STATEMENT OF ISSUES ON APPEAL

1. DID MARTIN PROPERLY PRESERVE HIS ISSUES AND ARGUMENTS FOR APPELLATE REVIEW?
2. FACED WITH A CLEAR AND UNAMBIGUOUS CONTRACT, WAS THE TRIAL COURT CORRECT IN CONCLUDING, AS A MATTER OF LAW, THAT (A) MARTIN UNDERTOOK THE OBLIGATION TO REMAIN A MEMBER UNTIL HIS MEMBERSHIP REISSUED; (B) SUCH OBLIGATION REMAINED CONSTANT THROUGHOUT HIS MEMBERSHIP; AND (C) SUCH OBLIGATION DID NOT VIOLATE S.C. CODE ANN. §33-31-610 ET SEQ.?
3. WAS THE TRIAL COURT CORRECT TO DISMISS MARTIN'S COUNTERCLAIMS WHEN, AS A MATTER OF LAW, THEY COULD NOT MEET THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS AND WERE DEVOID OF ANY EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT?
4. HAVING DETERMINED THAT AN UNAMBIGUOUS CONTRACTUAL AGREEMENT EXISTED, WAS THE TRIAL COURT CORRECT IN FINDING THAT ANY FURTHER DISCOVERY OF EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE WAS UNNECESSARY?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

On September 13, 2012, The Callawassie Island Club, Inc. ("CIMC") brought a breach of contract action against Gregory L. Martin and Rebecca L. Martin (the "Martins"), for the collection of delinquent dues, fees and assessments.<sup>1</sup> (R. pp. 21-31). The action alleged that the Martins, as club members, had an ongoing obligation to pay dues until such time as their membership was reissued to a new member. The Martins answered alleging that their resignation or expulsion relieved them of any further liability for dues, even though their membership had not transferred to a new member. (R. p. 37;p.

<sup>1</sup>For purposes of this Brief, the monetary damages sought by CIMC, which include dues, fees, assessments, costs and attorneys' fees, are hereinafter referred to as "dues" unless more specificity is required by the context.

54). Additionally, the Martins brought numerous counterclaims of which only two remain, negligent misrepresentation and breach of contract.

CIMC moved for summary judgment arguing that the Martins' obligation to pay dues until their membership reissued to a new member was clear and that the various defenses and counterclaims were either barred or unsupported by any evidence. Specifically, CIMC argued it did not own the club, and in fact was not even in existence, at the time the Martins purchased and therefore was not capable of making any misrepresentation upon which the Martins could have relied. CIMC filed a Memorandum in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment, with supporting Affidavits on March 7, 2014,<sup>2</sup> and the Martins responded with a Memorandum in Opposition, filed the morning of the hearing on May 19, 2014. CIMC's motion for summary judgment as to Defendant, Gregory L. Martin ("Martin") was granted by Order dated June 24, 2014 ("Initial Order"). Summary judgment as to Martin's wife was denied, pending the completion of additional discovery, with leave to refile. (R. p. 11).

The Martins filed a Motion for Reconsideration pursuant to Rule 59, SCRCP, on July 7, 2014 (the "Rule 59 Motion"), to which CIMC filed a Memorandum in Opposition on October 28, 2014. Prior to oral argument on November 3, 2014, the Martins retained new counsel. At the hearing, the Martin's present counsel argued for the first time and over the objection of CIMC, that the trial court's award of attorneys' fees was unauthorized by the governing documents. The trial court directed the parties to submit alternative proposed orders on the issue. (R. p. 1241, lines 15-21). The Martins, however, submitted a Supplemental Brief in Opposition to Plaintiff's Summary Judgment. On December 16, 2014, the trial court denied the Martins' Motion for Reconsideration and affirmed summary judgment against Gregory L. Martin, which he now appeals (the "Final Order").

FACTS

The Martins purchased real property on Callawassie Island in early 2001. (R. p. 2;p. 32;p. 47). At the time of their purchase, they also acquired a membership in what was then the Callawassie Island Club, Inc., which owned and operated the majority of the recreational amenities, including the golf course, tennis facilities, swimming pools, clubhouses, and dining facilities. (R. pp. 21-29). At that time, the Callawassie Island Club, Inc. was controlled by Callawassie Island Company, L.P. (the "Developer"). (R. p. 201;p. 420). As indicated in the Application for Membership executed by the Martins, membership in the Callawassie Island Club was governed by the 1994 Plan for the Offering of Memberships, the corporate By-Laws attached thereto, and the General Club Rules (the "1994 Governing Documents"). (R. pp. 21-29). Central to this case is the obligation set forth in the 1994 Governing Documents, which requires:

An equity member who has resigned from the Club will be obligated to continue to pay dues and food and beverage minimums to the Club until his or her equity membership is reissued (emphasis added) by the Club. (R. p. 1261).(Plan for the Offering of Memberships, April 1, 1994, Rev. July, 1994; "Payment of Dues by Resigned Equity Member", Page 9, in force at the time Martin acquired Membership).

