In The Court of Appeals

APPEAL FROM GREENVILLE COUNTY
Court of Common Pleas

J. Derrick Quattlebaum, Special Referee

Case No. 2012-CP-23-0314

Jeff Yelton, ... Appellant,
v.
ScanSource, Inc., ... Respondent.

Return to Appellant's Motion to Supplement the Record

Appellant Jeff Yelton's ("Yelton") motion seeks to supplement the Record on Appeal ("ROA") with information that was not presented to the Special Referee below. Pursuant to Rule 210(c) of the South Carolina Appellate Court Rules, therefore, Respondent ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource") respectfully requests that the Court deny Yelton's Motion. In addition to asking this Court to ignore its own rules, Yelton's Motion also is inaccurate and should not influence the Court's ruling on this appeal.

I. Appellant's motion should be denied pursuant to Rule 210(c).

Rule 210(c), SCACR, states "[t]he Record shall not . . . include matter which was not presented to the lower court or tribunal." (Emphasis added.) This requirement has no exceptions or qualifications. Id. Moreover, the South Carolina Supreme Court has held that under Rule 210(c), evidence that is discovered or created after the lower court has entered its ruling cannot be included in the ROA and cannot be considered on appeal. See State v. White, 372 S.C. 364, 387, 642 S.E.2d 607, 619 (2007) (refusing to consider a statement issued by a co-defendant that retracted the trial testimony he had offered against the appellant because the statement was not issued until after appellant filed notice of appeal, which meant that it had not been “presented to the lower court and [could not] be properly included in the Record on Appeal [under Rule 210(c)]”).

In his Motion, Yelton seeks to supplement the ROA with deposition testimony that was not taken until four months after the Special Referee entered the Preliminary Injunction Order.¹ (Exhibit B, Prelim. Injunction Order (Oct. 26, 2012); Rick Burke Dep. (Feb. 28, 2013), attached to App. Mem. Supp. Mot. at Ex. 2.) Because of this incontrovertible timing, Yelton cannot argue that this deposition testimony was presented to the Special Referee, and the motion to include it in the ROA is frivolous. This evidence was not presented to, or ruled upon by the lower tribunal, so it cannot be included in the ROA or considered by this Court in deciding this appeal. See Rule 210(c), SCACR; see also White, 372 S.C. at 387, 642 S.E.2d at 619 (holding that the fact that the trial court did not have the opportunity to rule on newly discovered evidence, “presents nothing for this court’s review”).

Additionally, the Supreme Court has considered and rejected Appellant’s argument that after-discovered evidence should be considered where it allegedly undermines the grounds upon which a lower court granted injunctive relief.² See Argabright v. Argabright, 398 S.C. 176, 180 n.3, 727 S.E.2d 748, 750 n.3 (2012). In Argabright, the family court enjoined a mother from permitting contact between her child and the convicted sex offender that the mom was dating. Id. at 178, 727 S.E.2d at 750. On appeal, the mother argued that the injunctive order should be overturned, among other reasons, because she and the sex offender had married since the order had been entered. Id. at 180 n.3, 727 S.E.2d at 750 n.3. The Supreme Court refused to consider this evidence, however, because appellate courts are “bound by the record established at trial.” Id. (citing Rule 210(c), SCACR). Accordingly, Yelton’s motion to supplement the record with matter that was not presented to the Special Referee should be denied.

Further, because the Motion is frivolous, it should be denied and sanctions should be imposed upon Yelton in an amount sufficient to discourage such conduct from occurring in the future. Rule 269, SCACR (“Where a[] . . . motion . . . is frivolous or taken solely for the purposes of delay, or is not in compliance with these Rules, the appellate court may upon its own motion or that of a party, after ten (10) days notice, impose upon offending attorneys or parties such sanctions as the circumstances of the case and discouragement of like conduct in the future may require.”).

² The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals cases cited in Yelton’s Motion are not binding on this Court. See Laffitte v. Bridgestone Corp., 381 S.C. 460, 474 n.9, 674 S.E.2d 154, 162 n.9 (2009) (explaining that federal court opinions, even from the District of South Carolina, are not binding on a state court’s determination of a matter concerning state law). Further, the cases also are not persuasive because, as indicated by the Eighth Circuit, the federal appellate court rules do not have an appellate rule analogous to Rule 210(c), which expressly prohibits matters that were not presented to the lower court from being included in the ROA. See Dakota Indus., Inc. v. Dakota Sportswear, Inc., 988 F.2d 61, 63 (8th Cir. 1993) (stating that there is not a “rule etched in stone” that prohibits federal appellate courts from considering evidence that was not contained in the record below); see also Miller v. Benson, 51 F.3d 166, 168 (8th Cir. 1995) (same); Fed. R. App. P. 10 (enumerating matters that may be included in the ROA but lacking an express prohibition against matters not presented to the lower court as contained in Rule 210(c), SCACR).

II. Yelton's motion is factually incorrect.

In addition to being inappropriate under the appellate rules, Yelton's motion also is factually incorrect and should be ignored in its entirety. Contrary to Yelton's motion, as explained below Mr. Burke's deposition testimony comports with the evidence presented to the Special Referee. Additionally, Yelton's Motion ignores that even if the KillDisk information had not been presented to the Special Referee, the remaining evidence still overwhelming supports the Preliminary Injunctive Order.

A. Mr. Burke's deposition testimony comports with the evidence presented below.

Yelton represents that various snippets of filings made by the undersigned are inconsistent with cherry-picked portions of Rick Burke's deposition testimony.³ As explained below, Mr. Burke's deposition testimony is consistent with the evidence that Respondent presented to the Special Referee. Further, Yelton only attached a portion of Mr. Burke's deposition transcript to his motion. (Mot. at Ex. 2.) In the portion of the transcript that Yelton failed to provide the Court, Mr. Burke testified as follows:

[By Attorney Foster] Q. In your experience, what is—when someone—let's say an employee like Mr. Yelton downloads a disk erasing program like Killdisk, what does that indicate to you?

[By Attorney Murphy] Object to the form. Ignore me.

[By Mr. Burke] A. In my opinion, that would indicate that they are hiding something.

³ In addition, Yelton's attack on statements made by Respondent's counsel is nothing more than a red-herring because such statements are not evidence. S.C. Dept. of Transp. v. Thompson, 357 S.C. 101, 105, 590 S.E.2d 511, 513 (2003) (rejecting appellant's argument that the trial court should have used the valuation used by respondent's attorney during his closing argument to determine the prevailing party because "[a]rguments made by counsel are not evidence").

(Burke Dep. 72:8-15, attached as Exhibit C.)⁴ Thus, Yelton's argument that KillDisk did not physically destroy the laptop's hardware or files attempts to draw a distinction without a difference. (See Mot. pp. 1-4.) The conclusion of Mr. Burke's testimony is that he thought that Yelton took steps to "hid[e] something" from ScanSource. The "something" are the other acts described in ScanSource's briefing supporting the preliminary injunction, including uploading hundreds of files to Dropbox on his last full day in the office, sharing the "New Distribution Model" file with ScanSource's vendors, and plugging the QBR Flash Drive into the ScanSource laptop (adding to the evidence that this was the same flash drive Yelton used to obtain ScanSource trade secrets from employees and that he plugged into his home computer the day after ScanSource demanded he return its information).

Furthermore, ScanSource presented evidence to the Special Referee that KillDisk did not permanently erase data on the laptop, contrary to Yelton's motion. For instance, Dean Gaida explained by affidavit that, after a series of complicated steps, FTI was, in fact, able to access the data:

On February 3, 2012, FTI used Guidance Software's EnCase version 6.19.2 ("EnCase") in conjunction with a Tableau T35es write blocker to create a "forensic image" of the ScanSource Laptop's hard drive. EnCase generates a series of files that comprise a "forensic image," which represents a forensically sound bit-by-bit copy of the data from the original source hard drive. . . .

FTI utilized the EnCase product, as described earlier, to create an image of the hard drive. This software does not rely on the boot partition in order to review the system files and data structures, so the image created with EnCase can still be analyzed in spite of KillDisk being run on the machine.

Using the forensic image, FTI tested the viability of booting Yelton's work laptop by restoring a mirror copy of the computer's data onto a clean hard drive on a test machine and initiating the boot process. FTI was unable to boot this test machine, which is consistent with our observation that the System Reserve was wiped as indicated in the log.

⁴ Pursuant to Rule 212(b), ScanSource requests that if Yelton's motion is granted that Mr. Burke's entire deposition be added to the ROA.

(Ex. F - 7/26/12 Gaida Aff. pp. 3 & 14, attached to Contempt Motion, attached as Exhibit D.)

Mr. Gaida's affidavit, which was submitted to the Special Referee in support of the motion for preliminary injunction, is consistent with Mr. Burke's testimony relied upon by Yelton. (See Mot. p.3 (describing the process, software, and hardware that Mr. Burke had to use in order to access the data on the laptop).) In other words, Mr. Burke's testimony merely reaffirms Gaida's testimony regarding the fact that Yelton downloaded and ran a program on the laptop that rendered the data inaccessible to a layman without specialized computer skills, software, and tools. (See id.) Therefore, Yelton's improper attempt to supplement the ROA with after-discovered evidence should be denied, and the unfounded allegations in his motion should be ignored.

B. The Preliminary Injunction Order is supported by evidence that is properly designated in the ROA.

Even if the evidence of Yelton's use of KillDisk is not considered, the overwhelming record evidence presented to the Special Referee supports the Preliminary Injunction Order. As more fully set forth in Respondent's Initial Brief, the following evidence supports the Special Referee's order:

- 1) Yelton uploaded 863 files from his ScanSource laptop to his Dropbox account on his last full day in the office. (Exhibit D, Contempt Mot.).
- 2) Yelton used the same QBR Flash Drive onto which he had Robbie Cox and Chris Spearman put QBRs on December 12, 2011, in his home computer on January 17, 2012, the day after ScanSource demanded he return its information. (Id. at pp. 13-17; Ex. F-7/26/12 Gaida Aff, attached to Contempt Motion, attached as Exhibit D.; Exhibit E, 8/28/12 Gaida Aff.)
- 3) Yelton has not turned over three USB flash devices (including the QBR Flash Drive) that were connected to both his ScanSource laptop the last week he was in the office and his home computer on January 17, 2012, and thus were in his possession the day after ScanSource demanded he return its information. (Ex. F- 7/26/12 Gaida Aff. ¶¶ 10-11, attached to Contempt Motion, attached as Exhibit D.) He also has not turned over two additional USB flash devices that were connected to his ScanSource laptop the last week he was in the office.

- 4) Yelton requested confidential customer lists from Jeanne Aiken, including the HP List and the Dell List, after he ceased being employed by ScanSource. (Ex. E-Aiken Aff, attached to Contempt Motion, attached as Exhibit D.)
- 5) Before Yelton left ScanSource but after he knew he was leaving, he submitted the New Distribution Model proposal to ScanSource's largest vendors to develop a business that would have needed to rely on ScanSource's Confidential Information, had the TRO not stopped him. (Exhibit F, 8/30/12 Yelton Aff.)

(See Respondent's Initial Br. pp. 14-25 (discussing evidence that supports injunctive relief).)

Furthermore, by arguing that after-discovered evidence related to KillDisk should be considered, Yelton opens the door for supplementing the ROA with additional evidence concerning his misconduct. For example, in the event that the Court grants Yelton's Motion, ScanSource hereby requests that, pursuant to Rule 212(b), the Court add the attached affidavit from Paul Constantine to the ROA. Rule 212, SCACR; (Constantine Aff. (Feb. 27, 2013), attached as Exhibit G.) Mr. Constantine's affidavit explains how Yelton disclosed ScanSource's confidential and proprietary information and trade secrets when he gave two marketing presentations to Honeywell and Motorola in January 2012—presentations for proposals that involved the assistance of third parties who were not parties to the ScanSource-vendor non-disclosure agreements. (Id. at ¶¶ 17-29.) Mr. Constantine also explained that Yelton misappropriated Respondent's trade secrets to create a document Yelton named the "New Distribution Model," which he sent to Honeywell and Motorola after he learned he was terminated. (Constantine Aff. ¶¶ 4-16.) Mr. Constantine's affidavit further explains how the New Distribution Model "describes a business that would compete directly with ScanSource." (Id. at ¶ 4.) Thus, contrary to Yelton's assertions, both the evidence that was presented to the Special Referee and the evidence that has been discovered since the order's entry support the Preliminary Injunction Order. Accordingly, Yelton's Motion should be denied, and the arguments contained therein should not be considered by the Court in deciding this appeal.

CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the Court should deny Yelton's Motion to Supplement the Record with evidence that was not presented to the Special Referee. Further, ScanSource respectfully requests that the Court award ScanSource its costs in responding to this motion and assign appropriate sanctions against Yelton because the motion was frivolous.

Let me double check. As to your second para, are you referring to deposition designations? Also, I do not understand delay in getting all communications with experts. There is nothing to review with respect to privilege if it went to or was received from them. Need dates for Constantine and Baur. Has the search been run on the one term. If so and we can review, I will get that going.

Brian,

A couple of comments on this document: We can't find where you designated this in the record. Where is it listed? Also, unless it was presented to Derrick, it can't be in the ROA per Rule 210(c). Was this presented to Derrick?

Did you already get the materials that we designated? Our paralegal was out with a sick child last week and didn't get finished pulling them together, but she can finish that if you haven't already done it.

Just let us know.

FILED-CLERK OF COURT
GREENVILLE CO. S.C.
PAUL B. WICKENS
2012 OCT 26 P 2:12

This matter is before the Special Referee on Motion by Defendant ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource") for a Preliminary Injunction pursuant to South Carolina Rule of Civil Procedure 65. On February 8, 2012, the Court issued a Temporary Restraining Order in this case. By separate Order of Reference also dated February 8, 2012, the Court appointed the undersigned as Special Referee to rule on Defendant's Motion for Preliminary Injunction.¹ After allowing additional discovery at the request of Plaintiff and considering all submissions and arguments from both parties, including ScanSource's original Motion and supporting affidavits, and the briefs and replies of both parties on the issue of preliminary injunctive relief, the Special Referee finds preliminary injunctive relief is appropriate in this case.

A preliminary injunction is appropriate when necessary to preserve the status quo pending trial and "only upon a showing by the moving party that without such relief it will suffer irreparable harm, that it has a likelihood of success on the merits, and that there is no adequate remedy at law." Poynter v. Century Builders, 387 S.C. 583, 587, 694 S.E.2d 15, 17 (2010); see also Scratch Golf Co. v. Dunes West Residential Golf Props., 361 S.C. 117, 603 S.E.2d 905

copy to Haynsworth @ counter, will mail out copies

(2004); Powell v. Immanuel Baptist Church, 261 S.C. 219, 199 S.E.2d 60 (1973); Peek v. Reg'l Healthcare Sys., 367 S.C. 450, 626 S.E.2d 34 (Ct. App. 2005).

Defendant has demonstrated that it faces the very real threat of irreparable harm absent continued injunctive relief by virtue of the potential use or disclosure of its confidential, trade secret and proprietary information. Furthermore, Plaintiff has acknowledged that Plaintiff is or was in possession of information that is confidential, trade secret and/or proprietary, and that Defendant is entitled to the return of this information in Plaintiff's possession. Although Plaintiff has assured the Special Referee that all such information has been returned pursuant to the Court's February 8, 2012 TRO, Defendant has presented evidence which suggests that this claim is at the very least in doubt and that the requested injunctive relief is necessary to protect Defendant and to preserve the status quo pending a trial upon the merits.

Defendant has also demonstrated a likelihood of success on the merits. Plaintiff is clearly bound not to use or disclose Defendant's proprietary confidential information pursuant to the parties' agreements and South Carolina law, and Plaintiff has no right to make any use or disclosure of this information. Plaintiff also agrees that he should not contact Defendant's employees for the purpose of obtaining such information.

Based on the record before me, absent injunctive relief, Defendant has no adequate remedy at law given that once Defendant's confidential information or trade secrets are improperly used or disclosed, it will be difficult if not impossible to rectify the loss by monetary damages. Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corp. v. Porter, 252 S.C. 478, 481, 167 S.E.2d 313, 315 (1969) ("Irreparable harm is present where an injunction 'is reasonably necessary to protect the legal rights of the plaintiff pending the litigation.'").

Finally, Rule 65(c) requires that “no restraining order or temporary injunction shall issue except upon the giving of security by the applicant, in such sum as the court deems proper, for the payment of such costs and damages as may be suffered or incurred by any party who is found to have been wrongfully enjoined or restrained.” Defendant argues that the bond required by the Court’s February 8, 2012 TRO is sufficient. Not surprisingly, Plaintiff disagrees. In Atwood Agency v. Black, et al., 374 S.C. 68, 73, 646 S.E.2d 882, 884 (2007), our Supreme Court made clear that a restraining order requiring only a nominal security bond does not satisfy Rule 65(c) “because it erroneously assumes the injunction is proper instead of providing an amount sufficient to protect [the enjoined party].”

Based upon the nature of the injunctive relief sought, the undersigned’s knowledge of the procedural history relating to the motion for injunctive relief, as well as case law addressing the damages that are recoverable on an injunction bond, it does not appear that the current bond is adequate should it be determined that Plaintiff has been wrongfully enjoined and/or restrained. Hylar v. Wheeler, 240 S.C. 386, 126 S.E.2d 173 (1962); Walker v. Oswald, 181 S.C. 278, 186 S.E. 916 (1935).

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that Defendant’s Motion for Preliminary Injunction is granted as follows:

- 1) Plaintiff is prohibited from directly or indirectly contacting any Defendant employee to provide Plaintiff with Confidential Information.
- 2) Plaintiff is prohibited from directly or indirectly contacting any vendor or customer of Defendant to provide Plaintiff with Confidential Information.
- 3) Plaintiff is required to immediately return to Defendant any Confidential Information remaining in his possession, custody or control, including, but not limited to, any and all documents, materials, or electronic media containing Confidential Information, including all copies thereof, and eliminating any and all access to the property or information via any Dropbox or other online or cloud accounts. Any disputes regarding the identity of Confidential Information or the form of its return may be decided by the Special Referee.

- 4) To the extent not previously identified, within a reasonable time after discovery, Plaintiff shall identify to the Special Referee and Defendant all computer systems and data storage devices of any kind, including third party-operated personal accounts such as Drop Box or other accounts with cloud based servers or the like, to which Plaintiff has had access, directly or indirectly, since December 16, 2011, for the purposes of submitting same to inspection and verification pursuant to the Consent Protocol dated April 5, 2012 and filed with the court on April 9, 2012.
- 5) Plaintiff is prohibited from intentionally, whether directly or indirectly, using, disclosing, or transmitting any ScanSource Confidential Information.
- 6) For purposes of this Order, Confidential Information is defined as set forth in the Court's February 8, 2012, Temporary Restraining Order.
- 7) Pursuant to Rule 65(c), ScanSource must post a bond in the amount of $15,000 in addition to the $5,000 bond previously required by the February 8, 2012 TRO. The total security required is $20,000.

This Order shall remain in effect during the pendency of this action, and until a further order of the Court.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

PRIORITY MATTER

FILED-CLERK OF COURT
GREENVILLE CO. S.C.
JUL 17 2012
AUL B. WICKENS

Willful disobedience of an order of the court is contempt of court.

Submitting false and misleading testimony is likewise grounds for contempt of court.

Plaintiff Jeff Yelton has done both, and must be sanctioned by the Court.

Plaintiff Yelton ("Yelton") has failed to comply with the February 8, 2012 Temporary Restraining Order's directive for him to return to ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource" or the "Company") any Confidential Information in his possession, custody, or control, as shown by evidence resulting from the electronic forensic investigation of Yelton's devices. Specifically, Yelton has willfully failed to return no fewer than five electronic storage devices that contain ScanSource's confidential and proprietary information in direct violation of this Court's order to return all such devices.

The circumstances surrounding Yelton's failure to comply leave no doubt that his misconduct is deliberate. Given the intense focus in this action on the return of ScanSource's confidential and proprietary information, including months of effort by the Court and counsel to develop a protocol devoted to the return of all storage devices that could even potentially contain such information, Yelton's failure to return these devices is inexcusable.

