

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE COURT OF APPEALS

Appeal from Charleston County
Court of Common Pleas
Jean Hoefer Toal, Circuit Court Judge

Case No. 2016-CP-10-01833
Appellate Case No. 2017-001270

RECEIVED
NOV 07 2017
SC Court of Appeals

Andrew and Kimberly McIntire,

Appellants,

v.

Sequest Development Company, Inc.; Red Bay Constructors Corp.;
Benzenberg Custom Cabinets, Inc.; Jonathan Marshall Construction;
Coastal Window & Door Center of Charleston, LLC; Carolina Window &
Millwork, LLC n/k/a Carolina Window & Millwork-Omni Glass Industries, LLC;
Southcoast Exteriors, Inc.; Michael Casteen d/b/a Casteen Custom Cabinets;
Quality Cedar Products, Inc. of Michigan d/b/a Michigan Prestain Co.;
Coastal Plumbing & Gas, LLC; Foam Insulation Co. Inc.; Jerry Comer d/b/a
Jerry's Tile & Marble, LLC; Lowcountry Fireplaces, Inc.;
Carolina Pest Solutions, Inc.; New South Construction Supply, LLC,

Defendants,

Of whom Sequest Development Company, Inc., is the Respondent.

INITIAL BRIEF OF RESPONDENT

YOUNG CLEMENT RIVERS, LLP
Stephen L. Brown (SC Bar No. 66468)
Edward D. Buckley, Jr. (SC Bar No. 994)
Jason A. Daigle (SC Bar No. 73308)
Russell G. Hines (SC Bar No. 72100)
Post Office Box 993
Charleston, South Carolina 29402
(843) 720-5488

Counsel for Respondent

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF CONTENTS ..... i

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES..... ii

COUNTER-STATEMENT OF ISSUES ON APPEAL..... 1

I. In this residential construction defect case (brought by homeowners the McIntires against general contractor Seaquest), did the trial court err in denying the McIntires’ motion to stay the case (their own case) and compel their claims to arbitration and granting Seaquest’s competing motion, dismissing the case on the grounds that the McIntires had not only filed suit without first complying with the requirements of the Right to Cure Act (thus requiring, per the Act’s mandatory language, the court to stay it until they had complied) but also, by their own actions, had foreclosed even the possibility of compliance (thus foreclosing even the possibility that the Act’s required stay could ever be lifted, i.e., requiring that the required stay be permanent, as a practical matter, a dismissal)? ..... 1

COUNTER-STATEMENT OF THE CASE..... 1

ARGUMENT ..... 5

I. The trial court did not err in denying the McIntires’ motion to compel arbitration and granting Seaquest’s competing motion; it properly dismissed the case on the grounds that the McIntires had not only filed suit without first complying with the requirements of the Right to Cure Act (thus requiring, per the Act’s mandatory language, the court to stay it until they had complied) but also, by their own actions, had foreclosed even the possibility of compliance (thus foreclosing even the possibility that the Act’s required stay could ever be lifted, i.e., requiring that the required stay be permanent, as a practical matter, a dismissal)...... 5

CONCLUSION ..... 13

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

AT&amp;T Techs., Inc. v. Commc'ns Workers , 475 U.S. 643 (1986).....	11
Elam v. S.C. Dep't of Transp. , 361 S.C. 9, 602 S.E.2d 772 (2004).....	6, 7, 9, 10
Grazia v. S.C. State Plastering, LLC , 390 S.C. 562, 703 S.E.2d 197 (2010).....	8, 11, 12
Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc. , 537 U.S. 79 (2002).....	10, 11
John Wiley &amp; Sons, Inc. v. Livingston , 376 U.S. 543 (1964).....	11
State ex rel. Wilson v. Ortho-McNeil-Janssen Pharm., Inc. , 414 S.C. 33, 777 S.E.2d 176 (2015).....	9
State v. Dunbar , 356 S.C. 138, 587 S.E.2d 691 (2003) .....	9
Strickland v. Strickland , 375 S.C. 76, 650 S.E.2d 465 (2007).....	13
Upchurch v. Upchurch , 367 S.C. 16, 624 S.E.2d 643 (2006).....	10
Wilder Corp. v. Wilke , 330 S.C. 71, 497 S.E.2d 731 (1998) .....	9

