewhere else. Their rights are Mr. Brown's 19 rights. He could not contest that annulment, he 20 could only bring his own annulment action. He knew 21 it, he did it, he dropped it. He was happy to be 22 married when he died.

23 And here's where they really get interesting:
24 I think I hear them say, at least Mr. Beech say on 25 behalf of the LSA, that an action in rem is binding

1 as to status as to the entire world. Well, of 2 course, it has to be. And if you can go behind the 3 facts and destroy the determination of status, then 4 there really is no binding determination of status.
5 The Court based its determination of status on the 6 facts that it found to be the case. And the status 7 that's important here is that at the time she 8 married Mr. Brown, Mrs. Brown had no impediment to 9 her marriage. The order that she got in 2004 said 10 that she was never married. That's the status.
11 That order doesn't say she's married up until this 12 time and not forward. It says nothing like that, 13 under Lukich or any of the other cases. It says it 14 was never a marriage. That's the status 15 determination that's binding on the rest of the 16 world, including Mr. Brown.

17 If you could attack an order, which is what 18 they want to do -- and why would we stop at this?
19 Why not annulments obtained before another marriage, 20 why not divorces obtained before another marriage?
21 If third parties aren't bound by that, then no 22 family, no family status, no child's legitimacy, no 23 tax returns, no jointly owned property, none of that 24 is going to be determined if people can keep coming 25 back and attacking an in rem status judgment. It

1 would lead to chaos. There would be no finality in 2 the family court, there would be no finality to 3 status at all. We can't have that chaos, Your 4 Honor.

5 So, for example, what if Terry Brown married 6 his first wife and they got divorced, and he married 7 a rich second wife, and then she wanted to divorce 8 him and he wanted alimony. Is she now going to be 9 allowed to come back and attack the validity of the 10 first marriage because the status was not binding on 11 her, argue about the underlying facts of that 12 divorce so that she doesn't have to pay alimony?
13 This would be never-ending.

14 The status has to be binding. And every case 15 recognizes that in South Carolina, and the 16 restatement recognizes that, as Your Honor pointed 17 out. Now, we don't need a restatement; we've got 18 plenty of law in South Carolina. But the 19 restatement is simply corroborative of exactly those 20 points.

21 Now, Your Honor, what else can they argue if 22 our statute and our Supreme Court has always said a 23 marriage that is bigamous is void ab initio, and 24 they can't go behind and attack the order that found 25 void ab initio? Well, in their briefs they argue

1 that the consent order granted an annulment.

2 Now, this is remarkable to me. Mr. Brown 3 brought an annulment action, full knowledge of what 4 was going on with Mr. Ahmed, he's paying for that 5 annulment; he brings an annulment action for other 6 reasons, and they reconcile. By the way, they're 7 saying settling is not reconciling even though they 8 are living together and everything is happy in the 9 order. He dismisses, by consent order, his 10 annulment action, and Mrs. Brown dismisses her 11 counter-divorce action. It's a consent dismissal.

12 Now, I think it's basic pre-first-year law 13 student knowledge that if you bring an action and 14 dismiss it, you don't win your action; it means you 15 gave up your action. So they can't transform that 16 magically into an annulment. If that's the case, 17 Your Honor, I'm going to go out and sue someone for 18 $50 million this afternoon, dismiss my action, and 19 then still get my $50 million because I won. Little 20 did I know that a dismissal means you won.

21 So, again, their whole argument is based on a 22 house of cards. The simplicity of it is that if a 23 marriage is void ab initio, we don't have any of 24 these problems. Mrs. Brown's punitive marriage to 25 Ahmed was void ab initio and, therefore, she had no

1 impediment. They want to say that that doesn't 2 apply only to Tommie Rae, but that rule does apply 3 to Mr. Brown and his marriage to Mrs. Brown, which 4 they claim was bigamous..

5 By the way, Your Honor, we have specifically 6 refuted each of their individual allegations, claims 7 in their briefs. They think you made a lot of 8 mistakes, by the way, and we think you did not. But 9 rather than get into those specifics, I, based on 10 time, will simply deal with these general statements 11 that I've made.

12 But just one example of the kind of -- well, 13 first of all, I don't recall anywhere in the order 14 where you said the settlement agreement was still 15 binding on the determination of marriage. I don't 16 remember you saying that anywhere in the order.
17 Secondly, if I read it correctly, Mr. Terry Brown 18 says that you should not have considered the 19 affidavit of David Bell about Ahmed. Well, first of 20 all, I think that was the affidavit Mr. Donsbach was 21 just referring to. But separate and apart from all 22 that, at the time, Mr. Bell was representing Terry 23 Brown. He presented that affidavit on behalf of 24 Terry Brown. These are the kinds of problems that 25 they have that they are bringing up at this point.

1 But fortunately for justice, Your Honor, your 2 order is right. Because otherwise, here's what you 3 have to believe: Number one, it's okay for you to 4 destroy Mr. Brown's intent about his marriage based 5 on the very facts that he, knowing about the 6 annulment of Tommie Rae and Ahmed, withdrew his 7 annulment action and never brought another attempt 8 to terminate his marriage. He went to his grave 9 thinking he was married; and he was married, and 10 they want you to undo that. Without subject matter 11 jurisdiction, you can re-open and retry that 12 Charleston County family court case; that you can,
13 despite law and statute to the contrary, have a 14 post-mortem annulment hearing in this court; that 15 it's okay for you to overturn every case, including 16 Lukich, and the bigamy statute that holds,
17 uniformly, that a bigamous marriage is never a 18 marriage; that they want you to believe that it's 19 okay under South Carolina public policy for somebody 20 to be married to two or more people at one time 21 unless and until we get a court order terminating 22 that; it's okay to have two wives if you're a man 23 until somebody brings a court order saying, you 24 can't have two wives; that an annulment order for 25 bigamy doesn't make the marriage void ab initio, but

1 then they want a different rule to apply Mr. Brown 2 and a marriage they claim that's bigamous to 3 Mrs. Brown.

4 . . . They want you to buy that a consent order of 5 dismissal was really a victory for Mr. Brown where 6 he got an annulment. They want to think, by the 7 way, that it's okay to use a stolen diary in 8 evidence. I know we're going to deal with that 9 later, but they're so focused on what Mrs. Brown 10 might have said in her personal diary that, just for 11 example, just for the sake of argument, assuming 12 that she'd been told by three fiduciaries who are 13 now a convicted felon, an admitted liar on the stand 14 to you, and someone who was taken away from the 15 magistrate's bench because he was selling drugs, as 16 I understand it, they want those three reputable 17 citizens to go to Tommie Rae and say, you're not 18 married to James Brown, which, of course, wasn't the 19 law at the time anyway because Lukich wasn't the 20 case at the critical time that Mrs. Brown married 21 James Brown. Lukich doesn't change anything anyway, 22 but it certainly wasn't the law when all this stuff 23 was going on. There was no Lukich. So she might 24 have had a couple of excerpts of despair. They 25 don't care what Mr. Brown thought.

1 Now, again, what Mr. Brown thought or put in a 2 diary or said is no more binding on you as to the 3 legal effect of those marriages as what Mrs. Brown
4 said. I just find it interesting that the person 5 that they should care about, the decedent in this 6 case, they don't care about. They don't want to pay 7 any attention to what he thought, and they know what 8 he thought.

9 Your Honor, Footnote 16 of Wilson v. Dallas,
10 you're probably familiar with that opinion. I 11 didn't like it. One day I'm going to write about 12 it, as I've written before about cases, because 13 that's what I do when I don't like it. Footnote 16 14 no more says that Lukich is -- invalidates the 15 Mr. Brown-Mrs. Brown marriage than that consent 16 order of annulment granted Mr. Brown an annulment.
17 The opposing parties want to make up things in 18 orders that aren't there.

19 And since you said you're familiar with the 20 oral argument, there was a heated exchange --

21 THE COURT: Well, I'm --

22 MR. MEDLIN: -- about the Lukich case. And, in 23 fact, the Chief Justice said Lukich kills Tommie 24 Rae. And, lo and behold, Footnote 16, they didn't 25 kill Tommie Rae; they said, we'll think about this

1 later. The Court of Appeals opinion in previous 2 arguments didn't apply because we had a Supreme 3 Court opinion. I think that was in the LSA's brief 4 a long time ago that that footnote in the Court of 5 Appeals opinion, which wasn't adopted verbatim by 6 Supreme Court, didn't need to, which noted the 7 exception to bigamous marriages as not being 8 applicable to that intoxication marriage in Lukich, 9 that's another footnote that really shouldn't matter 10 but that should be brought to the attention of the 11 Court because in the Court of Appeals, they said 12 bigamous marriages are still void ab initio. They 13 were focusing on the intoxication marriage.

14 But in this footnote in Wilson v. Dallas, if 15 the Court could have killed Tommie Rae, they could 16 have done it. It would have been so easy. So to 17 read into that, that Lukich says what they say it 18 says, when it clearly doesn't, just because they say 19 we'll decide the Lukich later, if it comes up before 20 us, is a stretch in any case.

21 Let me, if I may, address a couple more points
22 that they make. James Brown did file an annulment
23 and he decided to dismiss it. Every bigamous 24 marriage, as you noted at the arguments last time, 25 Your Honor, has -- how can I say this gently -- an

1 inaccurate statement by one of the parties. The one 2 who is already married of course has to swear he's 3 not married or doesn't get a marriage license.
4 That's not something remarkable about this case.
5 Every bigamous marriage has that in it. And, of 6 course, that does not make a difference.

7 Your Honor, unless you have questions, I think 8 I'm done.

9 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.
10 Anything in response, briefly?

11 MR. DONSBACH: Briefly, Your Honor.

12 First of all, he twists and misconstrues what 13 we said about the affidavits in our brief. What we 14 were saying is, this Court told us, go put a joint 15 stipulation together, those are the facts we're 16 going to abide by, I don't want any others, we're 17 going to hold discovery, you guys figure out the 18 facts. Our dispute is they supplied affidavits 19 which included this autobiography of Ms. Hiney with 20 their summary judgment motion when this Court said 21 we're going to rely solely on the stipulation of 22 facts. So our contention is, none of those facts 23 should have been considered, including any 24 affidavits or other things that we submitted because 25 the --

1 THE COURT: Let me make myself clear: I only
2 consider stipulations of facts. And you know how I 3 reached my conclusion. And you say that I can still 4 look at those stipulations of facts and, Judge, if 5 you will just look at Lukich, you will realize that 6 you were wrong. And I'm going to do that, I promise
7 you. And if I agree with you, I'm going to change
8 it.

