To Whom It May Concern:

Re: Mr. Robert A. Wright

Robert Wright and I have known each other our entire lives. He and I are from the same small town and grew up together. He and I are literally the exact same age and were even in the same 4-year-old kindergarten class. He is now technically my cousin-in-law, but he is more like my brother-in-law as he and my husband were mostly raised by their paternal grandparents in the same house as brothers.

Because of the personal connection that we have as family members, I have been able to witness firsthand the type of person he really has grown to be. I watched him dote on his daughter when she visits—she lives in another state but when she was able to visit, he showed that he was and still is a loving father. He is married to a wonderful woman who has a daughter that lived with them—I watched as he helped to raise her as his own.

I was able to see how much he loved his paternal grandparents. As his grandmother's health began to fade and she was mostly confined to her home, he and his wife would often visit her. They helped wherever they could in order to ensure that her needs were being met on a regular basis. When his grandmother became gravely ill and needed nursing home level of care, he and his wife would often visit her continuing to show support for her even when things began to appear grim.

While I understand that he has made some mistakes in life; overall, I truly believe that he is a good man worthy of a chance of full redemption. He has a large extended family who love and believe in him. If given the opportunity, I am confident that he can and will become a productive citizen that his wife, children, family and community-at-large can be proud of.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Dr. Stephanie Curry, MD

Robert Wright Bail Petition

To the Honorable Justices of the Supreme Court of South Carolina,

My name is Wanda Davis. I am a healthcare worker and a South Carolina Notary Public. I am writing to tell you of the many fine qualities of Robert Wright, whom I have known for several years in various capacities, including that he is a standup guy, a great family man that will help anyone that he can without being asked, as in helping buy food to be cooked to be served to the community for free.

I have had the chance to get to know Robert, and I say without a doubt that you are dealing with a person of very good moral character. Robert operates with integrity, and never has a bad word to say about anyone. He is also hard working and dedicated, and never leaves a job unfinished.

On a personal level, may I just say that I really like Robert, and I have no doubts about his abilities to succeed in the future.

Thank you,

Wanda Davis