Compounding this intentional misconduct, Yelton also made several unequivocally false and misleading sworn statements in his January 26, 2012 affidavit filed in opposition to ScanSource's Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction. ScanSource would show the Court as follows:

- 1) Contradicting his sworn statement that he "did not remove company documents or electronic files when he left," (Affidavit of Jeff Yelton at ¶ 12, attached as Exhibit A), Yelton did the following:
 - a. Requested and received, on external thumb drives, confidential and proprietary Quarterly Business Reports for Motorola, Intermec, and Honeywell on December 13 and 14, 2011;
 - b. Uploaded 863 files to his Dropbox account from his ScanSource Laptop on December 15, 2011, the day before his last day of work; and
 - c. Accessed and edited confidential and proprietary ScanSource files through his Dropbox account on January 4, 2012.
- 2) Contradicting his sworn statement that his Dropbox account "was tied to my ScanSource e-mail account," (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 23), Yelton's account proved to be tied to his AOL.com account.
- 3) Contradicting his sworn statement that he "did not remove from company premises hard copies of ScanSource reports and records or an external hard drive as claimed by ScanSource," (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 12), Yelton took everything out of his office, including ScanSource confidential and proprietary information.
- 4) Contradicting his sworn statement that, "[t]o the best of my knowledge, I did not destroy or discard any documents that are not stored at ScanSource but only notes I had that would not be of any use to anyone else or paper copies of documents that are stored electronically," (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 10), Yelton ran a program named KillDisk on his ScanSource computer on December 16, 2011, at 7:41 AM, erasing three partitions of data from the Company's laptop and irreparably disabling the laptop.¹

Yelton's acts constitute both civil and criminal contempt under South Carolina law. Accordingly, pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 14-5-320 and the South Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure, ScanSource petitions the Court for an Order: (1) compelling Yelton to appear and show cause as to why he should not be held in civil and criminal contempt for his deliberate disobedience of this Court's Temporary Restraining Order and for knowingly making false and misleading statements in his sworn affidavit; (2) directing Yelton to return the Confidential Information that he has continued to withhold, and providing that any electronic devices on which the information resides shall be subject to a forensic inspection and any necessary actions to return ScanSource's Confidential Information, all at Yelton's expense; (3) dismissing Plaintiff's Complaint with prejudice; (4) granting ScanSource's motion for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief; (5) granting ScanSource the relief it seeks in its counterclaims; (6) awarding ScanSource all costs, fees, and expenses associated with this petition; and (7) imposing fines against Yelton that this Court determines are an appropriate penalty .

In addition, Yelton's failure to identify and produce the five devices also constitutes a failure to respond to interrogatories and requests for production served by ScanSource, and therefore, pursuant to Rule 37, SCRCF, ScanSource moves for an order compelling production of the devices and electronic information and for sanctions for failure to respond to discovery.

ScanSource proprietary data in this fashion cannot be overstated. Yelton was trying to prevent the discovery of his misconduct, and his mistaken belief that he had succeeded in covering his tracks may explain (but not excuse) his failure to return the devices in question.

FACTS SHOWING CONTEMPT OF COURT

I. Yelton's Termination and Actions Before Leaving ScanSource

Yelton resigned from ScanSource effective December 31, 2011, after a meeting with Scott Benbenek on December 9, 2011, in which Mr. Benbenek informed him of the Company's decision to terminate his employment. (Affidavit of Scott Benbenek at ¶ 4 ("Benbenek Affidavit"), attached as Exhibit B.²) While coordinating with Mr. Benbenek and ScanSource's in-house counsel, John Ellsworth, about how he would announce his resignation, Yelton posted a status on his Facebook account that led people to believe he was leaving. (Id. at ¶ 5.) After some disparaging comments by Yelton were reported to management, the Company elected to accelerate Yelton's departure, and his last day of work was December 15, 2011. (Id. at ¶ 10-11.)

After the December 9, 2011 meeting, Yelton undertook numerous actions which directly contradict sworn testimony in Yelton's January 26, 2012 affidavit that was presented to the Court in opposition to ScanSource's motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction.

First, on December 13 and 14, 2011, after he knew he was leaving but before he had announced his resignation (and before his subordinates were aware of his impending departure), Yelton requested and received confidential and proprietary information from ScanSource employees, including Quarterly Business Reports ("QBRs"), by asking the employees to load the information onto a thumb drive. (See Benbenek Affidavit at ¶ 12; Affidavit of Chris Spearman at ¶¶ 4-5, attached as Exhibit C;

² ScanSource attached several affidavits to its Motion for Temporary Restraining Order, and those Affidavits are attached again here for reference: Affidavits of Jeanne Aiken, Exhibit E; Scott Benbenek, Exhibit B; Robbie Cox, Exhibit D; Amy Pharr, Exhibit G; and Chris Spearman, Exhibit C.

Affidavit of Robbie Cox at ¶ 5, attached as Exhibit D.) Yelton also requested, but did not receive, other confidential ScanSource information. (See Affidavit of Jeanne Aiken at ¶ 5, attached as Exhibit E.) Taking this information contradicts Yelton's sworn statement: "I did not remove company documents or electronic files when I left." (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 12.)

Second, on December 15, 2011, at 12:06 PM, Yelton moved 863 files from his ScanSource laptop into his Dropbox account.³ (See Affidavit of Dean Gaida of FTI at Part II.A, ¶ 9, attached as Exhibit F.) By uploading these files to his Dropbox account, Yelton immediately could access the files from any other device he had synced to Dropbox. (Id. at Part II.A, ¶¶ 2-4.) Yelton had at least three devices connected to Dropbox, including his home laptop, which was last connected to Dropbox on February 13, 2012. (Id. at ¶ Part II.A, ¶ 8(a).) Of the 863 files added on December 15, 2011, and viewable at the top file level of the Dropbox activity record, BD2005 Resource Funding.xls; among many others, is ScanSource's confidential and proprietary information. (Id. at Ex. C.)

Additionally, Yelton accessed and edited at least three confidential and proprietary ScanSource files in his Dropbox account after December 15, 2011: General Two Tier Distribution Pres.ppt, edited on January 3, 2012; Bottom 1000 Catalog Reciepients.xls, edited on January 4, 2012; and BU 01 Forecasting Worksheet 04-2011 (2).xls, edited on January 4, 2012. (Id. at Part II.B, ¶ 12.) Accessing and editing these ³ Dropbox is an online external cloud storage service that allows a user to add documents to a Dropbox folder on his computer. Dropbox then will sync the folders so that the user can access the documents on all devices the user has connected to Dropbox. See Dropbox, How do I add or upload files to my Dropbox?, available at <https://www.dropbox.com/help/90/en>.

ScanSource documents in his Dropbox account after his last day of work directly contradicts Yelton's sworn statement described above—"I did not remove company documents or electronic files when I left." (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 12.)

Even though he professed to have not removed any company documents or electronic files, Yelton also deleted or moved ScanSource files from Dropbox after December 15, 2011. When files indicate they are "Deleted" on Dropbox, they could be actually deleted or they simply could have been moved to another location, either on the same device or a different device. (See Gaida Affidavit at Part II.B, ¶ 12.) Yelton "deleted"—or moved; it is impossible to determine which—numerous ScanSource confidential and proprietary files after his departure, including but not limited to the following: 2011_Future_Path Jeff.ppt; Coal fire pres.pptx; Capital Project – Key Injection ...s Warehouse.xls; Datalogic Terms Letter.doc; Fujitsu Channel Presentation 1.pptx; and Q1 Vendor Perf Report USA.pdf. (Gaida Affidavit at Ex. C.) That Yelton even had to delete or move these files means that he had access to them after his departure from ScanSource.

Further, Yelton's Dropbox account was linked to his jyelton215@aol.com account. (See Exhibit C to Gaida Affidavit, Dropbox screenshots.) This evidence contradicts his sworn statement: "The DropBox account in use when I was employed with ScanSource was tied to my ScanSource e-mail account." (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 23.)

Third, on December 15, 2011, apparently while misappropriating the ScanSource files through Dropbox, Yelton packed up his office and emptied it of its entire contents. (Affidavit of Amy Pharr at ¶ 5.) On February 14, 2012, Yelton provided ScanSource with access to the boxes of materials taken from his ScanSource office, which included confidential and proprietary ScanSource information, which ScanSource collected and later produced as Yelton00614 to Yelton01264. Indeed, a VDC Research memorandum regarding NFC Payments and an Erwin-Penland report named ScanSource Online Community Strategy were labeled “Confidential,” obviously signifying that this information was confidential to ScanSource. (Yelton00746, Yelton00754, attached as Exhibit H (redacted confidential material pursuant to Confidentiality Protective Order).) Amy Pharr met with Yelton on the morning of December 16, 2011, to process his departure, and she noted that the office was emptied. (Affidavit of Amy Pharr at ¶ 5.) Whether or not the documents were confidential, removing these ScanSource documents from his office contradicts Yelton’s sworn statement: “I did not remove from company premises hard copies of ScanSource reports and records or an external hard drive as claimed by ScanSource.” (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 12.) In addition, all of these acts of removing information from ScanSource contradict Yelton’s sworn statement: “Defendant’s suggestion that I took any documents is false.” (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 5.)

Fourth, on December 16, 2011 at 7:41 AM, his last hours in the office, Yelton installed and ran a program named “KillDisk” on his ScanSource laptop, disabling the laptop and erasing portions of the laptop’s data. (Gaida Affidavit at Part III.) Using KillDisk, Yelton erased the “System Reserve partition,” which is necessary for Windows 7 to boot up a computer. (Id. at Part III, ¶ 7.) Thus, Yelton deleted critical system data and rendered the computer incapable of ever being booted and used again. Amy Pharr attempted to shut down Yelton’s machine when he left, but was unable to do so due to the KillDisk program damage to the machine. (Pharr Affidavit at ¶ 7.)

Yelton apparently chose KillDisk after his December 15, 2011 internet research into other programs named “Darik’s Boot and Nuke,” also known as dban, and “White Canyon,” both of which are designed to destroy data and erase hard drives. (Gaida Affidavit at Part III, ¶ 4.) He methodically identified a program that “allows you to destroy all data on hard disks, USB drives and floppy disks completely, excluding any possibility of future recovery of deleted files and folders.” (Id. at Part III, ¶ 5 (quoting www.killdisk.com).) These actions contradict Yelton’s sworn statement: “To the best of my knowledge, I did not destroy or discard any documents that are not stored at ScanSource but only notes I had that would not be of any use to anyone else or paper copies of documents that are stored electronically.” (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 10.) Yelton’s careful statement belies that he rendered his ScanSource computer unusable with KillDisk, preventing a lay user from knowing what he had done on the computer before his departure. Only with the help of a forensics technician were his misdeeds uncovered. In light of Yelton’s deliberate use of a program he downloaded from the internet to destroy evidence of his misconduct immediately before his departure, this false statement cannot be characterized as accidental.

These actions by Yelton after he learned of his termination on December 9, 2011, were intentional and malicious and breached his Employment Agreement and Release, along with various ScanSource policies. However, ScanSource only gradually began to recognize Yelton’s misdeeds when several Merchandising Directors met with Scott Benbenek on December 30, 2011, and explained to him that Yelton had requested the confidential and proprietary QBRs and other data after Yelton knew he was leaving but before any of them were aware. (See Benbenek Affidavit at ¶ 12; Aiken Affidavit at ¶ 5; Cox Affidavit at ¶ 5; Spearman Affidavit at ¶¶ 4-6.)

II. ScanSource Demands Yelton Return Its Confidential Information

On January 16, 2012, ScanSource's in-counsel John Ellsworth emailed a letter to Yelton describing what ScanSource had learned of his activities as of that date and asking Yelton to remedy the Company's concerns or ScanSource would be forced to take legal action. On January 18, 2012, Yelton filed a Complaint against ScanSource in state court in Greenville County.

On January 24, 2012, ScanSource answered, asserting counterclaims, and moved for a Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction for the following relief:

- 1) Preventing Yelton from directly or indirectly soliciting or encouraging any person employed by ScanSource to provide him with Confidential Information or Trade Secrets;
- 2) Preventing Yelton from directly or indirectly soliciting or encouraging any customer or supplier of ScanSource to provide him with Confidential Information or Trade Secrets;
- 3) Requiring Yelton to return any and all property or information rightfully belonging to, or wrongfully taken from, ScanSource, including any and all documents, materials, or electronic media (computers, hard drives, computer discs, PDAs, USB drives, etc.) containing information regarding ScanSource, its products, customers, or suppliers, including all copies thereof, and eliminating any and all access to same via Dropbox or other personal accounts with cloud based servers; and

- 4) Requiring Yelton to submit to a computer examination and inspection of all of his computer systems and data, including third party-operated personal accounts containing any company information, such as Dropbox or other personal accounts with cloud based servers, to ensure none of the information unlawfully transmitted or destroyed by Plaintiff from ScanSource's protected computer remained in Plaintiff's possession, custody, or control.

In response to ScanSource's motion, Yelton filed the affidavit described above dated January 26, 2012, in which he offered his sworn testimony about ScanSource Confidential Information and his actions. (See Yelton Affidavit, Exhibit A.) Although ScanSource was not yet aware of the extent of his disloyalties, Yelton knew then that he had moved the 863 files to Dropbox and then edited, restored, and moved them. He knew then that he had taken everything from his office, including ScanSource confidential and proprietary information. He knew then that he had used KillDisk to erase data and irreparably damage his ScanSource laptop. Yelton knew of these actions on January 26, 2012, when he executed the affidavit, so he knew that the testimony in the affidavit was not true.

III. The Temporary Restraining Order Requires Yelton to Return ScanSource's Confidential Information

At the January 27, 2012 hearing, Judge Hill orally granted the Temporary Restraining Order and directed ScanSource to prepare a proposed order. However, Yelton immediately objected to any specific requirements in the draft order regarding how he must return the electronic confidential information subject to the order. For over a week, the parties attempted to negotiate the terms of the order, with Judge Hill ultimately issuing an order on February 8, 2012. (Temporary Restraining Order, attached as Exhibit I.) The TRO specifically required the following:

1. Plaintiff is prohibited from directly or indirectly contacting ScanSource's employees for the purpose of obtaining Confidential Information.
2. Plaintiff must return to ScanSource any Confidential Information in his possession, custody, or control within the time period set by the Special Referee. Any disputes concerning the identity of Confidential Information or the form of its return shall be decided by the Special Referee.
3. Confidential Information or Trade Secrets ("Confidential Information") include but are not limited to information described in Plaintiff's Employment Agreement (attached as Exhibit A to ScanSource's Answer and Counterclaims), ScanSource's Business Ethics and Code of Conduct (attached as Exhibit D to ScanSource's Answer and Counterclaims), the S.C. Trade Secrets Act, and South Carolina law.

(TRO at 2.) The TRO also required ScanSource to post a $5,000 bond and to keep personally identifiable or financial information about third parties confidential. (Id.)

Yelton began the negotiations to return information days after the TRO hearing, when he described 14 devices that he used while employed at ScanSource and that he possessed:

The hardware that we have identified that Jeff used during the time of his employment and that he possesses consists of: (1) the HP laptop he has used regularly for the past 18 months or so (this is the one that had Dropbox); (2) an older HP laptop that he has started using again; (3) an even older Dell Inspiron 9100 laptop; (4) a desktop computer at home used for his photography hobby; (5) a black WD external hard drive (the one that backed up the Dropbox files we put on the flash drives you have); (6) a silver WD external hard drive that I understand backs up the photography computer; (7) the Cisco flash drive you have; (8) the Accubanker flash drive you have; (8) [sic] Three silver Epson/ScanSource flashdrives; (9) a Microsoft flashdrive; (10) a BMW flashdrive; and (11) an iPad 1.

(Email from Brian Murphy to Corky Harper, RE: Brad – are you in your office? (Jan. 28, 2012), attached as Exhibit J.) Yelton identified this list of devices 42 days after his last day in the office at ScanSource on December 16, 2011, and 12 days after he received the January 16, 2012 letter from ScanSource demanding the return of ScanSource's information.

Of these 14 devices, Yelton turned over to ScanSource's counsel at the TRO hearing items (7), the Cisco flash drive, and (8), the Accubanker flash drive, and ScanSource's counsel sent those hard drives to FTI. (Gaida Affidavit at Part II.A, ¶ 10.)

To effect Yelton's return of ScanSource's Confidential Information as required by the TRO, the parties agreed to negotiate a protocol for the return of the information. On February 14, 2012, the parties met with the Special Referee to discuss the Preliminary Injunction and how to return ScanSource's Confidential Information, including the information on the remaining 12 devices. Yelton brought boxes of documents that he had removed from his office on December 15 and 16, 2011, and ScanSource's counsel examined the documents to identify ScanSource's information, as explained above.

Yelton also produced 11 devices that were turned over to the Special Referee's custody in a sealed box with a label describing the contents of the box as the following: "(1) A hard drive from an HP laptop; (2) another HP laptop; (3) a Dell Inspiron 9100 laptop; (4) a black WD external hard drive; (5) a silver WD external hard drive; (6) three silver Epson/ScanSource flashdrives; (7) a Microsoft flashdrive; (8) a BMW flashdrive; and (9) an iPad 1." (Consent Order on Protocol for Conducting Discovery as to Certain Hardware Produced by Plaintiff at 1 ("Protocol"), attached as Exhibit K.) Yelton agreed to produce his home desktop computer for examination at a later time. (Id. at 1-2.)

Thus, by February 14, 2012, of the devices Yelton identified just after the TRO hearing, when he was ordered to return all ScanSource Confidential Information, Yelton had produced 13 of the 14 electronic devices and had promised to produce the fourteenth. Due to Yelton's objections to the proposed process for returning ScanSource's Confidential Information, ScanSource did not have access to the 12 devices Yelton had turned over or promised to turn over until the parties could agree to a protocol for examination and investigation of the devices.

IV. Yelton Turns Over Some Devices, But Not All

After seven weeks of negotiations and several presentations to the Special Referee, the parties agreed to the Consent Protocol, which was entered on April 9, 2012. The Protocol applied to the 11 devices produced by Yelton to the Special Referee on February 14, 2012, and the home desktop that Yelton promised to produce at a later time. (Protocol at 1.) Pursuant to the Protocol, the 11 devices were hand-delivered to John Akerman of Rosen Litigation Technology Consulting, Inc., on April 20, 2012. (Affidavit of John Akerman at ¶ 2, attached as Exhibit L.)

Akerman imaged the 11 devices, creating forensically sound exact copies of the contents of each device except the Dell laptop, for which no complete image could be obtained. (Akerman Affidavit at ¶¶ 2-3.) He also collected the serial numbers of each of the 11 devices. (Id. at ¶ 2, ¶ 4.) Beginning on June 27, 2012, Akerman imaged Yelton's home desktop computer that Yelton had promised to produce at a later time.

(Id. at ¶¶ 6-7.) Separately from Akerman’s work, FTI also identified the serial numbers of the two USB drives that Yelton had turned over at the TRO hearing. (Gaida Affidavit at Part II.A, ¶ 10.)

In a separate analysis, FTI determined the USB devices that had been connected to the ScanSource Laptop (“USB Analysis”). (Gaida Affidavit at Part II.A, ¶ 8.) The USB Analysis shows that five external storage devices were connected to Yelton’s ScanSource Laptop in the period from December 9, 2011, the day Yelton met with Scott Benbenek about his resignation, to December 16, 2011, the last day Yelton physically was in his ScanSource office and used the ScanSource Laptop. (Id.) The five devices that FTI identified as having been connected during that timeframe are not among the 14 devices that Yelton has produced. A summary of the results of the various analyses demonstrates clearly that Yelton did not produce the five devices:

Further, a Link File Analysis conducted by FTI shows that Yelton likely accessed confidential and proprietary ScanSource information from these missing devices during the critical timeframe of December 9, 2011 to December 16, 2011. (Gaida Affidavit at Part I.B & Exhibit G.) Without the devices, the only logical conclusion is that the files are on those devices. The confidential and proprietary files likely on those devices include the following:

1. New Distribution Model for Motorola.doc
2. Motorola_Public_Relations_Resources.zip⁴
3. New Distribution Model.doc
4. 2011-11 POS Barcode 6 Mos Comparative Income Statement.xls

7. SCSC_WAREHOUSE_TRENDS_110111.pdf

⁴ The first two of the files relate to Motorola, one of ScanSource's largest vendors. This information undoubtedly was useful to Yelton when he formed his own company on January 12, 2012, and decided to become a reseller of Motorola's two-way radios. See S.C. Secretary of State, Wired Fox Technologies, Inc., available at <http://www.sos.sc.gov/index.asp?n=18&p=4&s=18&corporateid=636006>, and Two Way Radio Center, About Us, available at <http://twowayradiocenter.com/about-us/>, both attached as Exhibit M.

17. Source Guide update 9-2011.xlsx

(Gaida Affidavit, Ex. G.) Each of these documents contains confidential and proprietary information of ScanSource. The TRO requires Yelton to return all Confidential Information; accordingly, these files must be returned.

Because they were connected to his ScanSource laptop and very likely contain ScanSource's confidential and proprietary information, the five missing devices are subject to the TRO and should have been identified and produced by Yelton pursuant to the order. He can present no viable explanation for why he did not produce them, especially given the short timeframe between when he left ScanSource—December 16, 2011—and when he knew ScanSource wanted him to return the information he took—January 16, 2012. He had even until April 9, 2012, when the Protocol was entered, to identify and produce any additional devices. His office was empty, save for personnel files, so they were not left in his ScanSource office. (Pharr Affidavit, at ¶ 5.) By not producing these devices, Yelton has violated the TRO and should be ordered to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Furthermore, Yelton was obligated by the Protocol to identify “any online cloud-based server accounts or similar accounts where it is possible to transmit or store data or information, which may be subject to the TRO.” (Protocol at ¶ 20.) Yelton admitted in his affidavit that he opened a new Dropbox account, but states that “it would have no ability to sync with any ScanSource computer.” (Yelton Affidavit at ¶ 23 n.1.) Had Yelton turned over all of his devices, the new Dropbox account may not have been an issue. However, because devices remain missing and Yelton has already taken steps to conceal data taken from ScanSource, the new Dropbox account must be examined to detect any ScanSource confidential information, which must be removed.