Statutes

South Carolina Notice and Opportunity to Cure Construction Dwelling Defects Act, S.C. Code Ann. §§ 40-59-810 to -860.....	passim
S.C. Code Ann. § 40-59-820 .....	11
S.C. Code Ann. § 40-59-830 .....	2, 5, 8
S.C. Code Ann. § 40-59-840 .....	2, 5, 8
S.C. Code Ann. § 40-59-850 .....	2, 7

Rules

Rule 59(e), SCRCF.....	10
------------------------	----

COUNTER-STATEMENT OF ISSUES ON APPEAL

- I. In this residential construction defect case (brought by homeowners the McIntires<sup>1</sup> against general contractor Seaquest<sup>2</sup>), did the trial court err in denying the McIntires' motion to stay the case (their own case) and compel their own claims to arbitration and granting Seaquest's competing motion to dismiss pursuant to the Right to Cure Act,<sup>3</sup> the trial court dismissing the case on the grounds that the McIntires had not only filed suit without first complying with the requirements of (thus requiring, per the Act's mandatory language, the court to stay it until they had complied) but also, by their own actions, had foreclosed even the possibility of compliance (thus foreclosing even the possibility that the Act's required stay could ever be lifted, i.e., requiring that the required stay be permanent, as a practical matter, a dismissal)?

COUNTER-STATEMENT OF THE CASE

In 2007, the McIntires entered into a contract with Seaquest, a general contractor, for the construction of a home in Mount Pleasant. (See generally Agreement between the McIntires and Seaquest [Ex. A to Seaquest's Mem. in Opp'n to Pls.' Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration].) A certificate of occupancy was issued for the completed project in September of 2008. (Certificate of Occupancy [Ex. B to Seaquest's Mem. in Opp'n to Pls.' Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration].)

---

<sup>1</sup> The "McIntires" are Plaintiffs/Appellants Andrew and Kimberly McIntire.

<sup>2</sup> "Seaquest" is Defendant/Respondent Seaquest Development Company, Inc.

<sup>3</sup> The "Right to Cure Act," or simply the "Act," is the South Carolina Notice and Opportunity to Cure Construction Dwelling Defects Act, S.C. Code Ann. §§ 40-59-810 to -860.

On April 8, 2016, the McIntires commenced this action against Seaquest (as well as a number of subcontractors and materials suppliers, none of whom, however, were made respondents to this appeal) for damages caused by alleged defects relating to their home's construction. (See generally Compl.)

Seaquest timely answered and also moved for the case to be dismissed or, alternatively, stayed because of the McIntires' failure to comply with the Right to Cure Act, contending that the McIntires had not served it with the written notice of claim required by § 40-59-840,<sup>4</sup> in turn denying its accompanying rights under the Act to request clarification of the alleged defects (pursuant to § 40-59-840), to access and inspect the alleged defects (pursuant to § 40-59-850), and to make an offer to cure or settle (also pursuant to § 40-59-850). (See generally Seaquest's Mot. to Dismiss or Stay Proceedings; Seaquest's Mem. in Supp. of Mot. to Dismiss or Stay Proceedings.) Pointing to the mandatory stay language in § 40-59-830 (providing, "If the claimant files an action in court before first complying with the requirements of this article, on motion of a party to the action, the court shall stay the action until the claimant has complied with the requirements of this article") (emphasis added)), Seaquest argued that the trial court was required to stay the action unless and until the McIntires complied with the Act and, indeed, that it was no longer possible for them to comply because they had already remodeled and repaired their home. (Seaquest’s Mem. in Supp. of Mot. to Dismiss or Stay Proceedings p. 5.)

