Dear Elizabeth:

Please accept this letter confirming our telephone conversation of August 29, 2012 regarding the above referenced matter. During our conversation I mentioned that I had previously sent a letter on August 1st requesting a corrective Order because I had some concern about the language in the form Order dismissing the appeal. During our telephone conversation you explained to me that the language in the form Order is standard language created to apply to a variety of different situations in which an appeal has been dismissed. You explained to me that the language is not stating that the parties made a settlement agreement. The language simply states that the case is fully and finally over and that the agreement referenced in the language is the agreement between the parties as to the appellant's motion to dismiss the case. In light of your explanation of the form language on the Order, I do not believe there is a need to issue a corrective Order and therefore withdraw that request. Again, thank you for discussing the matter with me and providing the explanation as to the language in the form Order.

Sincerely,

Bert Duffie
