

To whom it may concern

I Andre Posey feel like prison time was too stiff a punishment for violating probation considering the fact that I didn't break any laws to violate. many people don't make it home from prison. my Probation officer Agent Justin Price Also had me under the impression that the money I owed could/would be restructured so that I would still have financial obligations once im released from probation which I was Prepared to fulfill. During the day of the hearing I had money to pay but was arrested with the amount of money I was behind. My father who was currently at work during Court was also Prepared to pay whatever. It was also understood that I was required to get my G.E.D while on probation. Before becoming incarcerated I was enrolled in the wagner Salley Adult Ed Program and actively working towards obtaining my G.E.D. Sometimes I would walk in the cold and rain to get my education.

I have a 3yo daughter and mother who's financially dependent upon me. I was recently taken off of child support and allowed to be apart of her life. We don't recieve any government benefits. All of our groceries are paid for out of pocket and any other necessities we need. the mother of my child has a very inconsistent income. so in the one taken care of all the bills Majority of the time and whatever money she brings in usually takes care of other debts we have aquired throughtout the month.

Now that im back here everytime I call I have to ask questions like where are yall staying, have yall eaten today etc.

I miss having real world responsibilities. I have been told I still have my job when I come home but nothing is promised.

Now that im back here I feel like im just wasting away. I have to wait 30 days or more before I can continue my education that I was already in the process of getting. Communicating with my family has been a struggle because we only get a 15 min phone call twice a week and those calls arent gawrenteed because others will act out and get everyone's phonecall taken.

I really don't see this benefiting me at all only prolonging the time it takes for me to get my education I was already in the process of getting. If anything this was a major setback because everything yall sent me to prison to do I was already in the process of doing or trying to do. I never missed a report date. I have been dealing with this since 2014 I have the money to pay please have leniency I would love to be Home with my family for christmas please work in my favor.