---

<sup>4</sup> The McIntires concede that they did not serve Seaquest with a written notice of claim. (10/13/16 Hr'g Tr. pp. 16:13-17:8.)

The McIntires then followed Seaquest’s motion with one of their own, moving to stay the case and compel arbitration, contending arbitration was “contractually required by their Agreement” with Seaquest. (See generally Pls.’ Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration.) They also made a related motion for a protective order, taking the position that, because the matter was subject to arbitration (as claimed in their pending motion to compel arbitration), they should not have to respond to the requests for admissions that Seaquest had served on them. (See generally Pls.’ Mot. for Protective Order.)<sup>5</sup>

The trial court heard the motions on October 13, 2016, the Honorable Jean Hoefler Toal presiding,<sup>6</sup> and, at or about that time, received various legal memoranda from the parties. (See generally Seaquest’s Mem. in Supp. of Mot. to Stay or Dismiss Proceedings; Seaquest’s Mem. in Opp’n to Pls.’ Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration (with Exs. A, B, and D); Seaquest’s Supplemental Mem. in

---

<sup>5</sup> Seaquest notes that the McIntires never actually responded to its requests for admissions. Though not necessary to the decision of this appeal, Seaquest’s counsel asks that the Court consider taking this opportunity to provide guidance to the bench and bar by advising whether the McIntires’ mere making of their motion for a protective order stayed their obligation to respond to Seaquest’s requests for admissions.

<sup>6</sup> (See generally 10/13/16 Hr’g Tr.)

Opp'n to Pls.' Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration; Pls.' Reply in Supp. of Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration.)

On January 4, 2017, the presiding judge's law clerk emailed all counsel announcing the trial court's ruling on the motions—the McIntires' motion to compel arbitration was denied, Seaquest's motion to dismiss was granted on account of the McIntires' noncompliance with the Right to Cure Act, and the McIntires' motion for a protective order (as well as the other motions, irrelevant to this appeal, that had been made by other defendants) was moot in light of the case's dismissal—asking Seaquest's counsel to submit a proposed order to that effect. (Law Clerk's Email of January 4, 2017.) As instructed, Seaquest's counsel submitted a proposed order to the trial court on January 13, 2017. (Seaquest's Counsel's Email of January 13, 2017, with attached Proposed Order.) Thereafter, on January 20, 2017, McIntires' counsel wrote the trial court raising objections to the proposed order. (The McIntires' Counsel's Email of January 20, 2017, with attached Letter of even date.) Ultimately, the trial court's order was filed/entered on May 1, 2017. (See generally Notice of Entry of J.; Form 4 filed May 1, 2017; Order of Dismissal.)

Noticed May 30, 2017, this appeal follows.

ARGUMENT

- I. The trial court did not err in denying the McIntires’ motion to compel arbitration and granting Seaquest’s competing motion; it properly dismissed the case on the grounds that the McIntires had not only filed suit without first complying with the requirements of the Right to Cure Act (thus requiring, per the Act’s mandatory language, the court to stay it until they had complied) but also, by their own actions, had foreclosed even the possibility of compliance (thus foreclosing even the possibility that the Act’s required stay could ever be lifted, i.e., requiring that the required stay be permanent, as a practical matter, a dismissal).

First off, regarding whether the McIntires did, or possibly could, comply with the Right to Cure Act—they did not and cannot. As noted above, the McIntires concede that they did not serve Seaquest with a written notice of claim,<sup>7</sup> without question a failure to comply with the Act mandating a stay (“until” there has been compliance). § 40-59-840(A) (“In an action brought against a contractor or subcontractor arising out of the construction of a dwelling, the claimant must, no later than ninety days before filing the action, serve a written notice of claim on the contractor.”) (emphasis added); § 40-59-830 (“If the claimant files an action in court before first complying with the requirements of this article, on motion of a party to the action, the court shall stay the action until the claimant has complied with the requirements of this article”) (emphasis added)). Moreover, by arguing, as the McIntires do to this Court, that future compliance with the Act is not impossible,<sup>8</sup> they necessarily concede that they have not yet complied with it.