Given the intense focus in this litigation on the return of any and all electronic storage devices that could contain ScanSource confidential and proprietary information, including months of effort in negotiating the Protocol addressing that very issue, for Yelton to have failed to return five devices connected to his computer and to have downloaded ScanSource information in the final days of his employment is simply shocking and utterly inexcusable. Indeed, it can only be viewed as intentional.

LAW

I. Contempt of Court

Contempt is a “willful disobedience of an order of the court.” Miller v. Miller, 375 S.C. 443, 454, 652 S.E.2d 754, 759 (Ct. App. 2007). Willful disobedience requires an act that is done “voluntarily and intentionally with the specific intent to do something the law forbids, or with the specific intent to fail to do something the law requires to be done.” Widman v. Widman, 348 S.C. 97, 119, 557 S.E.2d 693, 705 (quoting Spartanburg County Dep’t of Soc. Servs. v. Padgett, 296 S.C. 79, 82-83, 270 S.E.2d 872, 874 (1988)). “It is within the trial court’s discretion to punish by fine or imprisonment all contempts of authority before the court.” Brandt v. Gooding, 368 S.C. 616, 618; 630 S.E.2d 259, 264 (2006) (citing S.C. Code Ann. § 14-5-320 (1976)). “In addition, courts have the inherent power to punish for offenses that are calculated to obstruct, degrade, and undermine the administration of justice.” Id. (citing State ex rel. McLeod v. Hite, 272 S.C. 303, 305, 251 S.E.2d 746, 747 (1979)).

Direct contempt is contemptuous conduct occurring in the presence of the court. Miller, 375 S.C. at 455, 652 S.E.2d at 760 (citation omitted). A person may be found guilty of direct contempt if the conduct interferes with judicial proceedings, exhibits disrespect for the court, or hampers the parties or witnesses. Brandt, 368 S.C. at 628, 630 S.E.2d at 264.

In contrast, constructive contempt is contemptuous conduct occurring outside the presence of the court. Miller, 375 S.C. at 455, 652 S.E.2d at 760 (citation omitted). A charge of constructive contempt is brought by a rule to show cause based on an affidavit or verified petition. State v. Kennerly, 331 S.C. 442, 451, 503 S.E.2d 214, 219 (Ct. App. 1998), aff’d 337 S.C. 617, 524 S.E.2d 837 (1999) (citing Toyota of Florence, Inc. v. Lynch, 314 S.C. 257, 442 S.E.2d 611 (1994)). Once the moving party has made a prima facie case for contempt, “the burden then shifts to the respondent to establish his or her defense and inability to comply with the order.” Miller, 375 S.C. at 454, 652 S.E.2d at 760 (quoting Widman, 348 S.C. at 120, 557 S.E.2d at 705).

Judicial sanctions in civil contempt cases are imposed to achieve either or both of the following two purposes: “to coerce the defendant into compliance with the court’s order, and to compensate the complainant for losses sustained.” Cheap-O’s Truck Stop, Inc. v. Cloyd, 350 S.C. 596, 607, 567 S.E.2d 514, 519 (Ct. App. 2002). In criminal contempt cases, judicial sanctions serve a punitive purpose. “The primary purposes for criminal contempt are to preserve the court’s authority and to punish for disobedience of its orders.” Miller, 375 S.C. at 456, 615 S.E.2d at 761. ScanSource’s underlying purposes for seeking this order of contempt are to bring Yelton in line with the TRO, to compensate ScanSource for the losses it has sustained in determining whether Yelton produced all of the devices with ScanSource’s Confidential Information, and to punish Yelton for the disrespect he has shown this Court in violating the TRO and submitting an untruthful affidavit. See Brandt, 368 S.C. at 630, 630 S.E.2d at 265 (holding it is appropriate to find civil and criminal contempt in one case).

Violating the TRO and submitting an untruthful affidavit to this Court constitute civil and criminal contempt, and ScanSource seeks the following relief:

- (a) An order directing Yelton to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for violation of this Court’s Temporary Restraining Order.

Based on the affidavits attached to this petition, ScanSource has established beyond a prima facie showing that Yelton has acted in contempt of court.

- (b) A direction that Yelton return the Confidential Information that he has continued to withhold, and that any electronic devices on which the information resides shall be subject to a forensic inspection and any necessary actions be taken to return ScanSource’s Confidential Information, all at Yelton’s expense.

One of ScanSource’s primary goals in this action is to secure the return of its Confidential Information. Based on the USB Analysis, Yelton has failed to return at least five devices that likely contain ScanSource's Confidential Information. These devices, along with any other electronic device in Yelton's possession, custody, or control, should be submitted to a forensic inspection to determine whether they contain any ScanSource Confidential Information. Pursuant to the TRO, this information must be returned to ScanSource. Further, Yelton should be ordered to provide ScanSource with access to Yelton's new Dropbox account. Because Yelton's actions in contempt of court have necessitated these additional examinations, Yelton should be ordered to pay for the expense of the examination and return of the ScanSource information.

(c) Dismissal of Yelton's Complaint with prejudice.

Yelton's actions in violating the TRO and submitting a false affidavit warrant dismissal of his Complaint with prejudice, both as a remedy for ScanSource's losses associated with this petition and as a punishment for his blatant disregard for the TRO and for the administration of justice. He should not be entitled to rely on the judicial process for relief when he accords it no respect.

In addition to dismissal of Yelton's Complaint based on his actions in contempt of court, ScanSource moves this court pursuant to Rule 41(b), SCRCR, to strike Yelton's Complaint with prejudice as a further appropriate remedy for violating this Court's order and lying on a sworn affidavit. "Dismissal is a proper sanction against a complainant who submits fraudulent documents to the court." Brandt, 368 S.C. at 627, 630 S.E.2d at 264.

(d) An order granting ScanSource's motion for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief,

(e) An order granting ScanSource the relief it seeks in its counterclaims.

As punishment to Yelton and compensation to ScanSource, ScanSource's motion for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief and the relief sought in its counterclaims should be granted. The evidence presented in support of this petition only further strengthens the grounds supporting these requests for relief. Yelton's numerous actions against ScanSource's interests show that he acted willfully and in bad faith. He breached his Employment Agreement and Release, and as a result, he is not entitled to the severance which ScanSource agreed to provide as part of his resignation.

(f) An award of all costs, fees, and expenses associated with this petition.

As punishment for violating the TRO and in compensation to ScanSource, Yelton should be required to reimburse ScanSource for its costs, fees, and expenses associated with investigating, preparing, and presenting this petition to the Court. Consumption of these resources could have been avoided if Yelton had turned over the five devices or explained their whereabouts. He used them in the period from December 9, 2011 to December 16, 2011, and any statement that he forgot about them by January 16, 2012, when ScanSource demanded that he return its information, would be disingenuous.

(g) Imposition of fines that this Court determines are an appropriate penalty.

Yelton's actions in contempt of court are too many to repair and move forward. Returning ScanSource's Confidential Information, dismissing Yelton's claims and granting ScanSource the relief it seeks, and reimbursing ScanSource's costs would not right the wrongs that Yelton has perpetrated. This Court should impose punitive fines against Yelton to reimburse and compensate the judicial system for his wrongs against it.

II. Failure to Respond to Discovery

In addition to being in contempt of court for failing to turn over at least the five devices and as otherwise described above, Yelton has failed to respond to ScanSource's discovery requests, thus violating Rule 33, SCRCP. Specifically, ScanSource asked and Yelton answered the following Interrogatory:

INTERROGATORIES

1. Identify each of the repositories of electronic or hard copy documents or information that Plaintiff used during the time of his employment with Defendant and to present, including the manufacturer and serial number, if any, and the current location of that repository.

RESPONSE: To the extent this is seeking information regarding the hardware Plaintiff used, he has identified all such devices of which he is currently aware.

(Excerpt from Plaintiff Yelton's Responses to Defendant ScanSource's Discovery, attached as Exhibit N.) Further, in response to ScanSource's Requests for Production to obtain the electronic information, Yelton answered as follows:

REQUESTS

1. Produce any and all documents and electronic information identified in the answers to Defendant's interrogatories.

RESPONSE: All such documents have been made available.

2. Produce any and all documents and electronic information in Plaintiff's possession, custody, or control that at any time were located or stored on ScanSource's property, including electronic devices or storage media.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this would literally call for every document ever created by a ScanSource person, including a pay check, etc. Plaintiff has endeavored to find all non-privileged documents in his possession related to his employment with ScanSource and already made such documents available.

3. Produce any and all documents and electronic information in Plaintiff's possession, custody, or control that relate to Defendant.

RESPONSE: See response to RTP 2.

(Excerpt from Plaintiff Yelton's Responses to Defendant ScanSource's Discovery.) As shown above, Yelton has not produced at least five devices that he used between December 9, 2011 and December 16, 2011.

Rule 37(d), SCRPC provides that if a party fails to answer interrogatories or requests for production, the court may take any of the actions described in Rule 37(b)(2)(A), (B), or (C), which include issuing an order striking Plaintiff's Complaint. In another situation involving electronic evidence, when a party caused a computer's hard drive to be effectively erased, the Court of Appeals affirmed the trial court's finding that the party willfully violated a TRO and the trial court's order striking the party's answer. See QZO, Inc. v. Moyer, 358 S.C. 246, 257, 594 S.E.2d 541, 548 (Ct. App. 2004); see also Griffin Grading & Clearing, Inc. v. Tire Serv. Equip. Mfg. Co., 334 S.C. 193, 511 S.E.2d 716 (Ct. App. 1999) (affirming trial court's striking defendant's answer as a discovery sanction based on defendant's failure to comply with four prior orders compelling discovery).

ScanSource therefore moves for an order compelling Yelton to answer the interrogatory and requests for production. In addition, ScanSource moves for a sanction in striking Plaintiff's Complaint and for attorneys' fees and costs incurred in filing this motion.

CONCLUSION

Yelton's abuses of the judicial process cannot go unnoticed and unaddressed. He has violated this Court's TRO and submitted a false affidavit to the Court. As a remedy, compensation, and punishment, ScanSource seeks the following relief:

- (a) An order directing Yelton to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for violation of this Court's Temporary Restraining Order;
- (b) A direction that Yelton return the Confidential Information that he has continued to withhold, and that any electronic devices on which the information resides shall be subject to a forensic inspection and any necessary actions to return ScanSource's Confidential Information shall be taken, all at Yelton's expense;
- (c) Dismissal of Yelton's complaint with prejudice;
- (d) An order granting ScanSource's motion for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief;
- (e) An order granting ScanSource the relief it seeks in its counterclaims;
- (f) An award of all costs, fees, and expenses associated with this petition;

- (g) Imposition of fines that this Court determines are an appropriate penalty;
- (h) An order compelling answers to the interrogatories and requests for production;
- (i) Such other fines, penalties, and relief as this Court deems appropriate.

Pursuant to Rule 11, SCRCP, ScanSource's counsel certifies that he communicated with Plaintiff's counsel in a good faith attempt to resolve this motion. The matter could not be resolved.

Plaintiff is an adult over the age of 18 years and the following are true and correct facts personally known to Plaintiff and are within his personal knowledge:

1. I have not sought work with any other distributor and do not have an intention at this time to do so.
2. Since the termination of my employment, I have not performed any services for anyone as an employee or independent contractor.
3. I have not disclosed any confidential information of ScanSource to any competitor of ScanSource, or to anyone else.
4. I agree that QBR (quarterly business review) documents contain information that ScanSource would not want to provide to a competitor and that, if given to a competitor, it could help them to the disadvantage of ScanSource.
5. I do not have any QBR's in my possession of which I am aware and have not had any since I left the Company. I did not take any QBR's when I left. Defendant's suggestion that I took any documents is false. Prior to the termination of my employment, I did request to review the most recent QBR's for Motorola, Honeywell, and Intermec. A QBR is a report on the status of the business for the vendor and is shared with the vendor. There is nothing secretive about the information as between the particular vendor and ScanSource as the information (including the document itself) is shared between them. And there was nothing "surreptitious" about my request. I wanted to review the reports because I planned on possibly seeking work with these companies. I wanted to make sure it was clear that I was knowledgeable about the state of their business. If I interviewed and did not display knowledge regarding the state of the vendor's business, it would have reflected poorly not only on myself, but also on ScanSource. There never was any intent or effort to use any QBR information to the detriment of ScanSource, and certainly no desire, intent, or attempt to use it to compete against ScanSource or to disclose it to any competitors. Again, this is information already provided to the vendor and me.

6. If I wanted to secretly, or "surreptitiously" obtain the QBR documents, I could have pulled them off of the servers myself and, in fact, the documents may have been in my emails. I simply asked various people for the QBR's because it was the quickest and easiest way. I requested the information in what I call the "bullpen" area where the cubicles are located. As Mr. Spearman's affidavit establishes, I made the requests in a manner in which others could easily hear me.
7. I have had contact with Motorola, Honeywell, and Intermec. I have discussed possible employment with Motorola and Honeywell.

8. My intention when I learned I was leaving ScanSource was to obtain employment with a vendor.
9. I e-mailed Jim Welch at Motorola and a contact at Honeywell (two vendors) for purposes of inquiring about employment and discussing certain industry views. The first e-mail to Welch is attached to the Eassy affidavit. I have actually had contact with both, but none of the information ultimately exchanged has anything to do with ScanSource or its confidential information. Instead, the information I provided them describes the strategies I was considering for my new venture or work with them.
10. I cleaned out my office on Thursday, December 15 and Friday, December 16. I was instructed by Mike Bauer and John Ellsworth to clean out my office at this time. It took several trips as I had many personal items and papers pre-dating my employment with ScanSource that I kept in my office. With respect to company papers, I put documents that were not confidential in the regular trash. I put copies of documents that contained business information that were in my office in a secured trash can designated for confidential documents. To the best of my knowledge, I did not destroy or discard any documents that are not stored at ScansSource but only notes I had that would not be of any use to anyone else or paper copies of documents that are stored electronically.
11. The suggestion that I have told anyone that I took documents about which I do not know the whereabouts now is completely false. I explained, in detail, what I did with respect to the documents in my office when questioned by Scott Benbenek.

12. I did not remove company documents or electronic files when I left. I did not remove from company premises hard copies of ScanSource reports and records or an external hard drive as claimed by ScanSource.
13. When I left the office the QBR documents were on a flash drive that was in my office. To the extent that drive "disappeared," I certainly have no knowledge as to how that would have happened since it was there when I left.
14. The documents that are on the flash drives that I provided to my counsel for the purpose of returning to ScanSource are not documents from my ScanSource office. The flash drive files I have turned over contain documents that were on a backup drive at home that backed up my hard drive in the normal course of my work. I put these documents on the flash drive so they could be returned. I would be surprised if the QBR documents provided to me in December are on those flash drives. The only way that would have happened that I can imagine is if the QBRs were sent earlier in an email that was in the Dropbox at the time of a backup. I am not, however, aware that they are on those drives. In any event, any suggestion that either of the flash drives I have turned over is the same flash drive that was in my office would be incorrect.
15. I deleted data off of my laptop hard drive because I kept personal records on that computer. I did not destroy any company documents or data as it is all stored on ScanSource servers.
16. On January 4, I informed ScanSource of my plans to start a technology manufacturing outsourcer for education, marketing, and lead generation called VarsGuide. A copy of my email is attached. I am still considering this as an option to working directly for a vendor.

17. With respect to Ms. Aiken's affidavit:

- a. Re paragraph 5: I have no understanding what Ms. Aiken is referring to about a list with 18,000 customers, I don't know what a "Dell list" is, or that there is any "Dell customer list." To the best of my knowledge, Dell is not a vendor of ScanSource. I certainly did not ask Ms. Aiken for such a list.
- b. HP is not a current vendor of ScanSource, except that another division buys one product of which I am aware that has nothing to do with point of sale or bar coding division. The HP document does not contain a list of ScanSource customers. From what I understand there is very little overlap between ScanSource customers and HP customers such that an HP list would be useful in any attempt to compete against ScanSource if one was so inclined. I did not request the list for the purpose of competing with ScanSource. Nor was my request for the purpose of competing with HP. I was trying to get a better understanding of what possible customers could be served by a Honeywell product for which HP has no competitive product. The Honeywell product is sold by ScanSource. The HP document does not actually contain information proprietary to ScanSource. Nonetheless, as she states, Ms. Aiken never provided such information and I was not requesting it for purposes of competing with ScanSource.

18. Mr. Benbenek's statements regarding our conversations are not accurate.
- a. Benbenek told me that he wanted me to resign. My agreement to do so was part of our agreement that it would be considered a termination without cause, and I executed the agreement in exchange for promised compensation and benefits.
 - b. My conversation with Mark Morgan was between just me and him. No one else was present. Morgan had made comments multiple times about ScanSource being Mike Bauer's company, as have other members of management. Mr. Morgan also has had ongoing conversations with me regarding Mr. Bauer's conduct towards employees and has discussed other serious issues involving Mr. Bauer, some of which Scott Benbenek has also discussed with me regarding the risks to which Mr. Bauer has exposed the company. The statements Mr. Benbenek and others have relayed to me about Mr. Bauer are of a far more serious level than my concerns that Mr. Bauer preferred executives who would not disagree with him.
 - c. I never told Mr. Benbenek that I took any flash drives or hard drives containing company information as he states. The statement that I said "I got the thumb drive before I was leaving" is not accurate as stated. If Mr. Benbenek is saying that I said I got the QBR files that were on the drive before I knew I was leaving, I did not say that as I reviewed them after I knew I was leaving. If, however, he is referring to the thumb drive device itself, it is accurate that I acquired that device before I knew I was leaving.

19. With respect to Robbie Cox's affidavit:
- a. I only requested to review the last QBR for Intermec;
 - b. To the best of my knowledge, Intermec is not a ScanSource customer as he states and the last time it was as I recall was approximately 5-6 years ago;
 - c. Intermec is a vendor. QBR's are for vendors, not customers;
 - d. There would not be a QBR report for "purchases by that ScanSource customer" as stated in paragraph 5;
 - e. With respect to paragraph 8, I am not aware of the Intermec customer list to which he is referring unless he is referring to data in the QBR document.
20. With respect to Mark Morgan's affidavit and the attached e-mail, I inquired about hitting the $265 Million Dollar mark because my bonus is based on that goal. This is information to which I am entitled, but the only purpose for which I inquired was to understand my compensation.
21. Amy Pharr never asked me about any files if she thought files were missing. We reviewed the files in the office.
22. I installed Dropbox on my computer. My best recollection is that I did so approximately two years ago. Dropbox and Evernote were products used by ScanSource employees to allow us to work on documents on different computers. I learned about Dropbox from employees on the Motorola team at work. Other ScanSource employees have told me about their use of Dropbox, including a current Director. It was a way of facilitating work and it allowed me to work from home or while on the road. It provides better access and more security than the thumb drives, which I previously used to take work back and forth.

23. The Dropbox account in use when I was employed with ScanSource was tied to my ScanSource e-mail account. When my ScanSource e-mail was deactivated (or I no longer had access) there was no further syncing of files. I deleted the Dropbox icon, which I believe caused the files in the folder to be deleted. To the best of my knowledge, they no longer exist on my computer in any accessible form.¹
24. My personal computer at home has personal financial information, personal family information of a confidential nature, and confidential e-mails, including attorney-client communications. I would object to giving ScanSource unfettered access to all files on my home computer.
25. I did use my home computer through the years to do work at home. It is very likely that, if a forensic examination can detect deleted and inaccessible files, such an examination would show that I worked at home while employed at ScanSource.
26. The identity of vendors used by ScanSource is not a secret, but something that the Company makes public.

Respectfully submitted this 26th day of January, 2012.

Subject: What I'm Going to Do
To: Scott Benbenek <scott.benbenek@scansource.com>

Just so you know and can relax, I'm starting a company called VarsGuide with the help of John Hoffman and will following a business plan that he used to start a company called Right Source. This is the company that John Black used to work for after IBM. John used to work for IBM before he started Right Source and is a friend.

The company will outsource education and marketing events for technology manufacturers. This will be non-competitive with ScanSource. In fact, it should should help increase the sales for ScanSource if it is successful.

As you can see I have no need for any information from ScanSource.

I have no animosity against anyone at ScanSource. I enjoyed my time there and I'm looking forward to my next opportunity. I hope this helps resolve any concerns you have. I reviewed my drop box files and have nothing in it that is ScanSource confidential.

Exhibit B

Affidavit of Scott Benbenek

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

Plaintiff,

vs.

Defendant.

AFFIDAVIT OF SCOTT BENBENEK

PERSONALLY APPEARED BEFORE me, the undersigned Notary Public, Scott

1. I am President of Worldwide Operations for ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource"),

2. I am competent to give this affidavit and have personal knowledge of its contents.

3. Until December 2011, the plaintiff in this action, Jeffrey Yelton, reported directly

4. On Friday, December 9, 2011, I met with Jeffrey Yelton and told him that his and I agreed at that time we would discuss on Monday, December 12, 2011 when the best time to tell his management team would be and when his last day in the office would be.