9 MR. DONSBACH: Well, Your Honor, Lukich is very 10 short and simplistic. That's the beauty of it. I 11 have it in my hand, it's two whole pages. And 12 Lukich very clearly says and, it is our facts to a 13 tee, that there's no deviation. It says: The 14 question is whether the October 2003 -- you could 15 insert April 14th, 2004 -- annulment order declaring 16 wife's first marriage void ab initio relates back so 17 as to validate her purported 1985 marriage -- you
18 could insert 2001 marriage here. In construing a 19 statute, we need not resort to rules of construction 20 where the statute's language is plain. Under the 21 statute's terms, wife's marriage to Husband No. 2 -- 22 which you could insert James Brown -- was void from 23 the inception since at the time of that marriage she 24 had a living spouse -- insert Mr. Ahmed -- and that 25 marriage had not been declared void. And they cite

1 in accordance with 20-1-80, which requires a Court
2 of competent jurisdiction to declare it void. See 3 April 14th, 2004 annulment.

4 The Court goes on to say: While an annulment 5 order relates back in most senses, it does not have 6 the ability to validate the bigamous second 7 marriage. Since there was no marriage under the 8 plain terms of the statute when the ceremony between 9 Wife and Husband No. 2 -- read, Tommie Rae Hiney, 10 James Brown -- was performed in 1985, there was 11 nothing to be revived by the annulment order in 12 2003 -- read, April 14th, 2004.

13 And it closes with this, which I think is just 14 crystal clear at this point which is what they've 15 been arguing this whole time: The statute speaks to 16 the status quo at the time the marriage was 17 contracted and does not contemplate either a 18 prospective or retrospective perspective. Any other 19 construction of 20-1-80 would lead to uncertainty 20 and chaos, which is what, unfortunately, 21 Mr. Medlin and company have created here.

22 This couldn't be clearer. I'm not asking you
23 to rely on these defunct citizens of South Carolina, 24 I'm asking you to rely on the Supreme Court ruling, 25 the supreme law of South Carolina, and the Justices

1 who decided it and very clearly laid out in Lukich
2 are exact fact pattern. And they didn't distinguish 3 void, voidable, any of that. They made it very 4 clear what the law of the land in South Carolina is 5 as to annulment actions. This isn't a divorce, this 6 isn't any of the other or any of the other items 7 that Mr. Medlin brings up, this is an annulment with 8 a bigamous relationship that Ms. Hiney entered into 9 with Mr. Brown. It's that simple. It's really not 10 hard.

11 And the three facts that we've presented in the 12 stipulation of fact that we've stated make it very 13 clear under Lukich. And that's as simple as it can 14 be for this Court. Lukich applies, Ms. Hiney is a 15 bigamist; that's it. I have nothing further, Your 16 Honor.

17 THE COURT: Okay.

18 You want to reply to that?

19 MR. MEDLIN: If I could, Your Honor.

20 THE COURT: You may.

21 MR. MEDLIN: As I stated, we don't need any of 22 those facts. But I will point out that Item 21 of 23 stipulations, if I'm reading it correctly, says that 24 you can take judicial notice of the files, 25 pleadings, transcripts, briefs and oral arguments in

1 this court, the Court of Appeals and the Supreme 2 Court. You can take judicial notice of anything 3 that's been in front of you, it says in the 4 stipulations.

5 More importantly, here's the one little simple 6 problem with Terry Brown's argument: It's not 7 exactly the same facts. They're exactly backwards.
8 It's not the same fact pattern. In Lukich, we have 9 a woman who has a marriage, Marriage No. 1 --

10 THE COURT: A valid marriage.

11 MR. MEDLIN: A valid marriage. She then 12 attempts to marry and --

13 THE COURT: She's not married and he's not 14 married, and they get married.

15 MR. MEDLIN: And they got married. They're 16 drunk, but they get married.

17 THE COURT: Well, a lot of people do that,
18 that's why we have so many marriages.

19 MR. MEDLIN: And probably why we have so many 20 divorces, Your Honor.

21 We have a valid first marriage. Along comes 22 the second punitive husband that tries to marry the 23 woman who is already married. She then goes back -- 24 I don't have enough hands to do this. She then goes 25 and tries to get an order of annulment based on

1 intoxication. Mr. Donsbach is reading the case
2 exactly backwards. What the Court is talking about 3 is that marriage that's annuled for intoxication
4 does not take away the impediment.... It's not void ab
5 initio --

6 THE COURT: Because it's voidable.

7 MR. MEDLIN: Because it's voidable.

8 THE COURT: And it's not void until you void --

9 MR. MEDLIN: He wants you to read this case as 10 if the facts are exactly the same. Our facts are 11 exactly backwards. The void marriage is the first 12 marriage in our case. It was never a marriage, so 13 we don't have that impediment.

14 In Lukich, the Court is saying -- first of all, 15 they clearly made the distinction between void and 16 voidable; they may not use those exact words, but 17 that is exactly the result -- a bigamous marriage is 18 void ab initio and a marriage by intoxication 19 doesn't have to be, if there's an annulment. But he 20 wants to apply the language that the Court is using 21 for the intoxication marriage, which is not void ab
22 initio, to Tommie Rae's marriage. And they have it 23 exactly backwards, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Thank you. All right. I want -- 25 I'm going to give y'all 30 days to anybody -- and I

1 don't say you have to. But I'm limiting this 2 reconsideration to the arguments on Lukich on the 3 Rosen side and Donsbach side. If y'all want to 4 submit anything else in the next 30 days, it's 5 strictly on the Lukich issue, recognizing the facts 6 as stipulated, narrowing it just to that. That's 7 where I'm going with it. And either, Mr. Donsbach, 8 you're going to be right or, Mr. Medlin, you're 9 going to be right.

10 And there is a distinction though because the 11 marriages may be -- I'll have to look at that. I 12 appreciate your argument and I appreciate your 13 argument. I'm sorry I didn't recognize the Brown 14 family. Good to see y'all again, as always. I hope 15 you're all doing well. Haven't seen y'all for a 16 while.

17 Anyone else need to say anything before we 18 break? Thank you very much.

19 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, at the -- I hate to ask
20 this --

21 THE COURT: Hold on. Hold on. I forgot all 22 about it. Protective orders.

23 MR. BEECH: The discovery issue, Your Honor.
24 Yes.

25 MR. SHAHID: You want to hear that now, Judge?

1 THE COURT: I thought we were going to do it
2 after we did this.

3 MR. SHAHID: We did. But whatever the Court
4 wants to do.

5 THE COURT: Okay. Anybody need the bathroom?
6 Everybody okay?

7 MR. SHAHID: Your Honor, you should have 8 received an amended motion that I filed on June 9 24th.

10 THE COURT: I did. I'll be glad to hear from 11 you.

12 MR. SHAHID: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

13 Your Honor, the LSA has filed a first request 14 for production and interrogatories back in May of 15 2014. And I'll start with the interrogatories
16 first, if you don't mind, Judge. But he's requested 17 32 questions to the -- to James Brown II.

18 If I could put this all in prospective, Judge, 19 as to this matter, we're dealing with a minor who 20 was born in June of 2011, just turned 14 years old.
21 He's being represented Steve Sojourner, Guardian Ad
22 Litem. He's filed a petition to protect his rights 23 as an admitted child. The interrogatories were 24 prepared prior to the results of a DNA test having 25 been returned -- submitted and returned to us.

1 Those DNA tests includes, in our opinion by the 2 results of the test, he's the biological son of the 3 decedent.

4 After an exchange of some telephone calls,
5 e-mails and letters, the LSA has agreed to withdraw 6 those interrogatories and requests to produce that 7 deal with the DNA test. The problem is this: We're 8 dealing with a child who is incapable of testifying, 9 because at the time of his father's -- the will was 10 prepared before he was born. So the testimony that 11 we're going to present is going to be mainly 12 document testimony and maybe some live testimony, 13 but the questions that have been propounded to us go 14 beyond what was contemplated under Rule 20 -- I'm 15 sorry, Rule 33 and 34 as to standard interrogatories 16 and requests to produce. It's well beyond those 17 standard questions about who's your witnesses going 18 to be, what's your expert witnesses. Some of those 19 included, but it goes beyond the whole sequence of 20 events requesting that.

21 For instance, while they have removed their 22 request for Questions 10, 11, 12, and 13 and I think 23 14 as well, which deals with some of the DNA
24 questions, they still want to know what schools you 25 attended, describe all DNA tests or genetic tests

1 which you have submitted, which is Question No. 9, 2 identify your biological mother, what is your social 3 security number, things well beyond issues dealing 4 with whether or not he's entitled to part of his 5 father's estate or whether or not he is the child..

6 We can't get them to stipulate that he is the 7 child; even after their DNA test comes back under 8 the protocol they established, they won't even 9 stipulate to that. Our issue is very --

10 THE COURT: Isn't that what your motion for 11 summary judgment is?

12 MR. SHAHID: And we filed a motion for summary 13 judgment on that particular issue.

14 So a couple points: We filed this motion for 15 summary judgment. It is -- the question is this:
16 He is the son of the decedent, that's a question
17 before the Court. Our request for summary judgment 18 is, he's the son, we've submitted as an exhibit to 19 that motion for summary judgment the two DNA tests; 20 the test that we did and the second test that was 21 done in 2014. That's the issue.

22 Once that issue has been resolved by the Court, 23 then it's going to be a main issue as to whether or 24 not he was intentionally or non-intentionally 25 omitted -- omitted as a child. So all of this

1 discovery, except for that particular issue, needs
2 to be set aside because it's really irrelevant. I 3 mean, certainly the rules allow for broad discretion 4 and for a very --

5 THE COURT: Any issue that may lead to --

6 MR. MEDLIN: May lead to -- we've gone through 7 all of that a million times. I know what -- we all 8 know what those rules are. But you still have got 9 to have germane to the issue at hand. And the issue 10 at hand is going to be whether or not he intended to 11 admit him or not. That's --

12 THE COURT: Why don't we wait until we have the 13 summary judgment and I'll rule on that? And if I 14 rule he's the child, then you've got the narrow 15 issue of whether or not he was left out 16 intentionally or not. And then we can go with 17 discovery on that.

18 MR. SHAHID: Suits me just fine, Judge.

19 THE COURT: Mr. Beech, is that an efficient way 20 to do it? Nobody is giving up any rights or waiving 21 anything, I just --

22 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, so what you're 23 suggesting is that we hold off on this question
24 until after the Court rules on the summary judgment?

25 THE COURT: That's right. And then, obviously,

1 if I rule he's not the child, then that will be the 2 end of it, probably. But if I rule that he is, then 3 we've got that narrow issue.

