Ms. Burns:

I apologize for the delay in responding. At this time, the RTSC has been dropped due to substantial compliance on the part of the former court reporter. However, we have not yet been able to locate this particular hearing in the records provided.

We have a contractor working on cataloging the information from the records provided to us. It is possible that the hearing may still be located. If waiting a little longer is not an option, though, we can certainly ask the trial court to recreate the record.

Please let us know how you wish to proceed at this time.

Sincerely,

Tiffany B. Raines

Good Morning All,

I hope everyone is doing well. I am just reaching out for another status check on the additional search on the drives for the missing transcript. A Rule to Show Cause for Ms. Caney was also underway.

Appellate Case #: 2021-000266 (Troy Wilson v. Carolina Custom Painting and Drywall, LLC)

Have there been any other updates in this case?

Respectfully,

LaToyla Burns

Ms. Burns:

Although we have, to date, been able to locate several hearings for which transcripts have been requested, we have not yet located this particular hearing. We are conducting an additional search of one of the drives, and will let you know what that search yields.

Thank you,

Good morning,

Unfortunately, we have been unable to get the records from the court reporter, who is no longer employed by the Branch. A Rule to Show Cause is in the process of being filed requiring the court reporter to produce the records or transcripts in several cases to include this one. We will keep you posted regarding the status of the transcript once Ms. Carney appears at the Supreme Court. Sorry for the delay.

Thank you,

Good Morning Deputy Karama,

I am reaching out for a status check of counsel's request for the transcript in the following case:

Appellate Case #: 2021-000266 (Troy Wilson v. Carolina Custom Painting and Drywall, LLC)

Counsel initially requested the transcripts back in March of this year and have still not received the transcripts. Please advise at your earliest convenience.