---

<sup>7</sup> (10/13/16 Hr’g Tr. pp. 16:13-17:8.)

Regarding the possibility of future compliance, by necessary implication, the very substance of the McIntires' arguments against impossibility is itself proof positive of impossibility. The McIntires only raise questions of statutory construction (none of which, it should be noted, were properly raised to and ruled on below to preserve them for review in any event (see generally The McIntires' Counsel's Letter of January 20, 2017; Order of Dismissal)<sup>9</sup>), contending that, under the Act, "cure" is not limited to "repair" and that Seaquest could still "'cure' the defect by settling the claim" and that the right to "inspect" does not necessarily mean "a physical inspection of the defect," such that providing a contractor with photos the claimant had taken could suffice. (Apps' Br. p. 11.) Of course, these arguments necessarily concede that there is, in fact, nothing left to offer to "repair," nothing physically to "inspect," thus confirming the impossibility of compliance because, beyond their implicit factual concessions, the arguments are unavailing on the merits, too.

---

<sup>8</sup> (See Apps' Br. pp. 10-11.)

<sup>9</sup> Elam v. S.C. Dep't of Transp., 361 S.C. 9, 23, 602 S.E.2d 772, 779-80 (2004) ("Issues and arguments are preserved for appellate review only when they are raised to and ruled on by the lower court.").

The Act expressly grants a contractor “thirty days from service of the notice [of claim]” not just to offer to settle but “to inspect” and to offer “to remedy” and, further, requires the claimant to “allow inspection of the construction defect at an agreeable time to both parties” and to “give the contractor . . . reasonable access to the dwelling for inspection . . .” § 40-59-850(A) (emphasis added). The McIntires’ statutory-construction arguments are clearly untenable in the face of this clear statutory language.

These statutory-construction arguments also cut against the McIntires’ other arguments about a lack of prejudice to Seaquest<sup>10</sup> and the trial court’s construction of the Act being contrary to public policy<sup>11</sup>—neither of which, it should be noted, is preserved for review in any event, having not been properly raised and ruled on below. (See generally The McIntires’ Counsel’s Letter of January 20, 2017; Order of Dismissal.) Elam, 361 S.C. at 23, 602 S.E.2d at 779-80. As the statutory-construction arguments highlights, where, as here, a claimant repairs the alleged defects, then seeks to recover the cost of repairs from a contractor, not only has the contractor been denied the right to make an offer to repair but the contractor has also, in regard to attempting a resolution with a claimant (not to mention actually defending against the claim) is clearly placed at a disadvantage by being denied the right to actually access and inspect the alleged defects and, instead, having to rely solely on whatever photographs (potentially some or all of them of the self-serving variety) the claimant decided to take. Noncompliance with the Act necessarily prejudices a contractor, like Seaquest, by denying its rights under the Act, and at the same time, thwarts the policy objectives that prompted the legislature to pass the Act to begin with. The Act's only teeth are in the form of the condition precedent it requires to be met before an action proceeds—a fairly small bite except for where, as here, its requirements are wholly disregarded. See § 40-59-830 (providing that “the court shall stay [any] action [filed without first complying with the Act] until the claimant has complied with the requirements of [the Act]”) (emphasis added); Grazia v. S.C. State Plastering, LLC, 390 S.C. 562, 570, 703 S.E.2d 197, 200-01 (2010) (“The circuit court also found that section 40-59-840 imposes an absolute condition precedent to the filing of lawsuits that qualify under the Right to Cure Act. . . . We find no error in the circuit court’s analysis regarding the Right to Cure Act’s notice provisions . . . .”) (emphasis added). Lest it be rendered completely toothless—and claimants left free to deny rights thereunder with impunity—the Act must be enforced according to its plain terms, as the trial court did.

---

<sup>10</sup> (See Apps’ Br. p. 11.)

<sup>11</sup> (See Apps’ Br. p. 12.)