See also:

Any equity member may resign from the Club by giving written notice to the Secretary. Dues, fees and charges shall accrue against the resigned equity membership until the resigned equity membership is reissued (emphasis added) by the Club. (R. p. 1299). (By-Laws, Callawassie Island Club, 9(a), pg. B-11, in force at the time Martin acquired Membership).

And:

Any member may terminate membership in the Club by delivering to the Secretary written notice of termination in accordance with the By-Laws. Notwithstanding termination, the member shall remain liable for any unpaid club account, membership dues and charges (including food and beverage minimums) (R. p. 1311). (Callawassie Island Club General Club Rules "Suspension and Termination of Membership, page C-3, in force at the time Martin acquired Membership).

As is common in residential communities in the area, the development plan further contemplated the transfer of the recreational amenities to a member owned and managed organization following the Developer's control period. (R. p. 1247). To effectuate that intent, CIMC was created and registered as a §501(c)(7) not for profit organization under the Internal Revenue Code. (R. p. 21;p. 201;p. 419). Following the Martins' purchase, the Callawassie Island Club's assets were transferred to CIMC and it commenced the maintenance and operation of the club amenities under a new Plan for the Offering of Memberships dated August 8, 2001 (the "2001 Plan"), which included the By-Laws and General Club Rules (collectively, and as amended, the "CIMC Governing Documents"). (R. p. 201;pp. 419-420). The Martins, as existing members, were entitled to continue their membership in the newly formed club pursuant to Section 2.2.2, which provided that "[e]ach existing equity member as of the date of this Plan will be entitled to continue his or her equity membership under this Plan without having to pay any additional or new membership contribution to the Club." (R. p. 1362). Consistent with the 1994 Governing Documents, the CIMC Governing Documents contained similar language mandating that members continue to pay dues until their memberships reissued to a new member. (R. p.

1332;p. 1365). It is absolutely uncontroverted in the record that the Martins elected to continue their membership following CIMC's acquisition of the assets for many years, enjoying the benefits and privileges of membership up until their purported resignation or expulsion in 2012. (R. p. 23;pp. 30-31;p. 33;p. 50;pp. 398-412).

In the wake of radically declining real estate prices precipitated by the latest recession however, a few members, including the Martins, sought to terminate their ongoing obligations to CIMC without honoring their obligations. They simply resigned without selling or otherwise transferring their membership to a new member and ceased payment. There are two ways in which a membership may be re-issued. The first is to place the membership on a re-sale list and wait for it to be sold in turn. Alternatively, a member may sell his or her property with the attendant membership. (R. p. 1258). A membership may be placed on the re-sale list voluntarily at the request of a resigning member, or involuntarily through termination which forces surrender of the membership certificate. (R. p. 1311). These methods of re-issuance remained constant throughout Martins' membership. (R. p. 1332;p. 1436;p. 1472).

Prior to the recession, CIMC had "very few delinquencies" as those who could no longer afford their membership found it relatively easy to sell their property. (R. p. 429, line 25-p.430, line 5). Rather than sell his property in this difficult market, Martin simply elected to default in his financial obligations to CIMC and this action was commenced for the collection of the unpaid account.

ARGUMENT

- I. SEVERAL OF MARTIN'S ISSUES AND ARGUMENTS WERE NOT PROPERLY RAISED TO AND RULED ON BY THE TRIAL JUDGE.

Martin makes several arguments that were raised for the first time during the motion for reconsideration and in his Brief, including but not limited to those outlined below.

A. ISSUE I: IMPROPER LEGAL STANDARD.

Martin takes issue with the legal standard recited in the initial Order, contending Judge Kinard's Order fails to mention the "mere scintilla" standard used in a summary judgment context. (App. Initial Brief p. 9). While Martin briefly mentioned this concern in his Motion for Reconsideration<sup>3</sup>, he now employs entirely new arguments in his Brief.

Martin contends the failure to include the "mere scintilla" language in the Order "appears to be driven in part by the trial court judge's background in drafting restrictive covenants for property owner subdivisions . . . and current status as the president of a country club." (App. Initial Brief pp. 9-10). Martin's argument seeks to cast a cloud of doubt over Judge Kinard's ability to impartially adjudicate this matter. However, at no time during the proceedings of this matter did Martin question Judge Kinard's fitness to hear the case nor did he request Judge Kinard's recusal. Accordingly, his argument and belated questioning of Judge Kinard's fitness is unpreserved for appellate review. See Herron v. Century BMW, 395 S.C. 461, 465, 719 S.E.2d 640, 643 (2011) (stating it is axiomatic that an issue cannot be raised for the first time on appeal) (Citations omitted).