4 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, I -- Ms. Zwing was 5 actually going to argue this motion. So I hate 6 to --

7 THE COURT: No, no. I'm sorry. I asked the 8 wrong person.

9 MR. BEECH: No, no. So I'm going to let her 10 state --

11 THE COURT: Is that an efficient way to do it, 12 ma'am?

13 MS. ZWING: I think so, Your Honor just. I
14 certainly, just responding to the petitioner's 15 motion for protective order, we've certainly asked 16 for the standard interrogatories, and the rules 17 allow us up to 50 interrogatories.

18 THE COURT: Sure.

19 MS. ZWING: There's no limit on the request for 20 production. So, Your Honor, we would certainly 21 argue that we have asked a sufficient number of 22 discovery requests in this case. A lot of them do 23 pertain to transfers outside of the will and whether 24 or not those transfers were intended to provide for 25 the petitioner outside of the will --

1 THE COURT: Which may be very relevant if he is 2 deemed to be the child.

3 MS. ZWING: Yes, Your Honor.

4 THE COURT: That may be why he was omitted.

5 MS. ZWING: Yes, Your Honor. And I do think it
6 would be appropriate to stay this discovery issue 7 until after the summary judgment motion is heard.

8 THE COURT: And that's going to be heard on 9 whatever date I set the hearing date, which I gave 10 y'all a while ago, the timeframe.

11 MS. ZWING: In August, yes, sir.

12 THE COURT: Thank you.

13 Mr. Black, you're going to do me a proposed 14 administrative order based on what we heard today?

15 MR. BLACK: Yes, sir, Your Honor. I've been 16 taking noted.

17 THE COURT: Anything else?

18 All right. I signed the scheduling order and 19 the will contest; still have not gotten the court
20 schedule for 2016, but it's going to be late January 21 or early February. Keep that in mind, continue to 22 work towards that.

23 MR. BEECH: Your Honor, let me just very 24 quickly ask -- and I don't mean to open up a problem
25 here. I'm actually trying to see if I can resolve

1 one. But should we be proceeding on the idea that 2 discovery between these four cases is consolidated 3 or should we be proceeding under the notion that 4 it's not? And I'll just tell you, for instance, 5 Your Honor, if we were to take the deposition of 6 Ms. Brown, which we, of course, are going to need to 7 do, should we ask questions relating to all of her 8 claims, the undue influence claims and the ones 9 contained in the under lying 1647, as well as 10 questions about the prenuptial agreement and whatnot
11 in the same deposition or would we take two separate 12 depositions, one related to one issue in case and 13 another one related to the other issues in case?

14 THE COURT: Seems like to me it would be 15 efficient to do it all at once. But that's --

16 MR. ROSEN: We agree with that, Your Honor.

17 MR. BEECH: Okay. I think it would be -- if 18 everyone agrees to that, I think the most efficient 19 way --

20 THE COURT: You don't have to agree.

21 MR. BEECH: -- might be to say that we're 22 consolidating for the purposes --

23 THE COURT: All the discovery is consolidated 24 and have at it.

25 MR. BEECH: Thank you, Your Honor.

1 THE COURT: But I guess we need to issue the -- 2 address the diary issue. But I'm going to do that 3 quickly.

4 MR. BEECH: Yes, Your Honor.

5 MR. ROSEN: You were going to hear it in 6 August, Your Honor.

7 THE COURT: I am.

8 MR. BEECH: Right. And we certainly need to 9 know the answer on the diary issue before we can 10 take Ms. Brown's --

11 THE COURT: But I assume there's other 12 discovery that you want to --

13 MR. BEECH: There is, Your Honor. We're lining 14 it up.

15 THE COURT: Just, please, fair warning, you 16 know --

17 MR. BEECH: You've given it to us, Judge, and 18 we're heeding your warning.

19 THE COURT: All right.

20 Thank you, everyone.

- j) The parties agree that any and all will and trust contests will be dismissed.

- k) The parties agree to use their best efforts to extinguish any other outstanding interests or claims by any potential heir, devisee, or successor and to the extent the termination of such interest or claim requires payment, for such payment to be made from the settlement entity, which of necessity would be allocated among the parties to the settlement entity pro-rata in aliquot shares.

- l) The parties agree that the settlement entity and/or the parties will endeavor to create an appropriate and respectful museum or other memorial burial place acceptable to the settlement entity in which to maintain the remains of James Brown, preferably at 430 Douglas Drive, Beech Island, if feasible. If such is not accomplished within 7 years from date, then in that event the remains will be interred in the cemetery where the parents of James Brown currently are located in Augusta, GA, with the settlement entity paying

expenses of relocation. Parties hereto represented by Levenson, Tommie Rae, and James Brown II shall all have reasonable opportunities to visit privately the gravesite upon reasonable notice. The parties hereby waive any right to otherwise direct the location of the gravesite as a result of their status under law. The parties consent to an Order of the Aiken County Court of Common Pleas or to any appropriate Court to require the parties to comply with the terms of this paragraph of this agreement.

6. This agreement is a private binding agreement among the parties hereto. Although the parties hereto may agree to ask the Court to approve this agreement, this agreement remains binding among the parties and applies to personal representatives and trustees even if not approved by the Court.

7. This agreement is binding on the heirs, successors, and assigns of the parties hereto.

WHEREAS, the Settling Parties and Terry Brown (the "parties") have come to an agreement to settle any and all differences among them concerning the disposition, by will or otherwise, and/or transfer of any assets owned or controlled by James Brown, whether by will, intestacy, trust, or non-probate means, as well as any and all benefits conferred by state and/or federal law as a result of the death of James Brown, and the parties desire to memorialize said agreement in this addendum to the Agreement dated August 10, 2008 (the "Addendum").

parties have as heirs, devisees, and/or successors to James Brown for any purpose, including, but not limited to, any royalties, trademarks, termination rights and other interests created by federal copyright statute or laws for heirs at law, the Beech Island real estate, all of the James Brown intellectual property rights to persona, image, likeness, royalties etc. (collectively, the "James Brown Assets"). Each of the individual parties is entering into this Addendum in his or her individual capacity, and to the extent stated hereinabove, parents represent their minor children, and the Attorney General is acting on behalf of all the charitable beneficiaries of the James Brown Assets. The allocation of the net income and/or disposition proceeds of the James Brown Assets described in this Addendum is made in settlement of any and all differences among the parties concerning the disposition, by will or otherwise, and/or transfer of any assets owned or controlled by James Brown, whether by will, intestacy, trust, or non-probate means, as well as any and all benefits conferred by state and/or federal law as a result of the death of James Brown.

2. The parties agree that this Addendum is the final and complete agreement of the parties and that they, individually and collectively, shall be bound by the terms, conditions, obligations, rights and benefits set forth in the Agreement and this Addendum, all as provided herein.

3. Larry Brown, Venisha Brown, Deanna J. Brown Thomas, Yamma N. Brown Lumar, Daryl Brown, and Terry Brown ("the Brown Adult Children"), The Attorney General of South Carolina on behalf of the charitable beneficiaries of the James Brown Assets, and Tommie Rae Brown will each be separate beneficiaries of the Settlement Entity. The share of each such beneficiary in the net income and principal of the Settlement Entity shall be known as the "Distributional Interests." The Settlement Entity is provided for in Paragraph 11 B. below in this Addendum.

4. All costs and expenses of the Settlement Entity shall be shared proportionately by the parties. Thus, the net distributable proceeds of any income or disposition proceeds received by the Settlement Entity will be net of the expenses such as but not limited to the following: settlement costs of any lawsuits; reasonable fees to the manager or trustee of the settlement entity for their services; payments, if any, to former trustees in settlement of their claims; estate taxes; any other customary fees and expenses, such as legal, accounting and investment banking fees associated with the sale of Assets; any income and estate taxes applicable to the restructuring of the estate and related entities and the sale of the Assets and any other expenses directly related to the business of the Settlement Entity

5. The parties agree that Terry Brown shall have the exclusive right to conduct a due diligence review of all of the James Brown Assets owned by the Settlement Entity for a period of six (6) months from the date the James Brown Assets are received by the Settlement Entity (the "Exclusivity Period"). During this Exclusivity Period, the parties and the Settlement Entity shall: furnish to Terry Brown and his financial and professional advisors and representatives, access to all information and materials relating to such of the James Brown Assets as may be in the possession or control of the Settlement Entity; give Terry Brown the right to conduct a completely transparent process to solicit offers for the purchase of the James Brown Assets; and in furtherance thereof to employ, with the consent of and on behalf of the settlement entity, such investment bankers, accountants, and attorneys, on a contingent fee basis but not at the expense of the Settlement Entity, as he may deem reasonably necessary to investigate, prepare and offer for sale all of the James Brown Assets owned by the Settlement Entity. Terry Brown, individually, shall not have the right to sell the James Brown Assets. Only the Settlement Entity shall have the right to decide on a sale and it shall not be under any obligation to accept any offers brought by or through the due diligence and solicitation process conducted by Terry Brown during the Exclusivity Period or by any of the parties at any time. All customary closing costs, including but not limited to any finder's fee, shall be paid by the Purchaser.

6. All the parties acknowledge and agree that any sale of all or any portion of the James Brown Assets during the Exclusivity Period or under Terry Brown's first right of refusal may contain terms that Terry Brown shall have a continuing financial interest in the after-sale appreciation of the James Brown Assets (not in the value of the James Brown Assets as of the closing of the sale and that Terry Brown may have a non financial representative role for the James Brown family in any purchase of the James Brown Assets.

7. During the Exclusivity Period, the parties other than Terry Brown shall not and the Settlement Entity shall not solicit, encourage, entertain, discuss or accept offers from any other parties with respect to the sale, transfer, license or other disposition of any of the James Brown Assets, except in furtherance of the process conducted by Terry Brown.

8. In the event that any of the parties brings an offer for the purchase of the James Brown Assets pursuant to the process during the Exclusivity Period or afterwards that culminates in a sale of all or any portion of the James Brown Assets from the Settlement Entity, then such party shall be entitled to a finder's or broker's fee of two percent (2%) of the proceeds (as customarily determined in similar transactions) to be paid by the Purchaser pursuant to any such offer. All potential buyers presented to or introduced to the Settlement Entity by Terry Brown or by his advisors or as a result of the process conducted by Terry Brown during the Exclusivity Period shall be deemed to be offers that Terry Brown brings to the Settlement Entity.