Regarding the McIntires’ issues/arguments about the supposedly impermissible scope of the trial court’s ruling (i.e., that the court was constrained such that its sole function was to determine arbitrability and it improperly exceeded these bounds), they are not preserved for appellate review, the trial court not having ruled on them. (See generally Order of Dismissal); Elam, 361 S.C. at 23, 602 S.E.2d at 779-80.<sup>12</sup>

Perhaps anticipating a preservation challenge in this regard, in their statement of the case, the McIntires note that the trial court's order of dismissal, though not filed until May 1, 2017, was in a form unchanged from the proposed order Seaquest had submitted on January 13, 2017, and that the trial court had signed the order on January 17, 2017, three days before they submitted their objections to Seaquest's proposed order. But this is of no moment. To begin with, "[a]n order is not final until it is entered by the clerk of court; and until the order or <sup>12</sup> Seaquest focuses its issue/argument preservation challenge on the lack of a ruling by the trial court, believing it (the lack of such a ruling) is readily apparent, making it unnecessary to trace the subject issues/arguments farther back into the procedural past. That said, Seaquest does not concede that these issues/arguments, which the McIntires now raise on appeal, were sufficiently presented to the trial court in the first instance, see Wilder Corp. v. Wilke, 330 S.C. 71, 76, 497 S.E.2d 731, 733 (1998) (instructing that, to be preserved for review, an issue/argument must be "sufficiently specific to inform the trial court of the point being urged . . ."), nor does Seaquest concede that these issues/arguments (now raised) are sufficiently consistent with those they raised below. See, e.g., State ex rel. Wilson v. Ortho-McNeil-Janssen Pharm., Inc., 414 S.C. 33, 60, 777 S.E.2d 176, 190 (2015) ("Thus, even generously construing Janssen's pre-trial objection as sufficient to preserve the objection, Janssen's claim is nonetheless procedurally barred from appellate review because Janssen argues a different basis on appeal than was argued at trial.") (citing State v. Dunbar, 356 S.C. 138, 142, 587 S.E.2d 691, 694 (2003) ("A party may not argue one ground at trial and an alternate ground on appeal.")).

---

judgment is entered by the clerk of the court, the judge retains control of the case.” Upchurch v. Upchurch, 367 S.C. 16, 23, 624 S.E.2d 643, 646 (2006) (emphasis added); see also id. (“[T]he effective date of an order is not when it is signed by the judge, but when it is entered by the clerk of court.”). Notwithstanding the date the order was signed, the trial court had control over the case until entry of the order on May 1, 2017,<sup>13</sup> and, thus, had ample time to consider the McIntires’ objections and, were it so inclined, to revise the order. Moreover, to the extent any issue/argument was raised to the trial court but not ruled on, it was incumbent upon the McIntires to seek a ruling thereon via a timely motion under Rule 59(e), SCRPC. Elam, 361 S.C. at 24, 602 S.E.2d at 780 (“A party must file . . . a [Rule 59(e)] motion when an issue or argument has been raised, but not ruled on, in order to preserve it for appellate review.”) (emphasis in original). They made no such motion.

In any event, however, the trial court did not err in this regard. “The question whether the parties have submitted a particular dispute to arbitration, i.e., the ‘question of arbitrability,’ is ‘an issue for judicial determination [u]nless the parties clearly and unmistakably provide otherwise.” Howsam v. Dean Witter Reynolds, Inc., 537 U.S. 79, 83 (2002) (emphasis in original) (quoting AT&T

---

<sup>13</sup> (Notice of Entry of J.; see also Form 4 filed May 1, 2017; Order of Dismissal.)

Techs., Inc. v. Commc'ns Workers, 475 U.S. 643, 649 (1986)). While it is true that, in this context, a “question of arbitrability” is not so broad in scope as to include “any potentially dispositive gateway question,” the phrase is “applicable in the kind of narrow circumstance where contracting parties would likely have expected a court to have decided the gateway, where they are not likely to have thought that they had agreed that an arbitrator would do so, and, consequently, where reference of the gateway dispute to the court avoids the risk of forcing parties to arbitrate a matter that they may well not have agreed to arbitrate.” Id. at 83-84. Compliance with the Right to Cure Act is such a question.