Martin further asserts other shortcomings, including failure to include official "findings of fact" and "conclusions of law;" improperly shifting the burden of proof to the non-moving party; and treating the matter as "only a debt collection problem." (App. Initial Brief pp. 9-10). Martin has raised these arguments for the first time in his Brief.

See Id. Accordingly, they are not preserved for appellate review and should not be considered by this Court. See Ulmer v. Ulmer, 369 S.C. 486, 490, 632 S.E.2d 858, 861 (2006) (stating an appellate court will not consider issues on appeal which have not been preserved for appellate review) (Citations omitted).

B. ISSUE III(B) WAIVER ARGUMENT.

Martin challenges Judge Kinard's reliance upon and citation to the 2014 General Club Rules governing expulsion. (App. Initial Brief pp. 32-34). In doing so, Martin contends CIMC's act of amending its Club Rules in 2014, to reflect that an expelled member will remain "liable for all Charges until Membership is re-issued," operates as a waiver of CIMC's argument and an admission that the un-amended version of that provision was open to differing interpretations.<sup>4</sup> (App. Initial Brief pp. 33-34). This argument was not presented to Judge Kinard, either through oral argument, written memoranda, or in his Rule 59 Motion. See Elam v. S.C. Dep't. of Transp., 361 S.C. 9, 23, 602 S.E.2d 772, 779-80 (2004) (stating issues and arguments are preserved for appellate review only when they are raised to and ruled on by the lower court). Accordingly, the argument is unpreserved and should not be considered by this Court.

C. ISSUE III(E) ATTORNEYS' FEES.

Martin takes issue with Judge Kinard's award of attorneys' fees to CIMC, claiming CIMC failed to cite statutory or contractual authority for recovering its attorneys' fees. (App. Initial Brief p. 33-38). Martin then attempts to dissect CIMC's governing documents, reading them in light of his argument, to impugn Judge Kinard's award.

<sup>4</sup> It is important to note that Judge Kinard's reference to the 2014 Club Rules was merely illustrative of the Club's consistent policy that all members are responsible for the payment of dues, fees, and assessments until such time as the membership is reissued.

(App. Initial Brief pp. 33-38). Martin levies further attacks on Judge Kinard's Orders by asserting he relied on generalized statements in CIMC's documents and disregarded specific provisions and improperly revised documents. (App. Initial Brief pp. 33-38).

At the hearing of CIMC's Motion for Summary Judgment, both in oral argument and in his supporting memorandum of law, Martin contended awarding attorneys' fees was improper because the affidavit accompanying the request for attorneys' fees was untimely. (R. p. 1199, lines 17-19;p. 1211, lines 20-25). Martin also questioned the reasonableness of the amount claimed. (R. pp. 237-238). Martin never challenged CIMC's contractual authority to request attorneys' fees. The only argument presented to Judge Kinard prior to his initial ruling was the challenge to the timeliness and reasonableness of the affidavit of attorneys' fees.

Admittedly, over CIMC's objection, Martin raised arguments about the source of authority for attorneys' fees to Judge Kinard during the hearing on the motion for reconsideration. (R. p. 1220, line 24-p.1221, line 21;p. 1233, lines 6-10). However, a party may not raise a new issue previously not raised to the court in a Rule 59 motion. See Kiawah Prop. Owners Group v. Pub. Serv. Comm'n., 359 S.C. 105, 113, 597 S.E.2d 145, 149 (2004) (a party may not raise an issue in a motion to reconsider, alter or amend a judgment that could have been presented prior to the judgment). Accordingly, because Martin has not challenged the award of attorneys' fees based on these arguments raised to Judge Kinard prior to issuance of the Initial Order, Martin has waived his challenge of the attorney fee issue. See First Union Nat'l Bank v. S.C. v. Soden, 333 S.C. 554, 566, 511 S.E.2d 372, 378 (Ct. App. 1998) (stating a failure to challenge a ruling is an abandonment of the issue and an unchallenged ruling, right or wrong, is the law of the case).

D. ISSUE IV(B) MARTIN’S NEGLIGENT MISREPRESENTATION CLAIM

Martin contends Judge Kinard erred in dismissing Martin’s negligent misrepresentation claim because CIMC’s act of providing methods for certain members to leave the club without owing more than their equity contribution “aligned with Appellant’s understanding . . .” (App. Initial Brief pp. 38-40). This specific argument in favor of Martin’s negligent misrepresentation claim was never presented to Judge Kinard for consideration and is not preserved for appellate review. See Elam, 361 S.C. at 23, 602 S.E.2d at 779-80 (2004) (stating issues and arguments are preserved for appellate review only when they are raised to and ruled on by the lower court).

