

$1700, the furniture was $3,800 and the value of the computer was $2,500. (Tr 200-201). The evidence also showed that the printer was on lease and returned to the lease company and therefore the Court finds that this should not be included in the damages for conversion. Thus, the May 19, 2017 Order is amended to show that the actual damages for conversion against Defendant Jan Fredman for personal property would not include the value for the printer and should be reduced to $6,300.00. Further, the Court finds that due to the nature of the claim and evidence, pre-judgment would not be appropriate. For clarification, the Court did not award punitive damages as to this portion of the judgment and does not make such a finding at this point.

2. The Court previously found that Defendants' conversion of the Charles Schwab check constituted conversion and that said conversion was willful on behalf of the defendants which would entitle the Plaintiff to an award of punitive damages. Due to the nature of the Defendants' actions and the circumstances of this case and in consideration of the factors set forth in Gamble v. Stevenson, 406 S.E.2d 350 (S.C. Sup. 1991) as more completely outlined in the May 19, 2017 Order, the Court feels that it is appropriate to reduce the punitive damages from $35,000.00 to $20,000.00.

3. The Court has considered all other matters raised in the Defendants' Motion and Memorandum and has determined that the May 19, 2017 Order properly addresses the remaining issues and Defendants' Motion is denied as to the additional grounds.

4. Therefore, the May 19, 2017 Order is affirmed except as set forth above and the Judgment is amended as follows:

- a. Judgment for the Plaintiff against Defendant Jan Fredman for $6,300.00;

- b. Judgment for the Plaintiff against Defendant Jan Fredman and Clemson-EPS Advisors, LLC, jointly and severally, for $25,444.25 actual damages; and
- c. Judgment for the Plaintiff against Defendants Jan Fredman and Clemson-EPS Advisors, LLC, jointly and severally for $20,000.00 punitive damages.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