The question of compliance with the Right to Cure Act is not one of those mere “‘procedural’ questions which grow[s] out of the dispute and bear[s] on its final disposition,” of the sort which are “presumptively not for the judge, but for an arbitrator, to decide.” Id. at 84 (emphasis in original) (quoting John Wiley & Sons, Inc. v. Livingston, 376 U.S. 543, 557 (1964)). Rather, where it is applicable (and, without question, it is here), the Right to Cure Act “imposes an absolute condition precedent”<sup>14</sup> to even filing an “action,” which is a statutorily defined term that includes both lawsuits and arbitration proceedings. See § 40-59-820 (“‘Action’ means any civil lawsuit or action or arbitration proceeding . . . .”) (emphasis added). While (in the litigation context, at least) they are not “new” substantive rights—because they are consistent with substantive discovery rights already accorded to a defendant in litigation—rights under the Right to Cure Act are implicated even before an “action” (be it a civil suit or arbitration proceeding) is even commenced. Grazia, 390 S.C. at 572-73, 703 S.E.2d at 202. And, though not expressly addressed by the Grazia Court (which was presented with any issue about arbitration), its reasoning implies that, since, in the context of arbitration (as opposed to litigation), there are no existing substantive discovery rights, the Right to Cure Act does, in fact, create new substantive rights. Operation of the Right to Cure Act is a proper “question of arbitration” for judicial determination—and which the trial court properly determined here.

---

<sup>14</sup> See Grazia, 390 S.C. at 570, 703 S.E.2d at 200-01.

Also, it should be remembered that it was the McIntires themselves who commenced this court case before moving to stay it (their own suit) and compel arbitration of their own claims. This sequence of events alone supports the trial court’s finding of waiver. Indeed, the McIntires’ motion to compel arbitration itself bolsters this conclusion. Even though they brought this lawsuit, they moved to compel on the basis that their contract with Seaquest made arbitration mandatory. (Pls.’ Mot. to Stay and Compel Arbitration p. 1 (“The [McIntires] . . . hereby move this Honorable Court for an order staying this matter and compelling mediation and, if necessary, arbitration by the parties to proceed as contractually required by their Agreement.”) (emphasis added); id. at p. 2, ¶ 2 (“The Agreement contains a provision requiring submission of any claim arising out of or related to the agreement to mediation.”) (emphasis added); id. p. 2, ¶ 3 (“[A]ny claim not resolved by mediation shall be resolved by binding arbitration.”) (emphasis added).) Waiver is the voluntarily and intentional relinquishment of a known right. Strickland v. Strickland, 375 S.C. 76, 85, 650 S.E.2d 465, 470 (2007). Clearly, the McIntires knew about the contract and its arbitration provision and, nonetheless, voluntarily invoked the machinery of the court by filing this suit—and, for that matter, by thereafter asking the court for protection from responding to discovery served on them in the litigation they had commenced—indeed, themselves breaching the very contract they would later say mandated arbitration.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, as well as upon any other sustaining ground appearing in the record (including, without limitation, the reasons set forth in the appealed order itself), Seaquest asks this Honorable Court to affirm the result below.

Respectfully submitted,

YOUNG CLEMENT RIVERS, LLP

By

Stephen L. Brown (SC Bar No. 66468)

Edward D. Buckley, Jr. (SC Bar No. 994)

Jason A. Daigle (SC Bar No. 73308)

Russell G. Hines (SC Bar No. 72100)

Post Office Box 993

Charleston, South Carolina 29402

(843) 720-5488

Counsel for Respondent

Charleston, South Carolina

Dated:

11/3/17

THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE COURT OF APPEALS

Appeal from Charleston County
Court of Common Pleas
Jean Hoefer Toal, Circuit Court Judge

RECEIVED
NOV 07 2017
SC Court of Appeals

Case No. 2016-CP-10-01833
Appellate Case No. 2017-001270

Andrew and Kimberly McIntire,

Appellants,

v.