II. CIMC DEMONSTRATED THERE WAS NO GENUINE ISSUE OF MATERIAL FACT BY CONCLUSIVELY ESTABLISHING (A) MARTIN WAS A MEMBER, (HAVING PAID DUES FOR THE USE OF CIMC’S AMENITIES); (B) THAT THE GOVERNING DOCUMENTS (FROM THE TIME MARTIN ACQUIRED HIS MEMBERSHIP FORWARD) OBLIGATED HIM TO REMAIN IN GOOD STANDING UNTIL HIS MEMBERSHIP REISSUED; AND (C) THAT MARTIN HAD NOT MADE PAYMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE AGREEMENT.

A. MEMBERSHIP IN CIMC IS A CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATION

The required elements of a contract are an offer, acceptance, and valuable consideration. Sauner v. Pub. Serv. Auth. of South Carolina, 354 S.C. 397, 406, 581 S.E.2d 161, 166 (2003). All of these elements are conclusively established by the record in this case.

When Martin acquired his membership in CIMC’s predecessor, the Callawassie Island Club, Inc., the terms and provisions governing membership were memorialized in the 1994 Governing Documents. (R. pp. 21-29). Martin signed an Application for Membership in the Callawassie Island Club (the “Application”). (R. pp. 21-22; pp. 27-29;p. 32;p. 47). In so doing, he expressly agreed to be bound by the 1994 Plan, “as same may be amended from time to time.” (R. p. 28). Martin’s application for and subsequent purchase of a membership is not in dispute. Nor is there any controversy over the fact that CIMC provided, and Martin enjoyed, the benefits of membership; or that Martin paid dues, fees and assessments for nearly a decade. “A contract is an obligation which arises from actual agreement of the parties manifested by words, oral or written, or by conduct.” Roberts v. Gaskins, 327 S.C. 478, 483, 486 S.E.2d 771, 773 (Ct.App.1997). In this case, we have ample evidence of all three.

As for consideration, our courts have held it may consist of “some right, interest, profit or benefit accruing to one party or some forbearance, detriment, loss or responsibility given, suffered or undertaken by the other.” Prestwick Golf Club, Inc. v. Prestwick Ltd. P'ship, 331 S.C. 385, 389, 503 S.E.2d 184, 186 (Ct.App.1998). A benefit to the promisor or a detriment to the promisee may provide sufficient consideration for a contract. Shayne of Miami, Inc. v. Greybow, Inc., 232 S.C. 161, 167, 101 S.E.2d 486, 489 (1957). Clearly, the provision of benefits and services in exchange for the observance of the duties and obligations of membership qualifies as adequate consideration.

There being no question that Martin was offered membership subject to the 1994 Governing Documents, accepted membership in accordance with the 1994 Governing Documents, and was accorded the rights and privileges of membership pursuant thereto; the trial court rightly concluded that a contract existed. “By applying for a membership and purchasing same, Defendant became contractually bound by the 1994 Plan for the Offering of Memberships and the Exhibits thereto, which included the By-Laws and the General Club Rules. . . .” (R. p. 12).

The 1994 Plan specifically contemplated the transfer of the Callawassie Island Club's assets to the membership, which occurred in late 2001, when CIMC assumed control. (R. p. 419;p. 1247). Following CIMC's acquisition of the club assets, Martin continued his membership as allowed under the CIMC Governing Documents. Section 2.2.2 of the 2001 Plan states in part: "Each equity member as of the date of this Plan will be entitled to continue his or her equity membership under this Plan without having to pay an additional or new membership contribution to the Club." It is clear in the record that Martin availed himself of the benefits of membership in CIMC from the time of its acquisition until he ceased payment of his dues. (R. pp. 30-31; pp. 398-412).

The trial court found: (a) that a contract exists, (b) that CIMC has the right to enforce it, (c) that Martin continued to use the club amenities, and (d) paid dues to CIMC. Because these findings are wholly supported by the record and not reasonably subject to any other inference, they should not be disturbed on appeal. (R. p. 14).

B. OBLIGATION TO PAY DUES UNTIL MEMBERSHIP REISSUED.

Having satisfied itself that a contract did exist under the 1994 Governing Documents, as amended, the Trial court next addressed its interpretation. At all times during Martin's membership, the applicable governing documents mandated that members remain obligated for dues, fees and assessments until such time as the membership was reissued.<sup>5</sup> The following excerpts leave no room for contrary interpretation:

<sup>5</sup>At the time Martin acquired membership, the governing documents included The Plan for Offering Memberships dated April 1, 1994, Rev. July, 1994, and the By-Laws and General Club Rules issued by CIC. A full copy of the 1994 Plan, 2001 Plan, 2007 Plan and 2008 Plan, together with the 1994 General Club Rules and By-Laws, along with all later versions, amended

Relevant Plan Excerpts:

An equity member who has resigned from the Club will be obligated to continue to pay dues and food and beverage minimums to the Club until his or her equity membership is reissued (emphasis added) by the Club. (R. p. 1260).(Plan for the Offering of Memberships, April 1, 1994, Rev. July, 1994; "Payment of Dues by Resigned Equity Member", Page 9, in force at the time Martin acquired Membership).