9. Each of the parties agrees for himself or herself, and his or her financial and professional advisors and representatives (the "Reviewers"):

NDM
a. To retain and not disclose any or all Confidential Information for seven (7) years after sale of the James Brown Assets. Confidential Information means any proprietary information or otherwise confidential information relating to the James Brown Assets (which does not rise to the level of a trade secret) which is or has been disclosed to a party or of which the party became aware as a consequence of this Addendum or the due diligence and sale of the James Brown Assets. The parties further agree that they shall not disclose, including in any publication, or transfer to any party, or use for its benefit or the benefit of any third party, any Confidential Information other than as authorized by the Settlement entity in writing beforehand; provided however that Terry Brown may use such Confidential Information during the Exclusivity Period in the performance of due diligence and in connection with soliciting offers for the James Brown Assets. This obligation of confidentiality shall not apply to Confidential Information that a Reviewer can demonstrate, by competent evidence, (i) was already known to Reviewer prior to disclosure or development hereunder; (ii) was in the public domain at the time of disclosure or development hereunder; or (iii) becomes generally available to the public through no fault of Reviewer; or (iv) Reviewer receives from a third party that does not have an obligation of confidentiality to the Brown Entities and who may lawfully disclose same. To the extent required by legal process, subpoena, warrant, or court order, Reviewer may disclose Confidential Information, provided that Reviewer shall first notify the Settlement Entity as soon as reasonably possible, and permit the Settlement Entity to take steps, at the Settlement Entity's expense, to oppose or limit the required disclosure. All trade secrets are also confidential information but shall be and remain confidential for so long as they remain a trade secret under applicable law.

b. Upon the written request of the Settlement Entity, Reviewer will return to the Settlement Entity all documents and materials that embody, set forth, incorporate or reference any Confidential Information, including without limitation all copies of any data, and other recorded, printed or reproduced material provided by the Settlement Entity.

10. a. The parties and the Settlement Entity do hereby unconditionally and irrevocably grant to Terry Brown an absolute and superior Right of First Refusal to purchase any and all of the James Brown Assets (whether on an asset or stock basis) to be sold in any Proposed Transfer (the "Offered Assets"), at the same price and on terms and conditions as those offered to or by a Prospective Transferee. This Right of First Refusal shall begin on the date hereof and continue until the tenth (10) anniversary of the date of this Addendum. In connection with this Right of First Refusal: The parties, individually or collectively as the Settlement Entity, must deliver a written Proposed Transfer Notice to Terry Brown not later than sixty (60) days prior to the consummation of any Proposed Transfer. The Proposed Transfer Notice shall contain the material terms and conditions of the Proposed Transfer and the identity of the Prospective Transferee. Terry Brown may exercise his Right of First Refusal as to the Offered Assets described in the Proposed Transfer Notice by giving written notice to the Settlement Entity c/o the South Carolina Attorney General within thirty (30) days after delivery of the Proposed Transfer Notice of the Offered Assets he wishes to purchase. Any failure of Terry Brown to deliver such written notice within such thirty (30)-day period shall be deemed an election by Terry Brown not to purchase the Offered Assets, and the Right of First Refusal hereby granted shall, with respect to the Offered Assets, thereupon terminate and be of no further validity or effect.

Hom
b. The terms and conditions of any sale pursuant to this Paragraph 10 will be memorialized in, and governed by, a written purchase and sale agreement with customary terms and provisions for such a transaction, subject to the terms of the Proposed Transfer, unless otherwise mutually agreed by Terry Brown and the Settlement Entity. The closing of the purchase of the Offered Assets by Terry Brown shall take place by the later of (i) the date specified in the Proposed Transfer Notice as the intended date of the Proposed Transfer and (ii) ninety (90) days after delivery of the Proposed Transfer Notice to Terry Brown. All payments for the offered Rights shall be made by Terry Brown to the Settlement Entity at closing.

c. As used herein, the following definitions are applicable:

"Person" means a natural person, a corporation, a limited liability company, a general or limited partnership, a trust, an estate, a joint venture, any governmental entity or any other entity or organization.

"Proposed Transfer" means any assignment, sale, license, pledge, mortgage, hypothecation, encumbrance, or other disposition or encumbrance of any or all of the James Brown Assets (or any interest therein) proposed to a party or to the Settlement Entity by any Person and which the party or the Settlement Entity desires to accept, or has accepted subject to the terms of this Addendum.

"Proposed Transfer Notice" means written notice from a party or the Settlement Entity to Terry Brown setting forth the terms and conditions of a Proposed Transfer.

"Prospective Transferee" means any Person to whom the Settlement Entity proposes to make a Proposed Transfer.

"Right of First Refusal" means the right as specifically stated herein, but not an obligation, of Terry Brown, or his permitted transferees or assigns, to purchase some or all of the James Brown Assets with respect to a Proposed Transfer, on the terms and conditions specified in the Proposed Transfer Notice.

11. Additional Amendments to Agreement.

A. Paragraph 5(b.) is amended and restated to read as follows:

How

A charitable trust substantially similar to the charitable trust in the August 1, 2000 Irrevocable Trust (hereinafter the "Charitable Trust") shall be created by the Attorney General with the advice and counsel of the parties. The trustee and any successor trustee of the Charitable Trust shall be chosen by the South Carolina Attorney General (the "Charitable Trust Trustee"). The trust shall also include an advisory board that shall include as many members as the Attorney General shall decide from time to time and at any time but will include one member selected by Tommie Rae Brown and one selected by each of the Brown Adult Children. The Advisory Board shall serve at the pleasure of and on such terms as the Attorney General shall decide and their governance roles shall be solely advisory. The Charitable Trust shall also have as many "Honorary Family Trustees," as the Attorney General shall decide, from time to time and at any time but will include one selected by Tommie Rae Brown and one selected by each of the Brown Adult Children. These Honorary Family Trustees will serve on the same terms and conditions as the Advisory Board and they will be representative of the family of James Brown. The Honorary Family Trustees will represent the family of James Brown and shall be properly identified as such representative for all trust functions and activities.

B. Paragraph 5(d.) is amended and restated to read as follows:

The parties, as settlors, will create a trust called the James Brown Legacy Trust, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C (or such other legal entity as the parties unanimously select and organize) to be the settlement entity (the "Settlement Entity"). The Settlement Entity shall receive, hold, manage and be authorized to sell the James Brown Assets. The trustee and any successor trustee for the Settlement Entity shall be selected by the Attorney General. The parties hereto recognize that the result of the original Compromise and Agreement among the Settling Parties was to give the Charitable Trust a 50% interest in the James Brown Assets and the Settlement Entity, subject to the funding of the grandchildren's private educational trust and a pro-rata share of expenses and income. Treating the addition of Terry Brown to the settlement agreement as an expense creates the following result after accounting for such expense: The Distributional Interest of the parties shall now be: (1) 47.5% to the Charitable Trust; (2) 23.75% to Tommie Rae Brown, which includes any share attributable to James Brown II; and (3) 4.79% to each of the Brown Adult Children. Tommie Rae Brown hereby waives any spousal right she may have to such Distributional Interests to the extent that they might otherwise exceed 23.75% thereof. The Brown Adult Children waive any right he or she may have to such Distributional Interests to the extent that they might otherwise each exceed 4.79% hereof. However, for voting purposes in the Settlement Entity, except as otherwise specified, the Charitable Trust shall have a 50% share, the Brown Adult Children shall share equally in a 25% share, and Tommie Rae Brown shall have a 25% share.

C. Paragraph 5(1) is amended and restated to read as follows:

Hom

The parties agree that the Settlement Entity and/or the parties will endeavor to create an appropriate and respectful museum or other memorial burial place acceptable to the Settlement Entity in which to maintain the remains of James Brown, preferably at 430 Douglas Drive, Beech Island, if feasible. If such is not accomplished within 7 years from date, then in that event the remains will be interred in the cemetery where the parents of James Brown currently are located in Augusta, GA. The parties hereto (other than the South Carolina Attorney General) shall all have reasonable opportunities to visit privately the gravesite upon reasonable notice. The parties hereby waive any right to otherwise direct the location of the gravesite as a result of their status under law. The parties consent to an Order of the Aiken County Court of Common Pleas or to any appropriate Court to require the parties to comply with the terms of this paragraph of this Addendum.

12. All the parties hereto agree to be responsible for payment of their own respective legal fees.

13. If any time any federal or state agency determines that any part of this Addendum shall endanger the tax-exempt status of the Charitable Trust, and that decision becomes final and non appealable, then the parties shall take such curative action as is necessary to prevent any such loss of tax-exempt status by the charitable trust. If the curative action involves the payment of estate taxes attributable to a party other than the Charitable Trust, the estate taxes shall be allocated against that party's share.

14. Each party hereto acknowledges and agrees that any breach of this Addendum will result in substantial harm to the other parties hereto for which monetary damages alone could not adequately compensate. Therefore, the parties hereto unconditionally and irrevocably agree that any non-breaching party hereto shall be entitled to seek protective orders, injunctive relief and other remedies available at law or in equity (including seeking specific performance or the rescission of purchases, sales and other transfers of the James Brown Assets not made in strict compliance with this Addendum).

15. If there is a conflict in the terms or conditions of this Addendum and the terms of the Agreement, the Addendum shall control.

16. Any amendments to this Addendum must be in writing executed by all of the parties (or their legal representatives) hereto.

17. The parties agree that in the event of disagreement among the parties as to the terms or the meaning of any provision of this Addendum which the parties are unable to resolve among themselves, then, upon written demand of any party hereto the parties shall enter into non-binding mediation and shall use their best efforts to resolve such conflict or disagreement.

18. This Addendum is subject to and shall be interpreted according to the law of the State of South Carolina.

19. Any term or condition of this Addendum may be waived at any time by the party that is entitled to the benefit thereof, but no such waiver shall be effective unless set forth in a written instrument duly executed by or on behalf of the party waiving such term or condition. No waiver by any party of any term or condition of this Addendum, in any one or more instances, shall be deemed to be or construed as a waiver of the same or any other term or condition of this Addendum on any future occasion. All remedies, either under this Addendum or by Law or otherwise afforded, will be cumulative and not alternative.

20. The terms and provisions of this Addendum are intended solely for the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective successors, and it is not the intention of the parties to confer third-party beneficiary rights upon any other Person.

21. Neither this Addendum nor any right, interest or obligation hereunder may be assigned by any of the parties hereto (whether by operation of Law or otherwise) without the prior written consent of the other parties, except that Tommie Rae Brown may assign all or part of her interest to or for the benefit of James Brown II. Any assignment in violation of the preceding sentence shall be void. This Addendum is binding upon, inures to the benefit of and is enforceable by the parties hereto and their respective successors.

22. This Addendum shall be deemed to have been drafted by all of the parties, and no presumption or burden of proof shall be construed against any party as the drafter of this Addendum.