5. On the morning of Monday, December 12, 2011, before I talked to Mr. Yelton, I received a call from a vice president in one of our business units asking me if Jeff was leaving ScanSource. When I asked what made him ask that question, he said Mr. Yelton had posted a message on his Facebook page on Sunday, December 11, 2011 saying something like it felt like it was time for a major change in his life.

6. I did not hear from Mr. Yelton before lunch on Monday, December 12, 2011 so I wondered if he had decided to tell his management team at his regular Monday morning staff meeting since he had posted the message I heard about on Facebook the prior evening. I sent an email to Mr. Yelton after lunch telling him that I needed to know his thoughts about a timeline and asked him if he had already told his team. He walked over to my office shortly after my email and replied that he had not told anyone and when I told him I had heard that he posted something odd on Facebook he said that it was obscure and nobody would know that he was leaving.

7. On Tuesday, December 13, 2011, I met with Mark Morgan, Vice President of North American Sales, and advised him that Mr. Yelton would soon be leaving the company but to keep that information to himself.

8. On Wednesday, December 14, 2011 I let Mr. Yelton know via email that he should go ahead and tell his team right away that he was leaving because people from all over the company were asking HR and other executives about whether he was leaving ScanSource.

9. On Thursday, December 15, 2011, Mr. Morgan told me he had met with Mr. Yelton and during that meeting Mr. Yelton had made disparaging remarks about the company and its management.

10. On Thursday, December 15, 2011, after I talked to Mr. Morgan about his conversation, I told Mike Baur, Chief Executive Officer of ScanSource, that according to Mr. Morgan, Mr. Yelton had said that people were "not allowed to think" at ScanSource, that ScanSource was not nirvana, that other people were leaving, that he should not put his stock in this company because "Mike and Scott" only want people that will do what they say.

11. Mr. Yelton's last day at ScanSource was Friday, December 15, 2011.

12. On Friday, December 30, 2011 I learned that Mr. Yelton had asked several employees who had reported directly to him, as well as other employees that reported to one of his managers, to download confidential ScanSource information onto a thumb drive. He asked and received this information on Wednesday, December 14, 2011 before he told some of his management team that he was leaving later that day.

13. On Wednesday, January 4, 2012 I learned that Mr. Yelton had turned his company laptop in but that it would not boot up, and that he had removed all papers except personnel files from his office. I telephoned Mr. Yelton that day and told him that I was aware that he had taken all his files, that his laptop would not boot up and that he had gotten the information on the thumb drive. I told him that he could be in trouble as it relates to his contract and agreement that he had signed. I asked him where the thumb drive and files were; he said his files were only industry standard information and that he got the thumb drive before he knew he was leaving. I said no, it was the Wednesday after the Friday that he was told he was leaving. I then asked again where the thumb drive was and he said he didn't know and that it must have been left in his office somewhere.

14. Just as I got off the phone with Mr. Yelton that day, Jeanne Aiken, a Director of Merchandising who formerly reported to Mr. Yelton, told me that, during approximately the same period I had been on the phone with him, Mr. Yelton had sent her a text message in which he had asked her to provide him with a highly confidential ScanSource customer list that one of our vendors had provided to us. His text message, which she showed me, asked Ms. Aiken to send "the HP customer list" to him "from your home email or give it to me on a memory stick."

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

Getting lots of vibes that it's time for some changes in my life. The good lord is telling me to embrace the next adventure and not to play it safe. I just wish he'd be more specific but I'm ready. I got a devotional today that was a bit eerie. I swear it was talking directly to me. It said you are at a cross roads and should take the route with less security. Then in church the preacher said to do the say thing. Maybe it wasn't a burning bush but it got my attention. Do I believe that much to follow it blindly. AJ, Roger and Jami say yes. We'll see. Kim says she's ready.

Dot Abrams I think it is our "age" Jeff. We have played a fairly "safe" life...secure and we hear the clock ticking...getting a deep breath of wanderlust and adventure! I hear the same from a lot of 50-somethings...self included!

Jeff Yelton I'm thinking major change. 2 month sabbatical to Africa or Australia and then back for one last lap around the business world. This is not a mid life crisis. Maybe it's just a perspective. And by the way. There is no pot involved in this discussion. It's just been on my mind. The bucket list is a big thing for me after our loss of Emily. I'm figuring life is so short to wait.

Larry Wright Hmmm. With age there comes something very valuable, and that is called wisdom. Use it as best you can, and you will make good decisions that are not the "be young, be foolish" type.

We need to go ahead and get our agreement in place. In addition to the items in our standard release agreement, I have itemized the items we discussed on Monday below and our offer as it relates to them.

- You can have your mobile phone number back.
- ScanSource will agree to reimburse you for the premium costs of your disability insurance coverage should you decide to continue your coverage the same as it is today for twelve months.

- Your deferred comp money will have to be disbursed to you six months after your employment ends which we will agree to be December 31, 2011. It cannot be rolled into any other tax deferred program.
- Subject to board approval, ScanSource will agree to vest all unvested monies in your deferred comp account if you agree to not work for or with, in any capacity, Motorola Solutions, Avaya, or Polycom for one year. If this is not suitable then the disbursement will be only all vested monies.
- We will not vest any outstanding restricted shares.
- We cannot provide any legal services you asked about concerning Incorporation papers and copyrighting, but will be glad to refer you to people that we might know who we think provide these services at a reasonable price.
- We will waive or remove Agilysis from the competitive business definition in your employment agreement.
- In relation to your 10b51, you will no longer be subject to the company rules we have set once your employment ends.
- ScanSource would also advise you to observe the Company's employee handbook policies, including the Insider Trading in Securities policy through the date of separation. While the Company cannot generally enforce such policies post-employment, it recommends to former employees to observe the Company's stock trading windows at least one quarter following separation or until any material non-public information possessed by an individual is made public or is no longer material.

Let me know how you want me to have Legal/HR prepare the agreement related to these items.

Plaintiff,

Civil Action No. 2012-CP-23-0314

YS.

Defendant.

AFFIDAVIT OF CHRIS SPEARMAN

COUNTY OF GREENVILLE

PERSONALLY APPEARED BEFORE me, the undersigned Notary Public, Christopher Spearman who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. I am a Team Leader reporting to Ansley Hoke, Director of Merchandising for ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource"), Defendant in this action; I have been employed by ScanSource continuously since 2001.

2. I am competent to give this affidavit and have personal knowledge of its contents.

I give this affidavit under penalty of perjury.

3. Until December 2010, the plaintiff in this action, Jeffrey Yelton, then President of ScanSource's POS and Barcoding North America business unit, was the supervisor of my immediate supervisor.

4. Sometime on Tuesday or Wednesday, December 13 and 14, Mr. Yelton came to me and asked me to download the last vendor quarterly business report for Motorola onto a thumb drive that he had in his hand. He did not tell me why he wanted this information. He stood there and waited for me to download the information. Because I could not immediately locate the report, I asked him to leave the thumb drive with me. I found the report, downloaded it, and then took the thumb drive back to him.

5. Later that day I overheard a conversation between Mr. Yelton and Stephen Fowler, a Product Manager who works with me. In that conversation, Mr. Yelton asked Mr. Fowler to provide him with the quarterly business report for Honeywell; he also asked Mr. Fowler to create some slides for him.

6. The quarterly business reports that Mr. Yelton referred to are known within the company as "QBRs." QBRs contain detailed background information on purchases by each major ScanSource customer over at least twelve (12) quarters; this information includes sales, margin, profit, revenue, market share, long term plans, etc.

7. Initially, I did not think anything of either Mr. Yelton's conversation with me or the conversation I overheard him having with Mr. Fowler, as I did not know then that Mr. Yelton's employment with ScanSource was ending soon. It was not until later that evening that I received an email from Jeff Yelton that advised that Mr. Yelton was leaving the company. I talked to Mr. Fowler about Mr. Yelton's earlier request, and we agreed that it was unusual.

8. I later learned from other Directors of Merchandising that Mr. Yelton had also asked them to download confidential ScanSource customer information onto a thumb drive that he provided.

9. Because of these requests, I informed Ansley Hoke my supervisor and the Merchandising Directors met with Scott Benbenek the afternoon of January 4, 2012, to advise him of these requests.

10. The Motorola QBR that Mr. Yelton asked me to send from my home email or to download on a memory stick contains highly confidential customer information belonging to ScanSource. Specifically, for example, that list contains marketing plans, Motorola initiatives for 2012, and customer sales for calendar year 2010 and 2011, large opportunities for the upcoming year, and customer levels in the Motorola partner program. Were this information to fall into the hands of a ScanSource competitor, it would enable that competitor to target specific customers with significant revenue through ScanSource, gain insight to the ScanSource business plan for Motorola products, and margins and strategy for specific customers purchasing Motorola product from ScanSource, among other things.

11. ScanSource has made it very clear to me and others in the company that lists such as the Motorola customer list that Mr. Yelton requested are extremely confidential and that we are to protect this information from disclosure and are not to reveal it to anyone outside the company.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

AFFIDAVIT OF JEANNE AIKEN

PERSONALLY APPEARED BEFORE me, the undersigned Notary Public, Jeanne Aiken who, being duly sworn deposes and says:

1. I am a Director of Merchandising for ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource"), Defendant in this action; I have been employed by ScanSource continuously since 2002.

2. I am competent to give this affidavit and have personal knowledge of its contents. I give this affidavit under penalty of perjury.

3. Until December 2010, the plaintiff in this action, Jeffrey Yelton, then President of ScanSource North America, was my immediate supervisor.

4. On Monday, December 12, 2011, I attended a morning meeting of our management team that Mr. Yelton normally conducted every Monday morning. Mr. Yelton did not tell us then that he would be leaving ScanSource. At that time I did not know this; it was only later that I first learned that Mr. Yelton was leaving the company. I learned that he was leaving the company on Tuesday afternoon, December 13, 2011, after I asked him about his recent Facebook post. He stated that he had decided to resign from the company. He stated that he wasn't Paul Constantine or Buck Baker who simply did everything Scott Benbenek and Mike Baur wanted them to do. He asked me not to say anything to anyone as he was going to tell the rest of the group the following day.

5. After that Monday morning meeting, Mr. Yelton came to me and told me he had "been confused" about a list of 18,000 customers that had been mentioned at the meeting. He then asked me if I had "the Dell List," a reference to a highly confidential point of sale ScanSource customer list. I told him that I did have the list. He then said, "That has contact name and address, right?" When I said that it did not contain that information, Mr. Yelton said he did not want it.

6. I later learned from other Directors of Merchandising that Mr. Yelton had also asked other employees to download confidential ScanSource customer and vendor information onto a thumb drive that he provided.

7. I and others met with Scott Benbenek the afternoon of December 30, 2011, to advise him of these requests.

8. Later, on Wednesday, January 4, 2012, at 4:20 p.m., I received a text message from Mr. Yelton which asked for the following: "Would you send me the HP customer list from your home email or give it to me on a memory stick? Pretty please."

9. Five minutes later, at 4:25 p.m., I responded: "Jeff, I would love to help you, but I just can't do that, that type of stuff is ScanSource confidential now."

10. Immediately after, at 4:25 p.m., Mr. Yelton responded, "The HP stuff? Ok. Thanks. Still love you."

11. I immediately reported this exchange to Scott Benbenek, Mr. Yelton's former supervisor and showed him the text messages.

12. Hard copies of the content of those messages are attached hereto and incorporated herein as Exhibit A.

13. The HP customer list that Mr. Yelton asked me to send from my home email or to download on a memory stick contains highly confidential customer information belonging to ScanSource. Specifically, for example, that list contains Customer names, Customer Contact Names and Addresses. This list was obtained as part of our HP authorization. If this list or similar lists were obtained by a competitor to ScanSource, it would allow them to proactively market to these customers and potentially steal share and erode margins.

14. ScanSource has made it very clear to me and others in the company that lists such as the Dell customer list that Mr. Yelton requested are extremely confidential and that we are not to disclose such information to anyone outside the company.

Exhibit F

Affidavit of Dean Gaida

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS
THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

Civil Action No. 2012-CP-23-0314

AFFIDAVIT OF DEAN GAIDA

VS.

Defendant.

1. My name is Dean Gaida, I am above the age of 18, and I have personal knowledge of and am competent to testify about the matters addressed herein.

3. In my job as a Managing Director, my responsibilities range from examining and analyzing computer data to managing electronic document processing and reviews in cases and producing findings to support litigations and a variety of other legal matters. This includes hands-on examination and analysis of computer data as well as the day to day management of the forensics staff and the enforcement of policies and procedures. I have actively managed and participated in the collection and the subsequent analysis and processing of electronic evidence for extremely complex, disparate and sensitive technology environments. I hold a Masters degree in Computer Science from Villanova University and have completed multiple industry-specific training courses over my career such as the EnCase Advance Computer Forensics and Computer Forensics II courses. I also lecture to the legal community and e-discovery communities on topics related to electronic discovery and computer forensics. I am licensed as an EnCase Certified Examiner.

4. I conducted and/or oversaw the investigation and analysis for which the results are described in this affidavit. This report has been prepared based on information currently available to me. I reserve the right to amend this report and/or submit a supplemental report as additional, relevant information becomes available to me. As such, my opinions may be subject to change.

5. FTI is retained by Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP to provide forensic investigation services related to this case.

Summary of Key Findings

1. Five devices that were connected to Jeff Yelton's ScanSource laptop from December 9, 2011 to December 15, 2011, were not produced by Yelton.

2. On December 15, 2011 at about 12:06 PM EST, 863 files were added to Jeff Yelton's Dropbox account.

3. Dropbox shows that three files were edited in Jeff Yelton's Dropbox account on January 3 and 4, 2012.

4. Dropbox shows that several files were deleted or moved from Jeff Yelton's Dropbox account to another location on January 4, January 16, January 17, and January 25, 2012.

5. The jyelton user of the ScanSource laptop installed and ran a program called KillDisk on the ScanSource laptop on December 16, 2011 at 7:42 AM EST, erasing the System Reserve partition, thus permanently disabling the ScanSource laptop.

I. USB Devices Used Under the jyelton Profile Have Not Been Turned Over in This Litigation

1. On February 3, 2012, FTI received a laptop from ScanSource, Inc. (hereinafter "ScanSource") that was an HP ProBook6450b model with the serial number ("S/N") CNU04237B4 containing a Hitachi hard drive with Model# HTS725032A9A364 and S/N 101121PCKC04BPH74DAK, which had been identified as Jeff Yelton's laptop at ScanSource (hereinafter, "ScanSource Laptop"). The chain of custody form for the ScanSource Laptop is included in Exhibit A.

2. On February 3, 2012, FTI used Guidance Software's EnCase version 6.19.2 ("EnCase") in conjunction with a Tableau T35es write blocker to create a "forensic image" of the ScanSource Laptop's hard drive. EnCase generates a series of files that comprise a "forensic image", which represents a forensically sound bit-by-bit copy of the data from the original source hard drive. An MD5 hash value, or a unique identifier akin to a digital finger print, was created during the acquisition process of the ScanSource Laptop's hard drive, and one was created at the end from the content of the Image. FTI compared these hash values and found them to be identical. The analyses described below were conducted on the forensic image of the ScanSource Laptop hard drive (hereinafter "Image").

3. The ScanSource Laptop has 3 Universal Serial Bus ("USB") ports and 1 USB/ESATA combo port, which are used to connect external peripheral devices to the computer for a variety of purposes, including but not limited to external data storage.

4. The ScanSource Laptop utilized the Windows 7 Operating System, which typically will capture a USB device's information whenever a USB device is successfully plugged in. Certain information related to USB activity is recorded within the Windows Registry SYSTEM file and other system files listed below:

System Registry hive found at C:\Windows\System32\config\SYSTEM.
Setupapi.dev.log found at C:\Windows\inf\setupapi.dev.log
NTUSER file found at C:\Users\jyelton\ NTUSER.dat

5. The SYSTEM file contains information about the standard hardware profile of the local computer system.¹ The setupapi.dev.log contains information about Plug and Play devices and driver installation.² The NTUSER.dat file contains the user profile's personalized settings for the majority of the software installed on the computer, including Windows itself.³

A. USB Analysis

6. FTI examined the Image to generate a report of the removable USB devices recorded by Windows that were utilized by the user profile jyelton and last connected within the time frame of December 9, 2011 to December 15, 2011. ScanSource had informed FTI that the jyelton user profile was assigned to Jeff Yelton.

7. The information about a USB device, including when it was first connected and when it was last connected, can be obtained by analyzing the system files listed above. The tools used for this analysis consisted of Access Data's Registry Viewer and EnCase. A complete list of connected USB devices was identified within the System Registry hive's USBSTOR subkey. This file provides the device's friendly name, GUID, serial number, vendor/product/version numbers, and in some cases volume mapping. Using the NTUSER.Dat file we associate the usage of a specific device with a user profile, in this case jyelton. This file also contains the date/timestamp for last time connected. The first time connected is extracted from the setupapi.dev.log file. The result of this analysis is included in Exhibit B.

8. As shown in Exhibit B and listed below, five devices were connected to the ScanSource Laptop by USB during the period of December 9, 2011 to December 15, 2011, to drive letter E. Our analysis of the NTUSER.dat file demonstrates that the jyelton profile was associated with the last connection activity of these devices:

- a. CBM Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 16145301AACCA911
- b. Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 102002081627B702
- c. FLASH Drive AU_USB20 USB Device, Serial No.
J0904000000000017362
- d. USB Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 20111106291553540012117107
- e. USB2.0 Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 2009092806133745384

9. I have reviewed the affidavit of John Akerman that describes the method by which he recorded the identification information for each of the devices that were provided to him by the Plaintiff. I compared the serial numbers of the devices provided by Akerman to the serial numbers of the devices connected to the ScanSource Laptop.

None of the five devices that were connected to the ScanSource Laptop from December 9, 2011 to December 15, 2011, are included in the list of devices examined by John Akerman. In addition to the ScanSource laptop, FTI also received from ScanSource two USB drives. The chain of custody form is included under Exhibit A. Using the same methodology as Akerman, protecting the USB device with a Tableau Forensic USB Bridge Model T8 and utilizing the MS DOS command DevCon, FTI identified the USB devices serial numbers and confirmed that they were not one of the five devices in question. These five devices were not produced by the Plaintiff.

- a. Lexar Flash Drive SN: 106a640720333223
- b. AccuBanker Flash Drive SN: 221507003ca8cf06

B. Link File Analysis

10. FTI reviewed the Image for link files created or modified during the above timeframe. A link file also is known as a “Shell link” or “shortcut” and is a data object that contains information that can be used to access another data object.⁴ “Applications can also create and use Shell links and shortcuts. For example, a word processing application might create a Shell link to implement a list of the most recently used documents.”⁵ Link files are created when a file is opened through the Windows operating system, and as such, a link file’s timestamp indicates the date and time that the related underlying file was accessed. These files also contain metadata that identifies the location from where the file was opened.

11. Exhibit G is a listing of these link files further narrowed to those containing metadata indicating the file was accessed from the drive letter E. Drive letter E is the same drive letter assigned to each of the five USB devices at the time of their last connection. Comparing the timing of the link file’s creation and the timing of when these external devices were connected to the PC, these files likely were accessed from one of the listed devices above. That is, these files likely were on one of the listed devices.

II. Yelton's Dropbox Account Analysis

1. Jeff Yelton had a Dropbox account, and his counsel provided the user credentials for Yelton's account to ScanSource.

2. Dropbox is a "cloud" storage platform. Storing data within the Dropbox cloud service provides a user the ability to propagate data from a single device to multiple devices. A service such as Dropbox is accessible from any computer connected to the internet provided that user has the proper login credentials to access the storage location. For example, a user could load files onto Dropbox from their office, and then at home, on a different computer, access those files uploaded to the site.

3. According to Dropbox, "Dropbox is a free service that lets you bring all your photos, docs, and videos anywhere. This means that any file you save to your Dropbox will automatically save to all your computers, phones and even the Dropbox website."⁶

4. Each device on which a user installs Dropbox generates a "Dropbox folder" on that device that the service uses to manage and synchronize the set of files maintained by Dropbox. The file activity that occurs within the Dropbox folder on one device is propagated to the Dropbox website and subsequently to the other connected devices at the time they are synchronized. The default setting when installing Dropbox is for synchronization to occur as long as the device has internet connectivity. According to Dropbox, "If you've already installed Dropbox, simply adding files to your Dropbox folder will automatically sync the file to your Dropbox, which means you can open it from any other computer, smartphone, or tablet that also has Dropbox installed."⁷ Thus, if a file is added or edited within the Dropbox folder, the updated document will be accessible through Dropbox from the other devices. It is important to note that a user can change their settings to prevent synchronization until they explicitly request that particular device to synchronize. Further a user, regardless of the synchronization settings, can upload, edit, download, and delete content stored on Dropbox directly through the website as needed and these changes will only affect the Dropbox folder upon the next synchronization.