An Equity Member who is on the waiting list to sell his/her Membership will be obligated to continue to pay to the Club all Charges associated with his/her Membership until his/her Equity Membership is reissued by the Club (emphasis added). There is no triable issue of fact for a jury to consider when the language of the applicable contract is clear and unambiguous. “When a contract or agreement is clear and capable of legal construction, the court’s only function is to interpret its lawful meaning and the intent of the parties as found within the agreement.” ESA Services, LLC v. S.C. Dept. of Revenue, 392 S.C. 11, 20, 707 S.E.2d 431, 436 (2011). “it is a question of law for the court whether the language of a contract is ambiguous.” Id., see also: Hawkins v. Greenwood Dev. Corp., 328 S.C. 585, 592, 493 S.E.2d 875, 878 (Ct. App. 1997). The trial court, after carefully reading the documents as a whole and giving the language its plain meaning, concluded Martin had a clear and unambiguous obligation to pay ongoing dues until his membership reissued. (R. pp. 8-9;p. 13). In so doing, the trial court correctly applied the cardinal rule of contract interpretation by ascertaining and giving legal effect to the parties' intentions as determined by the contract language. McGill v. Moore, 381 S.C. 179, 185, 672 S.E.2d 571, 574 (2009).

The trial court was thoroughly briefed regarding Martin's contention that expulsion somehow absolved him from any further liability and the matter was extensively argued at each hearing. While he readily admits that a “resigning” member has a duty to continue paying dues in his Brief to this Court, Martin asked the trial court to disregard the plain meaning of the above excerpted provisions and adopt the notion that there are “multiple exit tracks” depending on whether a member voluntarily resigns, has his membership terminated by the Board, or is expelled by operation of the agreement. He suggests that by defaulting and forcing his own expulsion, a member can simply dispense with his obligations or otherwise cap his damages at his equity contribution. In support of his contention, Martin refers to the following provision:

Any member of the Club who has been expelled shall not again be eligible for membership nor admitted to the Club Facilities under any circumstances. Any expelled member...shall have the obligation to surrender his or her membership certificate for reissuance (emphasis added) by the Club to a new member... (R. p. 1299;p. 1303;p. 1332;p.

1436;p. 1472).(1994 By-Laws, p. B-15, incorrectly cited as p. B-11 in Appellant's Brief; an identical provision also appears in the 2001, 2007 and 2009 General Club Rules at Section 14.1.5).

Martin then, in a leap of logic wholly unsupported by the evidence, and contrary to the specific provisions of the contract documents, concludes that expulsion prematurely terminates the obligation to pay dues until the membership reissues. Such a contention is not only counter to the clear intent of the parties, but is also specifically contradicted by the clear provisions of the By-Laws. As confirmed by the provisions of Articles X and XIV of the club By-Laws, there are not multiple "exit tracks." Article XIV, Section 5 of the 1994 By-Laws, entitled "Expulsion," specifically refers back to Article X, Section 9, both of which are cited hereinabove, and both of which impose identical obligations upon resigning or expelled members. Section 9(a) states: "[d]ues, fees and charges shall accrue against a resigned equity membership until . . . reissued by the Club." It is clear that the manifest intent is to force the surrender and "reissuance" of the membership, and that "reissuance" alone is the method by which a member may conclude his or her financial responsibilities. Martin does not, and cannot, cite to any provision, in any version of the governing documents that waives this obligation. Thus, regardless of whether the termination is effected by resignation or expulsion, the resigning and/or expelled member remains liable, under the explicit provisions of the club documents, for payment of dues, fees and charges until the membership is reissued.

Nor can Martin cite to any provision in the governing documents which limits his damages to the value of his equity membership. While several provisions do authorize the Club to accrue dues against the equity, there is absolutely no language which indicates a lien against the equity is CIMC's sole remedy. In fact, the 1994 Governing Documents clearly authorize a suit for damages, stating, it “may also (emphasis added), at its option, sue to recover a money judgment for unpaid annual dues or other charges . . .” (R. p. 1492). Indeed, to read the governing documents as Martin suggests would completely invalidate the numerous provisions cited above.

Rather than contradict the clear and unambiguous intent and application of these provisions, the testimony tendered by Martin in support of his interpretations serves to underscore its plain meaning. Former Board member James Carling testified that the Club would continue to try and collect from individuals who simply tried to walk away from their obligations. (R. p. 476, lines 17-25). Former Board member Karen Norwood testified that expulsion meant a permanent loss of privilege (as opposed to a termination of obligations). (R. p. 543, lines 15-23). What she did not say is that expulsion terminated a members’ obligation to pay dues until the membership re-issued. Longstanding Board member, Philip C. Kilian corroborated Ms. Norwood’s testimony, stating “the underlying club documents require that membership in good standing be maintained by even a member who was expelled or suspended.” (R. p. 439, lines 4-6). Even Martin’s own witness clarified that surrender of a membership merely placed it with the Club for resale. (R. p. 608, lines 23-25).

