I confess I read your initial email about this record wrong. I am so used to court reporters requiring payment in advance that it frankly did not occur to me that you may have sent it in advance of getting my check. Today I was checking on this record and was mortified to see that you had said the transcript was in fact attached. For whatever reason, I can't get what I assume is the attachment at the end of your email to open. Might you give me a little guidance here? Lol. My age is showing. I tried both single clicking and double clicking. That is the end of my repertoire. Help!