⁷ Dropbox, How Do I Sync Files Between Computers?, available at <https://www.dropbox.com/help/4/en>.

5. On February 20, 2012, FTI preserved a record of the activity in Yelton's Dropbox account by creating "screenshots" of the Events pages. See Exhibit C, Dropbox screenshots pages 5 to 11.

6. On February 21, 2012, with Yelton's authorization, FTI accessed Yelton's account and changed the password, so Yelton has not had the credentials to access the account from that date forward.

7. FTI created screenshots using TechSmith's Snagit software version 8 ("Snagit"). Snagit was used to create digital pictures of the webpage's content, which then was saved as a PDF file. The screenshots show the Events Tab, which logs "events" that occurred on Dropbox, such as when files were Added, Edited, Deleted, or Restored. FTI also captured the My Computers tab which indicates the computers and devices currently linked to the Dropbox account.

8. The screenshot on page 1 of Exhibit C shows that Yelton had four devices connected to Dropbox:

- a. Jeff's Home Laptop, for which the last activity was on February 13, 2012 at 9:30 PM EST;
- b. Jyelton-w7, for which the last activity was on December 15, 2011 at 8:40 AM EST;

c. Jeff's Work Laptop, for which the last activity was on December 22, 2010 at 3:26 PM EST; and

d. iPad, no connection information recorded.

The last activity timestamp indicates when Dropbox last synchronized with that machine. It also provides the version of Dropbox installed on the linked machine and the IP address associated with that synchronization.

A. Files Added to Yelton's Dropbox Account

9. The Dropbox Screenshots show that on December 15, 2011, at or about 12:06 PM EST, 863 files were added to Yelton's Dropbox account:

 You edited the file BU 01 Forecasting Worksheet 04-2011 (2).xls.	1/4/2012 4:19 PM
 You edited the file Bottom 1000 catalog recipients.xls.	1/4/2012 4:11 PM
 You edited the file Bottom 1000 catalog recipients.xls.	1/4/2012 4:10 PM
 You edited the file General Two Tier Distribution Pres.ppt.	1/3/2012 4:38 PM
 You added BD2005 Resource Funding.xls and 862 more files.	12/15/2011 12:06 PM
 You added Blog tools and 79 more folders.	12/15/2011 12:06 PM
 You edited the file Financial Statements 101.ppt.	11/27/2011 2:05 PM
 You added the file Revised_VSR_Optimization_Summit_11-3-11_(2)(1).ppt.	11/2/2011 2:40 PM

Exhibit C at 11, excerpt (hereinafter "863-File Addition Event"). As described above, Dropbox shows two events occurring on 12:06 PM EST on December 15, 2011, but based on FTI's testing of Dropbox's functionality, the two events capture the same activity.⁸ Thus, the activity that occurred for the event described as "You added Blog tools and 79 more folders" is included within the larger event, "You added BD2005 Resource Funding.xls and 862 more files" that occurred on the same day at the same time.

10. FTI expanded the 863-File Addition Event log to determine which files were added on December 15, 2011 at 12:06 PM EST, and those screenshots are represented on page 12 of Exhibit C. Dropbox provides limited information regarding the details of this event, and the screenshot provided shows the top level of individual documents and folders associated with the 863-File Addition Event. The same folders and file types and names identified through Dropbox related to the 863-File Addition Event also were located on the Image within the Dropbox folder.

11. The jyelton user account shows internet activity on the ScanSource laptop periodically throughout the day from 8:41 AM to 8:54 PM EST on December 15, 2011. Internet history was extracted from the index.dat file located under the jyelton profile. (see Exhibit D Internet History pages 1 to 37) This indicates the user was active on the computer throughout the day.

B. Edited Files Linked to Yelton's Dropbox

12. The Dropbox screenshots show that at least three files linked to Dropbox were edited after December 15, 2011:

- a. General Two Tier Distribution Pres.ppt, edited on January 3, 2012 at 4:38 PM EST.
- b. Bottom 1000 Catalog Reciepients.xls, edited on January 4, 2012 at 4:10 PM and 4:11 PM EST.
- c. BU 01 Forecasting Worksheet 04-2011 (2).xls, edited on January 4, 2012 at 4:19 PM EST.

Files with the same name and type were also identified within the Image's Dropbox folder.

C. Deleted or Moved Files Linked to Yelton's Dropbox

13. According to Dropbox, "Removing a file from your Dropbox is as simple as dragging and dropping it somewhere out of your Dropbox folder. If you'd like to delete it, drag the file folder [sic] or to your Windows Recycle Bin."⁹

14. Based on FTI's testing of Dropbox, when files are moved from the Dropbox folder on a device to another location on that device, Dropbox treats the file as deleted and shows that the file is "Deleted" in the Dropbox event history. Thus, while the Dropbox event history may describe a file as deleted, that file may have simply been moved from a device's Dropbox folder to another location. The other location could include a different folder on the device, another device, or the device's Recycle Bin.

15. According to Dropbox, files that are "deleted" may be restored: "Even if your computer has a meltdown, your stuff is always safe in Dropbox and can be restored in a snap. Dropbox is like a time machine that lets you undo mistakes and even undelete files you accidentally trash."¹⁰

16. The Dropbox screenshots show that on January 4, January 16, January 17, and January 25, 2012, files from the Yelton Dropbox account were deleted. As indicated before, deleting could be performed by clicking Delete or moving the files to another location. See pages 1 to 11 of Exhibit C.

17. Further, the Dropbox screenshots show that on January 4, 2012, several folders that had been either deleted or moved out of a Dropbox folder were restored on Yelton's account. See page 11 of Exhibit C.

III. Use of KillDisk on the ScanSource Laptop

1. FTI reviewed the programs installed on the ScanSource laptop, and identified that a program named KillDisk had been installed. Based on the creation date of the installation file this program was installed on December 16, 2011 at approximately 7:41 AM EST.

Name	LastAccessed	FileCreated	LogicalSize	FullPath
killdisk.exe	12/16/11 7:42 AM	12/16/11 7:42 AM	613,592	C:\Program Files\LSoft Technologies\Active KillDisk\DOS\killdisk.exe
KILLDISK.exe	12/16/11 7:42 AM	12/16/11 7:42 AM	5,560,440	C:\Program Files\LSoft Technologies\Active KillDisk\KILLDISK.exe
KillDiskSuiteFree-Setup.exe	12/16/11 7:41 AM	12/16/11 7:41 AM	19,052,576	C:\Users\jyelton\AppData\Local\Microsoft\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5\J6YPSVLJ\KillDiskSuiteFree-Setup.exe

The above table shows the location of the programs executable files and the temporary installation file used during setup. FTI confirmed that the jyelton account had accessed the KillDisk website at the above mentioned time (see Exhibit E page 1.).

2. This file activity above is consistent with downloading and installing the KillDisk application from the website www.killdisk.com and selecting run when prompted during the download process (see Exhibit H page 1 to 9). ScanSource informed FTI that the application is not an approved program and that they would not provide it to their users.

3. FTI observed that on December 15, 2011, the jyelton account user visited an article on www.pcworld.com which contains a video explaining ways to erase data. (Exhibit D. page 16 and 25 (referring to <http://www.pcworld.com/article/157126/how-to-completely-erase-a-hard-drive.html>)). A discussion thread with a post by the user name stealth694 referred readers to KillDisk: "Some of these are a bit extreme. But the best system wipe I have used is Kill Disk, at Killdisk.com. This is a stepped down Govt HD wiper. It writes "0's" through the HD. Totally wipes it out, and This is a Shareware/Freeware Program so its definetly worth the money."¹¹

4. The PC World video refers to another software named dban that can be used to erase a hard drive. The jyelton account user visited www.dban.org on December 15, 2011 at 2:23 PM EST, after visiting the PC World page. (Exhibit D page 16.) The internet history also shows the jyelton account user visited www.whitecanyon.com on December 15, 2011 at 7:19 PM EST. (Exhibit D at page 37.) White Canyon is another product that can be used to erase a hard drive. (www.whitecanyon.com.)

5. According to the KillDisk web site accessed by the jyelton account, KillDisk is a "powerful and compact software that allows you to destroy all data on hard disks, USB drives and floppy disks completely, excluding any possibility of future recovery of deleted files and folders. It's a hard drive and partition eraser utility."¹²

6. In summary, KillDisk works by overwriting data rather than simply marking it as free space. Typically when you delete a file by selecting it and pressing the Delete key, the file is redirected to the recycle bin. Over time as the recycle bin fills, older files will stop being tracked in this location to make room for the newly deleted files. At that time the location of space allocated to this file is marked as free space for use, but the data remains intact until it is overwritten. Keying Shift+Delete skips the process of redirecting the file to the recycle bin. In both scenarios this means that, eventually, other programs and file transfers may overwrite it completely or at least in part. Until then, the data is still recoverable, depending on these factors.

¹¹ PC World, How to Completely Erase a Hard Drive (Jan. 20, 2011 8:00 AM), available at http://www.pcworld.com/article/157126/how_to_completely_erase_a_hard_drive.html.

¹² Active Kill Disk, How to Erase a Hard Drive, available at www.killdisk.com (last visited June 24, 2012).

Overwriting data through the use of a wiping tool like KillDisk makes the data impossible to recover.

7. According to the KillDisk log acquired through the Image and created during the execution of the program, KillDisk was run on the ScanSource Laptop on December 16, 2011 at 7:42 AM. The log indicates that the tool erased the System Reserve partition which Windows 7 requires to boot the laptop. The log also indicates the model number of the drive it was run on and this matches the model number of the hard drive FTI Imaged:

8. FTI utilized the EnCase product, as described earlier, to create an image of the hard drive. This software does not rely on the boot partition in order to review the system files and data structures, so the image created with EnCase can still be analyzed in spite of KillDisk being run on the machine.

9. Using the forensic image, FTI tested the viability of booting Yelton's work laptop by restoring a mirror copy of the computer's data onto a clean hard drive on a test machine and initiating the boot process. FTI was unable to boot this test machine, which is consistent with our observation that the System Reserve was wiped as indicated in the log. FTI also tested KillDisk using another test laptop running Windows 7 and used the program to erase the System Reserve. This process produced a similar log file (see Exhibit F page 1), and FTI was able to continue using the machine until the next attempt to re-boot, at which point the system failed.

Active@ KillDisk How to Erase Hard Drive

Easy to download, easy to use

Powerful and compact software that allows you to destroy all data on hard disks, USB drives and floppy disks completely, excluding any possibility of future recovery of deleted files and folders. It's a hard drive and partition eraser utility.

"Active@ KillDisk is the best HardDisk-Wiping-Tool. I'm using it for many years. It's easy to use and absolutely reliable. Go on like this."

Best regards from Germany, Matthias

If you use FDISK, FORMAT utilities, or DELETE standard operating system command for data removal, there is always a chance to recover deleted files (using undelete or unformat tools) and use against the owner's will. → DoD 5220.22 M compliant ←

New! Version 7 of KillDisk In August 2012!

It will contain simultaneous erasing and wiping out of multiple HDDs, which greatly improves erasing speed and decreases execution time in total. User interface has been re-designed, and becomes more flexible and customizable. New version update for current clients is for free.

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA)

 COUNTY OF GREENVILLE) AFFIDAVIT OF AMY PHARR

PERSONALLY APPEARED BEFORE me, the undersigned Notary Public, Amy Pharr who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. I am Director, Compensation, in the Human Resources department of ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource"), Defendant in this action; I have been employed by ScanSource continuously since 2003.

2. I am competent to give this affidavit and have personal knowledge of its contents.
 I give this affidavit under penalty of perjury.

3. Until December 2011, the plaintiff in this action, Jeffrey Yelton, was President of ScanSource's POS/Barcode business unit.

4. In connection with his imminent departure from ScanSource's employ, I met with Mr. Yelton at approximately 7:45 a.m. on Friday, December 16, 2011. This was his last day at the ScanSource office.

5. When we met, Mr. Yelton showed me the files that remained in his office that HR would want to remove; these were personnel files of his direct reports. At that time I saw that his office had been completely cleaned out. All of the papers, notebooks, files, books, and other items that I had observed in his office before had disappeared. All that remained in Mr. Yelton's office were the office furniture (desk, chair, bookshelves), the company laptop he had referred to and that was on top of his desk, and the personnel files mentioned above which were in a drawer of the file cabinet in his office.

6. After meeting with Mr. Yelton, he departed and I returned to his office to collect his laptop.

7. When I tried to turn off the laptop Mr. Yelton had left on his desk, it would not shut down. I locked it in an HR confidential file cabinet until later when I turned it over to Scott Benbenek.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

Temporary Restraining Order

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

COUNTY OF GREENVILLE

Jeff Yelton,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ScanSource, Inc.,

Defendant.

FILED-CLERK OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS
GREENVILLE CO. S.C.
PAUL B. WICKENSIMMER

THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

2012 FEB - 8

P. 1: 31
Civil Action No. 2012-CP-23-0314

TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

Defendant ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource") moves for a Temporary Restraining Order ("TRO") and Preliminary Injunction. The court held a hearing on the motion on January 27, 2012. Counsel for ScanSource and counsel for Plaintiff Jeff Yelton ("Yelton") presented arguments and filed documents, including affidavits. Based on those arguments, the documents and evidence presented, and Rule 65 of the South Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure, the court hereby grants Defendant's Motion for Temporary Restraining Order as follows:

The Court finds the remedy of a temporary restraining order appropriate in this case as ScanSource has established that it (1) would suffer irreparable harm if the injunction is not granted; (2) will likely succeed on the merits of the litigation; and (3) has no adequate remedy at law. See Scratch Golf Co. v. Dunes West Residential Golf Props., 361 S.C. 117, 603 S.E.2d 905 (2004). Preliminary equitable relief may be granted in appropriate cases to preserve the status quo. See S.C.R.C.P. 65; Powell v. Immanuel Baptist Church, 261 S.C. 219, 199 S.E.2d 60 (1973).

At this preliminary stage, ScanSource has demonstrated that immediate and irreparable injury, loss or damage will result to ScanSource unless this order is issued. ScanSource has no adequate remedy at law, given that once ScanSource's confidential information or trade secrets are disclosed, it will be difficult if not impossible to rectify the loss by monetary damages. Irreparable harm is present where an injunction "is reasonably necessary to protect the legal rights of the plaintiff pending the litigation." Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. v. Porter, 252 S.C. 478, 481, 167 S.E.2d 313, 315 (1969) (internal quotation marks omitted).

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that Defendant's Motion for Temporary Restraining Order is granted as follows:

- 1) Plaintiff is prohibited from directly or indirectly contacting ScanSource's employees for the purpose of obtaining Confidential Information;
- 2) Plaintiff must return to ScanSource any Confidential Information in his possession, custody, or control within the time period set by the Special Referee. Any disputes concerning the identity of Confidential Information or the form of its return shall be decided by the Special Referee.
- 3) Confidential Information or Trade Secrets ("Confidential Information") include but are not limited to information described in Plaintiff's Employment Agreement (attached as Exhibit A to ScanSource's Answer and Counterclaims), ScanSource's Business Ethics and Code of Conduct (attached as Exhibit D to ScanSource's Answer and Counterclaims), the S.C. Trade Secrets Act, and South Carolina law.
- 4) Pursuant to Rule 65(c), ScanSource must post a bond in the amount of $5,000.
- 5) If personally identifiable or financial information about persons other than Plaintiff is included in the information returned to ScanSource, ScanSource must treat that information as confidential.

AND IT IS SO ORDERED.

Subject: RE: Brad - are you in your office?
Attachments: Screen shots of flash drive.pdf; Screen shots of HP laptop files.pdf

I don't want to debate whether I am under an obligation to produce anything this morning because I have serious concerns (that I hope we can resolve) with the proposed order. But I do have a flashdrive with some electronic files and some paper documents that are available for you at this time. I thought I would give some background and context to our efforts to locate information since the hearing so we can both get a better picture of what is at issue with respect to both electronic data and other files (such as the contents of Jeff's office).

Hardware contents

The hardware that we have identified that Jeff used during the time of his employment and that he possesses consists of: (1) the HP laptop he has used regularly for the past 18 months or so (this is the one that had Dropbox); (2) an older HP laptop that he has started using again; (3) an even older Dell Inspiron 9100 laptop; (4) a desktop computer at home used for his photography hobby; (5) a black WD external hard drive (the one that backed up the Dropbox files we put on the flash drives you have); (6) a silver WD external hard drive that I understand backs up the photography computer; (7) the Cisco flash drive you have; (8) the Accubanker flash drive you have; (8) Three silver Epson/ScanSource flashdrives; (9) a Microsoft flashdrive; (10) a BMW flashdrive; and (11) an iPad 1. I wanted to let you know about all of this because you stated that you are consulting with forensic consultants. Again, if you have a draft proposed protocol to review, let me know. We don't oppose a forensic exam as long as protocols are in place so that I can assure beforehand that ScanSource is not provided any information not related to any claim or defense. We also need to have a protective order in place for the protection of both sides. I am fine with the District Court form if you want to use that. If you wanted to take a cheaper route than a full-blown forensic exam, I could sit down with you or one of your associates and, once a protective order is in place, we could review the flashdrives, external drives, and laptops together. Jeff does have a concern about disclosure of his proposals, but I think they can be resolved with the protective order. I understand why you might want to see them to determine whether he has used ScanSource-confidential data and it might help calm folks down to show that this isn't the case. You can make your own call, but if the point of a forensic exam is to show that, at one time, there were ScanSource confidential documents on one or more of these pieces of hardware, we don't contest that notion.

It does not appear to me that Jeff used any e-mail client on the laptops other than through the web. So I don't think there is any information in application data folders, but it is possible there are temp files or temp folders somewhere that could contain old copies of documents that were opened, for example, when an attachment to an e-mail was opened. Usually these are saved with file names and paths that have nothing to do with the topic of the document, and I really don't know how to actually search for any of those. As we discussed, there also may be ghost images of files that were "deleted" in the past but not overwritten. I have no idea how to look for those.

Attached is a series of screen prints of the desktop (where the Dropbox icon formerly resided) and a series of prints going from the User - Jeff, through My Documents, through the Dropbox data files. Apparently, deleting the Dropbox folder or icon on the desktop of the HP laptop did not delete the files, which we found stored under the My Documents folder. Some of these appear to be ScanSource-related documents. So that you can make your own determination about them, I have copied the contents of all of the documents under the Dropbox folder (which are in a subfolder called "Research") onto the flash drive. In an effort to avoid a debate about what is "confidential information," why don't you look at them with your client and let me know which ones, if any, you contend should be treated as ScanSource confidential. It doesn't appear from looking at the file names that any of this is sensitive information, and it does not appear that there is any QBR information at issue. But take a look and let me know. If we need to discuss the files and Jeff has a different interpretation, I'll have to access the document in order to discuss with Jeff. I didn't make a copy of the Dropbox Research folder so I would have to meet with Jeff, who has the laptop.

On this point, I am confused as what you want us to do with electronic data we located. Your proposed order states that no data should be deleted. Do you want Jeff to retain ScanSource electronic documents? We need to have this clarified, in writing and in any order. I don't anticipate we'll actually have a problem with coming to an agreement on what you should have, but we need clarity as to what your client is seeking in terms of copies of electronic data.

Other than what we provided to you yesterday, the only other electronic documents we have located that relate to ScanSource are: (1) one document on the HP Inspiron; (2) one document on the old HP laptop. These also are on the flash drive. We have no objection to deleting them if that is what you want us to do, but, again, we need some clarity on this point. Jeff also has no interest in keeping either of these documents so there is no need to debate whether they are "confidential."

Under the screen print folder on the flash drive, you will see what I can determine to be the pertinent file contents from the different laptops and the WD black external drive that had the Dropbox files that were copied onto the Cisco and Accubanker flash drives that you have. If you want to see a screen print of a particular, subfolder on a piece of equipment, let me know.

Office contents

Jeff has brought in the contents of his ScanSource office (with the exception of about 12 books). You are welcome to come to my office and look through it all. It is a lot of stuff. There are, as we discussed, many notebooks dating back to the '80s, copies of industry-related articles, and materials from various conferences. In my review I found only two folders that contain ScanSource-specific documents. One is labeled SEO – POS Quarterly Check-in from Website Biz. This is a study that ScanSource's web site provider did to show how well the site was doing. There is a two-page document accompanying it called POSB Findings 72/100. The other folder is entitled "Web" with 2 manila folders and two additional documents. These also relate to the development of the ScanSource website. It looks like it includes documents creating a schedule for developing the site and a presentation from Erwin-Penland. Jeff has no interest in these documents, so I am happy to return them to you, and we don't need to discuss whether the information is "confidential."

If you would like to review the other boxes of stuff to double check my review or assure yourself, please let me know ASAP. I don't want to store this stuff in my conference room any longer than necessary, but I'll keep it here a few days so you can make arrangements. I am in the office Monday, so if you want to come over then I can be here.