Despite Martin’s concerted efforts to torture the plain meaning of the governing documents; reading various sections in isolation; and introducing extrinsic evidence to impute terms that are nowhere present in the documents themselves, a contract must be read as a whole document so that ambiguity is not created by a single sentence or clause. McGill, at 185, 574. Whether or not the governing documents are ambiguous is a question of law for the court and does not present any genuine issue of material fact. Id.

The trial court acknowledged the standard set forth in Hancock v. Mid-South Mgmt. Co., 381 S.C. 326, 330, 673 S.E.2d 801, 803 (2009). However, in the face of such clear and unequivocal language, the trial court had a duty to enforce the agreement as written. “(W)hen the evidence is susceptible of only one reasonable interpretation, summary judgment may be granted.” Holmes v. East Cooper Community Hosp., Inc., 408 S.C. 138, 758 S.E.2d 483 (2014), citing Brooks v. Northwood Little League, Inc., 327 S.C. 400, 403, 489 S.E.2d 647, 648 (Ct.App.1997) (citation omitted). “When plain, palpable, and indisputable facts exist on which reasonable minds cannot differ, summary judgment should be granted.” Moriarty v. Garden Sanctuary Church of God, 334 S.C. 150, 511 S.E.2d 699 (Ct. App. 1999). “It is not sufficient that one create an inference [that] is not reasonable or an issue of fact that is not genuine.” Priest v. Brown, 302 S.C. 405, 408, 396 S.E.2d 638, 639 (Ct. App. 1990). Accordingly, summary judgment was appropriate.

C. FAILURE TO PAY.

CIMC conclusively established the existence of a contract and proved Martin’s breach thereof and damages in the form of its verified Complaint and Affidavits. (R. pp. 21-31;pp. 398-412). Martin introduced absolutely no evidence challenging the correctness of these charges, other than to assert that through resignation, expulsion or termination he should be absolved of further liability. Rule 56(e), SCRPC provides: “When a motion for summary judgment is made and supported as provided in this rule, an adverse party may not rest upon the mere allegations or denials of his pleading, but his response, by affidavits or as otherwise provided in this rule, must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. If he does not so respond, summary judgment, if appropriate, shall be entered against him.”

III. THE REQUIREMENT TO PAY DUES UNTIL REISSUANCE DOES NOT VIOLATE THE SOUTH CAROLINA NON-PROFIT CORPORATION ACT. AS IS THE CASE WITH NEARLY ALL PROPERTY OWNER ASSOCIATIONS, MARTIN NEED ONLY SELL HIS PROPERTY AND MEMBERSHIP TO ANOTHER PARTY TO RELIEVE HIMSELF OF FURTHER OBLIGATION AND THE FACT THAT HE CHOSE NOT TO DOES NOT RENDER THE REQUIREMENT UNLAWFUL.

Martin cites S.C. Code Ann. §33-31-620, of the South Carolina Nonprofit Corporation Act (the “Act”), for the proposition that assigning liability for continuing obligations post-resignation is statutorily prohibited. Martin’s argument conveniently ignores subpart (b) to that section, which specifically obligates a resigning member to meet any obligations incurred or commitments made before the resignation. Likewise §33-31-621 reinforces the notion that members who are terminated or expelled remain liable for obligations or commitments made while members. The official comment to both sections makes the legislative intent patently clear. Members are to be held accountable for previously agreed upon continuing obligations, even beyond resignation.

In determining that these statutes permitted CIMC to charge dues until the membership reissued, the trial court correctly ascertained and effectuated the intent of the legislature. The court gave the words found in the statute their plain and ordinary meaning without resort to subtle or forced construction to limit or expand the statute’s operation. CFRE, LLC v. Greenville Cnty. Assessor, 395 S.C. 67, 74, 716 S.E. 2d 877, 881 (2011). “In construing statutory language, the statute must be read as a whole, and sections which are a part of the same general statutory law must be construed together and each one given effect. Unless there is something in the statute requiring a different interpretation, the words used in a statute must be given their ordinary meaning. When a statute's terms are clear and unambiguous on their face, there is no room for statutory construction and a court must apply the statute according to its literal meaning.” Anderson v. S.C. Election Com’n, 397 S.C. 551, 556-557, 725 S.E.2d 704, 706-707 (2012), citations omitted.