Sequest Development Company, Inc.; Red Bay Constructors Corp.;
Benzenberg Custom Cabinets, Inc.; Jonathan Marshall Construction;
Coastal Window & Door Center of Charleston, LLC; Carolina Window &
Millwork, LLC n/k/a Carolina Window & Millwork-Omni Glass Industries, LLC;
Southcoast Exteriors, Inc.; Michael Casteen d/b/a Casteen Custom Cabinets;
Quality Cedar Products, Inc. of Michigan d/b/a Michigan Prestain Co.;
Coastal Plumbing & Gas, LLC; Foam Insulation Co. Inc.; Jerry Comer d/b/a
Jerry's Tile & Marble, LLC; Lowcountry Fireplaces, Inc.;
Carolina Pest Solutions, Inc.; New South Construction Supply, LLC,

Defendants,

Of whom Sequest Development Company, Inc., is the Respondent.

PROOF OF SERVICE

YOUNG CLEMENT RIVERS, LLP
Stephen L. Brown (SC Bar No. 66468)
Edward D. Buckley, Jr. (SC Bar No. 994)
Jason A. Daigle (SC Bar No. 73308)
Russell G. Hines (SC Bar No. 72100)
Post Office Box 993
Charleston, South Carolina 29402
(843) 720-5488
Counsel for Respondent

I, Russell G. Hines, of Young Clement Rivers, LLP, counsel for Respondent, hereby certify that the INITIAL BRIEF OF RESPONDENT and RESPONDENT'S DESIGNATION OF MATTER were served on all other parties to this matter by depositing a copy of same in the U.S. Mail on November 3, 2017, properly posted for delivery to the following addressees:

ANDREW K. EPTING, JR., LLC
Andrew K. Epting, Jr., Esquire
Jaan G. Rannik, Esquire
46A State Street
Charleston, South Carolina 29401

Counsel for Appellants

Russell G. Hines (SC Bar No. 72100)

Charleston, South Carolina

Dated: 11/3/17

YCR LAW

Russell G. Hines
Partner

Direct Dial: (843) 720-5488
Direct Fax: (843) 579-1327
E-mail: RHines@ycrlaw.com

November 3, 2017

Jenny Abbott Kitchings, Clerk of Court
South Carolina Court of Appeals
P.O. Box 11629
Columbia, SC 29211

Re: Andrew and Kimberly McIntire v. SeaQuest Development Company, Inc., et al
Appellate Case No. 2017-001270
Case No.: 2016-CP-10-1833
Claim No.: 100-00-002622
Date of Loss: 7/24/2008
YCR File: 9795-20160374

RECEIVED

NOV 07 2017

SC Court of Appeals

Dear Ms. Kitchings:

Enclosed for filing in the above-referenced matter, please find the original and one copy of Initial Brief of Respondent, Respondent's Designation of Matter, and Proof of Service regarding the same.

Kindly return one clocked copy in the pre-stamped envelope provided. With best wishes and kindest regards, I am

Sincerely,

YOUNG CLEMENT RIVERS, LLP

Russell G. Hines
Partner

RGH/amj
Enclosures

cc: Andrew K. Epting, Jr., Esquire
Jaan Gunnar Rannik, Esquire

CLASS FIRST-CLASS FIRST-CLASS FIRST-CLASS FIRST-CLASS

Hasler PRIORITY MAIL

11/03/2017
US POSTAGE $006.65<sup>0</sup>

ZIP 29401
011E12650887

FIRST CLASS MAIL

RECEIVED
NOV 07 2017
SC Court of Appeals

YCRLAW

25 Calhoun Street, Suite 400
P.O. Box 993
Charleston, SC 29402-0993

KBB
9795-
20160374

Jenny Abbott Kitchings, Clerk of Court
South Carolina Court of Appeals
P.O. Box 11629
Columbia, SC 29211