23. If any provision of this Addendum is held to be illegal, invalid or unenforceable under any present or future Law, and if the rights or obligations of any party hereto under this

Agreement will not be materially and adversely affected thereby, (a) such provision will be fully severable, (b) this Addendum will be construed and enforced as if such illegal, invalid or unenforceable provision had never comprised a part hereof and (c) the remaining provisions of this Addendum will remain in full force and effect and will not be affected by the illegal, invalid or unenforceable provision or by its severance.

24. This Addendum may be executed in any number of counterparts, each of which will be deemed an original, but all of which together will constitute one and the same instrument.

25. The parties agree to furnish upon request to each other such further information, to execute and deliver to each other such documents, and to do such other acts and things, all as the other party may reasonably request for the purpose of carrying out the intent of this Addendum.

26. This Addendum is a private binding agreement among the parties hereto. Although the parties hereto may agree to ask the Court to approve this Addendum, this Addendum remains binding among the parties and applies to personal representatives and trustees even if not approved by the Court.

27. This Addendum is binding on the heirs, successors, and assigns of the parties hereto.

CONTRIBUTION AGREEMENT

WHEREAS, the undersigned parties, all of whom are litigants in various civil actions involving the estate of James Brown, who died on December 25, 2006, entered into a private, binding agreement dated August 10, 2008 as amended and restated by the Addendum dated _____, 2009 to Private Agreement of August 10, 2008 to Include Settlement Agreement with Terry Brown Creating Restated and Amended Private Agreement (the "Agreement") to settle any and all differences among them concerning the disposition, by will or otherwise, and/or transfer of any assets owned or controlled by James Brown, whether by will, intestacy, trust, or non-probate means, as well as any and all benefits conferred by state and/or federal law as a result of the death of James Brown (a copy of said Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and its terms incorporated herein);

WHEREAS, the parties hereto recognize the necessity of supplementing the Agreement in order to further explain the rights and obligations of the parties thereto and the procedures to be followed there under; and

WHEREAS, the parties hereto agree that it is appropriate to set forth such rights, obligations and procedures pursuant to the Agreement in this Contribution Agreement;

NOW, THEREFORE, the undersigned parties agree as follows:

1. The terms of the Agreement are hereby confirmed and are fully incorporated herein by reference thereto and capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to them in the Agreement.
2. Each party hereto shall and does hereby contribute and assign to the James Brown Legacy Trust (the "Legacy Trust"), which the parties hereto agree to execute in substantially the form attached hereto as Exhibit B, , all of such respective party's rights and interest in any assets or proceeds to be received or payable to any of the parties, now or in the future, by virtue of any rights of James Brown, any of the entities of James Brown, the Estate of James Brown, the August 1, 2000 James Brown Irrevocable Trust and the charitable trust created thereunder, in any probate or non-probate assets, tangible and intangible, included in the gross estate of James Brown, as well as any and all rights and interests in any assets outside of the gross estate of James Brown, and/or any rights the parties have as heirs, devisees, and/or successors to James Brown for any purpose, including, but not limited to, any rights and interests created by federal copyright statute, the Beech Island real estate, royalty, persona, image, likeness, etc. (collectively, the "James Brown Assets).
3. The parties hereto recognize that the result of the original Compromise and Agreement among the Settling Parties was to give the Charitable Trust a 50% interest in the James Brown Assets and the Settlement Entity, subject to funding the grandchildren's private education trust and a pro-rata share of expenses and income. Treating the addition of Terry Brown to such settlement agreement as an expense creates the following result after accounting for such expense:

The parties will divide any and all such assets and or proceeds of the Settlement Entity in the following proportions for as long as such assets and proceeds are paid into said entity or any successor entity thereto::

(a) Forty-seven and one-half percent (47.5%) to the Trustee(s) of the trusts provided for under Articles V of the James Brown Irrevocable Trust Agreement dated August 1, 2000 (the "James Brown Trust") (such trusts being the "I Feel Good" Trust or the "Charitable Trust" further described in Article VII of the James Brown Trust and the "Brown Family Education Trust" further described in Article VI of the James Brown Trust); provided, however that the first $2,000,000 payable pursuant to this Distributional Interest shall be payable solely to the Trustee(s) of the Brown Family Education Trust and the balance solely to the Trustee(s) of the Charitable Trust (the Charitable Trust and the Brown Family Education Trust are referred to herein as the "Brown Trusts");

(b) Twenty-three and three-fourths percent (23.75%) to Tommie Rae Brown, which interest shall be a distributional interest that is devisable and/or descendable pursuant to the laws of the State of South Carolina; and

(c) Four and seventy-nine hundredths percent (4.79%) to each of the Brown Adult Children, each of which interests shall be a distributional interest that is devisable and/or descendable pursuant to the laws of the State of South Carolina.

4. The parties hereunder recognize that it may be difficult at this time to value accurately the interests and rights being contributed hereunder to the Legacy Trust. However, the parties are reasonably informed that a large portion of the value of the assets and interests contributed hereunder resides in the rights granted to heirs under the federal copyright laws. Accordingly, the parties recognize that the beneficial interests in the Legacy Trust received pursuant to the Agreement and this Contribution Agreement by Tommie Rae Brown and/or by the Brown Adult Children may be of a lesser value than the interests they are contributing to the Legacy Trust pursuant to this Agreement.

5. Estate taxes to be paid as a result of the distribution of estate assets as agreed upon in the Agreement shall be paid as set forth in Article 5.1 of the Legacy Trust. All the parties hereto agree to be responsible for payment of their own respective legal fees.

6. Upon execution of this Contribution Agreement by the undersigned parties, said parties shall file a Petition for Approval of the entire Agreement with the Court of Common Pleas for the Second Judicial Circuit of South Carolina. The Agreement and this Contribution Agreement shall remain binding and enforceable among the parties hereto whether or not approved by any Court.
7. If any time any federal or state agency determines that any part of this Agreement shall endanger the tax-exempt status of the Charitable Trust, the parties hereto shall take such curative action as is necessary to prevent any such loss of tax-exempt status by the Charitable Trust. If the curative action involves the payment of estate taxes attributable to a party other than the Charitable Trust, the estate taxes shall be allocated against that party's share.
8. The Agreement and this Contribution Agreement are binding on the heirs, successors and assigns of the parties hereto.
9. Any amendments to the Agreement or to this Contribution Agreements must be in writing executed by each of the parties hereto or by such party's legal representative.
10. The parties agree that in the event of disagreement among the parties as to the terms or the meaning of any provision of the Agreement or of this Contribution Agreement which the parties are unable to resolve among themselves, then, upon written demand of any party hereto the parties shall enter into non-binding mediation and shall use their best efforts to resolve such conflict or disagreement.
11. The Agreement and this Contribution Agreement are subject to and shall be interpreted according to the law of the State of South Carolina.

This Agreement may be executed in multiple identical counterparts, but each shall be construed to be part of the complete Agreement.

5. It is noted that all parties to this agreement have filed, at separate times, pleadings objecting to the validity of the August 1, 2000 Will of James Brown and the August 1, 2000 Irrevocable Trust. Tommie Rae, the children and grandchildren and the Attorney General of South Carolina (hereinafter the parties) have additionally agreed as follows:

- a) that a joint motion or other pleading will be filed seeking the removal of Mr. Robert Buchanan and Ms. Adele Pope as Personal Representatives of the Estate of James Brown and as Trustees of the the August 1, 2000 Irrevocable Trust of James Brown, deceased and will mutually agree upon persons to appoint as successor representatives of the estate and trust pursuant to the provisions of applicable law.
- b) that a charitable trust substantially similar to the August 1, 2000 Irrevocable Trust (hereinafter the "Charitable Trust") shall be created and/or maintained and shall be valid and enforceable, including but not limited to the possibility of amendment to the August 1, 2000 Irrevocable Trust by agreement of all the parties hereto. The trustees of the trust shall include at all times one representative selected by the parties hereto who are clients of Levenson and one representative selected by Tommie Rae. - c) that there shall be no DNA testing of any children or grandchildren (or their issue) who are parties to this agreement and all such motions for same will be withdrawn or dismissed by consent of all parties hereto.
- d) that the parties hereto will create an entity (the "settlement entity") that will receive any and all assets and or proceeds payable to any of the parties, now or in the future, by virtue of any rights of James Brown; any of the entities of James Brown, the Estate of James Brown, the August 1, 2000 James Brown Irrevocable Trust, the Charitable Trust, and/or any rights the parties hereto have as heirs, devisees, and/or successors to James Brown for any purpose, including not limited to copyright, royalty, persona, image, likeness, etc. The parties will divide any and all such assets and or proceeds in the following proportions for as long as such assets and proceeds are paid into said entity or any successor entity thereto: (1) 50% to Charitable Trust; (2) 25% to Tommie Rae Brown, which includes any share attributable to James Brown II; and (3) 25% to all parties hereto represented by Louis Levenson as they agree among themselves. Tommie Rae hereby waives any spousal right she may have to such assets to the extent that they might otherwise exceed 25% thereof. The parties hereto represented by Levenson waive any right they may have to such assets to the extent that they might otherwise exceed 25% thereof.
- e) All parties hereto waive any claim or right to seek forfeiture against any party pursuant to any in terrorem and/or no-contest clause under any will or trust of James Brown, and specifically agree that any and all contests that were brought were brought in good faith and with probable cause.

- f) The promissory note and security deed currently due from the parties hereto represented by Levenson to the Estate of James Brown (with respect to the property known as Pops house, which is the home of the father of James Brown) will be marked satisfied and paid in full by the settlement entity for no additional payment being due.
- g) In the event that any party brings to the settlement entity any offer culminating in a contract to purchase property and/or rights from the settlement entity, if such party's efforts are disclosed to the estate or trust or the settlement entity acting for said estate or trust, then such party shall be entitled to a finder's or broker's fee as shall be negotiated to the extent reasonable and appropriate under applicable law.
- h) In the event that the property at 430 Douglas Drive, Beech Island, SC, is sold by the settlement entity, the parties hereto who are clients of Levenson shall have the right of first refusal to purchase said property at the Aiken County Tax Assessor's appraised value therefor as of the most recent assessment before the purchase. In the event the parties hereto who are clients of Levenson shall decline to exercise such right and close the sale within 120 days of the giving of the notice of the right of first refusal, then Tommie Rae shall have a right of next refusal for the next 120 days on the same terms as set forth above after she receives notice thereof.
- i) The parties agree that a trust similar to the Brown Educational Trust under the 2000 Irrevocable Trust will be established for the grandchildren of James Brown, and their issue, for as long as allowed under the applicable Rule Against Perpetuities, but in no event lasting for a period longer than 90 years from December 25, 2006. This Brown family educational trust shall be funded with a principal amount of $2 million, which shall be carved out from the share of assets and proceeds payable to the Charitable Trust. Upon the termination of this Brown family educational trust, the remaining principal and any undistributed income shall be distributed to the charitable trust.
- j) The parties agree that any and all will and trust contests will be dismissed.
- k) The parties agree to use their best efforts to extinguish any other outstanding interests or claims by any potential heir, devisee, or successor and to the extent the termination of such interest or claim requires payment, for such payment to be made from the settlement entity, which of necessity would be allocated among the parties to the settlement entity pro-rata in aliquot shares.
- l) The parties agree that the settlement entity and/or the parties will endeavor to create an appropriate and respectful museum or other memorial burial place acceptable to the settlement entity in which to maintain the remains of James Brown, preferably at 430 Douglas Drive, Beech Island, if feasible. If such is not accomplished within 7 years from date, then in that event the remains will be interred in the cemetery where the parents of James Brown currently are located in Augusta, GA. with the settlement entity paying

expenses of relocation. Parties hereto represented by Levenson, Tommie Rae, and James Brown II shall all have reasonable opportunities to visit privately the gravesite upon reasonable notice. The parties hereby waive any right to otherwise direct the location of the gravesite as a result of their status under law. The parties consent to an Order of the Aiken County Court of Common Pleas or to any appropriate Court to require the parties to comply with the terms of this paragraph of this agreement.