The Official Comments to §33-31-620 recognize that a “member in joining the organization may promise to use its facilities or services for a specific period of time.” In this case, the specific period of time is “until their membership is reissued.” The trial court recognized such requirements are quite common, particularly in Beaufort County, where nearly all developments utilize non-profit corporations to collect dues for the maintenance of common areas and recreational amenities within their community. (R. p. 1204, lines 4-19). It is illogical to assert that S.C. Code Ann. §33-31-620, absolves homeowners from liability for dues incurred prior to sale under the rationale that members of a not-for-profit corporation have a “right to resign at any time”. However, that is the conclusion to be drawn from Martin’s tortured reading of the statute.

The fact that Martin may have found it economically inconvenient to sell his property at 35 Sugar Mill Drive, does not excuse his financial responsibilities. Nowhere in any of the governing documents is Martin guaranteed a profitable return on his investment. The 1994 Plan specifically advised that the memberships were for recreational purposes and not to be relied upon as an investment. (R. p. 1249). No matter how disadvantageous the requirement may prove in today’s economic climate, the fact remains that allowing a member to unilaterally resign without selling or transferring his membership to a new, dues paying, member, would have devastating consequences to all of the other members on Callawassie Island who rely upon, and who have contributed to, a steady source of funding to maintain their amenities. It is clear from the statutory language and comments that such an application is consistent with the stated purposes and intent of the Act.

IV. MARTIN'S REMAINING AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES AND COUNTERCLAIMS DID NOT SURVIVE SUMMARY JUDGMENT AS THEY LACKED THE NECESSARY ELEMENTS AND/OR WERE UNSUPPORTED BY ANY EVIDENCE.

A. COUNTERCLAIMS

Only two of the various counterclaims initially asserted by Martin were before the Trial court, the remainder having been dismissed by prior order. The first, that CIMC breached its contract by not expelling him for non-payment; and the second, that CIMC made negligent misrepresentations upon which he relied to his detriment. The Trial court determined that regardless of a member's expulsion, suspension, termination or resignation, the 1994 Governing Documents and all subsequent amendments thereto, plainly required a member to pay dues until his or her membership re-issued. (R. p. 12). As the construction of a clear and unambiguous contract is the province of the trial court and not a jury, summary judgment was appropriate on this issue as previously discussed.

Summary judgment in favor of CIMC is also appropriate as to Martin's only other remaining counterclaim. CIMC could not have made a representation upon which Martin relied when purchasing his membership. Gauld v. O'Shaughnessy Realty Co., 380 S.C. 548, 559, 671 S.E.2d 79, 85 (stating summary judgment is appropriate when the non-moving party fails to establish an element of its case). The elements of a cause of action for negligent misrepresentation are: 1) a false representation made by CIMC to the Members; 2) a pecuniary interest by CIMC in making the statement; 3) a duty of care owed by CIMC to see that truthful information was communicated to the Members; 4) a breach of the duty owed by CIMC by failing to exercise due care; 5) justifiable reliance on the representation; and 6) pecuniary loss as a direct and proximate result of reliance on the representation. Hurst v. Sandy, 329 S.C. 471, 494 S.E.2d 847 (Ct. App. 1997). A false representation must be false at the time it was made. GSM Dealer Services, Inc. v. Chrysler Corp., 32 F.3d 139 (4th Cir. 1994).

At the time the Martins acquired their membership, the club was owned and operated by the Callawassie Island Club, which was controlled by the Developer. (R. p. 201;p. 419). CIMC did not come into existence until November 16, 1999, and did not acquire and manage the assets of the club until June 29, 2001. Therefore, the representations allegedly relied upon by Martin at the time of his purchase cannot be ascribed to CIMC. (R. p. 419).

The 1994 Plan admonished members to “carefully read all the attached documents” and “consider seeking professional advice to evaluate these documents.” (R. p. 1248). The Plan further advised that “no person has been authorized to give any information or make any representation not contained in this Membership Plan, and if given or made, such information or representation must not be relied upon as having been authorized...”. Additionally, Martin’s own witness, Sandra Aulton, affirmed that to the extent any representations were made by the Developer, they were never incorporated into the written documents. (R. p. 700, lines 7-15). Even when examined in the light most favorable to Martin, it is clear he cannot establish the necessary elements. There was no representation by CIMC, no justifiable reliance and therefore no damage, no breach of duty by CIMC, and no pecuniary interest realized on the part of CIMC.

Once Martin acquired his membership, he was contractually bound by the governing documents. None of the deposition testimony in the record suggests that anyone ever told Martin that if he stopped paying, he would simply be expelled without further obligation. What he was told, and what is not at odds with any of the governing documents, is that he could terminate his membership. As amply illustrated herein, membership can be terminated, either at the request of the member or involuntarily, but in either event, the member remains liable until his membership is re-issued. Even if Martin had received contrary advise (which CIMC denies) the 1994 Plan and the CIMC Governing Documents, specifically Section 1.8 of the 2001 Plan, Section 12.3 of the 2007 and 2008 Plans, plainly state: “No person has been authorized to give any information or make any representation not contained in this Membership Plan and, if given or made, such information or representation must not be relied upon as having been authorized...”

