Motion to Recall the Remittitur from Administrative Law Court and Proceed in Court of Appeals with Case

I, Clara Brockington, Pro Se Appellant, is making a Motion to the Court to Recall the Remittitur from Administrative Law Court and Proceed in Court of Appeals with this case. Pro Se Appellant has been taking care of a very ill spouse for the past months and then going through the death of this spouse and now dealing with no comprehension, stress, depression, etc. Pro Se Appellant is not an Attorney and would not respectfully comply with the rules of the Court. Pro Se Appellant has recently spoken with a Legal Advisor about the Judge's Order and this Legal Advisor has agreed to correct all deficiencies to comply with the rules of the Court and resubmit in a timely manner, due to my Spouse's illnesses, death, bereavement, stress, depression, etc. Pro Se Appellant's Legal Advisor stated that they will assist with complying with substantive and procedural requirements of the law. State v. Policano, 402 S.C. 547, 558, 741 S.E. 2d 774, 779-80 (Ct. App. 2013). Pro Se Appellant is NOT an attorney and was not able to comprehend through my Spouse's illnesses, death, bereavement, stress, depression, etc. Pro Se Plaintiff is making a Motion to Recall the Remittitur from Administrative Law Court and Proceed in Court of Appeals with the Corrections that will be completed by Legal Advisor(s) according to the SCACR Rules in a timely manner. The Legal Advisor(s) will inquire from the Court about any orders, rules, deficiencies, etc. Pro Se Plaintiff has NOT refused to comply by the court rules.

Conclusion

Pro Se Appellant has not intentionally failed to follow any Court's rules and deadlines. Again, Pro Se Appellant does NOT have a Law Degree or work in the Legal System nor retains a copy of the SCACR Rules of the Court. Accordingly, Pro Se Plaintiff respectfully request that this Court grant this Motion, due to Spouse's illnesses, recent death of Spouse, recent bereavement, stress, depression, Coronavirus, etc., and deny any and ALL Motions by the Defendants, which will give Legal Advisor(s) ample time to bring my case up to court standards. Thanks in advance for your cooperation on granting this Motion and proceeding with this case in this Court.