6. This agreement is a private binding agreement among the parties hereto. Although the parties hereto may agree to ask the Court to approve this agreement, this agreement remains binding among the parties and applies to personal representatives and trustees even if not approved by the Court.

7. This agreement is binding on the heirs, successors, and assigns of the parties hereto.

COUNTY OF AIKEN)

THE JAMES BROWN LEGACY TRUST

This Trust Agreement is made this ____ day of _____, 2009, and is executed by the Settlers (collectively hereinafter known as the "Settlers") (i) the Attorney General of South Carolina, (ii) Tommie Rae Brown, and (iii) Larry Brown, Venisha Brown, Deanna J. Brown Thomas, Yamma N. Brown Lamar, Daryl Brown and Terry Brown, (the "Brown Adult Children") and _____, as the Trustee. This trust shall be known as The James Brown Legacy Trust (the "Trust").

ARTICLE I ESTABLISHMENT OF TRUST

Pursuant to the Contribution Agreement of even date herewith, the Settlers have irrevocably paid over, assigned, granted, conveyed, transferred and delivered, and by this Agreement do hereby irrevocably pay over, assign, grant, convey, transfer and deliver unto the Trustee the property described in Schedule A (also referred to herein as the "James Brown Assets"), annexed hereto and made a part hereof. This property and any other property that may be transferred to the Trustee in the future and any property that may be received or which has been received by the Trustee hereunder, as invested and reinvested (hereinafter referred to as the "Trust Estate"), shall be held, administered and distributed by the Trustee as hereinafter set forth.

ARTICLE II ACCEPTANCE BY TRUSTEE

The Trustee herein above named has agreed to accept said Trusteeship and all interests in property which may come to the Trustee by reason of this Agreement for the benefit and use of the Beneficiaries (as defined in Section 11.2 below), all in accordance with the provisions hereinafter set forth. In keeping therewith, the Trustee is hereby vested with all right, title, and interest in and to such assets as are listed on Schedule A and is authorized and empowered to exercise and enjoy for the purposes of the Trust herein created and as absolute owner of those assets, all the options, benefits, rights and privileges that go with such assets.

ARTICLE III STATEMENT OF INTENT

This Trust Agreement and the Trust it creates are irrevocable and this Trust is intended to comply with the Private Agreement of August 10, 2008 ("Original Agreement") as amended by the Addendum dated _____, 2009 to the Private Agreement of August 10, 2008 to Include Settlement Agreement with Terry Brown Creating Restated and Amended Private Agreement (as amended, the "Agreement") (a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A) ("Private Agreement"), and the Contribution Agreement dated _____, 2009 (a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit B) ("Contribution Agreement"), as the same may be amended or modified by any addenda thereto executed by the Settlers or their duly authorized agents. Any capitalized term not defined herein shall have the meaning ascribed to it in the Agreement.

ARTICLE IV PURPOSE

The Trustee is specifically granted the authority to accept and retain liquid and/or illiquid and/or non-income producing assets as Trust investments, specifically being those assets which may have passed to the Settlers' hereof on account of the death of James Brown. The purpose contemplated in the establishment of the Trust is that it engage in the management and holding of liquid and/or illiquid assets received by the Beneficiaries on account of the death of James Brown and contributed to this Trust, including, but not limited to, real estate, limited liability and other closely held companies, partnerships, and corporations, as well as various sorts of intangible property, including copyrights, termination and transfer rights, as well as the right to exploit the name and image of James Brown, all of which are to be managed, invested and/or sold for the benefit of the Trust and its Beneficiaries. It is contemplated that the Trustee shall have the right to buy, sell, lease, license, incorporate and in all other manner modify or exploit for profits for the benefit of the Trust all of such assets and property (tangible, intangible, intellectual or other). In establishing this Trust, the Settlers contemplate that the Trustee will engage in complex transactions and that the Trustee will expend (and are authorized to expend) trust funds on attorneys, accountants, advisors, agents and the appropriate experts in the fulfillment of its duties as Trustee.

ARTICLE V PAYMENTS OF EXPENSES AND DISTRIBUTIONS OF PROPERTY

5.1 Beneficiaries and Distributional Interests. The Trustee shall hold all assets contributed to this Trust and shall distribute the net income and the principal of the Trust to the Beneficiaries in accordance with their beneficial ownership interests in the Trust assets (the "Distributional Interests").

The Beneficiaries recognize that the result of the Original Agreement was to give the "I Feel Good" Trust (as hereinafter defined) a 50% interest in the James Brown Assets and the Settlement Entity (as defined in the Agreement), subject to the funding of educational trust described below and a pro-rata share of expenses and income (except as expressly provided below with respect to legal expenses). Treating the addition of Terry Brown to the settlement arrangement set out in the Agreement as an expense results, after accounting for such expense, in the following Beneficiaries and their respective Distributional Interests:

(a) Forty-seven and one-half percent (47.5%) to the Trustee(s) of the trusts provided for under Articles V of the James Brown Irrevocable Trust Agreement dated August 1, 2000 (the "James Brown Trust") (such trusts being the "I Feel Good" Trust or the "Charitable Trust" further described in Article VII of the James Brown Trust and the "Brown Family Education Trust" further described in Article VI of the James Brown Trust); provided, however that the first $2,000,000 payable pursuant to this Distributional Interest shall be payable solely to the Trustee(s) of the Brown Family Education Trust and the balance solely to the Trustee(s) of the Charitable Trust (the Charitable Trust and the Brown Family Education Trust are referred to herein as the "Brown Trusts");

(b) Twenty-three and three-fourths percent (23.75%) to Tommie Rae Brown, which interest shall be a distributional interest that is devisable and/or descendable pursuant to the laws of the State of South Carolina; and

(c) Four and seventy-nine hundredths percent (4.79%) to each of the Brown Adult Children, each of which interests shall be a distributional interest that is devisable and/or descendable pursuant to the laws of the State of South Carolina.

Any distributions of principal to the Trust Beneficiaries shall be in accordance with the same percentage interests.

All distributions shall be net of estate administrative expenses, taxes and legal expenses necessary to enable the estate to properly determine the respective interests of the parties, provided that netting such legal expenses shall not reduce the distributional share of the Brown Trusts below forty-seven and one-half percent (47.5%).

5.2 Income in Respect of a Decedent. Income of this trust which is income in respect of a decedent for federal or state estate and income tax purposes shall be distributed first to the trustee of the Charitable Trust (assuming the Brown Family Education Trust has been fully funded) as to all or a portion of such trust's share hereunder to the extent that such order of distribution does not cause the shares of the Brown Adult Children or Tommie Rae Brown to be funded with an amount less than the amount with which such shares would be funded if it were not for the provisions of this Article 5.2.

5.3 Sale of Assets. Upon the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the Trust, the Trustee shall distribute the Trust assets to the Beneficiaries according to Section 5.1 and the Trust shall terminate. In addition, upon the partial liquidation of the assets of the Trust, the Trustee shall distribute the proceeds of the liquidation to the Beneficiaries according to the Distributional Interest, such that the Beneficiaries may receive, from time to time, distributions of principal as well as net income. To the extent that estate or inheritance taxes should be due as a result of the death of Tommie Rae Brown or any Brown Adult Children, or any other beneficiaries with respect to any Distributional Interest in this Trust, the Trustee and Beneficiaries agree that they shall make a good faith effort to consider mechanisms to provide liquidity for such taxes.

ARTICLE VI LIMITATIONS ON POWERS OF TRUSTEE; VOTING

6.1 Actions of Trustee Requiring Approval of Beneficiaries. The Trustee shall have all of the powers described in Article 9, below; provided, however, the Trustee shall require approval of a two-thirds majority of the voting interests held by all the Beneficiaries in order to:

- (a) sell all or substantially all of the assets of the Trust; and
- (b) except as provided in section 5.3, terminate the Trust.

For purposes of voting by the Beneficiaries hereunder, the Charitable Trust shall have a 50% voting interest, Tommie Rae Brown, a 25% voting interest, and the Brown Adult Children, a 25% voting interest in the aggregate, which shall be divided equally among the six of them, and may be voted separately by each individual. Any such vote shall be made by each Beneficiary by or through its acting fiduciary in the case of entities having a fiduciary, or by or through the individual, agent under power of attorney or personal representative or other acting fiduciary in the cases of Tommie Rae Brown and the Brown Adult Children.

6.2 Notice of Vote. The Trustee or any Beneficiary may at any time request a vote of the Beneficiaries as to any such matter as may require a vote under this Agreement by giving notice and a request to all the Beneficiaries for a vote pursuant to the terms of Sections 8.3 and 8.4, below. If a noticed Beneficiary does not respond with its vote on the applicable matter in writing within 30 days after such time as the notice is deemed to have been given, such Beneficiary shall no longer have the right to vote on such matter.

ARTICLE VII RESIGNATION, REMOVAL, APPOINTMENT AND SUCCESSION OF TRUSTEE

7.1 Resignation and Appointment Procedure. Any person or organization at any time serving as Trustee hereunder may resign at any time by providing written notice to all the Beneficiaries (or to the parents, guardians of the person, or persons having custody of a Beneficiary who is a minor or otherwise not sui juris) currently entitled to income or principal, setting forth the effective time and date of such resignation on or before such effective time, subject to and only effective upon the appointment and qualification of a successor Trustee; provided, however, that a successor trustee has been duly appointed and has accepted such appointment.