Cloud Dropbox issue

As we discussed yesterday, there may be copies of documents on the "cloud" version of the dropbox account. Deleting the icon on Jeff's desktop likely did not delete anything in the cloud version. Jeff does not believe he could access anything since the e-mail account has been disabled. I am not sure if that is true or not, but it appears that it would be cleaner if you accessed it. The account was set up with his ScanSource e-mail, which you may have reactivate. Jeff is not sure of the password, but has two guesses. Because the password that he may have used to set up the account is used to access other personal information (e.g. financial) so we need some measure of protection there. I can provide his best guesses as to the password if we have a written assurance that it will be held in strict confidence and not used for any purpose other than accessing the Dropbox account. Another possible option would be for you to sign in with his e-mail and see if they have an "I forgot my password" feature where they will send a password to his old Scansource address. To access the Dropbox cloud all you need to do is go to Dropbox.com and at the top right, use log in to access the cloud. The only other option I can think of right now is to have Jeff come in with one of your folks and try to log in to see what is there. Let me know if you like these or have any other ideas.

If there is any issue you believe I failed to address, please let me know. And please let me know if you are sending someone over to pick up the above-referenced folders and flash drive.

Please let me know ASAP your position on electronic data. I need to let the judge know my position and, if we can agree on this, it will result in less back-and-forth.

Exhibit K

Consent Order on Protocol for Conducting Discovery as to Certain Hardware Produced by
Plaintiff

State of South Carolina)

County of Greenville)

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

2012-CP-23-00314

2012 APR -9 PM 4:10

FILED - CIVIL
CLERK OF COURT
GREENVILLE, SC

Jeff Yelton,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ScanSource, Inc.,

Defendant,

CONSENT ORDER ON PROTOCOL
FOR CONDUCTING DISCOVERY
AS TO CERTAIN HARDWARE
PRODUCED BY PLAINTIFF

On February 8, 2012, the Court entered an Order appointing the undersigned as Special Referee "to decide the equitable issue of Preliminary Injunction and to rule upon the identity and form of disclosure of Confidential Information pursuant to any preliminary equitable relief."

On February 14, 2012, the Special Referee met with counsel for the parties to discuss the Preliminary Injunction, protocols for the identity and form of disclosure of Confidential Information as well as Defendant's request for an examination and inspection of Plaintiff's computer systems and data (hereinafter referred to as a "forensic examination") as set forth in Defendant's Motion for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction. Later on February 14, 2012, the parties jointly delivered a sealed box of hardware to the office of the Special Referee with a label that represents the contents of the box as being: "(1) A hard drive from an HP laptop; (2) another HP laptop; (3) a Dell Inspiron 9100 laptop; (4) a black WD external hard drive; (5) a silver WD external hard drive; (6) three silver Epson/ScanSource flashdrives; (7) a Microsoft flashdrive; (8) a BMW flashdrive; and (9) an iPad 1" (collectively referred to as "Plaintiff's Devices"). In addition to Plaintiff's Devices, the Special Referee has been informed that Plaintiff has a desktop computer at his home that he will also produce to an Approved Consultant for examination pursuant to this Consent Order. (See paragraph 19)

Defendant seeks to have Plaintiff's Devices preserved and to conduct a forensic examination of Plaintiff's Devices. Plaintiff does not oppose an examination, but desires protections to prohibit the discovery or disclosure of privileged information or confidential information that does not relate to the subject matter of this action.

THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, with the consent of both parties and pursuant to the Court's Order of Reference, the following protocol will govern the examination of Plaintiff's Devices and the handling of information derived from Defendant's examinations:

1. The parties will jointly meet at the office of the Special Referee to take possession of Plaintiff's Devices. Plaintiff's Devices will remain with counsel for Plaintiff throughout the pendency of this Action unless otherwise agreed to by the parties or ordered by the Court.¹
2. Defendant is authorized to use FTI Consulting ("FTI"), Rosen Litigation Technology Consulting or any other consultant approved by both parties in writing (each an "Approved Consultant") to create mirror images of Plaintiff's Devices and conduct forensic examinations of such images of Plaintiff's Devices in accordance with the terms and conditions of this Order.
3. Any Approved Consultant and/or representative of an Approved Consultant who is involved in this litigation in any way, including but not limited to the imaging, examination, compilation, use or disclosure of data from Plaintiff's Devices, must execute a copy of Attachment B of the Consent Confidentiality Order and must be provided a copy of this Order and agree to be bound by the same by executing a copy of the Acknowledgement attached hereto as Exhibit A.

4. An Approved Consultant may create forensic mirror images of any of the Plaintiff's Devices (hereinafter the "Forensic Image") in a format that can be searched by an Approved Consultant. Whenever a Forensic Image is created, the Approved Consultant shall simultaneously create an exact duplicate "read only" mirror image (hereinafter the "Read Only Image") in a format that preserves and secures the original images from the Plaintiff's Devices, shall not be searched and shall only be used for creating additional Forensic Images, if necessary. (The Forensic Images and Read Only Images are collectively referred to hereafter as the "Images".)
5. The creation of the Images will occur either at a lab or office at which such work is regularly performed by an Approved Consultant in Greenville County or at a location agreed to by the parties. At all times, Plaintiff's Devices shall not be moved by mail or common carrier. The Images shall be encrypted by the Approved Consultant to further safeguard the information stored therein.
6. After the Images are created and processed, Approved Consultant shall return all of Plaintiff's Devices to the office of the Plaintiff's Counsel and the Plaintiff's Devices shall at all times remain in the exclusive possession and control of Plaintiff's Counsel until the conclusion of this litigation, unless otherwise agreed by the parties or ordered by the Court. While in the custody of Plaintiff's Counsel

Plaintiff's Devices shall be secured by Plaintiff's Counsel so as not to be accessed by any party, person or entity, for any purpose.

7. After the creation of the Images, Approved Consultant shall deliver all Images to Counsel for the Defendant. Counsel for the Defendant shall maintain exclusive possession and control of the Images until the conclusion of the litigation, except as set forth herein or otherwise agreed by the parties. Counsel for the Defendant shall not allow access to the Read Only Images by any person or entity, including an Approved Consultant, except as ordered by the Special Referee or by the Court. Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, within ten (10) business days of the entry of judgment by the Court or dismissal of the case with prejudice by agreement of the parties Counsel for Defendant shall certify to the Court that all Images have been destroyed.
8. No data may be removed, copied, transferred, or disclosed by any person, party or entity except an Approved Consultant and only as specifically provided for herein.
9. Defendant will submit to the Special Referee and counsel for Plaintiff a list of search terms to be used in searching the Forensic Images. Counsel for Plaintiff shall have five (5) working days from receipt of this list to raise any objections to the term search list. If there are any objections raised that the parties cannot resolve, the Special Referee will resolve them. Defendant may proceed with searches using the terms to which Plaintiff has not objected.
10. At Defendant's request and expense, the Approved Consultant may conduct a search of the Forensic Images to locate documents and/or files containing the approved search terms. The results of this search will be the "Search Results."

The search of the Forensic Images may occur either at a lab or office at which such work is regularly performed by Approved Consultant, but need not be within Greenville County. The Forensic Images, which shall be encrypted as set forth above, may be shipped where necessary by hand or Federal Express.

11. Depending on the volume of the Search Results, Plaintiff's Counsel may review the Search Results in a hard copy list format, or electronically in a review platform.
12. An Approved Consultant will provide the Special Referee with a copy of the Search Results but shall make no disclosures to Defendant or counsel for Defendant until Plaintiff has determined whether to assert any objection to a particular file.
13. Counsel for Plaintiff will review the Search Results and within 7 working days of receiving the Search Results shall identify for Defendant's Counsel any files/documents for which he raises an objection as to the production of such information to Defendant. In the event Plaintiff's Counsel needs additional time to conduct this review, he may request a reasonable extension of this time period to complete his review, which shall not be unreasonably denied. Any files to which Plaintiff does not assert an objection within the review period will then be provided to Defendant's Counsel by the Approved Consultant.
14. Defendant must respond to any objection within 7 working days, but shall not be provided copies of the data/file itself until a ruling by the Special Referee.

15. Within seven (7) working days of receiving Defendant's responses, if Plaintiff maintains the objection, Plaintiff must present its objection to the Special Referee. The Special Referee may review any contested documents/files en camera to determine whether they should be disclosed. If the objection is resolved or is not presented to the Special Referee within seven (7) working days, the file may be made available to the Defendant.
16. All Search Results that are not withheld by Order of the Special Referee will be produced to each of the parties. These documents will be presumed Confidential under the terms of the Consent Confidentiality Agreement for Fourteen (14) days and this presumption is waived as to a specific document unless the party seeking to preserve the designation of such document as Confidential notifies the opposing party of the designation within the Fourteen (14) day period. This does not affect any term of the Court's Consent Confidentiality Order.
17. At Defendant's request and expense, an Approved Consultant also may conduct an examination of the Forensic Images to determine data relative to Plaintiff's Devices, including, but not limited to, reporting on alteration/deletion of files or determining when, for example, a particular peripheral (e.g. flash drive, external hard drive) was plugged in to the particular machine. The results of this examination will be the "Forensic Analysis" and will be Defendant's work product and shall be subject to discovery only as set forth in the South Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure. However, any report generated by the Forensic Analysis that Defendant intends to use as an exhibit at any hearing, deposition or trial of this matter must be timely disclosed to Plaintiff prior to such use. If Defendant's Approved Consultant is subsequently designated as an expert for purposes of offering any testimony in this case, then the Approved Consultant's report(s) shall be timely disclosed as required by the Rules. If the Forensic Analysis shows that a particular file is related to the subject matter of this action and that file is not included in the Search Results, the same procedures described in paragraphs 9 through 16 will apply to these files. The forensic examination may occur either at a lab or office at which such work is regularly performed by Approved Consultant as set forth in Paragraph 10.

18. Defendant may request additional searches of the Forensic Images. Any additional searches of the Forensic Images shall be conducted as set forth above, and any objection to additional searches shall be determined by the Special Referee.
19. Except as otherwise provided herein, Plaintiff's Devices shall remain in the possession and control of Plaintiff's Counsel until otherwise agreed to by the parties or until further Order. Plaintiff may identify any devices that he wants returned to him once the devices have been imaged and examined. For any device he wants returned, the Parties will confer regarding a procedure to remove from such device any information which Defendant believes to be Defendant's confidential information. Any dispute regarding the removal of information will be resolved by the Special Referee. For any device Plaintiff does not want to be returned the parties will confer as to how to handle such devices and any disputes will be submitted to the Special Referee. The home desktop computer referred to above will be returned by the Approved Consultant to counsel for Plaintiff immediately upon completion of the imaging process, which shall be no longer than three (3) days from the time Plaintiff provides it upon request by counsel for Defendant,

20. Within ten (10) days from the entry of this order, Plaintiff will identify any online cloud-based server accounts or similar accounts where it is possible to transmit or store data or information, which may be subject to the TRO. Defendant will identify accounts that it wishes to investigate. Disputes regarding the identification of the accounts and procedures for investigating the accounts, if any, will be resolved by the Special Referee.
21. The activities covered by this Order shall be governed by the South Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure. Any modifications to this order must be made in writing signed, by hand or electronically, by the Parties or their representatives.
22. The parties agree that by consenting to this order Defendant does not waive its rights to seek additional equitable relief as requested by Defendant's Motion for preliminary injunction, where appropriate. The Motion for preliminary injunction is held in abeyance.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Exhibit L

Affidavit of John Akerman

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF GREENVILLE

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS
THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
FILE NO. 2012-CP-23-0314

JEFF YELTON,
PLAINTIFF

VS.

AFFIDAVIT OF
JOHN W. AKERMAN
JULY 10, 2012

SCANSOURCE, INC.,
DEFENDANTS.

PERSONALLY APPEARED before me the undersigned who duly sworn and says as follows:

1. My name is John W. Akerman. I am a licensed attorney in South Carolina (SC Bar# 76659) and I am a partner of Rosen Litigation Technology Consulting, Inc. located at 65 Broad St., Charleston, SC 29401 ("RLTC"). I am also a licensed Certified Computer Examiner (CCE# 879) and a copy of my Curriculum Vitae is attached hereto and incorporated as Exhibit A. My practice is focused on computer forensics and electronic discovery.
2. In April of 2012 I was retained to create forensic images of Mr. Yelton's computers in relation to the above mentioned case. On April 20, 2012 I took custody of a box containing 11 devices which are detailed below and further in Exhibit B. The Chain of Custody form is also attached as Exhibit C. On the same day the process of imaging each of the devices was begun. Imaging of all the devices, except for the Dell Inspiron 9100 Laptop, was completed by April 26, 2012. The Dell Inspiron 9100 Laptop was imaged three separate times with each image completing, but reporting bad sectors on the hard drive. None of the hash values matched from the three images.

3. In imaging the devices, AccessData's FTK Imager ver. 3.0.0.1443 software and Tableau

Hardware writeblockers were used. Specifically for the Dell Inspiron 9100 Laptop, after hardware writeblocker imaging attempts failed, I attempted to image the laptop using Forward

Discovery Raptor 2.5 Forensic Boot Disk, but the laptop's hard drive continued to fail. Further attempts using the Tableau hardware writeblocker and FTK Imager were successful, but many bad sectors were reported on the hard drive.

4. Following the images, further collection was done of each of the device serial numbers. Using Document Solutions USB Write Blocker and the MS DOS command DevCon each of the serial numbers were collected from all of the USB devices. These serial numbers are included on the spreadsheet which is attached as Exhibit B.
5. Retained in my office are the originals of these images. Encrypted versions were then created and I personally delivered one hard drive containing all of these images to Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough's Greenville, SC office on June 28, 2012.
6. On June 27, 2012, I took custody of a custom black desktop computer with a Corsair case. The Chain of Custody form can be found in Exhibit D. Inspection of the computer revealed five hard drives which are detailed below.

7. Given the large size and number of hard drives in the computer, I had a conference call with Scansource counsel and FTI Consulting to determine the preferred format of the image(s) to be collected. Four of the drives were previewed using FTK Imager. It was determined that I should image the two Western Digital Caviar Green WD20EARS 2 Terabyte drives and the one Intel SSDSA2M120G2GC 120GB drive. Using FTK Imager and Tableau writeblockers, the three drives were imaged.

8. Retained in my office are the originals of these three images. Copies of those images were delivered via FedEx to Jason Lee at FTI Consulting in New York, NY.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

About Us

Twowayradiocenter.com is a division of Wired Fox Technologies and is dedicated to selling Motorola and Vertex Standard two way business radios. We are focused on the use of two way radios in a business environment, where communications is vital to the efficient operation of the of your business, safety of your workforce and/or the support of your customers.

We have been in the technology business for over 30 years and have found that the technology used in two way radios is stable, efficient, simple and cost effective. The return on investment of this technology is superior of other communications technologies.

We have Partnered with Motorola, the leader in two way radio technology. They have been in the radio business since 1928 and the two way radio business since 1930. Their unmatched technological leadership on the public safety and military side of their business provides a solid foundation for their business two way radio offerings with products that are nearly indestructible. In 2008 Motorola purchased Vertex and now offers both the Motorola and Vertex brands in the marketplace.

All products are shipped from a 50,000 square foot warehouse in Greer, South Carolina. We strive to ship all orders received by 3:00pm eastern the same day. Shipment is by UPS.

The TwoWayRadioCenter has experienced technical support that can help you determine the best radio for your specific needs, help you program your radios or solve any technical issues you may have. Whether you are expanding your current network of radios or deciding if you should move to the new digital technology in two way radios we are here to help.

Customer service is our top priority and we are available by phone from 8:00am to 5:30pm eastern time, Monday through Friday or by email 24 hours a day.

ScanSource, Inc.,	)
Defendant.	)

TO: DEFENDANT SCANSOURCE, INC. AND ITS ATTORNEYS, SUE ERWIN HARPER, CARMEN HARPER THOMAS, DOWSE "BRAD" RUSTIN, IV, AND ANNA E. HAMILTON:

INTERROGATORIES

1. Identify each of the repositories of electronic or hard copy documents or information that Plaintiff used during the time of his employment with Defendant and to present, including the manufacturer and serial number, if any, and the current location of that repository.

RESPONSE: To the extent this is seeking information regarding the hardware Plaintiff used, he has identified all such devices of which he is currently aware.

2. Identify the name, address, and phone number of each person with whom Plaintiff has communicated since December 9, 2011, regarding in any way Plaintiff's employment with or termination from ScanSource.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this request is overly broad and vague with respect to discussions "regarding in any way" such matters as "employment" or "termination." If Defendant can be more specific as to the types or topics of conversations at issue, Plaintiff will attempt to respond. Further, this request could be read to include communications (including e-mails) between Plaintiff and counsel, which are protected by the attorney-client privilege.

3. Identify the name, address, and phone number of each person with whom Plaintiff has communicated since December 9, 2011, regarding the vendors, resellers, customers, or other business affiliated with or in any way related to ScanSource.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this request is overly broad and vague with respect to discussions "regarding the vendors, resellers, customers, or other businesses affiliated with or in any way related to ScanSource" as this request could literally be read to request any conversation in any way related to the industry. If Defendant can be more specific as to the types or topics of conversations at issue, Plaintiff will attempt to respond. Further, this request could be read to include communications (including e-mails) between Plaintiff and counsel, which are protected by the attorney-client privilege.

4. Identify the name, address, and phone number of each person with whom Plaintiff has communicated since December 9, 2011, regarding Plaintiff's business or employment plans, proposals, or strategies.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this request is overly broad and vague. Plaintiff could not begin to remember every conversation in which he discussed his possible plans. Plaintiff is regularly involved in casual conversations, for example, in which people ask him what his plans are. Responding further, Plaintiff has discussed VarsGuide and/or possible employment with Jim Wech, Julianne Larimer, and Mark Kroh at Motorola and John Waldron, Darius Adamczyk, Mark Schmidt, and one other person (name unknown) at Honeywell. Plaintiff also had a discussion about his plans with Mike Helm from Epson as well as Kirk Morrison from Datalogic. Plaintiff also has discussed the possibility of becoming a VAR with Rob Dorsey at Bluestar. Further, this request could be read to include communications (including e-mails) between Plaintiff and counsel, which are protected by the attorney-client privilege.

5. Identify documents or information Plaintiff requested from ScanSource since December 9, 2011.

RESPONSE: See Plaintiff's Request to Produce.

6. Identify any documents or information, the creation of which were funded or directed by, or otherwise involved ScanSource, that Plaintiff has displayed, shared, referred to, reviewed, or used since December 9, 2011.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that he cannot discern what documents he looked at that could possibly fall within the categories of those "funded or directed by" or that "otherwise involve" Defendant. Plaintiff has made available all electronic and paper documents that he could locate that relate to his employment at ScanSource. Further, this request could be read to include communications (including e-mails) between Plaintiff and counsel, which are protected by the attorney-client privilege.

7. Identify the name, address, and phone number of any officers, directors, shareholders, employees, or volunteers of Varsguide, Inc.

RESPONSE: Jeff Yelton, who can be contacted through counsel.

8. Identify any contracts, agreements, or business relationships entered into by Varsguide, Inc., including the other person, that person's address and phone number, the scope of the contract, agreement, or business relationship.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff does not understand to what or to whom Defendant is referring as "the other person." Responding further, Varsguide has not entered into any contracts at this time.

9. Identify any contracts, agreements, or business relationships entered into by Plaintiff since December 9, 2011, including the other person, that person's address and phone number, and the scope of the contract, agreement, or business relationship.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff does not understand to what or to whom Defendant is referring as "the other person." Responding further, Varsguide has not entered into any contracts at this time.

10. Describe any contracts, agreements, or business relationships which Varsguide, Inc. or Plaintiff are negotiating, planning, or discussing.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff has discussed working with Motorola and/or Honeywell through VarsGuide or as an employee. Plaintiff also has discussed the possibility of becoming a VAR with Bluestar.

11. Identify the name, address, and phone number of Plaintiff's employers for the past 15 years (other than ScanSource) and the reason(s) Plaintiff's employment with each employer terminated.

RESPONSE: (1) Retalix USA – Plaintiff resigned to accept employment with Defendant. (2) Kyrus – Plaintiff left by mutual agreement.

REQUESTS

1. Produce any and all documents and electronic information identified in the answers to Defendant's interrogatories.

RESPONSE: All such documents have been made available.

2. Produce any and all documents and electronic information in Plaintiff's possession, custody, or control that at any time were located or stored on ScanSource's property, including electronic devices or storage media.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this would literally call for every document ever created by a ScanSource person, including a pay check, etc. Plaintiff has endeavored to find all non-privileged documents in his possession related to his employment with ScanSource and already made such documents available.

3. Produce any and all documents and electronic information in Plaintiff's possession, custody, or control that relate to Defendant.

RESPONSE: See response to RTP 2.

4. Produce any and all documents and electronic information in Plaintiff's possession, custody or control that relate to Varsguide, Inc.

RESPONSE: Plaintiff objects on the grounds that this request is overly broad, vague, and is not properly tailored to lead to the discovery of information related to any claim or defense in this case.

Respectfully submitted this 2nd day of March, 2012.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS
THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

vs.

