To Whom It May Concern,

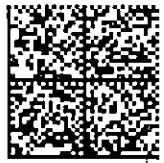

I'm writing you in regards of the reasons to appeal my guilty plea. I feel there indeed were errors in law in which that I can prove. One is a Brady Rule violation where the prosecutor in my criminal case failed to perform his constitutional duties of turning over helpful evidence to the person who was charged in the crime. (ME) I also feel as if I was coerced into taking a guilty plea that I didn't want to take. My public defender clearly stated that he could win my case in trial, got me to agree to trial, and then telling me he was 99% sure we would lose trial while picking the jury. Which is also an ineffective counsel. So my reasons for appeal is Errors in law, Prosecutorial misconduct and ineffective counsel in which I could later go into details if needed.

Thanks in Advance
Shakeem Price