All Trustee appointments and removals permitted hereunder shall be made by an acknowledged instrument delivered to the Trustee then acting, if any, and, when applicable, to the appointee, and shall become effective on the date or upon the happening of the event specified in the instrument and may be revoked in the same manner at any time before the successor qualifies.

7.2 Right to Remove and Replace. The Trustee of the Trust shall be chosen and appointed by the South Carolina Attorney General, who has the power and right to remove and replace the Trustee.

7.3 Disability of a Trustee. The determination that a Trustee is a disabled person shall be made by a court of competent jurisdiction.

7.4 Termination of Trustee Powers. An outgoing Trustee, upon the effective date of removal, resignation, or incapacity, shall cease to have any powers or discretion hereunder. At the earliest possible date after a Trustee ceases for any reason to be a Trustee hereunder, there shall be delivered to such Trustee's successor hereunder all of the assets (Trust or otherwise) which were in the possession of such Trustee and there shall be made available to each successor Trustee a complete financial record and inventory of assets affected thereby. With respect to any properties thus transferred by the outgoing Trustee or by such Trustee's representative, such Trustee shall be discharged of all further duties and obligations.

7.5 Successor Trustee Powers and Authority. Each successor Trustee, upon assumption of such position, shall have the same powers, rights, discretion, duties, and obligations as the predecessor Trustee. Title to the entire property (of the Trust or otherwise) shall automatically vest in any successor Trustee without the necessity of any conveyance. The assumption of authority by a successor Trustee shall not be complete until such successor executes a written acceptance of such appointment showing the authority for such succession (a copy of which shall promptly be delivered personally or sent by certified mail to the outgoing Trustee or to such Trustee's legal representative). Any corporation into which any corporate Trustee acting hereunder shall be merged or converted, or with which it shall be consolidated, or any corporation resulting from any merger, conversion, reorganization or consolidation to which all or substantially all of its trust business shall be transferred, shall be the successor of such corporate Trustee hereunder, without the execution or filing of any instrument or the performance of any further act and shall have the same powers, authorities and discretions as though originally named in this instrument.

7.6 Exoneration from Liability for Acts of Prior Trustees. Each successor Trustee shall be exempt from any liability in any way related to the prior actions or omissions of the previous Trustees, and each shall be entitled to accept as conclusive any accountings and statement of assets furnished by any predecessor Trustee.

ARTICLE VIII TRUSTEE PROVISIONS

8.1 Trustee Compensation. For services as a Trustee, the Trustee is entitled to receive an amount which is reasonable for the services rendered at the time services are rendered, as agreed upon by the Trustee and a majority of the Beneficiaries, voting as provided for in Article VI herein. If for any reason, there are multiple Trustees serving, the Trustees, collectively, shall share such fee. If there is a corporate Trustee serving as Trustee, the corporate Trustee shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for the services rendered, but in no event shall such compensation be more than an amount which is competitively determined to be reasonable for the services rendered among organizations providing similar such services. For the purpose of determining Trustee's fees payable hereunder, any and all Trusts hereunder shall be treated as one Trust.

8.2 Inventory; Appraisals; Bond. Except as otherwise required by law, the Trustee shall not be required to file any inventory or appraisal or any annual or other returns or reports to any court or to give bond in any jurisdiction, but, upon request, shall make available a statement of receipts and disbursements and an investment review of the assets of any Trust created hereunder at least annually to each person then eligible to receive distributions from such Trust, and each then present beneficiary thereof.

8.3 Notice. Any notice or other instrument required or permitted to be given, made, executed, or delivered hereunder shall be in writing duly signed by (or, where permitted hereunder, on behalf of) the party or parties giving, making, or executing the same and shall be physically delivered or sent by certified or express mail (or equivalent postal or private express service) to all parties, if any, entitled thereto (when so sent, such notice or communication shall be plainly addressed to such person at such person's last known address). The address for all notices to Beneficiaries shall be as set forth opposite their signatures below; provided that any Beneficiary may change such address by written notice to all parties hereto in accordance with this Section 8.3. Any such instrument required to be given or sent to the estate of any deceased or incapacitated person shall be physically delivered or sent, in like manner, to the personal representative (or one of the personal representatives) of such person at such representative's last known address or, if there be no such personal representative known to the sender, to the estate of such person at his or her last known address.

Instruments shall be considered delivered: (i) if sent by mail or express service, on the third day following the date of its receipt by the postal service (or such express service), as evidenced by a dated postal (or express) service receipt showing the addressee's name and proper address (as described above); (ii) if sent by facsimile, upon receipt by the sender of a confirmation of receipt from the addressee's facsimile machine indicating (a) the correct telephone number of the addressee's facsimile machine and (b) receipt of the correct number of pages sent as properly received; or (iii) if sent by e-mail, upon receipt by the sender of a confirmation from the addressee's e-mail address indicating that the addressee has opened the e-mail.

In all other cases, the date of actual physical delivery shall be the effective date of delivery and, except as such instrument may specifically provide for a later effective date, it shall be effective for all purposes from such date.

Copies of all instruments of amendment, revocation, exercise of power, designation, release, disclaimer, etc., as well as of trustee resignation, removal, appointment, and/or acceptance, the original of which shall be kept with the Trust records, shall, upon request, be promptly delivered or sent by mail by the Trustee receiving or initiating the same to each other then interested party (i.e., the other then Trustee or Trustees, if any, of the affected Trust or Trusts, and each then beneficiary of the affected Trust or Trusts).

8.4 Notice to Disabled Parties. If a person who is a disabled person (who is not otherwise represented by a personal representative or guardian or not otherwise entitled to notice by a procedure provided for in this Agreement) is a party to any legal proceeding relating in any manner to any trust created hereunder, service of process upon the disabled person shall not be required if another individual, who is not a disabled person, is a party to the proceeding and has the same interest as the disabled person.

ARTICLE IX TRUSTEE POWERS

In the administration of the Trust, the Trustee shall have all of the powers granted by law, including but not limited to the powers granted to trustees by the South Carolina Trust Code (S.C. Code Section 62-7-101, et. seq.), which powers shall not be revoked or reduced if said statutes should hereafter be repealed or restrictively amended. Without limiting the foregoing, the Trustee shall also have the following powers (which shall apply equally to any other trust created pursuant to this Agreement):

9.1 Right to Retain Assets. The Trustee is specifically granted the authority to accept and retain the James Brown Assets, whether these are liquid and/or illiquid and/or non-income producing assets, as Trust investments, subject however to the purpose contemplated in the establishment of the Trust as set out in Article IV.

9.2 Investments and Reinvestments. Subject to Articles IV and VI, to invest or reinvest in and to sell and/or to sell short such securities or other property, real or personal (whether within or without the United States) as the Trustee shall determine; to lease all or part of the real or personal property of the estate or trust, even for a term longer than the probable duration of any trust, to grant options for the renewal of leases; and to retain any property received by them for such periods as they determine (including specifically retention of, or investment in, assets which may be for the use of the beneficiary or beneficiaries of any such Trust), even though such asset or assets may not be of a character, or of such a percentage of the total Trust, as would otherwise be deemed proper Trust investments and shall have the right to convert any or all assets of any Trust held hereunder into any other form of asset, diversified or undiversified as they shall determine. The Settlers request that the Trustee honor the wishes of the Beneficiaries as to the disposition or retention of any original property of the Trust, or any Trust asset which is of a personal use nature, unless the Trustee determines that such wishes are clearly in contradiction to the purposes and terms of any the Trusts.

9.3 Conveyance of Assets. To convey an absolute fee in possession of any land, and full ownership of any personalty comprising a part of the Trust and to sell, exchange, mortgage, partition, pledge, improve or otherwise alter any real or personal property comprising a part of the Trust, at public or private sale, at such price and upon such terms as the Trustee shall deem proper and to lease the same for a term extending beyond the life of the Trust without prior application to any court for permission to do so.

9.4 Non-Traditional Investments. In addition to the powers granted under this Article, the Trustee (other than any beneficiary) is expressly authorized to acquire and retain investments not regarded as traditional for trusts. The Trustee may invest in any type of property, wherever located, including any security or option, improved or unimproved real property, and tangible or intangible personal property, and in any manner, including direct purchase, joint ventures, partnerships, limited partnerships, limited liability companies, restricted stocks, foreign debt, equity or real estate investments, corporations, mutual funds or other forms of participation or ownership and may sell or write options on assets of the Trust.

9.5 Management and Holding of Assets. To invest and reinvest all or part of the assets of the Trust created hereunder in interests formed principally for the commingling of assets for investment, such as partnerships, limited liability companies, and common trust funds, including any common trust fund of any corporate Trustee, including registered mutual funds for which any Trustee hereunder, or an affiliate of any Trustee, provides investment advisory, custodial or other services for compensation paid from such funds; to execute trades of securities by, purchase from or sell securities to the dealer portfolio of, and purchase securities from the underwriting position of any affiliate of any Trustee; to employ banks, trust companies, securities brokerage firms and/or independent investment advisors or managers (collectively, "Agents or Advisors"), including affiliates of any Trustee, located anywhere within or without the United States (including themselves), at the discretion of the Trustee, but at the expense of the Trust, as custodian or agent; and to designate and employ such persons to give investment advice and to hold and manage discretionary investment or trading accounts; to have stock and securities registered in the name of such agent or custodian or nominee thereof without designation of fiduciary capacity; and to appoint such agent, bank, trust company, or securities brokerage firm to perform such other ministerial functions as the Trustee may direct. While such stock or securities are in the custody of any such bank, trust company, or securities brokerage firm, the Trustee shall be under no obligation to inspect or verify such stock or securities nor shall the Trustee be responsible for any loss by such bank, trust company, or securities brokerage firm. The Trustee shall not be responsible for the act, default or omission of any such Agent or Advisor except to the extent that the Trustee has been negligent or exhibited willful misconduct in the selection of such Agent or Advisor. The Trustee shall not be liable for relying absolutely on any apparently valid documents or the opinions of counsel and advisors to the Trust.

9.6 Consolidation and Division of Assets. To hold and administer the assets of the Trust created hereby in one or more consolidated funds, in whole or in part, in which any separate trusts shall have undivided interests. Generally, and subject only to the provisions of this instrument, the Trustee shall hold, manage, control, use, invest, reinvest and dispose of trust properties to the same extent as may a fee simple owner of such properties.

9.7 Borrowing. To borrow such sums, on a secured or unsecured basis, from any source (including themselves), for such period and upon such terms as they deem necessary or convenient in the administration of the Trust, and to secure any such loan by mortgage or pledge. To maintain margin account(s) and to make such pledges of and other undertakings with respect to assets as the Trustee deems advisable in connection with the establishment and maintenance of such account or accounts. No lender shall be bound to see to or be liable for the application of the proceeds, and no Trustee shall be personally liable for sums borrowed, and each such loan shall be payable only out of assets of the Trust.

