Re: Ralph Williams v. Patricia Johnson
Appellate Case No. 2017-000963

Dear madam clerk:

I recently received a letter from the Court advising that this case would be decided based on the written submissions in the October term. I represent the Appellant and am writing to respectfully request the opportunity to present oral argument.

The chief reason for this request relates to the second and third issues identified in my client's brief. Though my client takes the position that the circuit court's grant of a new trial should be reversed, even if the circuit court is affirmed rather than reversed, these latter issues will necessarily arise when this case is remanded for the new trial. I believe an opinion from this Court instructing the trial court on these issues will benefit the parties and the circuit court on remand and I would welcome the opportunity to express my view in an argument if the Court will permit.

Thank you for your attention to this letter and please share my thanks with the Court for its consideration of my request.

Yours Very Truly,

Robert Paul Foster, Esquire
