RE: Glenda Couram v Nationwide Mutual, et.al.
Appellate Case No.: 2018-001134

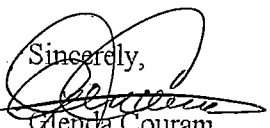

Dear Ms. Kitchings:

I was reviewing C-Track to see where my Appeal were and noted the above matter had not been placed before the Court of Appeals for Consideration even though all Final Briefs has been timely filed and deadlines met per the letters from this court dated June 27, 2018 (The Status: Final Briefing/Record). See Attached

Could you tell me if this is an oversight on the part of the court as it was placed in abeyance for three months prior to the completion of all deadlines due to the courts personnel issues, I was told? I was assured by this court that upon my completing all deadlines the court would place my Appeal before the Appeals Court and today, I apologize for not checking before now, but I trusted the court would honor its word if we even pro se followed the rules and regulations set down by the SC Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court..

I am sure the Court does not want to be bothered with pro se litigants but if you will please place my Appeal in its proper status for Consideration, given the great expense and hardship I went through I would appreciate it and if this letter needs to be placed in a form of a Motion please let me know. Since everything went automated the courts have not seen to sending documents and responses in the "traditional manner" to pro se litigates so it has been very difficult to meet deadlines and we are at a DISADVANTAGE so I was never informed I needed to provide the court with additional information after submission of the Final Briefs in order to be placed in "Consideration Status."

Sincerely,

Glenda Couram

Note: I am sending a copy to the Supreme Court in hope that they may take up this oversight pro ses/self represented not receiving copies of Orders, etc., for the courts as it state "traditional manner" placing them at a disadvantage in comparison to attorenys