9.8 Lending. To lend all or any portion of the funds of the Trust created hereunder to any beneficiary, with or without security and with or without interest, to make any Trust property available as security for a loan obligation or undertaking made or to be made by any beneficiary, or to guarantee a loan to be made to, or any obligation to be assumed by, any beneficiary (notwithstanding in each case that the beneficiary may also be a Trustee), subject to those terms and conditions as the Trustee may in Trustee's discretion impose.

9.9 Receipts, Disbursements and Allocations. To allocate receipts and disbursements between income and principal in such manner as the Trustee (other than any beneficiary) determine, even though a particular allocation may be inconsistent with otherwise applicable state law; provided, however, that this power shall not apply to permit any allocation of administration expenses to income that would require a reduction in the estate tax marital deduction (pursuant to IRC § 2056(b)(4)) or charitable deduction (pursuant to Treas. Reg. § 20.2055-3(b)), as the case may be. Upon the sale or other disposition of property which has been unproductive or underproductive of income, no part of the proceeds received shall be allocated to income, except (i) in the case of property qualifying for the marital deduction, in which case such allocation shall follow state law, and (ii) in the discretion of the Trustee (other than any Beneficiary).

9.10 Distributions. Without the consent of any Beneficiary, the Trustee (other than any beneficiary) may make distributions (including the satisfaction of any pecuniary bequest) in cash or in specific property, real or personal, or an undivided interest, or partly in cash and partly in such property, and to do so without making pro-rata distributions of specific assets. In addition, the Trustee is authorized to select specific assets in funding fractional share distributions and is not required to select a percentage of each specific asset. The Trustee shall, however, when making distributions, take into account any appreciation and depreciation of the assets and use reasonable efforts to fairly allocate gains and losses among the Beneficiaries.

9.11 Occupancy and Use. Except as may be otherwise specified elsewhere in this instrument as to any specific property, the Trustee shall have the power to permit any person having an interest in the income of any trust created hereunder to occupy real property or to use personal property held by any such trust upon such terms as the Trustee deems proper, whether rent-free or for the payment of taxes, insurance maintenance and ordinary repairs or other expenses, or upon such other terms and conditions as the Trustee determines.

9.12 Related Party Transactions. To sell to or purchase from, at fair market value at the time of such purchase, property of any character from any trust the Settlers may have established and to retain such property so long as the Trustee hereunder may deem advisable, whether or not such property is of the class in which Trustee are authorized by law or any rule of court to invest; and to make loans to, or borrow from, the Trust upon such terms and conditions as the Trustee deems advisable.

9.13 Management of Closely Held Businesses. In connection with (a) the continuation or operation of any business or investment interests which become a part of the Trust under this instrument (whether on initial funding, by purchase by the Trustee, by bequest or otherwise), or (b) the establishment of any new business or investment, the Trustee are specifically authorized: (i) to invest sums or additional sums in any such business even to the extent that the Trust may be invested largely or entirely in that business; (ii) to hold the interest in any form, including, but not limited to, general or limited partnership interests; and (iii) to act as or to select other persons to act as directors, officers, agents, or in other capacities with respect to the business, and to be compensated for those services (and for any other services rendered by them in respect of the operation of the business) without regard to their being a Trustee under this Agreement. Such power shall include the power to organize, either alone or jointly with others, new corporations, partnerships, limited partnerships, limited liability companies or other business entities; and generally to exercise with respect to the continuance, management, sale or liquidation of any business which the Trust may own or in which it may be financially interested, or of any new business or business interest, all the powers which an outright owner of such business could have exercised.

9.14 Division or Combination of Trusts. In the event that the Trustee determines that it is more feasible or advisable to administer the Trust or any shares or interests created hereunder as separate trusts or shares (whether for tax (including a desire to enable any such trust to qualify as an eligible shareholder of an S corporation), administrative, liability, environmental, or other reasons), the Trustee shall have the power to divide the Trust into further trusts or shares. The Trustee shall also have the power to combine any such trust created hereunder with any other trust, whether created by the Settlers or another person, if the terms of the trusts are substantially the same and the Trustee are the same.

9.15 Power to Deal With Environmental Hazards. To use and expend any Trust income and principal: (i) to conduct environmental assessments, audits, and site monitoring; (ii) to take all appropriate remedial action to contain, cleanup or remove any environmental hazard; (iii) to institute legal proceedings concerning environmental hazards or contest or settle legal proceedings; (iv) to comply with any local, state or federal agency order or court order directing an assessment, abatement or cleanup of any environmental hazards; and (v) to employ agents, consultants and legal counsel to assist or perform the above undertakings or actions. The Trustee shall also have the power: (a) to require, as a prerequisite to accepting as an addition to any Trust hereunder any property, real or personal, from any person, that the transferring party provide evidence satisfactory to the Trustee that the property is not subject to such environmental hazards as the Trustee may specify; (b) to decline to serve as a fiduciary or to resign if the potential individual liability relating to environmental problems conflicts with fiduciary duties; (c) to set aside as a separate trust, to be held and administered upon the same governing terms as any other trust or trusts for any one or more of the beneficiaries hereunder which the Settlers may have established, any interests in property, for any reason, including but not limited to a concern that such property could cause potential liability under any federal, state, or local environmental law; and (d) to disclaim any power which, in the sole discretion of such Trustee, will or may cause any such Trustee to be considered an "owner" or "operator" of property, or which shall otherwise cause such Trustee to incur liability under CERCLA or any other federal, state, or local law, rule or regulation. The Trustee shall not be personally liable to any beneficiary of the Trust created hereunder, or to any other party interested in the Trust created hereunder, for any claim against any trust for the diminution in value of trust property arising from the compliance by the Trustee with any federal, state, or local law, rule, or regulation. Any expenses incurred by the Trustee under this paragraph may be charged against income or principal as the Trustee (other than a beneficiary) shall determine.

9.16 Uneconomical Trusts. If at any time any trust created hereunder has a net asset value (adjusted for inflation by the Consumer Price Index from the date hereof), as determined by the Trustee, of Fifty Thousand ($50,000) Dollars or less, the Trustee (other than any beneficiary), in their sole and absolute discretion, if they determine that it is uneconomical to continue such Trust, may terminate such Trust and distribute the Trust Estate to the Trust's then Beneficiaries in proportion to their Distributional Interests in the Trust.

9.17 Determinations. To determine what property is covered by general descriptions in this instrument.

9.18 Limitations. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this instrument shall be construed as permitting a beneficiary who may also be a Trustee of any trust created hereunder to exercise any rights or powers which may be in excess of any limitations imposed by law or elsewhere in this instrument upon the exercise of such powers (such as, for example, those limited by ascertainable standards, or otherwise prohibited to such Trustee).

ARTICLE X
ADDITIONAL ASSIGNMENTS AND CONTRIBUTIONS

10.1 Further Assurances. The Settlers covenant and agree to make, execute and deliver to the Trustee such other and further assignments, and instruments as the Trustee may reasonably deem necessary or appropriate to effectuate the purposes of this Agreement.

10.2 Additional Contributions. The Settlers, and any other person with the Trustee's consent, shall have the right at any time and from time to time, by deed, assignment or other conveyance executed during his or her lifetime, to contribute cash, securities and/or other property to the Trust created under this Agreement.

ARTICLE XI
DEFINITIONS

11.1 Trustee, Fiduciary, Personal Representative. The words "Trustee", "fiduciary", and/or "personal representative", or any modifying or substituted pronouns therefor shall include singular and plural, as well as the masculine, feminine and neuter genders thereof, and shall apply equally to the personal representative, fiduciary, or trustee named herein and to any successor or substitute fiduciary, trustee or personal representative acting hereunder, and such successor or substitute shall possess all the rights, powers and duties and the authority and responsibility conferred upon the fiduciary, trustee and/or personal representative originally named herein.

11.2 Beneficiaries. The term "Beneficiary" shall mean the Beneficiaries named or described in Section 5.1 hereof and, where applicable, their heirs, devisees, and successors.

ARTICLE XII
TERMINATION OF TRUSTS

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary which would cause an earlier termination of the Trust or any other trusts created hereunder, the Trust and any other trusts created hereunder shall terminate one day prior to the maximum time allowed under the South Carolina Uniform Rule against Perpetuities. At that time, the Trustee shall distribute the Trust assets to the Beneficiaries of the current income and principal thereof. To the extent that the laws of any jurisdiction under which any Trust created hereunder is being administered lengthen or abolish any, or have no, otherwise applicable rule against perpetuities, then the laws of such jurisdiction shall be applied to determine any mandatory termination of such trust. Furthermore, to the extent determined by the Trustee (other than any beneficiary), the dispositions made hereunder may be modified such that such distributions are made to newly created (or amended) trusts having the same provisions as those referred to above, except that such newly created (or amended) trusts may extend beyond the period referred to in the first sentence of this paragraph if permitted under the then laws of such trust's jurisdiction. To the extent that any provision of this paragraph would cause any trust established under this instrument to fail, such provision shall be inapplicable.

ARTICLE XIII JURISDICTION AND GOVERNING LAW

All questions pertaining to the construction, validity and effect of this instrument and any trusts created hereunder shall be determined in accordance with the laws of the State of South Carolina.

ARTICLE XIV
PROTECTION OF CHARITABLE STATUS

The Settlers intend to preserve and protect the charitable tax-exempt status of the "I Feel Good" Trust. Accordingly, this Trust at all times shall be interpreted, managed, invested, administered and in all respects governed consistent with such intent. The Trustee shall administer the Trust in a manner that does not adversely affect the current qualification and continued qualification of the "I Feel Good" Trust as a charitable trust. If necessary or desirable, the Settlers agree to modify the terms of this Agreement to the extent necessary to preserve the charitable tax-exempt status of the I Feel Good Trust to the extent allowed by law.

ARTICLE XV HEADINGS

The article and section headings used in this instrument are for convenience only and are not to be considered as part of this instrument.

ARTICLE XVI
SPENDTHRIFT PROVISIONS

No beneficiary of any trust created herein shall have the right, power, or authority to sell, assign, pledge, mortgage, anticipate, or in any manner encumber, alienate, or impair all or any part of his or her interest in such trust or in the principal or income of such trust. The beneficial and legal interest in, and the principal and income of, any such trust and every part thereof shall be free from the interference or control of any creditor or spouse of any beneficiary of such trust and shall not be subject to the claims of any such creditor or spouse nor liable to attachment, execution, bankruptcy, or any other process of law. This paragraph is intended to cause any trust created under this instrument to be a "spendthrift trust" as that phrase may be interpreted under the applicable laws of the trust's jurisdiction.