V. FOLLOWING EXTENSIVE DOCUMENTARY PRODUCTION, DEPOSITIONS AND INTERROGATORIES, THE TRIAL COURT CORRECTLY CONCLUDED THAT THE CONTRACT WAS CLEAR AND UNAMBIGUOUS, MAKING FURTHER DISCOVERY OF EXTRINSIC EVIDENCE IMMATERIAL.

CIMC’s Motion for Summary Judgment was brought after two years of litigation, and a full and fair opportunity for thorough and complete discovery. A detailed member history report was attached to the verified Complaint (R. pp. 30-31), and further updated via the affidavits of Jeff Spencer, CIMC’s general manager. (R. pp. 398-412). Martin was given every opportunity to depose Mr. Spencer and failed to do so. He cannot now cry “foul” and allege that he was not afforded adequate discovery. (R. p. 1213, lines 2-5). Further, the Trial court recognized that any parol evidence sought by Martin would not be admissible in light of his determination that the contract was unambiguous. (R. pp. 15-17).

VI. THE AWARD OF SUMMARY JUDGMENT SHOULD BE AFFIRMED AS A MATTER OF PUBLIC POLICY AND FOR ADDITIONAL SUSTAINING GROUNDS

The old adage, “it takes a village to raise a child” could readily be adapted to the concept of sustaining a resort golf community. Without the continuing participation of its members, the cost to keep up Callawassie’s twenty-seven (27) hole course, club house, restaurant, pools, tennis courts, pavilions, and dock would be unsustainable. That is why as early as 1994, the Plan for the Offering of Memberships provided that a member would be required to continue to pay dues until his or her membership reissued. (R. p. 1260;p. 1303;p. 1311). That is why the membership formed CIMC and continued that obligation in 2001, when they took over the management of the assets from the Developer. (R. p. 1365). And that is why the residents of Callawassie Island voted overwhelmingly to require anyone purchasing property on Callawassie Island after 2001, to purchase a membership in CIMC. (R. p. 22;p. 126;p. 217). Callawassie’s development model, like so many other communities across the state, relies upon the financial contributions of the residents to maintain the amenities, which clearly provide a material benefit to the real property interests of the landowners.

The Court should consider, in weighing the issues, that failing to uphold the clear and unambiguous obligations challenged here may usher in a flood of other similar challenges, and not just within Callawassie Island. This is true particularly if the Court were to read the Act as Martin suggests. Although Callawassie Island has chosen to have its resort amenities owned and managed by a non-profit club rather than a non-profit homeowner's association<sup>6</sup>, for all intents and purposes, the application of the statute is the same. If Martin may "resign at any time" without regard to his commitment to continue paying dues until his membership reissues, every homeowner in every deed restricted community could likewise declare himself "resigned" and cease to pay dues without further liability.

As for additional sustaining grounds, CIMC calls this Court's attention to those defenses set forth in its Reply. CIMC asserts that to the extent any representations were made (which CIMC denies) they were either merged into the 1994 Governing Documents, as amended, or were parol evidence outside the terms of the agreement. CIMC further asserts that to the extent Martin claims some right under earlier versions of the various governing documents that were later abrogated by an allegedly unauthorized change, CIMC asks this Court, under Rule 220(c), SCACR, to sustain the trial court's decision on the ground that the statute of limitation for challenging actions has run.

Similarly, Martin is barred by the doctrine of laches, estopped or has otherwise waived, his right to challenge any actions on the part of CIMC in exercising its business judgment. The 1994 Governing Documents admonished applicants to "carefully read all of the attached documents" and further to "consider seeking profession advice to evaluate these documents". (R. p. 1248). Additionally, the 1994 Governing Documents stated in bold, capitalized print, that "MEMBERSHIPS SHOULD NOT BE VIEWED OR ACQUIRED AS AN INVESTMENT AND NO PERSON PURCHASING A MEMBERSHIP SHOULD EXPECT TO DERIVE ANY ECONOMIC PROFITS FROM

<sup>6</sup> Other common property, such as the roadways and certain landscaping, are owned and managed by The Callawassie Island Property Owners Association.

MEMBERSHIP IN THE CLUB.” (R. p. 1249). Based on the foregoing, Martin assumed the risk of incurring ongoing obligations, despite economic hardship or declining property values.

CONCLUSION

In the face of clear and unequivocal contractual obligations, which specifically requires Martin to pay dues until his membership reissued, summary judgment in favor of CIMC is appropriate. Martin’s negligent misrepresentation claim failed because he did not and indeed cannot, attribute any of the alleged misrepresentations to CIMC. Further, Martin has produced absolutely no evidence to support that CIMC breached its contract with him. Based on CIMC’s showing that no issue of material fact existed as to Martin’s obligations or the amounts owed, the trial court’s award of summary judgment should be upheld.