Defendant.

SUPPLEMENTAL
AFFIDAVIT OF DEAN GAIDA

FILED-CLERK OF COURT
GREENVILLE CO. S.C.
PAUL B. WICKENS JR.
2017 AUG 28 P 2:33

1. My name is Dean Gaida, I am above the age of 18, and I have personal knowledge of and am competent to testify about the matters addressed herein.

3. As evidenced in Exhibit B, of my July 18 Affidavit, FTI determined five electronic storage devices were connected to the ScanSource Laptop by USB during the period of December 9, 2011 to December 15, 2011, assigned drive letter E, that were not among the devices returned by Plaintiff Yelton pursuant to the Protocol. Among those five USB devices was a Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 102002081627B702, first connected at 8:58 AM and later connected at 11:51 AM on December 12, 2011.

4. As described in ¶ 10, of the July 26 Supplemental, FTI determined that three of the five USB drives were also connected to Yelton's personal HP Laptop after December 15, 2011. Specifically this documented the Flash Disk USB Device, Serial No. 102002081627B702 was connected to Yelton's personal HP Laptop at 9:19 P.M. on January 17, 2012.

5. On August 20, 2012 and August 23, 2012, respectively FTI received a copy of Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox's work laptop hard drives for which the chain of custody is provided in Exhibit A. Using EnCase, an image was created for both of these machines and used during this forensic examination.

6. As before, FTI generated reports which detail the removable USB devices connected to these machines as recorded by Windows. Both of these devices were running Windows XP and the process followed was the same as described in the July 26 Supplemental Affidavit. The results of this effort are documented in Exhibit B.

7. In review of this information FTI found that both Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox's laptops had connected the above-identified Flash Disk USB device with the Serial No. 102002081627B702. By reviewing the records associated with this particular connection across all four of these USB reports provided we see the following timeline emerge on December 12, 2011:

- a. At 8:58 AM the USB device was connected to Yelton's work laptop
- b. At 9:00 AM the USB device was connected to Robbie Cox's work laptop
- c. At 10:15 AM the USB device was connected to Chris Spearman's work laptop
- d. At 11:51AM the USB device was connected again to Yelton's work laptop

This same device then is connected on January 17, 2012 to Yelton's personal HP laptop, at 9:19 P.M.

8. I conducted or oversaw the investigation and analysis for which the results are described in this supplemental affidavit. This supplemental report has been prepared based on information currently available to me. I reserve the right to amend this report or submit a supplemental report as additional, relevant information becomes available to me. As such, my opinions may be subject to change.

9. FTI is retained by Nelson Mullins Riley & Scarborough LLP to provide forensic investigation services related to this case.

FURTHER AFFIANT SAYETH NOT.

Jeff Yelton,

Plaintiff,

v.

ScanSource, Inc.,

Defendant.

) Plaintiff's Affidavit in Opposition to ) Defendant's Motion for Contempt
) and Motion for Preliminary Injunction

Plaintiff is an adult over the age of 18 years and the following are true and correct facts personally known to Plaintiff and are within his personal knowledge:

1. I am not aware of any confidential information belonging to ScanSource that I possessed as of January 27, 2012 that was not turned over to my attorney by early the next morning.
2. I have never denied that, prior to the Court's Order, I would delete ScanSource data off my computer as I came across it. I believed that deleting the data was the proper thing to do and I had no need for it. As mentioned in my earlier affidavit, it is my understanding that any electronic file that I would have would be on ScanSource's system so I was not depriving ScanSource of any data. (Jan 26 Aff. ¶ 15). I also stated in my affidavit that it was my intent to delete the contents of my dropbox containing the files to which Defendant refers. (Id. ¶ 23). The only files that remained were research files disclosed to ScanSource. The information that I have now on my laptop (the Research folder) was copied over with the permission of ScanSource at the meeting held on February 14, 2012.

3. .xls is a file extension for Excel; .ppt is a file extension for PowerPoint; and .doc is the file extension for Microsoft Word. These are all software in the Office bundle, which I use on my laptop.
4. Autosave is a feature on powerpoint, and may be set on my other Microsoft products as well.
5. Attached is a true and correct copy of an exchange I have had with a technical support representative of Dropbox regarding the causes of a file to be designated as "edited" in Dropbox.
6. With respect to the documents referenced in Defendant's Motion at pp. 5-6, it is possible I opened them to see what they are, but that is all I can think of in terms of why I would have accessed the document.
7. The following is my best recollection of the documents referenced in Defendant's Motion at pp. 5-6:
 - a. The two tier distribution presentation was a generic presentation on how two tier distribution works. It was presented to many different groups and does not contain any ScanSource confidential data. VarsGuide was not a distribution business. The only content that I can think of that would be similar to what I used with Varsguide would be a product maturity lifecycle curve table, which is a generic table used in texts and widely available on the Internet (google "product lifecycle curve"). I don't recall, however, using this document as a source. If I did, however, there would have been no confidential information at issue because we disseminated this information openly.

- b. The bottom 1000 catalog recipient documents contains a list of VARS. It does not contain product information or anything that would relate to end users. I would have had no reason to be editing this document in January 2012. I did not use this document for any purpose other than my employment with ScanSource.
 - c. BU 01 Forecasting Worksheet is a template that was used to forecast sales to VARS and was part of our long-range business planning. I would have had no reason to be editing this document in January 2012. Again, this document does not contain information about end users or products when completed.
- 8. I do not recall the five USB devices referenced in the Gaida affidavit and I would not be able to identify a USB device by a serial number. I used many USB devices ("flash drives") over time while at work.
 - 9. I do not recall anything about two USB devices that could have been plugged into my laptop after I left ScanSource that were not produced.
 - 10. My intention after the hearing on January 27th was to turn over all the contents of my office and anything I could find that might have ScanSource information on it. To the best of my knowledge, that's what I did.
 - 11. Since that time, I have not come across any other ScanSource confidential information or USB devices with ScanSource confidential information.
 - 12. When the Motion to Expedite was filed, I looked again for USB devices and did not find anything that I had while employed by ScanSource or that contain ScanSource confidential information. If I find any, I will provide them to my attorney.

13. I have not solicited confidential information from ScanSource employees in violation of the TRO.
14. Varsguide has not been engaged by anyone in the industry to date and I have done no work for any vendors of ScanSource, VARS, or point-of-sale end users.
15. Currently, I am focusing on an e-commerce site dedicated to selling business two-way radios to end users. I am not a distributor. This business has nothing to do with the point-of-sale industry.
16. I am, in no way, using ScanSource confidential information. Nor have I been disclosing ScanSource confidential information.
17. Exhibit C shows my new Dropbox activity events for the time in question before and after the TRO hearing.
18. Exhibit D is the document "New Distribution Model" that was created after I was informed of my termination. It has nothing to do with ScanSource and contains no ScanSource information. ScanSource did not object to me copying it on February 14 and the screen shot shows that I maintain a copy today.

Respectfully submitted this 30th day of August, 2012.

Sean L. - Dropbox Support, Aug 29 02:10 am (PDT):

Hi Jeff,

Office does indeed have this feature; it does appear that Office saves a version of the file upon opening it, even if absolutely nothing has changed.

Best,
Sean

Jeff Yelton, Aug 23 01:49 pm (PDT):

I was using PowerPoint 2003 on Microsoft Windows 7 Home Edition. Is it possible that when I opened the file the operating system could have saved the file as "modified" even though I just looked at it regardless of if "autosave" was on?

By the way, autosave is on in my PowerPoint.

Jeff

Robert - Dropbox Support, Aug 23 01:35 pm (PDT):

Hi Jeff,

The Last Modified entry on a file is handled by the operating system, and not by Dropbox. There are many activities which can change the last modified date of a file, including:

- 1) editing the contents of the file
- 2) moving the file to a different drive (ie from C:\ to D:\)
- 3) copying the file to a new location (the new file will have an updated Last Modified entry).
- 4) encrypting/decrypting a file
- 5) opening the file in a program which has an autosave feature.

Best,
Robert

Jeff Yelton, Aug 21 07:48 am (PDT):

I need to contact/hire someone that can answer questions about how DropBox works and issues it might have.

An example of a question I need answered might be, I did not edit any files in DropBox but it shows that they were edited. The file is a Microsoft PowerPoint File. Is this a bug in how Dropbox works with Windows 7.

If I opened the file but did not edit it is it possible Windows shows it as edited?

Thank you,

Jeff Yelton

ScanSource, Inc.,	)	ANSWERS TO PLAINTIFF'S
	)	FIRST INTERROGATORIES
Defendant.	)

Pursuant to Rule 33, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure, Defendant ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource") hereby supplements its first supplemental answers to Plaintiff's First Interrogatories.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL
ANSWERS AND OBJECTIONS TO INTERROGATORIES

5. Identify by date, participant, and mode, all oral, electronic, and written communications between employees or agents of Defendant regarding the decision to terminate Plaintiff's employment.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is protected by the attorney-client privilege or as work product. Protected information is withheld from discovery and described on a privilege log attached as Exhibit A to this Supplemental Response. In addition, ScanSource objects to this interrogatory pursuant to Rule 33(c), S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Further, ScanSource objects to this interrogatory as overly broad and unduly burdensome because it seeks identification of "all" such communications; ScanSource has made and continues to make a reasonable inquiry into the likely responsive repositories.

ScanSource further states that all documents relied upon as part of its investigation upon which the Company relied in terminating Plaintiff for cause have been identified in ScanSource's response to Interrogatories Nos. 7, 19, and 20 above.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

22. If you contend Plaintiff has misappropriated any information that you contend is a trade secret belonging to you, specify:

- a. each trade secret that forms the basis of your contention;
- b. each fact upon which you rely in contending that Plaintiff misappropriated the trade secret;
- c. each witness that has knowledge of Plaintiff's misappropriation of the trade secret; and
- d. each document upon which you rely in support of your contention.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is outside the scope of discovery pursuant to Rule 26, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Subject to and without waiving any objection, ScanSource answers that Plaintiff misappropriated trade secrets pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 39-8-20 as described in the affidavits of Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox, specified as Yelton00003 and Yelton00018, respectively. By referring to these affidavits, ScanSource does not intend to and does not limit its answer to the information described in the affidavits. ScanSource further states that Plaintiff can ascertain information responsive to this interrogatory at Yelton06537, Yelton06518, and Yelton01361 which are the QBRs requested by Plaintiff. ScanSource may also rely upon those documents contained in Plaintiff's Dropbox account, and activity reflected therein during the relevant timeframe.

ScanSource further states that the trade secret information misappropriated by Plaintiff is identified in response to Interrogatory No. 19 above, and includes the QBRs for Motorola, Honeywell, and Intermec, described above, the confidential and proprietary information removed by Plaintiff via Dropbox (Yelton12814 to 12871), and the confidential and proprietary documents removed from Plaintiff's office on December 15 and 16. ScanSource intends to rely upon those witnesses identified in response to Interrogatory No. 19 above to establish its claim that Plaintiff misappropriated the trade secrets of ScanSource. ScanSource further intends to rely upon the testimony, reports and other evidence as may be provided by FTI and Rosen with respect to certain devices returned by Plaintiff pursuant to the TRO and the Consent Protocol, as well as Plaintiff's work computer, and evidence as may be discovered on these and other devices identified in discovery.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

23. If you contend Plaintiff has used any information that you contend is a trade secret belonging to you, specify:

- a. each trade secret that forms the basis of your contention;
- b. each fact upon which you rely in contending that Plaintiff used the trade secret;
- c. each witness that has knowledge of Plaintiff's use of the trade secret; and
- d. each document upon which you rely in support of your contention.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is outside the scope of discovery pursuant to Rule 26, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Subject to and without waiving any objection, ScanSource answers that Plaintiff misappropriated trade secrets pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 39-8-20 as described in the affidavits of Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox, specified as Yelton00003 and Yelton00005, respectively. By referring to these affidavits, ScanSource does not intend to and does not limit its answer to the information described in the affidavits. ScanSource further states that Plaintiff can ascertain information responsive to this interrogatory at Yelton06537 and Yelton06518. ScanSource may also rely upon those documents contained in Plaintiff's Dropbox account, and activity reflected therein during the relevant timeframe.

ScanSource further states that the Company presently lacks further information demonstrating Plaintiff has used any ScanSource trade secret information, but submits that it intends to rely on the above evidence, as well as evidence set forth in the Company's responses to Interrogatories Nos. 7, 19, 20 and 22 above to establish Plaintiff's threatened use and disclosure, as well as Plaintiff's likely use and disclosure, of ScanSource's confidential, proprietary and trade secret information. ScanSource further notes that Plaintiff has admitted to his intention to form a business using ScanSource's proprietary and confidential information (Yelton00490-91, 00540, 12536-38, 12586), and ScanSource believes Plaintiff has and continues to use such information for this stated purpose. ScanSource also notes that Plaintiff has, upon information and belief, met with Motorola, Honeywell and Intermec, and has used ScanSource proprietary and confidential information in order to pursue his own interests in pursuit of business opportunities with these and other ScanSource customers.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

Attorneys for ScanSource, Inc.

Greenville, South Carolina

July 13, 2012

I know that I caught you off guard with my phone call on Friday but I've been thinking about the channel model for the AIDC industry for a long time and believe that the current model needs to be refreshed. Many of the long held beliefs in our industry are perpetuated by veterans that are resistant to accept change because of reasons like:

1. Their financial model is not strong enough to weather a transition.
2. They are scared to be the first one to challenge the status quo.
3. Their business is good today and plan on riding the current model to the end of their career.
4. They don't want to accept that AIDC products are currently nearing commoditization.
6. Distributors drive demand and can influence resellers purchasers.

I'm convinced that the AIDC channel can be changed to reflect the commoditization of products and the need for vertical based resellers. I would do this with a two pronged approach:

1. Broad product availability for low value customers utilizing direct marketers andetailers with product acquisition costs set to ensure Honeywell ASP control in the market.

In some cases, where minimum order quantities applied, DMAR's/etailers would become stocking customers with purchases made directly from Honeywell. If they wanted to acquire from a distributor they would pay a higher price with savings determined based on efficiencies brought by the distributor.

2. Recruitment of vertical based solutions providers that are certified by Honeywell to be exclusive Honeywell resellers. In exchange for this exclusivity, Honeywell would make deep investments in the reseller to help them transform into business process specialists in their chosen vertical utilizing Honeywell technology to bring documented ROI to the end user. In the first 24 months, Honeywell would pick 2 per target industry and provide with the following;
 - a. Vision and blue print of the business reseller future business model.
 - b. Future financial model and transitional strategies.
 - c. Professional services metrics, employee profiles, management training, estimating skills, collateral development, IP legal guidance, etc.
 - d. Marketing/Branding education and plans.
 - e. Vertical specific product development when warranted.

In addition, I would re-evaluate the role of distribution to include:

- a. The direct vs indirect mix.
- b. Move marketing of Honeywell products back to Honeywell from distribution and utilize distribution wide marketing

- c. Out source marketing for speed and efficiency but control programs and message to the market.
- d. Do not pay distribution for marketing their own brand.
- e. Pay rebates based on customer service level metrics and sales out above.
- f. Reduce or eliminate headcount funding.
- g. Reduce stock rotation percent to 5%.

This approach would be funded by reductions in distribution margins and rebates

I still believe that distribution is very vital to the health of the AIDC industry but also believe that it's time to move to a model more in line with the maturity of the products.

I'm sure this has left you with many questions and I'm sure you can't believe I'm taking this position. I can assure you I write this with a lot of trepidation but I thought you should know my thoughts. If you are interested in discussing this further please let me know.

Also, as you might expect, I would ask that you keep this confidential.

Exhibit G

(February 27, 2013 Constantine Affidavit and Exhibits)

programs depend on growth and purchases from vendors and sales to customers. ScanSource's growth is driven by its marketing programs, which are funded by co-operative marketing programs and market development funds received from vendors.

6. Without revealing confidential details of ScanSource's financials, the margins, profits, rebates, purchases, and marketing funding equate to multi-millions of dollars annually.

7. The marketing services ScanSource provides to its vendors include, but are not limited to, promoting and launching new products, recruiting new reseller partners, email campaigns, telemarketing, business development visits, promotional events, targeted web marketing, videos, and sales incentives, all utilizing ScanSource's existing customer databases. ScanSource's employees work with vendors to develop and implement marketing plans for vendor products.

8. Yelton's Model aims to eliminate ScanSource's marketing services. For example, on the bottom of the first page, Yelton says he "would re-evaluate the role of distribution to include: (a) The direct vs. indirect mix." Based on the Model, Yelton advocates for vendors to sell directly to some customers/resellers, instead of through distributors, like ScanSource. This Model would not only compete with ScanSource, it would eliminate ScanSource from its role as distributor within certain sales channels.

9. Also on the bottom of the first page, item (b), Yelton says he would "[m]ove marketing of Honeywell products back to Honeywell from distribution and utilize distribution wide marketing." (Emphasis added.) ScanSource is one of several distributors Honeywell uses, so this document explicitly states that his Model means the elimination of ScanSource's marketing services.

10. On the top of page 2, item (c), the Model would “[o]ut source marketing for speed and efficiency but control programs and message to the market.” Based on the Model and the additional details considered below about Yelton’s company, VarsGuide, Yelton intends to provide the outsourced marketing services through VarsGuide, in competition with ScanSource.

11. On the top of page 2, item (d), the Model states that Yelton would “not pay distribution for marketing their own brand.” When ScanSource markets vendor products, the marketing programs are executed by ScanSource on the vendor’s behalf. In addition to promoting the vendor, ScanSource itself derives a benefit from these co-operative marketing programs. This item (d) also is saying that ScanSource would not get paid under this Model.

12. Also on the top of page 2, item (f), the Model states that Yelton would “[r]educe or eliminate headcount funding.” To maximize efficiencies and effectiveness, some vendors fund ScanSource employees who are dedicated to that vendor’s products. As of the date of this affidavit, over 50 ScanSource employees are funded by head-count funding. Yelton’s Model would eliminate this relationship and the employees’ jobs, or would negatively affect ScanSource’s profitability.

13. Also on the top of page 2, item (g), with regard to the role of distribution, Yelton would “[r]educe stock rotation percent to 5%.” Stock rotation arrangements allow ScanSource to return stock to a vendor if it is not selling, and the amount of stock that can be returned is set at a certain percentage. Reducing the stock rotation percentage would mean ScanSource, as the distributor, would have to increase its inventory obsolescence expenses (that is, write off more inventory) or stock less inventory. The lower inventory levels would result in lower customer satisfaction and lost business because less inventory would be available to fill customer needs. Lower customer satisfaction leads inevitably to lower revenues and profits.

14. Upon information and belief, I understand that Yelton acquired the Honeywell Quarterly Business Review ("QBR"), Honeywell business plan, and Motorola QBR just before he left ScanSource.

15. The Model suggests that "DMAR's/etailers would become stocking customers with purchases made directly from Honeywell." (Page 1, second numbered list, item 1.) The Honeywell QBR contains the list of Direct Marketers ("DMAR") particular to Honeywell, so a marketing proposal to Honeywell based on the Model necessarily would rely on the list of DMARs in the QBR. In addition, DMARs purchasing directly from Honeywell would reduce ScanSource's revenues. Since the DMARs would no longer be purchasing from ScanSource.

16. The Model also indicates that the "approach would be funded by reductions in distribution margins and rebates." As explained above, POS/Barcode's profitability is highly dependent upon the margins and rebates available through ScanSource's relationships with vendors. A significant reduction in margins and rebates would fundamentally and negatively change ScanSource's business.

Honeywell Bioptic Scanner Marketing Campaign Proposal

17. I reviewed an email from Yelton to Penn Williams (Jan. 9, 2012), and the attachment named Honeywell Bioptic Scanner.doc, which is titled Honeywell Stratos Bioptic Scanner Marketing Campaign ("Bioptic Proposal"). (Attached as Exhibit B.) I also reviewed a document provided by Yelton named Rho Elements, ET1 and ES/400 Grocery Marketing Campaign ("Grocery Proposal"). (Attached as Exhibit C.)

18. The Bioptic Proposal and Grocery Proposal are exactly what Honeywell and Motorola pay ScanSource to do.

19. ScanSource markets vendor products to ScanSource customers, who are resellers. The purposes of these marketing programs are to recruit and encourage the resellers to sell the vendor's products. The resellers then sell the products to end users.

20. In addition to developing marketing plans targeted directly to its reseller customers, ScanSource also helps its reseller customers with funding, project management, and execution of marketing programs directed to the end users.

21. Yelton's Bioptic Proposal would target directly both the group that is ScanSource's customers (page 2, item 2 of the Target Audience) and the end users (page 2, item 1 of the Target Audience).

22. According to Yelton's email chain with Penn Williams, his Model is the same as his "basic business model for Varsguide." This means his company, VarsGuide, was intended to implement the Model, and the Bioptic Proposal and the Grocery Proposal are Yelton's efforts to provide the marketing services described in the Model.

