ISSUE PRESENTED

Did the PCR judge err in refusing to find that the Alford plea to the lesser included offense of assault and battery of a high and aggravated nature was rendered involuntary by the fact that Petitioner believed that if he went to trial and was convicted of attempted murder he could receive a life sentence?

STATEMENT

In January of 2013, the Lancaster County Grand Jury indicted Petitioner Foster for attempted murder, unlawful carrying of a pistol and possession of a firearm during the commission of a violent crime, indictments #2013-GS-29-48, 51, 52. In December of 2013, Petitioner appeared before the Honorable J. Ernest Kinard, Jr. and pled guilty pursuant to North Carolina v. Alford, 400 U.S. 25 (1970) to the lesser included charge of assault and battery of a high and aggravated nature [ABHAN] and the two gun charges. Mark Grier represented Petitioner at the plea. Randall Newman represented the State. Judge Kinard sentenced Petitioner to eighteen (18) years for ABHAN, time served for the unlawful carry charge and five (5) years concurrent for the other firearm charge. A timely notice of intent to appeal was filed and the direct appeal perfected. On March 18, 2015, the South Carolina Court of Appeals dismissed the appeal after review pursuant to Anders v. California, 386 U.S.738 (1967).

On August 26, 2015, Petitioner filed an application for post-conviction relief [PCR]. The State filed a return on December 7, 2015. On January 12, 2016, an evidentiary PCR hearing was held before the Honorable Brian M. Gibbons. Nathan Sheldon represented Petitioner at the PCR hearing. J. Croom Hunter represented the State. In a written order filed February 22, 2016, Judge Gibbons denied relief and dismissed the application. A timely notice of intent to appeal was served on November 18, 2016. This petition for writ of certiorari follows.

ARGUMENT

The PCR judge erred in refusing to find that the Alford plea to the lesser included offense of assault and battery of a high and aggravated nature was rendered involuntary by the fact that Petitioner believed that if he went to trial and was convicted of attempted murder, he could receive a life sentence.

After the jury had been selected for a trial on the charge of attempted murder, Petitioner entered a plea pursuant to North Carolina v. Alford, 400 U.S. 25 (1970) to the lesser included charge of ABHAN. (App. pp. 3-4). In exchange for the plea, the State dropped other pending charges. (App. p. 7, lines 8-21). The attempted murder indictment alleges that Petitioner attempted to kill Marqwevius Seegars by shooting him. (App. p. 23). Seegars arrived at Petitioner's grandmother's house and attempted to shoot Petitioner but instead shot another individual, Lamont Twitty. (App. p. 14, line 3-21; p. 46, lines 11-23). Then, a neighbor, Ms. Hood, told a 911 operator that she saw Petitioner shoot into the car where Seegars was seated. (App. p. 7, line 23 – p. 8, lines 1-2). Seegars was angry with Petitioner because of another incident that happened that morning with Matthew Reese. (App. p. 52, lines 4-14). Petitioner was also charged with attempted murder in regard to the incident with Reese.

During the PCR hearing Petitioner testified that plea counsel advised him that if he went to trial, he faced a sentence of thirty (30) years to life imprisonment. (App. p. 72, lines 7-21). Petitioner testified that if he had known that attempted murder did not carry a sentence of life without parole, he would not have entered a plea. (App. p. 72, lines 22-24). Petitioner's mother testified that plea counsel told her that if Petitioner did not plead guilty, he could receive a sentence of twenty (20) or thirty (30) years in prison or life in prison. (App. p. 48, lines 3-21).

In regard to the sentence of life without parole, plea counsel discussed the attempted murder charge involving Reese and then testified, “So my point being I had a conversation saying with him about LWOP, and I believe we had a conversation with the family and with Mr. Foster, my recollection is, that were he to be convicted on one and then, you know, he could potentially be LWOP’d on a second violent crime.” (App. p. 52, lines 14-18). PCR counsel argued that the plea was rendered involuntary by the fact that Petitioner erroneously believed that he could receive a sentence of life without parole if he went to trial for attempted murder. (App. p. 80, line 18 – p. 81, lines 1-18).

In the order of dismissal the PCR judge wrote:

The record before this Court clearly shows that Applicant was fully informed of the consequences of entering his guilty plea. The record shows Applicant’s plea was not coerced, and it was Applicant’s decision to plead guilty. Additionally, this Court finds Applicant’s testimony not credible. Applicant was advised that by pleading guilty he gave up his right to challenge the evidence the State had against him, as well as his right to put up any affirmative defenses. Applicant has failed to present any valid reason why he should be allowed to depart from his valid plea of guilty. Accordingly, this Court finds Applicant’s plea was knowingly, intelligently, and voluntarily entered.

(App. p. 91). The PCR judge erred. Petitioner did not enter a guilty plea but instead entered a plea pursuant to Alford to the lesser included offense of ABHAN because he believed he could receive a life sentence if convicted of attempted murder. Plea counsel confirmed that Petitioner denied shooting Seegars. (App. p. 58, lines 19-22). The plea was rendered involuntary by the fact that Petitioner believed that if he went to trial and was convicted of attempted murder, he could be sentenced to life imprisonment.

