Dear Mr. Campbell:

Thank you for your letter dated July 16, 2018. I am writing to answer the questions you asked me in your letter.

You asked what would happen if DNA tests exonerate you. I sent you a copy of the Post-Conviction DNA Testing Act in my last letter. If you look at 17-28-100, it says if the results are exculpatory, they may be used as grounds to file a motion for a new trial.

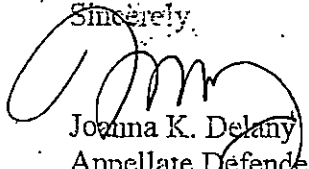

You asked how I would help you with your DNA testing. I am only representing you on the appeal from the court denying you a new sentencing hearing. Because I only handle appeals, I cannot be your attorney for purposes of your DNA application.

You asked what to do to get an attorney on your DNA application since you already filed a request for DNA testing, and did not ask for a lawyer when you filed it. Because you must request an attorney at the time you file the request, I believe you should file another application and write on the application that you request a lawyer be appointed to represent you on the case.

SEE → I have not heard from the Court of Appeals about your resentencing appeal, but will let you know as soon as I do.

Please contact me if you have any questions or concerns.

Sincerely,

Joanna K. Delany
