I got another letter dated today saying that after careful review, the case has been identified for possible oral argument in November 2021. But my concern was that the previous letter said that it was submitted without oral argument in October 2020. I have attached that letter.

I got an email with letter stating that this appeal might be heard for oral argument in November.

I am a bit confused as we were previously told it was heard on briefs in October 2020 without argument (see letter attached) and I even called up to the clerk's office around May 2021 to confirm verbally that it was heard in October.

Please advise if today's letter was in error. Or if the prior letter was in error?