S.C. Code Ann. § 16-3-29 provides, “A person who, with intent to kill, attempts to kill another person with malice aforethought, either expressed or implied, commits the offense of attempted murder. A person who violates this section is guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, must be imprisoned for not more than thirty years.” Attempted murder does not carry a life sentence but is a most serious offense pursuant to S.C. Code §17-25-45(C)((1). Counsel failed to clarify that Petitioner could only receive a life sentence if convicted of a subsequent most serious offense. Plea counsel failed to explain to Petitioner that the pending attempted murder charge involving Reese which precipitated the shooting of Seegars should not count as a subsequent most serious offense pursuant to S.C. Code §17-25-50 which provides, “In determining the number of offenses for the purpose of imposition of sentence, the court shall treat as one offense any number of offenses which have been committed at times so closely connected in point of time that they may be considered as one offense, notwithstanding under the law they constitute separate and distinct offenses.” The plea was rendered involuntary by plea counsel’s erroneous advice about Petitioner’s exposure to a sentence of life without parole.

A criminal defendant is guaranteed the right to effective assistance of counsel under the Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution. U.S. Const. amend. VI; Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 104 S.Ct. 2052, 80 L.Ed.2d 674 (1984). Courts evaluate allegations of ineffective assistance of counsel using a two-pronged test. Cherry v. State, 300 S.C. 115, 117, 386 S.E.2d 624, 625 (1989) (citing Strickland, 466 U.S. at 668, 104 S.Ct. 2052). First, the applicant must demonstrate counsel's representation was deficient, which is measured by an objective standard of reasonableness. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 687–88, 104 S.Ct. 2052. “Under this prong, ‘[t]he proper measure of attorney performance remains simply reasonableness under prevailing professional norms.’” Cherry, 300 S.C. at 117, 386 S.E.2d at 625 (quoting Strickland, 466 U.S. at 688, 104 S.Ct. 2052). Second, the applicant must demonstrate he was prejudiced by counsel's performance in such a manner that, but for counsel's error, there is a reasonable probability the result of the proceedings would have been different. Strickland, 466 U.S. at 694, 104 S.Ct. 2052. “A reasonable probability is a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome.” Id.

The Strickland test operates similarly when an applicant claims counsel was ineffective in the context of a guilty plea. Hill v. Lockhart, 474 U.S. 52, 58, 106 S.Ct. 366, 88 L.Ed.2d 203 (1985). A guilty plea may not be accepted unless it is voluntarily and understandingly made. Boykin v. Alabama, 395 U.S. 238, 89 S.Ct. 1709, 23 L.Ed.2d 274 (1969). “To find a guilty plea is voluntarily and knowingly entered into, the record must establish the defendant had a full understanding of the consequences of his plea and the charges against him.” Roddy v. State, 339 S.C. 29, 33, 528 S.E.2d 418, 421 (2000). “A defendant's knowing and voluntary waiver of the constitutional rights which accompany a guilty plea ‘may be accomplished by colloquy between the Court and the defendant, between the Court and defendant's counsel, or both.’ ” Pittman v. State, 337 S.C. 597, 599, 524 S.E.2d 623, 625 (1999) (quoting State v. Ray, 310 S.C. 431, 437, 427 S.E.2d 171, 174 (1993)). “The longstanding test for determining the validity of a guilty plea is ‘whether the plea represents a voluntary and intelligent choice among the alternative courses of action open to the defendant.’ ” Hill, 474 U.S. at 56, 106 S.Ct. 366 (quoting North Carolina v. Alford, 400 U.S. 25, 31, 91 S.Ct. 160, 27 L.Ed.2d 162 (1970)).

“The second, or ‘prejudice,’ requirement ... focuses on whether counsel's constitutionally ineffective performance affected the outcome of the plea process.” Hill, 474 U.S. at 59, 106 S.Ct. 366. “A defendant who enters a plea on the advice of counsel may only attack the voluntary and intelligent character of a plea by showing that counsel's representation fell below an objective standard of reasonableness and that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's errors, the defendant would not have pled guilty, but would have insisted on going to trial.” Rolen v. State, 384 S.C. 409, 413, 683 S.E.2d 471, 474 (2009).

Plea counsel was ineffective in failing to fully explain that Petitioner could only be sentenced to life without parole if he was convicted of a subsequent most serious offense. Plea counsel was additionally ineffective in failing to explain that the pending attempted murder should not count as a subsequent most serious offense pursuant to S.C. Code §17-25-50. There is a reasonable probability that if Petitioner knew that he could not receive a sentence of life without parole for the attempted murder charge, he would not have pled guilty and would have insisted on a trial.

CONCLUSION

Based on the above argument, the petition for writ of certiorari should be granted to allow further briefing on the issue.

PETITION TO BE RELIEVED AS COUNSEL

Counsel for Dyeshawn Foster states:

1. She is Appellate Defender for the South Carolina Office of Appellate Defense, and was appointed to represent petitioner.
2. She has reviewed the record of petitioner's trial before Judge Brian M. Gibbons, which was held on January 12, 2016, and, in her opinion, the appeal is without legal merit sufficient to warrant a new trial.
3. She has, pursuant to Johnson v. State, 294 S.C. 310, 364 S.E.2d 201 (1988), briefed an arguable legal issue which arose during the post-conviction relief process.

Therefore, counsel requests that the Court relieve her as counsel for Dyeshawn Foster.

Respectfully Submitted,