23. Further, Yelton explained to Ms. Williams that he presented the Bioptic Proposal plan to Honeywell on Friday, January 13, 2012, and received a verbal agreement to move forward with the plan. This means he and VarsGuide acted to implement the Model and presented the Proposal to Honeywell in support of the Model.

24. His email to Ms. Williams describes in additional detail the directly competitive marketing efforts that he would undertake with VarsGuide. (See Page 2 of 3 of the Jan. 3, 2012 4:08 PM email from Jeff Yelton to Penn Williams, Exhibit B.)

25. The decision to target Honeywell's Bioptic Scanner with the Bioptic Proposal can be traced to the Honeywell QBR, which reflects the status of the Bioptic Scanner among Honeywell's various item classes. The specific details of that status are not described here because that information is considered confidential. It appears likely that the Honeywell QBR was used to develop the Bioptic Proposal, which actually was presented to Honeywell.

26. The Honeywell QBR also contains the list of Honeywell's fastest growing customers and the customers who have had the greatest decline in business in the last quarter. This information would be key to developing, presenting, and implementing the Bioptic Proposal, because the customers are one of the target markets of the Bioptic Proposal. Knowing which ones to target would be critical to a marketing proposal.

27. Similarly, Yelton's Grocery Proposal would target directly both the group that is ScanSource's customers (page 2, items 2 and 3 of the Target Audience) and the end users (page 2, item 1 of the Target Audience).

28. Yelton said in his discovery responses that he traveled to Chicago to talk with Jim Welch, Mark Kroh, and Juliann Larimer of Motorola on January 24, 2012, about "the future of the barcoding industry and potential marketing solutions for two products Motorola was preparing to launch." He also said he gave them the Grocery Proposal presentation and that Motorola agreed to get back in touch. This means he and VarsGuide acted to implement the Model and presented the Grocery Proposal to Motorola in support of the Model.

29. The decision to target RhoElements, ET1, and ES/400 with the Grocery Proposal can be traced to the Motorola QBR, which reflects the status of marketing efforts underway by ScanSource and Motorola. Without revealing confidential information, the QBR also describes the specific marketing tasks, which are similar to those described in the Grocery Proposal. It appears likely that the Motorola QBR was used to develop the Grocery Proposal, which actually was presented to Motorola.

Confidentiality of Certain Files

30. In my position, I am aware of the types of information used by ScanSource. Certain information, which often is kept in electronic files, is confidential or proprietary, or both.

31. I reviewed the following electronic files on or about January 31, 2013, and they are either confidential or proprietary information belonging to ScanSource or information that ScanSource is required to protect as confidential pursuant to non-disclosure agreements:

Jeff Yelton,

Plaintiff,

V.

ScanSource, Inc.,

Defendant.

) Plaintiff's Affidavit in Opposition to ) Defendant's Motion for Contempt
) and Motion for Preliminary Injunction

Plaintiff is an adult over the age of 18 years and the following are true and correct facts personally known to Plaintiff and are within his personal knowledge:

1. I am not aware of any confidential information belonging to ScanSource that I possessed as of January 27, 2012 that was not turned over to my attorney by early the next morning.
2. I have never denied that, prior to the Court's Order, I would delete ScanSource data off my computer as I came across it. I believed that deleting the data was the proper thing to do and I had no need for it. As mentioned in my earlier affidavit, it is my understanding that any electronic file that I would have would be on ScanSource's system so I was not depriving ScanSource of any data. (Jan 26 Aff. ¶ 15). I also stated in my affidavit that it was my intent to delete the contents of my dropbox containing the files to which Defendant refers. (Id. ¶ 23). The only files that remained were research files disclosed to ScanSource. The information that I have now on my laptop (the Research folder) was copied over with the permission of ScanSource at the meeting held on February 14, 2012.

3. .xls is a file extension for Excel; .ppt is a file extension for PowerPoint; and .doc is the file extension for Microsoft Word. These are all software in the Office bundle, which I use on my laptop.
4. Autosave is a feature on powerpoint, and may be set on my other Microsoft products as well.
5. Attached is a true and correct copy of an exchange I have had with a technical support representative of Dropbox regarding the causes of a file to be designated as "edited" in Dropbox.
6. With respect to the documents referenced in Defendant's Motion at pp. 5-6, it is possible I opened them to see what they are, but that is all I can think of in terms of why I would have accessed the document.
7. The following is my best recollection of the documents referenced in Defendant's Motion at pp. 5-6:
 - a. The two tier distribution presentation was a generic presentation on how two tier distribution works. It was presented to many different groups and does not contain any ScanSource confidential data. VarsGuide was not a distribution business. The only content that I can think of that would be similar to what I used with Varsguide would be a product maturity lifecycle curve table, which is a generic table used in texts and widely available on the Internet (google "product lifecycle curve"). I don't recall, however, using this document as a source. If I did, however, there would have been no confidential information at issue because we disseminated this information openly.

- b. The bottom 1000 catalog recipient documents contains a list of VARS. It does not contain product information or anything that would relate to end users. I would have had no reason to be editing this document in January 2012. I did not use this document for any purpose other than my employment with ScanSource.
 - c. BU 01 Forecasting Worksheet is a template that was used to forecast sales to VARS and was part of our long-range business planning. I would have had no reason to be editing this document in January 2012. Again, this document does not contain information about end users or products when completed.
- 8. I do not recall the five USB devices referenced in the Gaida affidavit and I would not be able to identify a USB device by a serial number. I used many USB devices ("flash drives") over time while at work.
 - 9. I do not recall anything about two USB devices that could have been plugged into my laptop after I left ScanSource that were not produced.
 - 10. My intention after the hearing on January 27th was to turn over all the contents of my office and anything I could find that might have ScanSource information on it. To the best of my knowledge, that's what I did.
 - 11. Since that time, I have not come across any other ScanSource confidential information or USB devices with ScanSource confidential information.
 - 12. When the Motion to Expedite was filed, I looked again for USB devices and did not find anything that I had while employed by ScanSource or that contain ScanSource confidential information. If I find any, I will provide them to my attorney.

13. I have not solicited confidential information from ScanSource employees in violation of the TRO.
14. Varsguide has not been engaged by anyone in the industry to date and I have done no work for any vendors of ScanSource, VARS, or point-of-sale end users.
15. Currently, I am focusing on an e-commerce site dedicated to selling business two-way radios to end users. I am not a distributor. This business has nothing to do with the point-of-sale industry.
16. I am, in no way, using ScanSource confidential information. Nor have I been disclosing ScanSource confidential information.
17. Exhibit C shows my new Dropbox activity events for the time in question before and after the TRO hearing.
18. Exhibit D is the document "New Distribution Model" that was created after I was informed of my termination. It has nothing to do with ScanSource and contains no ScanSource information. ScanSource did not object to me copying it on February 14 and the screen shot shows that I maintain a copy today.

Respectfully submitted this 30th day of August, 2012.

Sean L. - Dropbox Support, Aug 29 02:10 am (PDT):

Hi Jeff,

Office does indeed have this feature; it does appear that Office saves a version of the file upon opening it, even if absolutely nothing has changed.

Best,
Sean

Jeff Yelton, Aug 23 01:49 pm (PDT):

I was using PowerPoint 2003 on Microsoft Windows 7 Home Edition. Is it possible that when I opened the file the operating system could have saved the file as "modified" even though I just looked at it regardless of if 'autosave' was on?

By the way, autosave is on in my PowerPoint.

Jeff

Robert - Dropbox Support, Aug 23 01:35 pm (PDT):

Hi Jeff,

The Last Modified entry on a file is handled by the operating system, and not by Dropbox. There are many activities which can change the last modified date of a file, including:

- 1) editing the contents of the file
- 2) moving the file to a different drive (ie from C:\ to D:\)
- 3) copying the file to a new location (the new file will have an updated Last Modified entry).
- 4) encrypting/decrypting a file
- 5) opening the file in a program which has an autosave feature.

Best,
Robert

Jeff Yelton, Aug 21 07:48 am (PDT):

I need to contact/hire someone that can answer questions about how DropBox works and issues it might have.

An example of a question I need answered might Is, I did not edit any files in DropBox but it shows that they were edited. The file is a Microsoft PowerPoint File. Is this a bug in how Dropbox works with Windows 7.

If I opened the file but did not edit it is it possible Windows shows it as edited?

	)	FIRST INTERROGATORIES
Defendant.	)

Pursuant to Rule 33, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure, Defendant ScanSource, Inc. ("ScanSource") hereby supplements its first supplemental answers to Plaintiff's First Interrogatories.

SECOND SUPPLEMENTAL
ANSWERS AND OBJECTIONS TO INTERROGATORIES

5. Identify by date, participant, and mode, all oral, electronic, and written communications between employees or agents of Defendant regarding the decision to terminate Plaintiff's employment.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is protected by the attorney-client privilege or as work product. Protected information is withheld from discovery and described on a privilege log attached as Exhibit A to this Supplemental Response. In addition, ScanSource objects to this interrogatory pursuant to Rule 33(c), S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Further, ScanSource objects to this interrogatory as overly broad and unduly burdensome because it seeks identification of "all" such communications; ScanSource has made and continues to make a reasonable inquiry into the likely responsive repositories.

ScanSource further states that all documents relied upon as part of its investigation upon which the Company relied in terminating Plaintiff for cause have been identified in ScanSource's response to Interrogatories Nos. 7, 19, and 20 above.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

22. If you contend Plaintiff has misappropriated any information that you contend is a trade secret belonging to you, specify:

- a. each trade secret that forms the basis of your contention;
- b. each fact upon which you rely in contending that Plaintiff misappropriated the trade secret;
- c. each witness that has knowledge of Plaintiff's misappropriation of the trade secret; and
- d. each document upon which you rely in support of your contention.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is outside the scope of discovery pursuant to Rule 26, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Subject to and without waiving any objection, ScanSource answers that Plaintiff misappropriated trade secrets pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 39-8-20 as described in the affidavits of Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox, specified as Yelton00003 and Yelton00018, respectively. By referring to these affidavits, ScanSource does not intend to and does not limit its answer to the information described in the affidavits. ScanSource further states that Plaintiff can ascertain information responsive to this interrogatory at Yelton06537, Yelton06518, and Yelton01361 which are the QBRs requested by Plaintiff. ScanSource may also rely upon those documents contained in Plaintiff's Dropbox account, and activity reflected therein during the relevant timeframe.

ScanSource further states that the trade secret information misappropriated by Plaintiff is identified in response to Interrogatory No. 19 above, and includes the QBRs for Motorola, Honeywell, and Intermec, described above, the confidential and proprietary information removed by Plaintiff via Dropbox (Yelton12814 to 12871), and the confidential and proprietary documents removed from Plaintiff's office on December 15 and 16. ScanSource intends to rely upon those witnesses identified in response to Interrogatory No. 19 above to establish its claim that Plaintiff misappropriated the trade secrets of ScanSource. ScanSource further intends to rely upon the testimony, reports and other evidence as may be provided by FTI and Rosen with respect to certain devices returned by Plaintiff pursuant to the TRO and the Consent Protocol, as well as Plaintiff's work computer, and evidence as may be discovered on these and other devices identified in discovery.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

23. If you contend Plaintiff has used any information that you contend is a trade secret belonging to you, specify:

- a. each trade secret that forms the basis of your contention;
- b. each fact upon which you rely in contending that Plaintiff used the trade secret;
- c. each witness that has knowledge of Plaintiff's use of the trade secret; and
- d. each document upon which you rely in support of your contention.

ANSWER: ScanSource objects to this interrogatory because it seeks information that is outside the scope of discovery pursuant to Rule 26, S.C. Rules of Civil Procedure. Subject to and without waiving any objection, ScanSource answers that Plaintiff misappropriated trade secrets pursuant to S.C. Code Ann. § 39-8-20 as described in the affidavits of Chris Spearman and Robbie Cox, specified as Yelton00003 and Yelton00005, respectively. By referring to these affidavits, ScanSource does not intend to and does not limit its answer to the information described in the affidavits. ScanSource further states that Plaintiff can ascertain information responsive to this interrogatory at Yelton06537 and Yelton06518. ScanSource may also rely upon those documents contained in Plaintiff's Dropbox account, and activity reflected therein during the relevant timeframe.

ScanSource further states that the Company presently lacks further information demonstrating Plaintiff has used any ScanSource trade secret information, but submits that it intends to rely on the above evidence, as well as evidence set forth in the Company's responses to Interrogatories Nos. 7, 19, 20 and 22 above to establish Plaintiff's threatened use and disclosure, as well as Plaintiff's likely use and disclosure, of ScanSource's confidential, proprietary and trade secret information. ScanSource further notes that Plaintiff has admitted to his intention to form a business using ScanSource's proprietary and confidential information (Yelton00490-91, 00540, 12536-38, 12586), and ScanSource believes Plaintiff has and continues to use such information for this stated purpose. ScanSource also notes that Plaintiff has, upon information and belief, met with Motorola, Honeywell and Intermec, and has used ScanSource proprietary and confidential information in order to pursue his own interests in pursuit of business opportunities with these and other ScanSource customers.

ScanSource's investigation, review and production of responsive documents and information is ongoing, and it reserves the right to supplement this answer.

I know that I caught you off guard with my phone call on Friday but I've been thinking about the channel model for the AIDC industry for a long time and believe that the current model needs to be refreshed. Many of the long held beliefs in our industry are perpetuated by veterans that are resistant to accept change because of reasons like:

1. Their financial model is not strong enough to weather a transition.
2. They are scared to be the first one to challenge the status quo.
3. Their business is good today and plan on riding the current model to the end of their career.
4. They don't want to accept that AIDC products are currently nearing commoditization.
6. Distributors drive demand and can influence resellers purchasers.

I'm convinced that the AIDC channel can be changed to reflect the commoditization of products and the need for vertical based resellers. I would do this with a two pronged approach:

1. Broad product availability for low value customers utilizing direct marketers and etailers with product acquisition costs set to ensure Honeywell ASP control in the market.

In some cases, where minimum order quantities applied, DMAR's/etailers would become stocking customers with purchases made directly from Honeywell. If they wanted to acquire from a distributor they would pay a higher price with savings determined based on efficiencies brought by the distributor.

2. Recruitment of vertical based solutions providers that are certified by Honeywell to be exclusive Honeywell resellers. In exchange for this exclusivity, Honeywell would make deep investments in the reseller to help them transform into business process specialists in their chosen vertical utilizing Honeywell technology to bring documented ROI to the end user. In the first 24 months, Honeywell would pick 2 per target industry and provide with the following;
 - a. Vision and blue print of the business reseller future business model.
 - b. Future financial model and transitional strategies.
 - c. Professional services metrics, employee profiles, management training, estimating skills, collateral development, IP legal guidance, etc.
 - d. Marketing/Branding education and plans.
 - e. Vertical specific product development when warranted.

In addition, I would re-evaluate the role of distribution to include:

- a. The direct vs indirect mix.
- b. Move marketing of Honeywell products back to Honeywell from distribution and utilize distribution wide marketing

- c. Out source marketing for speed and efficiency but control programs and message to the market.
- d. Do not pay distribution for marketing their own brand.
- e. Pay rebates based on customer service level metrics and sales out above.
- f. Reduce or eliminate headcount funding.
- g. Reduce stock rotation percent to 5%.

This approach would be funded by reductions in distribution margins and rebates

I still believe that distribution is very vital to the health of the AIDC industry but also believe that it's time to move to a model more in line with the maturity of the products.

I'm sure this has left you with many questions and I'm sure you can't believe I'm taking this position. I can assure you I write this with a lot of trepidation but I thought you should know my thoughts. If you are interested in discussing this further please let me know.

Also, as you might expect, I would ask that you keep this confidential.

Jeff

I wanted to give you some background on my thoughts before we meet this week. This should help you understand the basic business model for VarsGuide.

I've been thinking about the channel model for the AIDC industry for a long time and believe that the current model needs to be refreshed. Many of the long held beliefs in our industry are perpetuated by veterans that are resistant to accept change. Their reasons include:

1. Their financial model is not strong enough to weather a transition.
2. They are scared to be the first one to challenge the status quo.
3. Their business is good today and plan on riding the current model to the end of their career.
4. They don't want to accept that AIDC products are nearing commoditization.
6. They believe distributors drive demand and can influence reseller's purchasers.
7. They don't understand how the current technology trends will affect our industry.

I'm convinced that the AIDC channel can be changed to reflect the continued commoditization of products and the need for vertical based resellers. The new model would follow a two pronged approach:

1. Broad product availability for low value customers utilizing direct marketers and etailers with product acquisition costs set to ensure that manufacturer's control their ASP in the market.

In some cases, where minimum order quantities apply, DMAR's/etailers would become stocking customers with purchases made directly from the manufacturer. If they prefer to acquire from a distributor they would pay a higher price with savings determined based on efficiencies brought by the distributor.

2. Recruitment of vertical based solutions providers that are certified by the manufacturer and are exclusive to the manufacturer. In exchange for this exclusivity, the manufacturer would make deep investments in the reseller to help them transform into business process specialists, in their chosen vertical, utilizing the manufacturer's technology to bring documented ROI to the end user. In the first 24 months, the manufacturer would pick 2-3 per target industry and provide them with the following;

- a. Vision and blue print of the business reseller future business model.
- b. Future financial model and transitional strategies.
- c. Professional services metrics, employee profiles, management training, estimating skills, collateral development, IP legal guidance, etc.
- d. Marketing/Branding education and plans.

- e. Vertical specific product development when warranted.

This move is supported by the technology trends affecting our market. These trends including the cloud, HTML5, virtualization and service oriented architecture. For resellers to prosper in the future their business model will need to be built around 5 key technologies. They are:

1. Service Oriented Architecture
2. Resilient Networks
3. Applied Business Intelligence (Next step for BI/BA)
4. The device
5. Pervasive Media

Manufactures will need to set this new vision for the channel and build enablement programs to help the resellers built skills in these areas and help them make the transition to the new business model. In many cases, the current resellers will not be capable of transforming and a new set of partners will have to be built or identified.

In addition, I would re-evaluate the role of distribution to include:

1. The direct vs indirect mix.
2. Move primary marketing of the manufacturer's products back to the manufacturer and utilize distribution wide marketing.
3. Out source marketing for speed and efficiency but control programs and message to the market.
4. Do not pay distribution for marketing their own brand.
5. Pay rebates based on customer service level metrics and sale.

This approach would be funded by reductions in distribution margins and rebates, redirection of MDF dollars or a combination of of these items. Since you would ask them to do less, reducing their costs, they should be paid less.

I still believe that distribution is vital to the health of the AIDC industry but also believe that it's time to move to a model more in line with the maturity of the products.

Benefits to the manufacturer include:

1. More efficient use of the channel.
2. Control of the brand message.
3. Better visibility of the demand funnel.
4. Closer ties with the end user customer.
5. Tighter relationship with specific partners.
6. Vertical market brand association.

A VarsGuide would outsource the:

1. Education and marketing of this new model to VAR's
2. Develop the training program for the chosen, vertical VAR's
3. Product launch of new products
4. Marketing and demand generation at the end user level with lead warming. All qualified leads would be given to the manufacturer, or VAR for final closing and fulfillment.
5. End user education for end users.

This is obviously confidential between you and me. So please do not discuss this email with anyone else or forward to anyone else.

Thanks for your time and I look forward to discussing with you tomorrow.

Bi-optic scanner program

Three things;

I've attached a bi-optic scanner marketing program that I'm going to present to Darius and John on Friday. Can you think of anything else I should add?

I also want to reverify that it's OK for me to say that you and I will work together on this project. Is it?

The second attachment is a product launch project plan. It's rough and needs some additional work but it's a start. Is there anything you would add?

Jeff

Hi Jeff - I think the Bi-optic Plan looks good. The only think I think we should make sure is in there is a very targeted VAR campaign, since we are fishing in a pretty small pond (and they know that). This may be a part of items 6 and 8 on your plan, not sure.

Yes, I would love to work on this one with you. We did not yet discuss hourly rate, but assuming we can figure that out, I am in :)

Give me until tomorrow to get back to you on the product launch plan, I want a little more time to think through that and digest it. Honeywell is very haphazard in their product launch plans (well, all vendors are), I want to make sure I give good feedback on this one.

Thanks,

Penn

Hey, can you print these for me and bring them home?? Need the Excel one especially. Watch the pages it prints, I think it is formatted to print more pages than there is content.

Love you!!

Hi - OK, I am adding some thoughts to the Product Launch Plan - I think it is a good outline, and I know there will be some debate on timing (I am filling in some of the blanks on timing), but it is a great starting point. You may want to add an "owner" column beside each header - i.e. some vendors will use their own PR person, some may use us. Some will coordinate their own target list, some will want us to drive it. Etc. I think we should create generic go-to-market strategies that can be adapted to the product / niche (I will work one up one the next few days - unless you need it by Friday). And make sure we include demo product in the timeline - for VARs, mfr SEs, and distribution tech support (and product management).

I look forward to hearing how Friday's meeting goes.

Thanks,
Penn

OK. Good points. I will add these items.

I think this plan is going to be a continuous work in progress. The more we use it the better it will become.

I'm excited and pumped. Let's just keep our fingers crossed that Friday goes well.
